"The milk produced by the average Missouri cow in a year will sell for about $50 at the creamery or when made into first-class butter. A good cow of the dairy breed will make at least $50 cash income every year. I have a list of about 50 Missouri farmers who report a cash income of $50 to $100 a cow every year, and these figures do not include the income from the sale of calves, and pigs fed on the skim milk. 'But,' says one, 'milking is a tremendous task.' As a matter of fact, it takes only 60 hours, worth 15 cents an hour, to milk a cow twice a day for ten months.

"Last year the cash income from the herd of cattle on the college farm was $82.50 a cow for butter sold and $12.50 a cow for milk, skimmed milk and calves, making a total income from each cow of $95. This year the average income per cow from the same source will be over $100 for the entire herd of 28. These results do not come from expensive or excessive treatment of any kind. But they are the result of doing the right things at the right time in the proper way."

A DAIRY CATECHISM.

Some Questions and Answers for the Education of the Keeper of Cows.

Q. How many kinds of cows are there?

A. Three.

Q. What are they?

A. Dairy cows, beef cows and combination cows.

Q. What is a dairy cow?

A. One that has the ability to turn all she may eat and digest, over and above that required for maintenance, toward the udder, there to be transformed into milk.

Q. What is the beef cow?

A. One that turns her surplus food into fat.

Q. What is the combination cow?

A. One that tries to take both turns of the road and never gets anywhere.

Q. What causes this difference in cows?

A. Heredity.

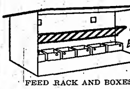
Q. What is heredity?

A. The biological law by which living beings, whether animal or plants, tend to reproduce themselves in their descendants.—Blooded Stock.

FEEDING RACK FOR CATTLE

Cattle Shed with Convenient Feeding Boxes for the Dairy Farm.

The cut shows interior of cattle shed arranged with rack and boxes for feeding, says Farm and Home. The rack, a, may be built of two by fours placed horizontally above and below with slats one by two or two by two vertically for holding the hay. The boxes, b, may be made of any suitable size. They are placed in position loose and have a large hole bored in one end to make them easily removed for cleaning, which we do after each feed.



FEED RACK AND BOXES.

HINTS FOR THE DAIRY.

Wasteful feeding may mean too much or too little.

Always skim sweet milk; never let cream thicken.

Cows should be milked with dry hands and the udders should be washed clean.

Provide a milking stool with a bottom to set the pail on for the boy. Don't expect him to hold the pail between his legs.

Improved machinery improves every industry. The dairy cow is the most important of the machinery connected with the dairy.

Cream is a very perishable article and must be kept under the most favorable conditions if good butter is to be made out of it.

A Missouri writer says: "Missouri has 800,000 dairy cows, and has sunshine, water, grass and feed enough to support 10,000,000 cows."

Any farmer that has ten or more cows should have a silo unless he is selling his milk to some company that refuses to take milk made out of silage.

Stable ventilation is best secured by some well-constructed and easily operated device, rather than by loose boards or accidental holes in the windows.

Borers.

Borers burrow in the base of the trunks of trees. The only way to fight them at this time of year is to inspect the trees and dig out the borers with a stiff wire. It is well to scrape all the loose bark off the trunks of the trees and whitewash them. This will at least make it easy to find the borers, and the whitewash will perhaps prevent to some extent the entrance of borers.—Farmer's Review.

MINE ON FIRE SINCE 1857.

Vein of Coal in Pennsylvania Still Unextinguished After Forty-Seven Years.

President Lewis A. Riley, of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, in his annual report, says that one of the company's mines near Tamaqua has been on fire for 47 years, says Fuel. Regarding the efforts now made to quench these subterranean fires the report says:

"A portion of the outcrop of the Mammoth vein in this locality has been on fire since 1857, the fire being confined by the water filling the workings below water level and cut-offs on the outcrop. Before opening the colliery below water level it is necessary either to extinguish the fire or get it under control. During the past year efforts have been made with this end in view which have met with a large measure of success. A boiler plant and pumping machinery have been erected on the bank of the Little Schuylkill river at Tamaqua for the purpose of pumping water to the level of the outcrop. A branch of the Panther Creek railroad has been extended nearly two miles to reach the outcrop, and more holes have put down at various places where there were indications of fire. The fire is being extinguished by washing fine coal dirt through bore holes on the fire and filling up the vacant spaces so as to cut off the air supply."

HE DIDN'T WANT THE COAT

But There Was Something in the Inside Pocket He Did Want.

The truth of this story is vouched for by the victim, says the New York Sun.

"Where is that old blue coat I knocked around in last summer?" he asked his wife. She was not quick to offer an explanation.

"It was here only yesterday," remarked the husband. "I know it was."

"Yes," said the wife with a touch of anger, "I know it was. I just got sick and tired of seeing that coat and a lot of other old stuff lying around cluttering things up, and I sold it this morning."

"You sold it! Sold the coat—the old blue coat?"

"Yes, I sold it. And I don't want you to go around moping about it."

"Dear, I didn't want the coat, but to-morrow is your birthday and I had hidden a ring and a nice yellow bill in the inside pocket. I wanted to surprise you and I couldn't think of a better hiding place."

The victim says that what happened after that is nobody's business.

TRUE HEROISM OF LIFE.

Found in Every-Day Occupations That Call for Steady Heads and Hands.

Prof. William James, of Harvard university, relates that, upon a certain journey, he was questioning with himself whether or not the higher heroism of life was passing out of human society; and that, at the very moment, he looked from the car window and suddenly got sight of a number of workmen performing some task on the dizzy ledge of an iron construction at a great height. This at once brought to his mind, says Success Magazine, a sense of the every-day bravery of men in everyday occupations. It flashed upon him, on the instant, that the true heroism of life is found, not only on the day of battle and in desperate adventures, but also in building every bridge, or in the ordinary day-by-day service of the world, whether of the sailor upon his deck, the brakeman upon his train, the lumberman upon his raft, or wherever else men are at work.

"As I awoke to this unidealized heroic life around me," he says, "the scales seemed to fall from my eyes, and a wave of sympathy greater than I had ever before felt with the common life of common men began to fill my soul."

WOODS FOR FURNITURE.

Objections to Oak and Rosewood—Walnut's Day Gone—Seasoning Mahogany.

Some of the best cabinetmakers of New York are chary of working in oak. Really old and well-seasoned oak is hard to get and harder to work, says the New York Sun.

There is no great quantity of old oak furniture in the market, and old pieces that would supply large enough lumber for important work are seldom found. New kiln-dried oak is uncertain, being liable to warp and crack.

Paneled articles can be made of such material with some safety, but large solid articles are likely to give a bad account of themselves at the end of a winter in a steam-heated house.

Rosewood also the best cabinetmakers distrust. This wood has a peculiarly oily quality that makes it uncertain when glued. For this reason rosewood is used chiefly as a veneer. Thin sheets lose much of their oil and take glue satisfactorily.

Solid rosewood furniture is hard to find.

Unpardonable.

Installments on Red Lake Lands.

U. S. Land Office, CROOKSTON, MINN.,
June 16, 1905

The installments on Red Lake lands are due one year after purchase, and must be paid within 60 days thereafter, or lands will be forfeited. In order to get the correct amount of the installment, multiply the number of acres by the price paid per acre, and from this amount deduct the 20 per cent paid at the time of purchase, and divide the balance by 5. This will give the exact amount of the five installments. Always give the description of the lands, and present post office address. No private checks will be accepted from anybody.

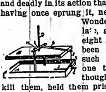
ROAD AND FARM IMPROVEMENT

AN EXCELLENT RAT TRAP.

Home-Made Device Which Will Catch the Most Wary and Cunning Rodent.

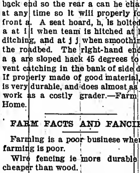
The only kind of trap proved to the writer a complete success is the deadfall shown in the accompanying cut. It has been used in his family for nearly half a century, catching, during that time, an army of rats. Simple in construction, it is, nevertheless, so swift and deadly in its action that any rodent, having once sprung it, never escapes. Wonderful to relate, as many as eight rats have been caught in such a trap at one time, which, though it did not kill them, held them prisoners until they could be dispatched, says Fred O. Sibley, in Epitomist. The platform A should be about 20 inches square, and the drop B consist of hardwood plank with two holes bored through exactly middle-way, so that it will slide readily up and down the posts supporting the crosspiece H. Through the center of this is a hole for the similar action of the circular post D, which is securely embedded into B. A piece of light band-iron is G, which, when the trap is set, rests on the support H and, being loosely fastened to D at I by an iron pin thus holds up the plank B. The rat enters and begins nibbling at Indian meal sprinkled in the groove of the platform at J, and finally reaching the spindle, hidden beneath it, agitates it enough to displace the bottom E on the outside; this, in turn, releases both the string F and band-iron G, the latter of which, owing to the weight of the plank B, is drawn upward into a groove, sawed middle-way through D by its sliding down the hole in the center of H and as the motion of B is then exceedingly fast, the victim, ere it can scramble over the sides round the platform, is caught and killed. Provided the affair, is nicely adjusted and made so that it operates easily, there is no patented trap on the market, to my knowledge, half as good, for it has such an innocent appearance that the oldest and most cunning rat will ultimately be caught by it. To work well the spindle C should have a little play, and the more lightly the button E rests against the notch cut in it and yet will hold, the better. Made on a smaller scale, this kind of trap is also most excellent with which to catch mice.



HOME-MADE ROAD SCRAPER

It Will Do as Good Work as the High-Priced Grader, and Is Very Durable.

In the illustration a a are 3x12x8 feet long, bottom edge beveled with its hoe of steel ¼x4 inches, bolted on cutting edge as shown at g. The crosspieces, e e, are bolted with inch bolts in mortises 1x8, two inches from the top of a a, and made out of 1x4x30-inch iron, which has holes in front ends to fasten draft chain to, also a hole in e at the right-hand end to bolt brace, f, on, which is also bolted to the rear a at h. The guider, f, is 1x2 inches and six feet long, with holes in back end so the rear a can be changed at any time so it will properly follow front a. A seat board, h, is bolted to a a at i i when team is hitched at h for ditching, and at j j when smoothing up the roadbed. The right-hand ends of a a are sloped back 45 degrees to prevent catching in the bank of side ditch. If properly made of good material, this is very durable, and does almost as good work as a costly grader.—Farm and Home.



ROAD GRADER.

FARM FACTS AND FANCIES.

Farming is a poor business when the farming is poor.

Wire fencing is more durable and cheaper than wood.

A farmer without plans is next to a ship without a rudder.

One way to increase the profits in farming is to reduce the cost of production.

What per cent. of that seed corn do you think will grow? If you haven't tested it, you don't know.

The greatest saving of time is made by the use of the best tools in the preparation of the ground, planting the seed, and after cultivation.

It is much more profitable to keep land in good condition than to get it out of such condition by one-sided fertilization and then try to bring it back.

Time will be saved and you will be apt to be more careful in your selection if the seed corn is selected this month. If you intend buying seed, place your order now.

Every farmer should have his seed corn testing patch on which competing selections from his own fields and varieties secured elsewhere may be subjected to a careful field test under his own eye.

Nine Nations

Now Use Liquozone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquozone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some-one whom Liquozone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquozone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquozone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound of imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the vile attendant on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. Climatic Cures.

The influence of climate conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Save Big Money.

Minnesota farmers will save approximately $300,000 annually in the purchase of binding twine when the new machinery recently installed in the twine plant at the state prison is run to its full capacity, which will probably be next year says the Pioneer Press.

The savings this year will approximate $275,000. The state board of control plans to manufacture approximately 11,000,000 pounds, and the prices fixed by the state are about 2¼ cents lower than the prices to consumers fixed by dealers in binding twine.

At the close of the present year the amount which Minnesota farmers will have saved through the state twine plant will be nearly $15,000,000, and the profit to the state will be considerably in excess of $500,000. Since the plant was established in 1891 more than 60,000,000 pounds of twine have been manufactured.

The state has recently installed new machinery, which will materially increase the output of the plant. The board of control expects to manufacture from 12,000,000 to 13,000,000 next year. The new machinery is in operation, but the plant will not be run to its full capacity this year.

One reason why the state is able to save Minnesota farmers so large an amount this year is because the board of control purchased the raw material early, before the prices went up. In addition to this, the state being a large purchaser can get the best bargains, and being a large manufacturer, can reduce expenses to the minimum.

Installments on Red Lake Lands.

U. S. Land Office, CROOKSTON, MINN.,
June 16, 1905.

The installments on Red Lake lands are due one year after purchase, and must be paid within 60 days thereafter, or lands will be forfeited. In order to get the correct amount of the installment, multiply the number of acres by the price paid per acre, and from this amount deduct the 20 per cent paid at the time of purchase, and divide the balance by 3. This will give the exact amount of the five installments. Always give the description of the lands, and present post office address. No private checks will be accepted from anybody.

GOLDEN NUGGETS FOR SALLOW PEOPLE

BITTEN BY A MAD DOG

Rooksbury Farmer Taken To Chicago For Treatment But Slight Hopes Entertained For His Recovery.

Swan Anderson, an aged farmer residing near St. Hilaire in Rocksbury township, has been sent to the Pasteur Institute, Chicago, for treatment for rabies, unmistakable signs of which he has shown as a result of a bite from a mad dog received on his farm several days ago.

Anderson has owned the dog in question for several years and, not understanding the symptoms of the dread rabies when they were manifested in the canine, allowed the animal to run loose about the farm after becoming inoculated with the deadly germ. The result was a wholesale spread of the rabies to cattle, sheep and cats upon the Anderson farm and the final biting of the owner in his endeavors to shoot the frenzied animal.

The dog, when Anderson attempted to corral and kill it, became ferocious and in the melee imbedded his teeth in the fleshy part of Anderson's thigh. Several hours elapsed before a physician from St. Hilaire could be summoned and brought to the scene and the Andersons being unfamiliar with the dread disease, did nothing for the unfortunate man. The result was a showing of all the signs of rabies by the time of Dr. Bloomberg's arrival upon the scene. The wound was cauterized with a white hot iron in the usual way and Anderson sent off immediately in charge of a physician to the Pasteur Institute, Chicago, where everything possible will be done to save his life.

The progress which the poison had made before the arrival of a physician however, makes recovery doubtful. It is even doubtful if he succeeds in reaching Chicago alive as but thirty-six hours are required generally for rabies to end life. Precautions will be taken enroute to insure against any possible violence which Anderson might do if suddenly taken mad as a result of his affliction with the deadly disease.

The mad dog scare has progressed so far in the valley, that stringent regulations have been adopted by municipalities and all dogs caught without the regulation wire muzzle should be immediately shot by the police. Several hundred animals have been killed at Crookston already in enforcing the regulations but the majority of the dogs were curs. A steer bit by a dog went mad there last week and was killed and a valuable driving horse owned by Dr. Langevin had to be shot for a similar reason. Several people have been bitten but Anderson's case is the only one in which serious results have occurred. The country is thoroughly aroused and all manner of precautions are being taken to prevent a spread of the disease.

LAYING THE STEEL.

Soo Line Starts Work West From Thief River

Thief River News: The steel gang on the western extension of the Soo line will commence work this week and, as they lay two miles and a half of track a day, this city will soon have direct railroad communication with the country to the west. The material yards are filled to overflow with steel rails, ties and other equipment for the road and nothing will delay work after it is once commenced.

The Soo has one of the best equipped track laying outfits in the United States, and it is a sight well worth seeing to witness the work.

As soon as the line is completed as far as the Red river, train service between this city and Warren and other points will be established, and extended from time to time until the road is completed.

I tried many remedies, without relief, until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds which entirely cured my cough, and saved me from consumption." MAY BE WANTED.

Minnesota Scandinavians May Be Called to Fight in Case of War.

The break between Sweden and Norway is being watched with great interest in this country, where so many Scandinavians have located. Those who have neglected to take out their citizens' papers are especially concerned with the probable effect of a war upon them. The Minneapolis Tribune says that thousands of Scandinavians in Minnesota have not been naturalized and that they are all liable to be drafted by the governments of their respective countries. Should war come to pass, both countries would want to bring their armies up to their full strength and every citizen liable to army service would be called upon to enter the army. It is said, so says the Tribune, that the governments, through their many consuls are looking up to their subjects and that their presence will be demanded soon at home. The government of Scandinavia keeps good track of its citizens in foreign countries. The law of the Scandinavian countries permits a subject who has become a naturalized American to inherit property there but the party forfeits the property if he fails ot respond to defend his former country if called upon to do so. This fact complicates the situation in hundreds of cases and altogether the trouble between the countries has caused great interest and anxiety in this country.

THE SUMNER SCHOOL.

The Red Lake County Summer School will begin July 5th in the high school building in Red Lake Falls and will continue in session four (4) weeks of six (6) days each, making a total of twenty-four (24) days of school, with the following corps of instructors: Prof. C. S. Yeager, of Fosston, as conductor, with Adolph Olson, of Brandon, Mrs. W. A. McIntyre, of Red Lake Falls, and Endell Everdell, of Moorhead, as assistants.

Mr. Yeager and Mrs. McIntyre are too well known to the teachers of Red Lake county to need any introduction. Mr. Olson is a specialist in the branches he will teach having taken a special course in those studies at the Chicago University. Mrs. Everdell comes direct from the Moorhead Normal and will teach the same subjects at the summer school which she taught at the normal school.

All branches required by law for first and second grade state certificates will be taught.

During the session evening lectures will be delivered by State Supt. J. W. Olson, Pres. Frank A. Weld and other prominent educators of the state.

A report of the school will be published in the county papers at the close of the session, which will contain the names of all teachers who receive certificates of perfect attendance, also the number of days each teacher attends, as well as the names of teachers who do not attend.

State teachers' examinations will be held Aug. 3, 4 and 5.

You are requested to bring any text books you may have treating on any of the subjects required for second or first grade certificates.

All parties desiring my aid in securing board or rooms should write me as soon as possible or call at my office in the court house on arriving in the city.

The summer school affords a splendid opportunity for teachers to improve both in scholarship and methods of teaching and all teachers as well as those who expect to teach the coming year are expected to attend.

H. T. McANULTY, Co. Supt.

Dated Red Lake Falls, June 22, 1905.

Prominent People Wed.

Martin Mossefin, the well known Crookston dry goods salesman, was married Wednesday at Thief River Falls to Miss Linda Sweaas, one of the prominent young ladies of Thief River Falls who in years past spent much time in Crookston and is popular throughout the valley.

The wedding was held at the home of the bride's parents in Thief River Falls and friends and relatives of the contracting parties attended. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Mossefin left for Detroit Lake to enjoy a several weeks' outing on their honeymoon trip. Later they will return to Crookston.

WILL BUY NEW CART

Local Fire Department Determined To Fit Out Their Excellent Running Team.

At the meeting of the local fire department Saturday evening the preliminary steps towards purchasing a new running cart for the local department will be taken and it is more than likely that before many days the boys will own a cart second to none in this section of the state, and will be equipped to enter the future tournaments in as good shape as the best of them.

Nothing has been decided as to the make of cart they will buy, but several salesmen will likely be here to exploit the merits of their wares, and a first-class article will be selected.

The team won enough in prizes on their recent Blackduck trip to fit them out in fine shape, and the people here can expect to see them give an excellent accounting of themselves in the future.

DON'T SHOW GAIN.

Several Northern Counties Fall Behind In Population.

Returns have been received by the supervisor of the census for many country districts in the northern part of the state, and so far as given out the returns for this part of the state are not at all satisfactory. In several townships in Red Lake county the enumerators have failed to find as many people as were listed in 1900, and in three or four the count has fallen from 50 to 100 below what it was five years ago.

This is of course considerable of a surprise to the people of this part of the state, but when the reason is ferreted out is not strange. During the past several years the trend of immigration has been to the Canadian west, and throughout this locality but little has been done to offset the loss we have had. The county has ample room for thousands of active settlers, but there has been absolutely no united effort made to secure them.

As a rule the cities of the valley have shown substantial gains, but the country districts have more than lost enough to offset the advancement made in the towns.

Minnesota as a state will not make a very criditable showing over five years ago when the census returns are made public.

SCHOOL ELECTION MONDAY.

Voters of Independent School District No. 15 Will Vote on Bonds.

As will be seen by a notice published elsewhere in The Gazette a special meeting of the electors of school district No. 15 will be held at the Lafayette school building here next Monday evening for the purpose of voting on the question of empowering the board of education to issue bonds in an amount not to exceed the sum of $3000 for the purpose of erecting a building to replace the old Washington school, said building not to cost more than $8000. The Board has some $5000 on hand for this purpose, and the voters will be asked to empower them bond the district for $3000 more in order that a modern building may be erected to replace the old one.

It is a matter of public interest and a large crowd of citizens should turn out Monday evening and show the board that they heartily approve the course they have taken in the matter of replacing the old building.

Sabbath School Organized.

Last Sabbath afternoon Rev. H. W. Knox held services in the new school house in Lake Pleasant township, seven miles from this city. After the sermon, a Sunday school was organized with Miss Witcherman as superintendent; Mr. Haeherle, assistant superintendent, and Sam Luxemberger, secretary and treasurer. The school house was filled. Nearly twenty Protestant families will be reached by this Sabbath school. Mr. Knox will preach at the school house every two weeks. The Sabbath school will be held at 3 p. m. and church service immediately after. D. K. Laurie, the Sabbath school missionary, will preach next Sunday afternoon.

That's why "MASCOT" flour is so hard to beat.

Don't take our word for it, but try a sample order and be convinced that it is the best flour on the market today. We have been testing flour for years and have never found a brand that come so near our idea of the best. The quality is always uniform and it is equally good for bread, pastry and cake. Try it and see.

It is not strange that Page fence will stretch up smoothly over hills and down through ravines. It is made to do it, and it is simply putting into use one of the innate properties of its coiled wire. It is elastic.

It is not strange that short kinks or bends in wire cannot supply this elasticity like a coil or spiral. If they could, why haven't the manufacturers of spring balances, or of car springs used a kinked, crimped or other shaped metal than a coil. Probably the reason is that kinked or crimped metal will not let out and take up, will not shorten and lengthen like a coil spring.

Further, why do you suppose that high-carbon stock is always used for springs unless it is because low-carbon stock will not make a spring. Low-carbon stock is much the cheaper.

Hair springs in watches are made of only a little higher carbon stock than Page-Wire is made of, in fact, there is not much more difference between the proportion of carbon in Page Wire and watch-spring wire, than there is between the fence wire generally in use and that which we use for all the horizontal wires in Page fences.

SHOULD VOTE "YES."

The people of Red Lake Falls will be asked to vote on a proposition to bond this school district to the amount of $3000, at a meeting at the school house next Monday evening and it would seem that a unanimous vote of "yes" would be the result.

With the money now on hand and an added $3000 the board can cause to be erected a school building that will stand as a lasting advertisement to Red Lake Falls. The new edifice will be of brick, and will another step ahead of which the people may well be proud.

A few improvements of this nature and our city will be in a position to say to the prospective settler, "come and abide in the most progressive city in the Valley" and it should be a labor of love with the residents to make this condition a realized possibility.

Vote "yes" on the bond question, and show the world that Red Lake Falls wants the best, and the best only.

The Fertile Journal remarks that Flag day is a new thing and that probably accounts for the fact that many towns did not observe it. We would have it on every court house when court is in session and on every school house during school school hours and in short on every public building during business hours. It is the national emblem and people should be taught to associate it with public business.

The meeting to be held in Crookston on the second Tuesday in August for the purpose of perfecting the organization of the state drainage league will be one of the most important gatherings of the kind ever held in the state says the Roseau Region. An erroneous report has gained circulation to the effect that it is an organization for the benefit of the northern part of the state. This is not the idea. It is the purpose to have a more comprehensive organization, embracing the entire state of Minnesota. There will be delegates there from every portion of the state and elaborate preparations will be made by Crookston for the entertainment of the large gathering.

Frank M. Eddy, former congressman, says that republicans should elect a governor in Minnesota the next campaign, and that he should be a Hennepin county man. Said Mr. Eddy: "The republicans to elect a governor should elect a good, clean cut business man, from Hennepin county if possible, but at least one that will be acceptable to Hennepin county. Past elections have shown that a republican candidate for governor who cannot get the support of Hennepin usually goes down to defeat. Gov. Johnson is a good friend of mine and he is making a good governor, but there is no more good reason that Minnesota should have a democratic governor with its 75,000 normal majority, then there is that it should send democratic representatives to congress."

You can see some fine hammocks if you will step into Hunt's Hardware Store.

THE CITY'S PRIDE.

But few towns of any size in the great state of Minnesota can boast two such excellent organizations as the Red Lake Falls band and the running team of the local fire department, and the manner in which they acquitted themselves at the tournament at Blackduck last week gives the people cause for rejoicing.

It was practically the first appearance of the band organization outside of the home county, and while the people here have boasted of having the best band in the northwest, could they have heard the many compliments given to the organization from representatives from every city of any consequence in this part of the state they would think that their own estimate had not been placed too low. On every hand could be heard compliments and praises for the organization and for the city that supported it, and it is safe to presume that our own town never had an advertisement that will mean more to it than that which it received last week through its musical organization.

The same can be truthfully said of the running team that represented our fire department. Going into the races with the cream of the departments from Northern Minnesota who had had several years of experience and training our boys carried off the biggest end of the prize money and put themselves in a position to be recognized as worthy foes in the coming contests. Their work was immense, and showed that that undying spirit of determination to get there is predominent in the make-up of a majority of the people of the city.

Let us rejoice at the showing made by these organizations and by concerted action aim to make their excellent advertisement of the "Gem of the Valley" lasting in its benefits to the city at large.

Michael Doran, poineer, broker, democratic boss and general factotum of St. Paul, announces that he will retire from active business and become a gentleman of leisure. Mr. Doran is 78 years old and had been a hard worker since he went to St. Paul. He came to Minnesota in 1856 and settled in LeSuer county as a farmer. Three years later he was elected county treasurer and later to the state legislature. This was the begining of his long and active career which culminated in his joint control of the national patronage in Minnesota during the Cleveland rule. Doran and P. H. Kelly doing business under the firm name "Me and Mike," ran things in Minnesota to suit that firm. At that time Doran was state chairman of the democracy and Kelly national committee man. Doran was the accepted captain and Kelly the first mate of the democratic ship. Of late years, however, Mr. Doran had been less active in politics.

A STEP AHEAD.

In conversation with a leading business man the first of the week, The Gazette was told that some twenty of the business firms on Main street had signified a willingness to construct cement sidewalks in front of their places immediately, provided the city would build a gutter along every foot of cement walk laid, but that so far the council had refused to do this and wanted the property owners to build their own curbs and gutters.

To an outsider this would look a trifle strange, inasmuch as a great many towns have offered to build a gutter and also furnish one third of the cost of the walk and if Red Lake Falls can get several blocks of fine cement sidewalks with such a slight expenditure to the city as building the gutter would be there does not seem to be any reason why a resolution to that effect should not at once be passed. There is no improvement that is more lasting or shows off a place to better advantage than several blocks of substantial cement walk, and it should be a matter of pride to the "powers that be" to offer what inducement they can toward getting the good work started. The Gazette has taken the pains to talk with several leading people in regard to this matter, and the general opinion expressed is that the council should immediately agree to furnish a cement gutter to correspond with every foot of cement walk on Main street.

What think you, gentlemen?

A NEEDED LESSON.

The fact that a majority of the counties of the Red River Valley will show practicly no gain in population over five years ago is a needed lesson to the people of this section of the state, and while there are some who will view the results with apprehension, to one who will stop to consider there is a world of good to be realized from this condition of affairs.

Taking our own county as an example, we find that a majority of rural sections show a decrease in population over five years ago, but when we stop to look into the matter we also find the reason is apparent. Practically every man, woman, and child in the county that is able to read the English language, and the ads have appeared in other languages as well, has had innumerable occasions during the past couple of years to read of the Canadian west as a place of abode, and so persistent have been the advertisers and so alluring their propositions that hundred of farmers have been induced to leave here for the brighter prospects beyond. What have we done to off set this? Have we had any concerted action towards showing the people of other sections the advantages we have? Haven't we allowed these Canadian boomers to put us entirely to rout in the matter of publicity, while we have sat back and waited? It is nothing new or strange, and is simply the old repeated story of insufficent advertising and publicity. True several enterprising land firms have invested a hundred or so of dollars in the good work, but their investments have been but pittances beside the enourmous amounts spent to boom other sections.

The Gazette does not mean to criticise any individual or set of men, but believes that the people generally are to be blamed for this condition. With the finest agricultural lands in the state, with a stock raising country that is absolutly unequaled in Minnesota, with the innumerable advantages of cheap fuel, ready access to market and many other points, there is no reason to be advanced why the Red River Valley should not triple this population instead of showing a decrease.

It can all be summed up shortly in merely saying "lack of publicity" and until such time as the people learn that "keeping constantly at it brings success" we never expect such conditions to confront us as we are face to face with at present.

BUILDING BIG ELEVATORS.

Red Lake Falls Milling Company Branching Out.

The Red Lake Falls Milling Company is erecting large storehouses and elevators at both Climax and Nielsville upon the Halstad line and evidently intend to go after the wheat in this section of the country with energy this fall. Manager Sivertson, of the company, left Tuesday evening enroute to both points to superintend the work of construction and watch the progress of the houses.

The mills in this city and at Crookston require an enormous amount of wheat and the rich Halstad and Nielsville country has during the past year or more depended mainly on track buyers for an outlet for grain, will in the future supply a large amount of the raw material for both establishments.

More Land Opened Up.

Washington, June 26.—Announcement was made at the general land office today that 37,800 acres of land would be thrown open in Minnesota on August 15th. A PRETTY WEDDING.

Polk Center Home The Scene of Happy Event Last Sunday.

On Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock a very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Larson, of Polk Center, being the marriage of their son, C. J. Larson, of St. Paul, to Miss Hilda A. Carlson, of Stillwater, Rev. Sande officiating.

The ceremony was performed in the open, that is to say, out of doors, on a temporarily constructed platform walled and hemmed in by the beautiful poplars constituting the magnificent grove about the Larson home, and was a very pretty affair.

The bride's gown was of white crepe de chine over white taffeta, princess style, and elaborately trimmed with point lace, she carried a bridal boquette of lilies of the valley and maiden-hair ferns. Her going away gown was of blue rulline embroidered in blue daisies, with hat to match. Her maid of honor, Miss Jackson, of Minneapolis, wore a gown of white eyelet embroidery and carried white roses, while her bridesmaid, Miss Larson, the groom's sister, wore blue mousilline de soie and carried white carnations.

Following the ceremony a most sumptuous supper was served to the large number of invited guests,

Mr. Larson, formerly a teacher in this county and a contributor to this paper, well and favorably known here as a most exemplary young man is the advertising manager of the Stats Tidning, the pioneer Swedish weekly of the Northwest, with headquarters at St. Paul.

The bride is a most charming and accomplished young lady from Stillwater.

The happy couple left on the Monday train for St. Paul, their future home.

At the Presbyterian church on Sunday morning, Rev. H. W. Knox will begin a series of sermons on the "Apostles' Creed". The subject of the first sermon will be "What in God". This will be followed by seven other sermons on the fundamental articles of Christian faith.

Cash Brunelle, a former Red Lake Falls boy, is now chief of police of Blackduck, and the visitors from here last week were royally entertained by his honor while at that place. Cash makes an ideal policeman, and the wrongdoer gets no mercy, although he enjoys the confidence and respect of the people of his home town and surrounding country to a marked degree. He has done exceptionally well since going to Blackduck, and the people here will always be pleased to learn of his success.

SEEKS RICH MINING TRACT

Joliet, Ill., Man Claims 17,708 Acres Located in the State of California.

Joliet, Ill.—A fight for the possession of mining lands in California, estimated to be worth millions of dollars and running back since the days of President Lincoln, is to be renewed in congressional and court channels. Nicholas Stanton, one of the pioneer Irish residents of Joliet, a man 81 years of age, yet full of vigor, is the claimant.

Stanton is the only surviving relative of the late William McGarrahan, who purchased the mining tracts from a Mexican by the name of Gomez. The property is situated in Fresno and San Benito counties. There were 17,708 acres in the original tract. About 2,000 acres were sold by the United States government, among the large purchasers being the New Idrie Mining company, which has taken millions of dollars out of the mines.

McGarrahan was an old man when squatters settled on the tract, and attempted to take it from him. He carried the fight to Washington after he had purchased the land from the Mexican. He fought for years to have the national assembly do him justice. He would get the bill through the house only to see it defeated in the senate. Again he would get it through the senate, only to meet defeat in the house. It was Abraham Lincoln who signed the patent fixing the deed in McGarrahan's name.

After years of unceasing effort, McGarrahan finally saw the bill pass both the house and the senate. It was then put up to President Benjamin Harrison, who vetoed the bill. When this news was carried to McGarrahan, the old man, broken-hearted and prostrated over what he considered a national wrong, collapsed and shortly afterward died. He had spent $200,000 in prosecuting his case, and died penniless. He was buried by charity.

and had probably gotten lost in the desert while looking for their wagons. This thing was not uncommon, for it is almost impossible in the Colorado desert to find directions. While we were laying out the town of Imperial we had an instance of this in the loss of a young Japanese cook. The young fellow was employed in our surveying party and started out one day to find a friend who was employed as a cook in a camp about four miles distant. He lost his way and failed to return. Searching parties were started out to find him. They traced him for six days, but finally entirely lost the trial and had to return to the camp. The Japanese was never heard of and I presume his bones will be found some day."

REBELLION IN POLAND

RED FLAG OF REVOLT RAISED AT LODZ, WARSAW, KOVNO AND OTHER CITIES.

Recent Rioting at Lodz Results in the Death of More Than Six Hundred People and the Wounding of as Many Others—Uprisings Also Occur in the Caucasus, Where an Insurrection on a Large Scale Is Reported.

St. Petersburg, June 26.—The red flag of revolt has been raised at Warsaw, Kovno and other places in Russian Poland out of sympathy with the victims of the rioting at Lodz and so far as these cities are concerned the situation almost approaches the dignity of open rebellion. The news received in St. Petersburg is meager on account of the vigorous censorship, but it is evident the troops are being resisted and a repetition of the sanguinary encounters at Lodz is anticipated. The three big socialistic parties in Russian Poland are well organized and have some arms, but the authorities claim they have no chance of success singlehanded.

The Caucasus is also aflame with an insurrection on a big scale. The Mussulmans are actually besieging the Armenians in some of the towns. Peasant uprisings have also occurred in several provinces, notably Kharkoff, where the estates of half a dozen nobles have been burned and where the workmen resisted Cossacks with arms, wounding several of the soldiers.

SIX HUNDRED KILLED

CASUALTIES AT LODZ, RUSSIAN POLAND, TOTAL MORE THAN TWELVE HUNDRED.

Lodz, Russian Poland, June 26.—The victims of last week's outbreak total over 1,200. Thus far the bodies of 343 Jews and 218 Christians have been buried. The wounded number over 700.

The governor general has proclaimed a state of siege.

Some semblance of order has been restored and the workmen are gradually returning to the factories.

MOB THRONGS THE STREETS.

Crowds at Warsaw Clash With Czar's Soldiers.

Warsaw, June 27.—Disorderly crowds have thronged the streets since early morning. They erected barricades at Ogrodowa, Krochmelna and Wrenla streets, on top of which they placed red flags. The police and soldiers stormed these barricades and ten persons were wounded by bullets or bayonets. Another affray took place at Zelasna street, where Cossacks charged the crowd and wounded three persons. At the central market a crowd attacked a patrol with revolvers, to which the patrol replied with volleys, killing a boy and wounding three other persons.

Five workmen who had refused to strike were stabbed to death by their comrades. Revolutionary proclamations have been posted on the walls and 200 persons have been arrested.

ATTACKS GOVERNOR'S PALACE.

Mob at Kovno, Russia, Does Much Damage Before Dispersed.

Kovno, Russia, June 26.—A mob of 1,000 persons surrounded and attacked the police station and the governor general's palace. All the windows were broken before the rioters were dispersed by the police. Five policemen were wounded. A detachment of dragoons finally arrived on the scene and dispersed the rioters.

NAME PEACE ENVOYS

RUSSIA AND JAPAN SELECT PLENIPOTENTIARIES FOR WASHINGTON CONFERENCE.

Washington, June 27.—Russia has given reassurance of its intentions in the peace negotiations by placing the president in possession of the tentative selection of her plenipotentiaries, as follows: M. Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador at Paris, and Baron Rosen, the newly appointed Russian ambassador at Washington. Russia thus having taken the initiative, it is believed that Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, during his call at the White House Monday informally told the president that Japan's selections, also tentative, were Baron Komura, the Japanese minister for foreign affairs, and Kogoro Takahira, the Japanese minister at Washington.

Official announcement of the names of the plenipotentiaries is withheld for several reasons.

Convicted Murderer Suicides.

Lewiston, Pa., June 26.—Ellwood Garman, convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of William Murray, was found dead in his cell at Mifflintown. He committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid.

UNREST ALONG THE BORDER.

Marked Military Activity Reported on Franco-German Frontier.

Paris, June 23.—Official circles here observe the outward appearance of entire tranquillity over the Franco-German negotiations, but an undercurrent of considerable anxiety prevails relative to Germany's answer to the French note. This is somewhat intensified by publications purporting to give Germany's intention to insist that the Moroccan conference be not trammeled by specific limitations on its scope. Nothing, however, has yet been received from official sources indicating that such is the purpose of Germany and Premier Rouvier's associates maintain that as his note is couched in a calm, conciliatory tone there is reason to expect that Germany will answer him in a similar spirit of conciliation.

Reports from the front continue to show marked military activity and a feeling of unrest among the people living along the border. The influential press, evidently in accordance with the wishes of the government, refrains from discussing the military aspect, asserting that the negotiations, while in a delicate stage, continue normal.

DISMISSAL OF BOWEN

ACTION FOLLOWS EXONERATION OF ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE LOOMIS.

Washington, June 21—The dismissal of Herbert W. Bowen, for some years United States minister to Venezuela, and the exonerating of Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Loomis from the allegations brought against him, are the outcome of the Bowen-Loomis controversy, which has attracted widespread attention for many months past. This disposition of the case is made by President Roosevelt in a letter addressed to Secretary Taft, made public Tuesday night, approving Mr. Taft's findings and conclusions in the case. The president scathingly arraigns Mr. Bowen, declaring that his conduct is especially reprehensible; that Mr. Bowen asked one of his witnesses to enter the employ of one corporation for the purpose of "in plain words of stealing documents which he hoped might incriminate Mr. Loomis, and Mr. Bowen has for many months, indeed for the last two years" devoted himself "to hunting up scandal and gossip until it became a monomania and caused him to show distinct disloyalty" to the country he represented.

The president says he had hoped to promote Mr. Bowen, as during much of his service he had done good work, but that his usefulness in the diplomatic service is now at an end. The president adds that he would direct that Mr. Bowen's resignation be requested, but for his statement that he would consider a resignation as an admission of misconduct and the dismissal is therefore ordered.

TO VISIT DIPLOMATIC POSTS.

Loomis Will Investigate Embassies and Legations.

Washington, June 24.—Regarding the trip abroad of Assistant Secretary of State Loomis it is said at the state department that he has been commissioned by the president to make an investigation of the business methods of the various diplomatic posts of the United States in Europe with a view to bringing about such reforms as may be suggested by the inquiry, in connection with his own experience in the state department. It is expected that this mission will occupy him for perhaps two months. His inquiry will not affect in any way the conduct of the diplomatic business of the embassies and legations, but merely has to do with the administrative affairs.

It is not expected now that Mr. Loomis will return to the state department to remain for any considerable time—and he may not return at all—as assistant secretary of state. That he will receive some appointment at the hands of the president seems certain now, but it has not been determined yet what the appointment will be.

NEW TRIAL IS DENIED.

Mrs. Aggie Myers Sentenced to Be Hanged Aug. 11.

Kansas City, June 24.—Mrs. Aggie Myers, who was found guilty at Liberty, Mo., recently of murder in the first degree, has been refused a new trial and was sentenced to be hanged Aug. 11.

An appeal will be taken to the state supreme court. Mrs. Myers was convicted with Frank Hottman, who was infatuated with her, of killing the woman's husband, Clarence Myers, a printer, at their home in this city in May, 1904.

The appeal, which will act as a stay of execution, will, it is expected, be filed within a short time. The appeal cannot be passed upon until November next at the earliest.

KILLED BY A LIVE WIRE.

Telegraph Operator and a Lineman Electrocuted.

Trenton, N. J., June 26.—Walter Ewing, a telegraph operator from New York, and Wesley Davidson, a lineman of Hopewell, were killed while handling a live wire at Hopewell Sunday evening. Their mothers and Miss Matthews, who was to have married Ewing within a few weeks, were with them. The live wire had fallen on the sidewalk and in attempting to remove it the men were electrocuted.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

542 1-2 Congress St.
Portland, Maine, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. For e distance of twenty yards the engine ran on the rails and then, leeping from the treck, turned on its side just to ths eest of the depot. The momentum wes such thet the heavy tender wes hnrled entirely over the engine and wes huried in the depot. The comhination car was hurled with terrific violence on top of ths engins and tender and in a moment wes enveloped in flames from the engine.

Assistant General Superintendent Moon of the Lake Shors has given out the following statement in regard to the disaster:

"So fer es can he learned the switch wes opened and locked open by some party unknown, probahly a crank, and evidently for malicious purposes. GETS THE LION'S SHARE

Red Lake Falls Running Team Gets Big End Of Money Hung Up At Blackduck Tournament.

Armed with naught but the hope of making a respectable showing at their initial performance in a firemen's tournament, the running team of the Red Lake Falls fire department went over to Blackduck last week to participate in the annual tournament of the Northwestern Minnesota Firemen's Tournament association and now that it is all over we can wonder why we all couldn't see that a team composed of Red Lake Falls boys was the superior of anything in the valley.

The meeting was one of the most successful in the history of the organization, and while the attendance was not as large as it might have been, Blackduck people were highly pleased with the number of visitors at the tournament, and the crowd was unanimous in its praises of the treatment accorded it by the people of Blackduck.

The pretty little town built among the majestic pines of Beltrami county was in gala attire when the vanguard of visitors arrived Tuesday forenoon, and from that time on until the last special left at one o'clock Saturday morning the people literally tumbled over one another to show the visitors that Blackduck was theirs, and that they succeeded admirably was the unanimous verdict.

Tuesday was devoted to receiving visitors and a fishing excursion to Blackduck lake, but the rain in the afternoon spoiled the fun to a great extent and a majority of the crowd spent the day in getting acquainted with the people and enjoying themselves generally.

Wednesday was supposed to be the opening day for the grand parade and several races, but the rain of the night preceeding and the intermittent showers of the entire day put a damper on the fun, and a ball game between the Blackduck and Red Lake Falls nines was all that took place, Red Lake Falls winning by a score of 9 to 2. The Red Lake Falls and Warren bands each devoted several hours to concert work during the afternoon and evening, and their work was well received by the crowds assembled.

Thursday was a beautiful northern Minnesota summer day, and from the grand parade at nine o'clock in the morning, until late Friday evening the interesting contests between the different fire department teams kept the crowd on the qui vive, and the visitors went wild with enthusiasm over the pretty contests.

Red Lake Falls was an unknown quantity in all the races, but after the brilliant run in the first race our own team was a factor to be reckoned with, and their work during the two days of strenous life will long remain as a valuable advertisement to Red Lake Falls and a monument to the spirit of determination exhibited by the boys from our city.

Lack of space prevents a detailed write-up of each race, but the following is a complete summary, and tells of the remarkable showing against odds that the running team from here made:

Association hose race—Bemidji, 21 seconds; Red Lake Falls, 25 seconds; Hallock, 25 seconds; Blackduck, 29 seconds; Warren, 25 seconds. In running off the tie between Red Lake Falls, Hallock and Warren the time was as follows: Hallock, 23 3-5 seconds, Warren, 25 seconds. Red Lake Falls, short 50 feet of hose and barred from race.

The race: Bemidji, 1st and prize banner; Hallock, 2nd; Warren, 3rd.

Coupling contest—Dennis, Bemidji, 4 1-5 seconds; Narvison, Bemidji, 4 2-5 seconds; Harris, Crookston, 1½ seconds.

Ladder climbing contest—Fleming, Bemidji, 8 1-5; Parker, Blackduck, 8¼; Hulvorsen, Bemidji, 8 3-5; Goodman, Bemidji, 8 3-5.

Foot race, open to firemen—Brady, Red Lake Falls, 1st; McKibben, Hallock, 2nd. Time, 11 seconds.

Association Hook and Ladder race—Bemidji, 26 3-5 seconds; Hallock, 27 2-5 seconds; Red Lake Falls, 27 3-5 seconds; Blackduck, 28 4-5 seconds; Warren, 31 1-5 seconds. At the executive committee meeting in the evening Bemidji was ruled out of the race for not having ladder at proper angle, leaving Hallock, 1st; Red Lake Falls, 2nd; Blackduck, 3rd. Bemidji got mad and left for home the next morning, refusing to participate in any of the rest of the contests, except the flag race the same evening.

Combination hook and ladder and hose race—Blackduck, 28½; Warren, 30½; Red Lake Falls, 30 3-5.

Hub and Hub race—Red Lake Falls, 25 4-5; Hallock, 25 4-5; Warren, 26 4-5; Blackduck, 27. In running off the tie for first place the time was: Red Lake Falls, 25 2-5; Hallock, 26, giving Red Lake Falls, 1st; Hallock, 2nd; Warren, 3rd.

Service wet test—Red Lake Falls, 31; Hallock, 33; Blackduck, 36. Warren was short on hose, and their time was not taken.

Flag race—Bemidji, 68 4-5; Red Lake Falls, 71; Hallock, 72; Blackduck, 73¼; Warren, 73⅓.

The following is the amount of money each team won: Bemidji, $109 and championship banner; Crookston, $4.25; Hallock, $204.25; Blackduck, $118.75; Warren, $80.75; Red Lake Falls, $210.00 and nozzle valued at $25.

Red Lake Falls went in with a green team and carried off the most cash and a handsome service nozzle, and the people here have just cause to feel proud of their running team.

The next tournament will be held at Warren and it is likely that Red Lake Falls will send several hundred people over there. M. A. Converse, of this city, is vice-president of the association, which assures us the tournament in 1907.

JUST ONE MORE JOLT

Thief River Falls' Parties Get The Usual Bumping While Trying To Do The Buttinsky Act.

Thief River Falls received another jolt in the county-seat fight Tuesday night. As will be remembered, an action has been begun by William Erb, a homesteader on the reservation, to compel the county commissioners to meet and reconsider the county-seat removal petition. Alex A. Sweaas and C. M. Evenson, two residents of Thief River Falls are attempting to intervene in this action and help Mr. Erb fight it out. Their application to the Court for the right to intervene came up before Judge Watts at Crookston Tuesday night.

W. A. McIntyre was present as attorney for the plaintiff, Mr. Erb. Chas. E. Boughton and F. A. Grady represented three of the commissioners, defendants, and Ira C. Richardson appeared for the would be intervenors. Upon objection by the defendants, the court ruled that no proper notice had been given the defendants by the intervenors of their application, consequently the application must be dismissed.

Thus endeth Chapter I.

It is possible that the application may be renewed at an early date.

But for the present at least Mr. Sweaas and Mr. Evenson who are so eagerly trying to break into a lawsuit, must be content to fight it out between themselves.

Mr. Richardson returned to Thief River Falls.

Latta Misleads

Last week's Plummer Pioneer makes the statement that the Red Lake Falls band had promised to come to this town on the Fourth, but changed their minds after the Plummer bills had been printed, thereby inconveniencing that town to a great extent. Mr. Latta should aim to be fair in this matter, but his statements last week were not facts and he evidently aims at working up prejudice against Red Lake Falls. The management of the band assured Mr. Latta that the band would come to his town on the Fourth as it was the only town in the county that planned on celebrating at that time, some four weeks ago, but the same week as this conversation was held J. B. Armstrong was at St. Hilaire and made a contract for the band there that day, after the people had decided to celebrate. The Plummer people were notified of this action in plenty of time, even before they had agreed to enter into any contract for the band on that day, and if they ordered their bills before that time, the party that did so extended his authority in listing the Red Lake Falls band as an attraction. The band has the kindly feelings towards the people of Plummer, and has never yet entered into an agreement that it has failed to carry out, so that Mr Latta does not do justice to the organization in his last week's article.

St. Hilaire is ready for their big celebration next Tuesday, and from reports will give their visitors one of the best times they have ever enjoyed.

A large program of sports, including a ball game, etc., has been arranged and music by two bands will keep the people amused. Speaking, singing, etc., have also been provided, and every one who goes there Tuesday will be well entertained. The Red Lake Falls band and a couple of hundred people from here will go up to help make the eagle scream.

Arrangements are being made to hold the train several hours in the evening in order that the crowds may go and come without driving.

BAD STORM AT FORKS.

Hail and Winds Do Big Damage Over West.

Grand Forks was visited by the worst storm in its history yesterday morning, when a terrific wind and hail storm struck them about 11 o'clock. The storm covered a wide area and crops in and around the Forks suffered great damage. Window lights were knocked out of every building the hail could reach, while the electric light and telephone wires suffered great damage. Several serious runaways occurred during the storm. Forepaugh's circus was there, and the parade was just over when the storm struck. Their property was damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars.

Crops around the Forks are nearly a total loss, and the storm was a great disaster to that part of the Valley.

Furious Fighting.

I unhesitatingly recommend them to all, and don't intend in the future to be without them in the house. They are certainly a wonderful medicine to have cured such a bad case as mine." CROWD AT ST. HILAIRE

People From Here Spead Pleasant Day at Up-River City.

Between 250 and 300 people from here went up to St. Hilaire Tuesday to help the people there properly celebrate the nation's birthday anniversary, and with the crowd from that place and surrounding country did things up brown.

St. Hilaire struck her usual streak of wet weather, and their parade and morning exercises had to be abandoned. At one o'clock, however, Ira C. Richardson spoke to a big crowd at the bowery, and from that time on there was something doing all the time. The White Earth and Thief River ball clubs played an interesting game of ball. Thief River winning by a score of 10 to 9. After the ball game an excellent program of sports was pulled off, and in the evening the crowds were entertained at dancing and with the excellent display of fireworks.

Red Lake Falls had by far the largest delegation at the celebration, and showed up with about three to one over any other outside town. The Red Lake Falls and St. Hilaire bands kept plenty of music in the air, and every one went home feeling that they had spent a pleasant day.

Good Crowd at Plummer.

About fifty people from here attended the celebration at Plummer Tuesday, and everyone who went out reported an excellent time. Plummer had plenty of amusement prepared for her visitors, and carried out their program in fine style. A big crowd of people from the surrounding country was present at the celebration.

The class numbered seventeen, all bright and promising young men and ladies, who are now prepared to take up advanced work in a comprehensive manner.

The exercises at the opera were very fine, and The Gazette regrets that lack of space and time prevents a detailed write up. Each and every participant acquitted themselves admirably and the crowd was enthusiastic in its praises of their efforts.

VOTE FOR THE BONDS

Independent School District No. 15 of Red Lake Falls To Have Modera New School Building.

At the election held in the Lafayette school building Monday evening, for the purpose of voting upon the question of issuing bonds in the construction of of a new school building to replace the recently destroyed Washington, the vote was fairly large and the proposed bond issue carried by a vote of 88 for and 2 against. No opposition to tho bond issue was apprrent and although quite a little interest was manifested the people all thought the same way.

This is as it should be, as the new improvement will be one of lasting benefit to this section of the county. With the money the board now has on hand this $3000 additional will enable them to erect a building suitable for all time to come, and one that will be the pride of the city and school district.

The plans and specifications for the new building will be ready for the contractors to look at within a few days, and a notice asking for bids will appear in next week's Gazette. The board has not quite decided whether or not they will build brick or frame, but the matter will be determined shortly, and it is safe to say that whatever they do will be in the interests of the people of the district.

ROBBERS GET BUSY

Postoffice at Lambert, This County, Broken Into and Safe Blown Open By Expert Cracksmen.

Northern Minnesota is again enjoying a visit from a band of robbers and safe looters, and during the past week several places in this neighborhood have been visited by these cracksmen.

The latest was the postoffice at the town of Lambert, some twenty miles east of here, the robbers choosing last Thursday evening for their bold job. Entrance to the store of Postmaster Doucet was effected, and dynamite used on the safe, which was rifled of its contents, some $200 in money and some stamps, papers, etc. The robbery occurred during the night, and was discovered early the next morning and the authorities here notified at once, owing to the fact that the telephone was blown down in the store all communication with that place was cut off, and the sheriff was obliged to make the drive in the hopes of finding clews.

Postmaster Doucet happened to be in the city that night, and before leaving here spotted a fellow that had been hanging around Lambert several days before the robbery, and the officers immediately took him into custody. Two others were arrested, but after proving a sufficient alibi were released, the fellow first arrested still being held pending developments.

Postoffice Inspector Frey arrived here Saturday and went out to the scene of the robbery and it is likely that government detectives will be put on the work of attempting to round up this bunch of law-breakers. The money taken from the safe was mostly all Postmaster Doucet's and the heaviest loss falls on him.

The work was undoubtedly done by a gang or part of a gang of crooks that are operating in this territory again this year. The postoffice at Halstad, south of Crookston, was robbed one night last week and several other places in this neighborhood have been visited by the gang.

An organized movement is talked of among the sheriffs of this part of the state, and it is likely that if the plan is carried out the gang will shortly be rounded up.

NIGHT SERVICE NOW.

Red Lake Falls Telephone Exchange Improves Its Service.

Commencing last Saturday the local telephone exchange gives an all day and night service, Miss Anna Campbell being the night operator. The new plan will give the patrons of the office much better satisfaction and as a result of the late improvement a half dozen new telephones have been installed about the city, and more will follow.

The night service will prove exceptionally handy to the public in case of sickness, fires or an emergency of any kind and the management is to be congratulated on the enterprise shown.

NEW BUSINESS HOUSE.

Home Bakery Changes Hands the Latter Part of Last Week.

A. M. Biteman, of Bemidji, has purchased the Home Bakery in this city and took possession last week.

Mr. Biteman comes recommended as a first class business man, and intends to make the new bakery strictly up-to-date in every sense of the word. He will employ competent help, and by giving the public the best kind of goods hopes to receive a generous patronage at the hands of the people here.

Red Lake Falls has long needed a good bakery and if Mr. Biteman goes after the business the way he says he will, there is no question as to his success.

He will be pleased to have the people call and get acquainted, and will deliver his goods to any part of the city.

THE ANNUAL ELECTION

Voters Will Be Called Upon To Choose Two New Members of The Board of Education.

The annual school election for independent district No. 15, Red Lake Falls, will be held at the Lafayette school building Saturday evening of next week, between the hours of 7 and 8 o'clock. At this time the people will be called upon to choose successors to Messrs. Theo. Garceau and Frank E. Hunt, whose terms expire on that date.

There does not appear to be the least desire on the part of the people to make a change in the personel of the board, as both Mr. Garceau and Mr. Hunt have made excellent workers on this body, and men whose foresight and ability have made them very desirable officers. While they have undoubtedly been obliged to sacrifice their time to attend to the duties of their offices, nevertheless they should not be allowed to retire, and the people will appreciate their spirit of loyalty to the home town and district if they will again accept the places.

The voters should turn out on the 15th inst. and show their appreciation of the services rendered by our board of education.

SHERIFF DEAD.

Sheriff Hardy, of Cass County, Answers Final Summons.

George Hardy, the only sheriff in the history of Cass county, died at Walker Saturday of a complication of diseases. He has been sick for several weeks past.

The remains were taken to Brainerd, where the funeral was held Sunday. The deceased was a member of the Elks order and the services were conducted by them. Mr. Hardy was about 45 years of age and has been a resident of Cass county since its organization. He was the only sheriff that has served in that county, having been appointed when the county was organized and elected at every succeeding election. He leaves a wife and two children.

DOES BIG BUSINESS.

Gentilly Cheese Factory Is Prospering This Year.

Crookston Times: The Gentilly cheese factory reports that one day last week it received 7,840 lbs. of milk delivered by farmers. This is the largest day's delivery in the history of that institution but it will not be much above the average for the month. From this amount of milk over 800 lbs of cheese can be made. When it is remembeped from what a small institution the Gentilly cheese factory has grown in the past few years the above figures speak volumes foa this section as a cheese and butter producer The town of Gentilly is not by any means considered the best agricultural portion of Polk county. It isn't so long ago that it was considered an inferior section. But today there is not a more prosperous township in the Red River Valley or one in which the farmers are more uniformly on the road to independence. Nearly every one of them has his herd of cows and delivers milk daily to the Gentilly factory and nearly every one is getting rich as a result.

No better argument for the advantages of the Red River Valley as a dairy section can be furnished than to give the record of the Gentilly cheese factory and show what it has done for the farmers of that town.

SCHOOL IN SESSION

Red Lake County Teachers' Training School Started Yesterday With A Fair Attendance.

Red Lake county school marms are again in session at summer school, yesterday being the opening day of the four weeks session for this county. Prof. C. S. Yeager, of Fosston, is conductor, Adolph Olson, of Brandon, Mrs. W. A. McIntyre, of this city, and Endell Everdell, of Moorhead, assistants. Superintendent McAnulty is also devoting his time to the session, and looks for a successful school.

BIG LAND SALE.

The Sta'e Will Sell About 500,000 Acres This Fall.

It was announced at the state auditor's office last week that approximately 500,000 acres of state land will be sold at public auction next fall. This is a much larger amount than has ever been offered for sale in Minnesota.

A good share of the land is located in the more or less settled portions of north central Minnesota, and the state officials will be very much surprised if the average price falls below $10 an acre which means that the state will receive $5,000,000 an unprecedented sum for one year's sale of state lands.

The state heretofore has never sold more than 100,000 acres, and it has been popularly supposed that this is the limit that the state land commissioner can offer for sale. It appears, however, that this limit applies only to school lands. The land commissioner may sell 100,000 acres of school lands, and as many acres of other state lands belonging to the university, institutions and other funds as he deems best.

Knowledge that thousands of land seekers are passing through Minnesota every year on the way to Canada and the Pacific coast has led the state auditor to place this large amount of lands on the market.

He was afraid the first of the week that he would be compelled to let several million go down to Crookston but it looks now as if all could be cared for here.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climate conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the evil attendant on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size 75c. At all druggists. A. L. Reichert.

New Towns in North Dakota.

The extensive railroad building now being done in North Dakota has brought tributary to railroad facilities an additional vast area of the rich agricultural sections of northern and western North Dakota. The Great Northern railway is building a number of new extensions from its main line northward notably that of the Sarles extension of the Edmore line, the Thorne extension running north from York, the Maxbass extension running northwestward from Towner, and a further extension of the Westhope line to Antler.

The building of these new lines has brought into being a number of new towns which are fully described in a pamphlet recently issued by the Great Northern railway. By application to Mr. F. I. Whitney, Passenger Traffic Manager, St. Paul, Minn., a copy of these pamphlets "New Extensions in North Dakota" or "New Towns in North Dakota" will be mailed to any address. 6w

STRIPED GRUNTS KISSING.

Little Fishes in New York Aquarium Afford Amusement to Spectators.

In one of the tanks at the aquarium is a lot of striped grunts, handsome little fishes from Bermuda, which do one thing that is peculiar and different from anything done by other fishes in the aquarium, relates the New York Sun.

If the outside of the glass front of the tank is stroked softly and repeatedly downward with the finger tips, the pretty fishes will come swimming toward it, opening wide their mouths, which are within of a beautiful red.

When near the glass two of them, each with its mouth wide open, will approach each other and gently lock jaws in an attitude of kissing. Sometimes when the glass has been stroked as many as four pairs of the striped grunt have gone through this performance at once.

Why the striped grunts do this nobody knows. It may be due to some sort of hypnotic influence exercised by the moving finger tips, but men experienced in the care of fishes in captivity have observed that all the species of the grunt family do the same thing in like circumstances.

Little Plume, chief of the Blackfoot Indians, of Montana, in company with another Indian chief and an interpreter, visited the aquarium one day recently and viewed all the other exhibits with interest, though with all of the Indian's traditional immobility. But at the exhibition given by the kissing striped grunts Little Plume laughed outright.

DIVORCE IN ENGLAND.

Report of Consul General Evans Shows That It Is Increasing Rapidly.

Interesting statistics concerning divorce proceedings in England and Wales are contained in an official report from United States Consul General Evans, at London. The number of petitions for dissolution of marriage filed in 1902 were 1,050, as against 900 filed in 1901. Of the petitions filed in 1902, 609 were filed by husbands and 441 by wives. The prompt action of the courts is shown by the fact that of the total number of petitions filed, 930 were set for trial during the year. Judgments were rendered as follows: For husband, plaintiff, in 397 cases; for wife, plaintiff, in 284 cases; for husband, respondent, in 17 cases, and for his wife, respondent, in ten cases. The annual number of petitions filed during the past five years was 853.

The population of England and Wales is about 33,000,000, showing, says Consul General Evans, that there was one petition for dissolution of marriage in some form filed in the courts in 1902 for about each 32,500 population. He adds that experimental or trial marriages, seemingly, are not encouraged by the ease of securing divorce, and that the sentiment of the people, sustained by the courts, is clearly against divorces or the divorced. The established church, he says, is against performing the marriage ceremony where either party to the proposed marriage is a divorced person.

TOUGHNESS OF CURRENCY.

Single Treasury Note Will Sustain Lengthwise a Weight of Forty-One Pounds.

That Uncle Sam's notes stand a great deal of rough and careless handling, is a fact that impresses itself upon anyone who has ever chanced to note the manner in which the average cashier pulls and jerks the bills before he pushes them through the window to the waiting patron, says the Philadelphia Record.

A single treasury note measures 3⅛ inches in width by 7¼ inches in length. It will sustain, without breaking, lengthwise, a weight of 41 pounds; crosswise, a weight of 91 pounds. The notes run four to a sheet—a sheet being 8¼ inches wide by 13½ inches long. One of these sheets lengthwise will suspend 108 pounds, and crosswise 177 pounds.

It will be observed that a single note is capable of sustaining crosswise a weight of 91 pounds, which is twice the amount by nine pounds, of the weight the note can sustain lengthwise; while in the case of the sheet, the crosswise sheet lacks 39 pounds of double the sustaining power of the lengthwise sheet.

English Village Life.

A writer in Cornhill says of village life in England: "The plain and terrible truth of the matter is that, in districts far wider and more numerous than the kind dwellers in towns and casual visitors to our pretty villages can be expected to realize, the agricultural laborer, his wife and his children are half-starved from the beginning to the end of life."

GOLDEN NUGGETS FOR SALLOW PEOPLE

ADMIRAL POWERLESS

RUSSIAN NAVAL COMMANDER IN THE BLACK SEA AFRAID TO ATTACK MUTINEERS.

Battleship Potemkins Cruising Around in Russian Waters in the Hands of a Piratical Crew and the Commander of the Fleet Confesses His Inability to Cope With the Situation Because He Cannot Depend Upon His Men.

St. Petersburg, July 3.—The unprecedented spectacle of a powerful modern battleship cruising around in the Black sea in the hands of a crew who under the rules of international law cannot be regarded as other than pirates and of the admiral in command of the rest of the Euxine fleet frankly confessing his inability to cope with the situation and ordering the fires of his warships to be drawn, has stupefied the Russian admiralty.

The whereabouts of the errant battleship Kniaz Potemkine is unknown here; no plans for capturing her have been devised and the policy of noninterference seems to be at present in vogue. The situation would furnish a libretto for a comic opera were not the elements of the plot so serious.

Dispatches from Odessa and Sevastopol, which are confirmed by the admiralty, clear up fully the present situation. The Kniaz Potemkine has sailed from Odessa and is now at large, and her crew, reinforced by sympathizers from shore, is still in control of the vessel.

On the Georgi Pobiedonosetz, which cast in its fortunes with the Kniaz Potemkine after its arrival at Odessa and landed its officers, the more loyal or more timorous portion of the crew, again gained the upper hand and agreed to surrender and disarm the ship. The rest of the squadron returned to Sevastopol without venturing to take up the gauntlet thrown down by the mutineers on the Kniaz Potemkine, and Admiral Kruger, after a council of war, finding that he could not depend upon his crews, ordered the fires drawn beneath the boilers of the ships and gave permission to all the disaffected officers and sailors to quit the vessels and go ashore.

The sailors of Ekatrina II. were known to be so mutinous that the battleship was left behind when the squadron started for Odessa, the whole crew dismissed and the ship disarmed.

TO SINK BATTLESHIP

RUSSIAN DESTROYER DEPARTS FROM ODESSA ON A DANGEROUS MISSION.

St. Petersburg, July 4.—According to a dispatch received by an official agency the torpedo boat destroyer Smelivy, with a volunteer crew, has sailed from Odessa with the intention of sinking the Kniaz Potemkine.

With Kustenji and other unprotected ports of Roumania, Bulgaria and Turkey at the mercy of the battleship's guns and with the inability of Vice Admiral Kruger's squadron to interfere with her career tacitly admitted by retiring them from commission, this desperate expedient was seized on to prevent international complications and to rid the Black sea of mutineers.

SECOND WARSHIP SURRENDERS.

Mutineers on the Georgi Pobiedonosetz Capitulate.

Odessa, July 3.—The surrender of the Georgi Pobiedonosetz was formally carried out during the morning. The warship's officers returned from Nikolaieff, went on board and picked out the ringleaders of the mutiny and several of their followers, all of whom were sent ashore.

The city is quiet. Many strikers have returned to work.

Estimates of the number killed during the fires and rioting of last week run as high as 6,000. A far greater number were shot down, but many of the bodies were incinerated.

OFFICERS HOLD A COUNCIL.

They Decide to Ungear Machinery of Warships.

Sevastopol, July 3.—Immediately after the Black sea squadron arrived here Saturday a council of admirals and captains was held on board the flagship Rostislav, Vice Admiral Kruger presiding. The council resolved to ungear the machinery and authorize the officers and men to go ashore. The Katrina II. is here and has been disarmed.

SAILS FROM KUSTENJI.

The Kniaz Potemkine Leaves That Port and Steers Northward.

London, July 4.—A dispatch from Lloyd's agent at Bucharest says that the Kniaz Potemkine accompanied by a torpedo boat left Kustenji at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon without obtaining coal and provisions and steered to the northward.

Advancing on Vladivostok.

London, July 3.—The correspondent of the Morning Post at Shanghai says that the Japanese are advancing on Vladivostok and that a battle is imminent near the Tumen river.

BIG PACKERS INDICTED.

True Bills Against Heads of Four Corporations.

Chicago, July 1.—An indictment was voted against eighteen persons, officials of four packing corporations, by the federal grand jury during the day. This ended the investigation which has lasted over three months and brought out testimony of over 100 witnesses. One indictment of more than sixty typewritten pages was voted, covering charges including combination in restraint of trade, conspiracy to monopolize trade and receiving and granting rebates. The vote on the eighteen individuals and four corporations was unanimous for indictment. Trials of those under indictment will probably begin in the July term of the district court. The names of those indicted follow:

J. Ogden Armour, Charles W. Armour, Edward Morris, Ira N. Morris, Louis F. Swift, Edwin C. Swift, L. A. Carlon, D. E. Hartwell, Edward A. Cudahy, A. F. Evans, Attorney R. C. McManus, Attorney A. H. Veeder, Pat A. Valentine, T. J. Connors, Edwin Tilden, Arthur Meeker, Charles N. Swift, Samuel McRoberts, Samuel Weil, Beth S. Cusey, C. E. Todd, V. D. Skipworth.

HAY'S BODY LIES IN STATE.

Exposed to View in Chamber of Commerce at Cleveland.

Cleveland, July 3.—Covered by palms and wreaths of roses and blossoms of the sweet pea the casket containing the body of John Hay was placed in the auditorium of the chamber of commerce, where it will remain under military guard until the hour set for the funeral services.

MITCHELL IS GUILTY

JURY AT PORTLAND, ORE., RETURNS A VERDICT AGAINST AGED SENATOR.

Portland, Ore., July 4.—The jury in the case of the United States against United States Senator John H. Mitchell returned a verdict of guilty as charged at 11 o'clock p. m. The charge was that Senator Mitchell, while occupying his public position, accepted a pecuniary compensation for practicing before the federal departments at Washington, which under the federal statutes constitutes a crime.

Senator Mitchell received the verdict with fortitude. He showed by no outward sign save the ghastly pallor of his face and the nervous stroking of his beard, that he felt the blow.

After the verdict was read the jury was polled and discharged.

When these proceedings were completed, Judge Bennett, for Senator Mitchell, moved a new trial. The motion was continued until next Monday, and court adjourned.

TOPEKA BANK CLOSED.

Institution Loaned Too Largely to One Borrower.

Topeka, Kan., July 4.—No definite statement is yet obtainable regarding the condition of the First National bank controlled by Charles J. Devlin, the big coal mine owner, which closed its doors during the morning.

Colonel W. H. Rossington, vice president of the bank, locked the institution's books in the vault to await the arrival of J. T. Bradley, the national bank examiner, whom the comptroller had appointed as receiver of the failed bank and he would only say:

"The bank's trouble has not been caused by dishonesty on the part of anyone, but by lending too largely to one borrower. There has been no stealing."

This borrower is, of course, Mr. Devlin, and the bank is said to hold the capitalist's paper to the amount of $1,000,000. Mr. Devlin, whose sudden illness brought about the tangle in the big coal mining and railway properties, valued, it is said, close to $7,000,000, is still under the care of a physician, and no statement could be secured from him.

NAMES OF THE ENVOYS.

President Makes Public Personnel of Peace Commission.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 3.—Official announcement was made by President Roosevelt Sunday of the names of the Russian and Japanese envoys to the Washington peace conference. The character and ability of the men selected by both belligerents is an earnest of the desire of their respective governments to conclude, if possible, the tragedy being enacted in the far East. The plenipotentiaries are:

Russian — Ambassador Muravieff, formerly minister of justice, and now ambassador to Italy, and Baron Rosen, recently appointed as ambassador to the United States to succeed Count Cassini.

Japanese—Baron Komura, minister of foreign affairs, and Kogoro Takahira, minister to the United States.

TURNS WEAPON ON HIMSELF.

Sioux City Man Suicides While Engaged in Target Practice.

Sioux City, Ia., July 3.—While engaged in shooting at a mark in company with a neighbor Swan W. Swanson turned a 38-caliber revolver upon himself and sent a bullet through his brain. He was taken to the Samaritan hospital in a dying condition. Swanson, who is forty years of age and a traveling man, is said to have been despondent over business. His wife witnessed the tragedy.

SECRETARY HAY DEAD

DIPLOMAT EXPIRES SUDDENLY AT HIS SUMMER HOME IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.

End Came Unexpectedly, as the Patient Appeared to Be Rallying Rapidly From His Recent Relapse and Hoped to Be Out Shortly—His Last Moments Peaceable, the End Coming Almost Without a Struggle.

Newbury, N. H., July 1.—The death of John Hay, secretary of state, which occurred at his summer home on the shore of Lake Sunapee at 12:25 Saturday morning, was peaceable and the end came almost without a struggle.

The suddenness of it all was staggering. At the hour of 12 all was quiet. In another moment nurses and physicians found themselves summoned to the bedside. There had been a collapse. Twenty-five minutes later all was over. So swiftly had the end came that the dying man passed away unattended by all of the members of his family save his wife. The others, a son and a daughter, were summoned, but they reached the bedside only to find their distinguished parent dead.

The secretary had passed the most comfortable day since his illness began a week ago. He had bidden his wife and physicians goodnight at 10 o'clock. An hour later he was sleeping quietly. Almost at the stroke of 12 the secretary was seized with a bad turn. He called feebly and a nurse responded. The sick man was breathing with great difficulty. Dr. Scudder was speedily summoned and it required but a glance for him to determine that the end was but minutes away. The household was aroused. The wife reached her husband as he was breathing his last. The son, Clarence Hay, and the daughter, Mrs. James A. Wadsworth of Genesee, N. Y., hurried into the sick room, but they were too late.

Death was caused by pulmonary embolism, according to Dr. Scudder. The patient did not suffer greatly in his last moments. Aside from great difficulty in breathing there was no struggle. Stimulants were ineffective. The secretary lapsed into unconsciousness and seemed to fall asleep at last.

FIVE HUNDRED DEAD

LOSS OF LIFE FROM FLOOD AT GUANAJUATO, MEX., MAY EXCEED THAT NUMBER.

Guanajuato, Mex., July 4.—Loss of life variously estimated at more than 200 and less than 1,000 persons and property damage to the extent of over $1,000,000 have been caused by the flood which has swept over the town as the result of a cloudburst. Federal telegraph service has been restored and the authorities are rapidly bringing order out of chaos.

Great suffering is prevalent, but aid is being received from surrounding towns and a semblance of normal conditions, it is believed, will soon be reached. Burial of the dead is progressing rapidly, although many bodies are thought to be among the ruins of houses and are difficult to locate.

The number of dead is now estimated at about 500. Over 200 bodies have already been recovered. The property loss will pass $1,500,000. The government has subscribed $35,000 to the relief fund.

GIRL FOUND NOT GUILTY.

Miss Seldensticker Freed of Murder Charge at Wheaton, Minn.

Wheaton, Minn., July 4.—"We, the jury in the above entitled action, find the defendant not guilty," was the verdict returned by the jury in the Antoinette Seldensticker murder trial at 8 o'clock p. m., after being out about two hours. The verdict is a very popular one.

Antoinette Seldensticker is fourteen years old. She shot and killed Herman Shipp on May 25 last, at a farm about four miles south of Wheaton, and then wounded herself in an attempt to commit suicide. Since her recovery from her wounds she seems to have had no distinct recollection of the tragedy, which was caused by jealousy or was a suicide compact.

THREATEN TO RESUME WORK.

Striking Chicago Teamsters Demand More Benefits.

Chicago, July 1.—Threatening to return to work unless they were given more money 1,000 strikers gathered at the office of Secretary Charles Sagarstrom of the finance committee of the Teamsters' Joint Council and berated President Shea and the leaders who have managed the strike. The men who were after their weekly benefits belong to the Railway Express and the Department Store Drivers' unions. The express drivers were most disconsolate over the situation and gloomily discussed the difficulty of getting money to take home for family necessaries.

It is not strange that Page fence will stretch up smoothly over hills and down through ravines. It is made to do it, and it is simply putting into use one of the innate properties of its coiled wire. It is elastic.

It is not strange that short kinks or bends in wire cannot supply this elasticity like a coil or spiral. If they could, why haven't the manufacturers of spring balances, or of car springs used a kinked, crimped or other shaped metal than a coil. Probably the reason is that kinked or crimped metal will not let out and take up, will not shorten and lengthen like a coil spring.

Further, why do you suppose that high-carbon stock is always used for springs' unless it is because low-carbon stock will not make a spring. Low-carbon stock is much the cheaper.

Hair springs in watches are made of only a little higher carbon stock than Page-Wire is made of, in fact, there is not much more difference between the proportion of carbon in Page-Wire and watch-spring wire, than there is between the fence wire generally in use and that which we use for all the horizontal wires in Page fences.

THE MEN WE WANT.

The voters of Independent School District No. 15 should make it their individual duty Saturday evening of next week, to see that Messrs. Frank E. Hunt and Theo. Garceau are re-elected as members of the Board of Education without one iota of opposition.

While both these gentlemen have stated that they were not candidates, The Gazette believes that if the people simply refuse to let them retire that they will not decline to act for another term. Both are of exactly the type of men wanted on the school board. Active, keen and wide-awake business men, they are ready to grasp any opportunity to the good of the district, and their work during the years they have held office is such that reflects credit upon their ability as officers and citizens.

A great many school districts have made the serious mistake of electing men to places on the Board of Education whose ideas of business were not such as to make successful men in such capacities, and that our own district has been fortunate in finding men of the recognized ability of the two members whose terms expire should be a matter of pride to the people at large, and a vigorous "no" in the form of a ballot should be registered by one and all against their retiring from the work at this time.

Eb Huntington of the Windom Reporter says the way to make some business men admit that advertising amounts to something is to announce in the local paper that their place of business has been closed.

The Northern Pacific Railway Co will try out Japanese servants on its dining and sleeping cars. Following the example of several other western roads it will give the little brown men a chance. The dining car waiters and sleeping car porters are at present for the most part colored men. On the whole they are not satisfactory servants and the experiments so far with the Japs have proven very satisfactory. In the event that the scheme turns out as well as expected all colored men in the services will be succeeded by Japanese.

Archbishop Ireland in a recent address says that "if there is any preference in the education of the sexes, give the preference to the boys. The boy will be the man with the man's responsibility." He pointed out that too often parents put their boys to work before their educations are completed. With the opportunity afforded each boy and girl in this country for an education there is no reason why the great majority should not receive sufficient to meet the necessities of life. The boy or girl who has the ambition to gain knowledge can acquire an excellent education after leaving the school house, providing he or she mastered the fundamentals before leaving it.

The sentiment expressed in the following from the Litchfield Review is old, but it is so good it will bear repeating: "There is not a person living but who has occasion more or less frequently to speak a good word for his town and community and so aid in promoting the general welfare. Many people do not properly weigh the effect of casual remarks made to strangers or to residents of our neighboring towns. Did it ever occur to you that the reputation of a community is not something manufactured abroad, but is made by the residents within the community itself? That is a fact. It is also a fact that the reputation of a place has a very substantial value. Then it is also a fact that if every resident of a town will bear these things in mind and act upon them, there will be two things accomplished. First, property will be made more desirable by reason of an improved reputation; and, second, life will be pleasanter, brighter and more enjoyable by reason of the knowledge of this same improved reputation. It is worth the effort, and requires but faith in ourselves, local pride and a cheerful tongue. Try it! Quit whining! The world hates a whiner, anyway."

President Roosevelt has the happy faculty of doing the right thing at the right time. He has issued an order to the effect that although our immigration law prohibit the landing of Chinese laborers and Chinese merchants, students and travellers are not excluded and must be shown the same respect at our ports of entry as the people of any other nation says the Brown's Valley Tribune. China has been a very good customer of the United States with good prospects of increasing her trade, but owing to the arbitrary construction of our immigration law respecting these people, many of their leading citizens have been turned from our ports with bitter resentment in their hearts and as a result there has been an organized boycott of American goods in China The United States is certainly justified in excluding the cheap Cooley labor of China from landing on our shores, and should even go further and exclude the cheap, ignorant Anarchistic laborers and agitators of southern Europe, but the agents of the Chinese government or of the big merchandise firms of that country, as well as any other country, who come here for the purpose of trade, or to see the sights, are entitled to the most courteous treatment and it is the intention of the president that such will be the result in the future.

Publicity Wins.

Merchants who advertise prices attract the eye of the reader and the buyer. That's what the high fellows in the city do and that's the reason the catalogue houses secure a big trade. People read these prices and imagine they are lower than those of the home merchant simply because the latter do not presistently and everlastingly keep the price before the public. Our home merchants can sell goods exactly as cheap as the catalogue houses and they do it. But they should bear in mind the necessity of advertising prices.—Stillwater Gazette.

Exit Wylie.

St. Hilaire Spectator: For the first time since 1883 the people of Wylie will today be without mail service by train, the Great Northern surrendering their mail contract and a star route commencing from Red Lake Falls. The railroad company has as yet made no announcement as to whether they will continue to run the freight train down there but it is thought that the service will be irregular, if at all. The property owners of Wylie have taken the matter up with the Great Northern officials, but no agreement has been reached. Legal authorities have been consulted and unless the company comes furward with damages the chances for a big legal fight are excellent. The railroad company seemed determined to wipe Wylie off the map. They will no longer sell through tickets to that point and their new folders do not name it as a station.

The Boxcar Merchant.

It has come to the notice of the state dairy and food department that during past years there have been operating within the borders of the state, agents of non-taxpaying, non-resident firms, who by their methods have undermined the business of the legitimate merchant. It frequently happens that these agents, commonly called "boxcar merchants," are in the habit of swindling and poisoning the public with their short weight and adulterated foodstuffs. In order that the consumer may have better protection from this class of merchants, legislation on this subject was secured at the recent session in what is known as the Lauritzen Law, giving the state dairy and food department increased powers to act.

That this department may be more efficient in the enforcement of these laws it asks of the merchants of Minnesota their hearty co-operation. It suggests that in the various cities and villages thruout the state there be appointed committees whose duties it will be to notify the department of the day on which the "boxcar merchant" is expected to deliver his goods. Upon the receipt of a message it will send an inspector to investigate and prosecute.

In union there is strength: with assistance from all the public and business interests, the state can be given greater protection. Business men who are interested in the welfare of the community, and others, should immediately notify the commissioner of the department when any "boxcar merchants" call.

Must Destroy Cigar Boxes.

The internal revenue department has made a ruling that all cigar boxes must be destroyed as soon as the cigars are taken out. This will do away with all prospects of a violation of the law which prohibits the second use of cigar boxes for tobacco, but it will work a hardship on the boys who have depended on old cigar boxes for storehouses for old nails, marbles, lead pencils, stones, twine and other treasures. The new ruling imposes a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $100 on any person receiving, selling, giving away or purchasing any old cigar box.

Fred R. Pennell, Pianist, Grand Opera House, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

"Two years ago I came to Hot Springs to take the baths and be treated for bladder and kidney trouble. After spending two months here under the care of one of the most prominent physicians and receiving little or no benefit, I was persuaded to try Peruna. I had little faith in it, but after using one bottle I noticed a marked improvement. Three bottles entirely cured me. I can cheerfully recommend Peruna to any one afflicted as I was."—Fred R. Pennell.

Thomas M. Hicks, 1131 13th St., Louisville, Ky., writes:

"Neglected colds, irregular habits and overwork brought on serious kidney and bladder trouble. My blood seemed inflamed with poison, my stomach became entirely demoralized, a bad odor emanated from my urine, and I realized I was a sick man. The doctors dosed me to their heart's content, but I kept growing worse. Then fortune brought Peruna to my notice and I at once began to mend. I kept taking it for five months before I was completely cured. I feel now that I owe my life to Peruna and will never cease to be grateful."—Thomas M. Hicks.

S. L. Earle, Superintendent of Streets, Jacksonville, Fla., writes:

"I am a firm believer in Peruna. I find that it has been of practical benefit to a number of the men employed in the Street Cleaning Department in the city of Jacksonville. They are especially exposed to the inclemency of the weather and a number who caught cold, which later developed into pneumonia, kidney or liver trouble, were cured through the use of Peruna."—S. L. Earle, Superintendent of Streets.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

What's The Answer?

A young man asked a farmer for his daughter in marriage. The answer was: "Go into the orchard and bring in a parcel of apples. Give me one-half of the whole number and to the mother one-half of the balance and have one apple over, and to the daughter one-half of the remainder and half an apple over, and have one left yourself without cutting an apple. Then if she is willing you can have her." He solved the problem, and how many apples did he bring?

THE VIETS—GATES NUPTIALS.

Miss Daisy Viets, Formerly of This City, Weds Mr. Gates, of Fargo.

Parkers Prairie Independent.—At eight o'clock on the evening of Midsummer day, June 21, a very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Mrs. Mary Viets, in Henning, when her daughter Daisy was married to Earl Gates of Fargo, Rev. McKee, of Parkers Prairie officiating.

The rooms were decorated with ferns, wild roses and house plants, making the house beautiful for the occasion.

Miss Emma Lindquist of Fergus Falls, played the wedding march and as the music began the bridal party entered the parlor where an altar of ferns and other flowers was arranged.

The groom wore a black suit and was accompanied by his brother Ray Gates, as best man. The bride wore a dainty gown of crepe de chine over taffeta silk and carried pale pink roses.

Miss Mabel Way, of Fergus Falls, was maid of honor and wore a gown of flowered organdie and carried pale pink carnations. The two bridesmaids were Miss Lucy Crocker, of New Ulm, and Miss Effie Hamry, of Red Lake Falls, Miss Crocker wearing organdie with rosebud design and Miss Hamry a gown of pale blue silk batiste, both carrying pink carnations. Harold Nelson and John Hursh, both of Henning were the ushers.

After the ceremony and congratulation the bridal party and guests sat down to a splendid wedding supper, the long table being decorated with smilax and roses and everyone enjoyed the supper to the utmost.

A short time was spent in social talk, then Mr. and Mrs. Gates left on the N. P. for a short trip, getting off with difficulty through the showers of rice.

Wine of Cardui Cured Her.

213 South Prior Street,
Atlanta, Ga., March 21, 1903.

I suffered for four months with extreme nervousness and lassitude. I had a sinking feeling in my stomach which no medicine seemed to relieve, and losing my appetite I became weak and lost my vitality. In three weeks I lost fourteen pounds of flesh and felt that I must find speedy relief to regain my health. Having heard Wine of Cardui praised by several of my friends, I sent for a bottle and was certainly very pleased with the results. Within three days my appetite returned and my stomach troubled me no more. I could digest my food without difficulty and the nervousness gradually diminished. Nature performed her functions without difficulty and I am once more a happy and well woman.

My Breath.

Shortness of Breath Is One of the Commonest Signs of Heart Disease.

Notwithstanding what many physicians say, heart disease can be cured.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure has permanently restored to health many thousands who had found no relief in the medicines (allopathic or homoeopathic) of regular practicing physicians.

It has proved itself unique in the history of medicine, by being so uniformly successful in curing those diseases.

Nearly always, one of the first signs of trouble is shortness of breath. Whether it comes as a result of walking or running up stairs, or of other exercises, if the heart is unable to meet this extra demand upon its pumping powers—there is something wrong with it.

The very best thing you can do, is to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. It will go to the foundation of the trouble, and make a permanent cure by strengthening and renewing the nerves.

"I know that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is a great remedy. For a number of years I suffered from shortness of breath, smothering spells, and pains in my left side. For months at a time I would be unable to lie on my left side, and if I lay flat on my back would nearly smother. A friend advised using Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which I did with good results. I began to improve at once, and after taking several bottles of the Heart Cure the pains in my side and other symptoms vanished. I am now entirely well. All those dreadful smothering spells are a thing of the past."—F. P. DRAKE, Middletown, O.

A LITTLE DECEPTION

IT WAS only after the death of her mother that Hermance Desriguy thought it well to consider in earnest the possibility of marriage and vowed not to die a spinster. She was now 29, possessed in her own right of a modest competence, and had a heart full of warm and generous impulses, but she was deformed—in short, a humpback.

Seated alone in her quiet home at Chatillon with pleasant surroundings about her, she considered her lonely future with a shudder. But where to seek for a husband? Whom might she address?

She knew she did not possess the physical attractions of a young and more perfect beauty; she must confess that one shoulder was higher than the other, and from some words she overheard, she knew herself considered a little angular. But what of this in so loyal a heart?

One evening in her daily paper she found this advertisement, which immediately engrossed her attention.

The Matrimonial Institute of France, founded by Madame de Saint Elme. This institute has for its object the promotion of honorable marriages, between members of families best fitted both in a physiological and social point of view.

Dowries from 2,000 to 2000,000 francs. Offices hours, one to five p. m. Correspondence solicited.

And the address followed.

Hermance considered this matter that day and again the following day. Finally she said to herself:

"I will write to that woman."

And she wrote at once.

By return post she received a magnificently printed prospectus, beautifully lithographed on rose colored paper, which in a great many words explained, magnified and praised "the moral purpose of the Matrimonial Institute of France."

In conclusion Mme. de St. Elme invited her correspondent to send her the modest sum of two dollars as subscription to the Nuptial Veil, in which would be found a large list of candidates for matrimony, all guaranteed of good social rank, regularly registered and submitted to the choice of readers of both sexes. To be thus registered or to make choice of any name in these lists the further sum of five dollars must be remitted in advance.

Hermance sent, in conformity with the above conditions, the double fee, adding also, as advised in the prospectus, one of her photographs, a little portrait taken the year before, in which there appeared her fine head and neck, full of expression and grace, but showing her only as far as the shoulders.

As she glanced at the long list of possible husbands named in the Nuptial Veil she was embarrassed, there were so many. Marking out 20, these she reduced to 15, and then to 10, and 8. She paused, and then tired of the attempt, she finished by placing her pencil where it would fall, which happened to be No. 12,818, reading thus:

Employment, public; salary 3,500 francs, with advancement assured; aged 38 years, good health; simple tastes; desires to marry young lady of age and fortune, excellent habits and character.

"Simple tastes," of course it was impossible to tell what these words might mean, but trusting to the maternal character of the lady at the head of the institute, and forwarding a new check for the additional $10 required, she received a photograph of No. 12,818, with a note giving the name, residence, etc., of the candidate.

His name was Adrien Bastide, and he was a public officer in the little town of Kernoveu, in Brittany. In the picture, which represented him at full length, he appeared a man full of good humor and good will, with a full, open countenance, and a long beard, flowing down his breast. But how tall he was! You might have taken him for a drum major. What a contrast to poor little humpback Hermance!

"Ah, but he is a very good man for me," whispered she to herself.

At the same time that the photograph was sent to Hermance, Mme. de Saint Elme, always attentive to the interests of her clients, advised No. 12,818 of the distinction which had befallen him, and for a consideration, forwarded the note and portrait of Mlle. Desriguy, who straightway received the following letter:

Mademoiselle: While not having the honor of being personally known to you, yet I cannot resist the deep emotion which only one look at your photograph has aroused in me, and to tell you by what all powerful, almost providential, sympathy I am turned to you.

Yes, it seems as if I hear a voice from heaven guiding and leading me to you. It is impossible to look upon a countenance so pure, so open, so frank, on eyes so full of spirit and impossible to deceit, and not to know you have a generous, loving heart.

And the writer of the letters prayed for the opening of a correspondence between them preparatory, if mutually agreeable, to a meeting at some future time.

An exchange of letters now ensued. Each day becoming more and more intimate, they confided to one another the stories of their youth, their hopes for the future and how and why they had had recourse to Mme. de Saint Elme.

The interview between the two could no longer be delayed. Adrien Bastide announced his intention to visit Chatillon in a fortnight, and the affair was readily and easily arranged.

Mlle. Desriguy would advise with some old friends of the family who would be glad to assist her. There would be nothing risked in acquainting them how matters were a few days in advance of the coming of her fiance. Her fiance! Ah, how sweet that word was to pronounce; how deliciously it made her heart throb.

Finally the great day came and Hermance was notified that M. Bastide would present himself at her house at two o'clock.

Everything in and around the house had been put in perfect order, and all was ready. Hermance kept repeating to her servant:

"I hear some one coming, Ionette."

"Mademoiselle has said that very often."

"Well, don't go to sleep in the porch, and be sure to bring him in—that person—to the parlor."

"Surely, mademoiselle. Don't you fear. I will hide myself in the corridor and run at the first sound of the bell."

The bell rang. The visitor, the tall drum major with the long beard, appeared, but limping with one foot, and walking with a cane.

"Mademoiselle Desriguy?" said he.

"It is I, Monsieur Bastide," tremblingly answered the little humpback, dropping the book in which she seemed to have been reading.

"You! But! Mademoiselle Hermance Desriguy who wrote to me?"

"Yes."

And both stood thunderstruck, facing each other, stupidly gazing without a word.

"But, mademoiselle, you have never—you ought to have told me." And Hermance replied, her cheeks now grown scarlet:

"Yes I know, I ought to perhaps, but you, you also, monsieur. I was born so—me—no—oh, no. Adieu, monsieur."

And our poor little heroine, wholly confused, her eyes filled with tears, fled away, leaving the room to her visitor, her exfiance.

The great giant stood still some minutes. What was there to do? Finally he opened a door into the hall and shuffled back to his hotel. There he seated himself on one of the soft banks of grass, and with eyes mechanically fixed upon the windings of the valley, tried to meditate over the occurrences of the afternoon, and gave himself up to the strange thoughts to which they gave rise.

Humpbacked! She was a humpback, and she had said nothing about it. This was the game, a shallow trick, and that maternal directress of the Matrimonial Institute of France, whose only object was to enable her children to make a better acquaintance and to shield them in marriage—charlatan, cheat.

But how about himself? What had he said about his infirmity?

He had been very careful in not speaking of that. Ha he tried to trick her? No, truly, that was not his object. He had not wished to hurry.

And she—oh, without doubt, it was her timidity; perhaps in her case also she felt ashamed. He had no reason to be proud.

Adrien Bastide had been tenderly brought up by a mother who idolized him. Jealous of every woman who approached him; yet she had had an intention certainly of seeing him married, and she truly meant not to disappoint him. But years passed on and she discovered no one worthy of him, and finally she died without placing her hand upon the fine pearl sought for.

Adrien at the age of 22, on account of a fall from a horse, had lost the free use of his right leg. After his mother's death he said to himself that now was the time to replace her. But how?

Providentially, as he then thought, he saw the advertisement of the marriage institute and paying his subscription and enrollment fee he received a photograph and communication in which Hermance, No. 19724, was described:

Orphan, 29 years, musician, dowry 40,000 francs, living in a neat cottage with garden and running stream of water, would espouse a man of honor, in preference official.

This exactly suited him; perhaps even the 40,000 francs no less than the garden and stream full of fish attracted him.

Alas, some points had been omitted in the advertisement in the Nuptial Veil and also in the letters from Mme. de St. Elme—yet how full of sweetness and spirituality her letters had been.

Well, he was not coming 200 miles for nothing; he would go and explain himself at least.

Hermance during this time was reflecting on the situation. It was not so easy to find a husband at 29, she well knew.

He was a cripple, yet, but she was—well a little peaked.

"Nothing," she thought, "will make M. Bastide return to the house. There are three trains to Paris, two in the morning and one in the afternoon at 4:30.

"He will do nothing until train time. I might at least try to meet him, as it were by accident, at the station."

So with hat and mantle she quickly set out. But two steps from her house she ran into the good giant.

"Monsieur Adrien, must you leave town at once?" she asked.

And she had a look so contrite, and eyes so ready to fill with tears that the giant bent over her and took her hand respectfully.

"I ask your pardon," he said, "for all I did. You were much excited; so was I. But I do not wish to return without seeing you again. Permit me to enter with you. Now we know each other, and we can speak more quietly."

There were two happy persons in that little house and they are now happy, those two who had not told the truth.—From the French in N. Y. Sun.

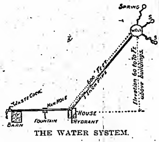
Character and Laws.

How ridiculous it would seem, writes Annie Payson Call, in Leslie's Monthly Magazine, if a man tried to make water run up hill without providing that it should do so by reaching its own level, and then got indignant because he did not succeed, and wondered if there was not some "cure" by means of which his object might be accomplished. And yet it is no more strange for a man to disobey habitually the laws of character and then to suffer for his disobedience, and wonder why he suffers.

THE FARM WATER SUPPLY.

A Subject of Vital Importance to the Man Who Has a Large Dairy.

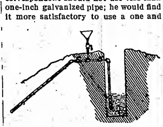
"I am thinking of gathering up some springs on hillside above my buildings and piping the water down to house and barn. I think of putting in self-watering devices for stock in barn and inside closet in house, with fountain in dooryard. About 600 feet from house I have a rise of 60 to 80 feet; at 1,000 feet would have considerably more, probably 100 feet. The supply of water is not large and I thought of collecting the water from one spring and one well, about 18 feet deep, into a reservoir, and from there conveying it to house and barn through one-inch galvanized iron pipe. In case well and spring would give out, I might drill well and put up wind wheel to pump into reservoir. How shall I go about it?"



THE WATER SYSTEM.

The above letter is from W. W. Gibson, a farmer of Lawrence county, Pennsylvania, to which the Ohio Farmer replies as follows:

A one-inch pipe under the circumstances stated will deliver from 12 to 15 gallons of water per minute. With small pipes of great length, friction greatly retards the flow, and your correspondent should not use less than one-inch galvanized pipe; he would find it more satisfactory to use a one and one-half-inch pipe. Assuming that he will use a one-inch pipe, the most important question for him to decide is whether he will need a reservoir or not. If he can collect water from different springs and get a flow equal to about the amount per minute named above, he will need no reservoir.



SIPHON AT WELL ON HILL.

Dig out the lower spring and put in two lengths of 36-inch sewer pipe. Then drill through just below the joint between them and connect the iron pipe. Place a screen over entrance to pipe. If a reservoir is needed, the size of it will depend largely upon the amount of water that is available and the amount of water that will be used. It is better to have supply enough to keep water running a good portion of the time. The pipe is then less liable to become clogged, will be cooler in summer, and less liable to freeze in winter.

Run the pipe as straight as possible from spring to buildings and without any abrupt turns. Lay it at least two feet deep so that it will remain cool in summer and keep from freezing in winter. T joints should be inserted wherever water is to be taken from the main pipe line. At the fountain there may be a manhole giving access to a stop-cock to shut water off from the fountain and a gate to let water out of fountain pipe in winter so as to avoid damage from freezing.

A waste-cock is put in at the barn so that, at times, the surplus water may be allowed to escape, and thus keep up more of a flow in the pipe than might otherwise be required. No filter will be needed.

In regard to drawing water from a well 18 feet deep: it could be siphoned out, but I should avoid this if possible, as air will sometimes collect in the siphon and water stop flowing. If a siphon is put in: at the highest point should be an opening with valve in order to facilitate filling the pipe with water, to get the flow started.

For Wrapping Butter.

Only the very best pure vegetable parchment paper should be used in wrapping butter. Inferior paper encourages the growth of mold and does not protect the butter. Much of the paper used is too light in weight. A ream of 500 sheets, measuring 50x12½ inches should weigh at least 40 pounds, and the same number of sheets 38x12½ inches should weigh not less than 30 pounds.

The Rattling Farm Wagon.

If your lumber wagon rattles take off the nuts, drive out the bolts and put a leather washer under the bolt head and under the nut or washer. Tell the boys and hired man not to drive so fast when the wagon is empty.

Old-Time Methods.

Every man who has given any thought to the subject knows that old-time methods will not apply to modern conditions. Every dairyman should keep this constantly in mind.

A SENSIBLE LAWN FOUNTAIN

Suggestion for the Beautifying of the Grounds About the Farmhouse.

The general idea of a lawn fountain seems to be a vase-like affair standing up from the ground and looking generally inartistic. It is because of an unwillingness to have such an affair before one's house that many are deterred from having a fountain upon the lawn. It is possible, however, says the Country Gentleman, to have a simple, yet artistic, fountain that will not only prove attractive, but will be inexpensive.

Fig. 1 shows the method of construction. A circular space of the size desired is dug in the ground, to a point below the frost line. This is to be filled nearly to the surface of the ground with loose stones, wider at the bottom than at the top, that the frost may have no chance to "lift" on the outside. The supply pipe must be put in position as the stones are filled in, the diagram showing the position. Over the top of the loose stones place a layer of cement. Around the edge of the circular space lay up a little wall of stones, placing cement between them, and covering the outside, top and inside of this little wall completely with the cement.

HOW THE FOUNTAIN IS BUILT.

As this wall is made, a waste-pipe should be inserted, as suggested, the top of this being the limit to which the water can rise in the fountain. The top of the low wall should be nicely rounded and smoothed. The upper end of the supply-pipe should have a spray nozzle, so that a shower of spray may be sent up, to fall gracefully over into the water of the tank. The height to which the water will rise depends, of course, upon the force with which the water is pressed through the supply-pipe from its source. It also depends upon the nozzle. A very fine spray will not rise to the height of a coarser spray, or a solid stream of water. Much of the work of making such a fountain can be done by the owner of the place, in which case the only expense would be for a little cement and the iron pipe.

THE FOUNTAIN COMPLETED.

FERTILIZE THE GARDEN.

The Absolute Necessity of Enriching the Soil If Good Crops Are to Be Secured.

After you have given the time and the energy in spading and digging and hoeing and raking your garden spot into shape, have spent money for good seeds that you have carefully planted, you certainly expect to have a crop of nice, luscious vegetables, providing you have given the garden the proper cultivation. You will not have, though, if you do not feed the soil that is to feed the plants that are to grow into feed for you. Don't expect an impoverished soil to grow vegetables, says the Farmers' Review. That is one of the impossibilities. If you do not know it now you will find it out to your regret and cost if you try it. Give the garden the heaviest dressing of fertilizers of any spot on the farm. Use all the old, well-rotted manure that you have available and then add a liberal quantity of such of the commercial fertilizers as your soil most needs, and nearly all soils need all of the elements of fertility to grow vegetables to perfection. Buy of a reliable manufacturer some of his best complete vegetable manure and apply it at the rate of from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds per acre. It will cost something to do this, but the return that will be made to you in the crop will amply repay you for the expense.

RYE MAKES GOOD PASTURE

How One Farmer Manages to Get Good Feed for His Live Stock.

I draw the manure on the sod ground, plow and harrow well, then plant to corn and cultivate well, writes a New York farmer in the Farm and Home. The next spring I plow the corn, top-dress with stable manure and sow oats. As soon as the oats are off, plow and top-dress again, then sow to rye. In six weeks I have big feed and pasture the rye until it freezes.

The last of May I cut the rye as soon as it heads, and the stock like it and do well on it. In the spring I seed on the rye with equal parts of clover and timothy. I pasture this in the fall, and the rye will be headed out the second time.

I cut the grass for hay three years, and plow again and follow the same rotation. I manage a piece of land this way every year, have nice fall feed and never fall to have big crops. Last fall I got first and second premiums on my corn at our fair. My rye was very stout and five feet tall, the grass so stout that I could not cut it with a machine until I cleared a place for it to run.

Early War on Weeds.

The early killed is the easy killed weed and the weed that robs the crops the least. Proper bedding is essential in making richer manure, as well as increasing the bulk.

For The Farmer.

A drink flavored with ginger, sugar and vinegar is much more satisfying to harvest hands than pure water. They drink less and it is consequently more healthful.

It is going to take some time for the farmer and the automobile to get on friendly terms. He has finally adjusted himself to the bike and will in time to the devil wagon.

The value of any farm is enhanced by having a well kept public highway passing by it, and still there are a few men who rather than do any gratuitous work on such a road for fear their neighbors may profit by it let such highway become a disgrace to them and to the community.

Now an inventor at Grand Falls, Mont., announces that he has discovered a process by which he can produce new potatoes every day in the year without any vine or outward visible signs of their growth. He has been in correspondence with a capitalist who states that if the experimenter makes good his claim he will give $100,000 for the controlling interest in the invention.

This is the season of the year when you begin to hear from your city friends and they insinuate how well they would enjoy a couple of weeks visit at your home. The farm would be less attractive for city folks at this season of the year if every farmer would make a practice of working the company from the city in as weed destroyers. And why not? It would do the city chaps good and help the farm besides. By the way, too, did you ever get as many invitations to visit friends in the city as city friends accept from you to visit on the farm?

Want Information About Boy.

The Belfast Weekly News, printed at Belfast, Ireland, is running an advertisement asking for information concerning the whereabouts of Robert Hunter Wilson, aged 18 years, who left Belfast and went to Winnipeg, Man., a year ago last April. His widowed mother lives at No. 4 Hopefield Terrace, Antrim Road, Belfast. The young man is a relative of Sheriff Bailey, of Bemidji, and the latter has been searching for him several months past. Mr. Bailey wishes that the newspapers in the county would copy this item so as to assist him in locating his missing relative.

Tandberg Resigns.

Thief River Press: O. T. Tandberg, who has been assistant cashier of the First National Bank since the first of the year, has tendered his resignation to take effect the 1st of July. Mr. Tandberg finds that his private business needs considerable more attention than he is able to give to the same, hence is forced to sever his connection with the bank. We trust this will not mean the removal of this estimable family from Thief River Falls, as they are among our most highly respected families and their friends would certainly regret to see them leave the city.

ARE DOING WELL.

New Settlers on the Reoervation Getting Lots of Land Broke Up.

Thief River News: The wet weather this year has not been bad for the settlers living on the eleven towns, and the progress they have been making in getting their land broke up is surprising to those who have not made a trip over this section recently. Most of them now have 40, 60 or 80 acres under the plow and in one instance a settler has his whole 160 acres broken up. Taken as a whole, the farmers are a decidedly thrifty lot and in a few years this will be the best settled and cultivated part of Red Lake county.

DAIRY NOTES.

From the Ada Index.

Some patrons are usver satisfied with their test until it is lesrnsd they havs been having strawberries and cream for breakfast.

When the farmar becomes indspendently wealthy the firet item of labor he generally decides to eliminate is that of milking those pesky cowe. This facts is responsible for tho rsduct output at many creameries.

Don't quit the crsamery for any old reason. If things are not right do what you can to make them so. You can make no improvement by quitting. We are entering are ags of co-opsrntion. It is the farmers only ealvation. Work for it. It will pay you.

It is not yet too late to plant fodder corn. The cows are now doing their best as feed ie plenty. Let us not forget the bountiful pasturss, well fed cowe and heavy milk flow are liable to be followed by drought, short pasture and stripper cows, August and September are usually as dry as May and June ars wet.

It is not necessary to buy a whole lot of high priced cows in ordsr for a fermer to make a success in ths dairy business. Ths commou cow with common cow with common sensa and treatmsnt will do her part. "As good as the wheat" ie out of date. "As good ae the cow" euits us better.

The epring calf will do much better if it ie kept in the stabla the firet season and eupplied with plenty of bedding to keep it dry and planty of good hay and a little grain to supplement the fesd of skim milk with.

Have you ever noticed that the most enthusiastic creamery petrons ere the most prosperous and vise versa? The two eeem to travel well together. Enthusiasm, properly controlled breeds success in any line of work.

The cow should havs plenty of shade in the pasture lot, if ehe is obliged to stand and fight flies and mosquitoes in the hot sun, she will not do her beet.

Don't, milk a cow with wet hands. Who will say he can milk a cow cleenly with wet hands? To be eure your hands may become a little wet from a sprny or from milking a very small teat, but if the hands should become a little wet it should be wiped off at once. Nine times out of ten the milk from a herd of cows thet have been milked with wet hands will have cowey, etable odor or flavor, and will be a very poor quality, and its quality can be improved but very little by pasturization and startere.

UNCLE SAM'S MEN TO WASH

Circular Issned by Shaw Requires Cleanliness of Government Employes on Road.

Washington, D. C.—Hereafter all persons traveling upon the public business by order of the secretary of the treasury will be expected to keep clean at the public expense. Hereafter cleanliness will be a charge upon the United States treasury employe.

The information as to the innovation is contained in a circular letter signed by Secretary Shaw and sent to all whom it may concern. After citing the new statute passed at the last session of congress, which says that only actual traveling expenses may be paid, it makes an enumeration of the items which may be included in an account. The new rule differs from the old one in only one particular. That particular is the addition of the words "reasonable allowance for baths."

Before the new circular was filed chiefs of division began discussing the question whether under the rule they will be permitted to approve hotel bills containing a charge for room and bath, or whether, in order to get a reasonable allowance for baths, the employe will have to swear that he went to the public bathroom and there did pay the sum of 25 or 50 cents, as the case may be. They also speculated as to whether the secretary will think it necessary that the traveler should be allowed the luxury of at least one bath per day.

The question whether it would be according to rule to have a room with bath arises from the fact that the strict letter of the rule appears to limit a hotel bill to $5 a day—"for board and lodging." There is no question in their minds but that a man may under the rules pay $5 a day for his lodging and his meals and 50 cents a day for baths taken in the public bathroom, but they are unable to decide whether a man may pay $5.25 a day to a hotel for the privilege of having a room with a bath attached.

ODD BASIS FOR HER SUIT.

Man Sits in Women's Lap When Street Car Gives a Lurch—Wants $10,300.

Cincinnati.—Because a street car on which she was riding gave a sudden lurch and Theodore Wolking, a prominent business man of Latonia, quite unostentatiously sat down in her lap for an instant, Mrs. Martha Bunch, No. 2006 Madison avenue, Covington, the widow of the late Henry Bunch, wants damages in the sum of $10,300.

She claims that Wolking was neglecting his duty in failing to support himself by a street car strap.

The suit was filed by B. F. Graziana against the South Covington & Cincinnati Street Railway company and Wolking.

Mrs. Bunch alleges that she was on a car bound for Cincinnati, and that when the car reached the Covington entrance to the suspension bridge, by reason of negligence the car was allowed to round the curve at a high rate of speed, bringing up on the straight piece of track beyond with a sharp jerk.

The Plaintiff further alleges that Theodore Wolking was standing in front of her, and, not having taken the precaution to cling to a strap, was precipitated into her lap when the car swung around the curve.

She claims that by reason of this fact she suffered great mental and physical suffering.

Nine Nations

Now Use Liquozone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different natione, are constant usere of Liquozone. Some are using it to get well; eome to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; eome as a tonic. No medicine was ever eo widely employed. These usera are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some-one whom Liquozone has cured.

If you need help, please aek some of these users what Liquozone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Druge never kill germe. For yonr own sake, ask about Liquozone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

For the American rigbte to Liquozone. We did thie after testing the prodnct for two yeare, through physisians and hospitale, after proving, in thousanda of different cases, that Liquozone destroye the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by componnding drugs, nor with alcohol. Ite virtnes are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immenee apparatus and 14 daye' time. The reenlt is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason le that germa are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excese of oxygen—le deadly to vegetal matter.

There liee the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kille germs ie a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine le almoet helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

Theee are the known germ dieeases. All that medicine can do for these troublee is to help Nature overcome the germe, and such resulte are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacke the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the diseaee must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

RED LAKE FALLS GAZETTE.

Vol. 22. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, JULY 13, 1905 No 44

NEW DITCH ORDERED

Ditch No. 22 Will Be Built In Emardville Township,—Engineer and Viewers Appointed.

The board of county commissioners in session this week passed a resolution ordering a new ditch in the town of Emardville, to be known as Ditch No. 22, and the work of surveying and viewing will be commenced just as soon as possible.

County Surveyor Wood was named as engineer and Messrs. Adam Zeh, W. E. Wood and William Erb were appointed viewers.

The new ditch will be a great benefit to that part of Red Lake county, and will enhance the value of farm lands along its course to a great degree. It is proposed to traverse through the heart of the town and will drain all the heretofore considered impossible swamp lands.

The survey will be made within a few days and it is likely that the work of construction will be hurried along with all possible speed.

DOING BIG BUSINESS.

C. L. Hanson, of Fertile, Has Many Landseekers Coming.

C. L. Hansen was here from Fertile Tuesday closing up a deal for a farm he had sold in Wyandotte. It was the southwest quarter of section 5, and the purchaser was P. J. Johnson, of Northwood, Iowa, who will move his family here this coming winter to make his home in the best part of the famous valley. The consideration was $3500.

Mr. Hanson has a large number of prospective settlers on the string and expects to make a number of big deals in Red Lake county dirt during the coming season. He is an active young business man, well acquainted with Red Lake county real estate and has the reputation of getting what he goes after.

He has numerous friends here who will trust that he may be highly successful in his new work.

LETS THEM INTERVENE

Judge Watts Granted Motion of Up-River Parties In County Seat Matter.

Thief River Falls has been given a right to interven in the action brought by Wm. Erb against the board of commissioners, and their legal lights will now throw their intellectual strength into the fray in an attempt to sustain the Erb mandamus.

This was the decision of Judge Watts at Crookston Tuesday evening, and the Thief River crowd have it figured out that they have gained a point.

The petition of the attorneys for the commissioners moved that the mandamus be thrown out of court on technical grounds but the Judge denied the motion and the case will be carried to the Supreme Court.

This means that the petition matter is held up for a year or so, until such time as the Supreme Court shall decide the question, and the intervention of the Thief River counsel does not help matters for the up-river bunch at all.

They are into the game—but they'll have a harder time getting out again

THREE NEW TOWNS.

Commissioners Organize More Reservation Township.

At the meeting of the board Tuesday a resolution was passed organizing three new townships on the reservation. They will be known as Park, Highlanding and Kratka, and will at once organize and elect their first set of officers.

The newly organized towns are said to be fairly well settled up and will start out in good shape under the new regime.

Several more towns will likely be organized before fall.

BOARD MEETS MONDAY

County Board of Commissionsrs Meet As Board of Equalization Next Week.

The board of county commissioners will meet at the Auditor's office next week, as a board of equalization, and will go over the returns of the town board of review and assessors and make what corrections in assessments as they see fit.

The meeting will probably last several days, as the board will be required to listen to all sorts of objections from parties wanting their assessments remedied.

REUNITED.

North Dakota Family Have Queer Experience.

Fargo, S. D., July 8.—A family was reunited in this city last night after a somewhat strenuous experience. Robert Shurlock, an itinerant horse trader, left his wife, children and several teams at Red Lake Falls five weeks ago. Until last night Mrs. Shurlock had been unable to secure trace of her husband, and had taken the children and teams to a number of towns over the country in search of him. She left the teams at Grafton and came to Grand Forks yesterday. There, through a Fargo newspaper man, she learned that her husband was in Moorhead, and arranged to come to this city to meet him.

Shurlock claims that he left his family at Red Lake while intoxicated. By the time he recovered they had moved on, and he had since been unable to locate them.

Spoiled Her Beauty.

Harriet Howard, of 209 W. 34th St., New York, at one time had her beauty spoiled with skin trouble. She writes: "I had Salt Rheum or Eczema for years but nothing would cure it, until I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve." A quick and sure healer for cuts, burns and sores. 25 c at W. A. The report of the board of audit was approved.

The application of the M. E. church of Thief River Falls for abatement of taxes was granted.

Applications of Leon Laurent and Joseph Tschirhart for abatement of taxes were rejected.

The sum of $100 for the town of Lambert and $75 for the town of Emardville was appropriated from the road and bridge fund.

The sum of $250.00 was transfered from the county revenue fund to the incidental expense fund.

A supplemental list of names for grand and petit jurors was drawn and filed with the Clerk of Court.

The tax levy for the year 1905 was fixed as follows: county revenue, $16,000; road and bridge, $3500; court house and jail maintenance, $1000; county bond and interest, $3500; local 1 mill school tax, $1000. This is about the same as last year's levy.

The board examined the books of the Auditor and treasurer and found them in good shape.

The sum of $150 was given to aid the Red Lake county agricultural society.

The application of Otto L. Bakken to be set off from school district No 18 and attached to school district No. 135 was granted.

The usual grist of bills was allowed.

Financial Report of Choral Club.

The following is a financial statement of the Red Lake Falls Choral Club published for the benefit of the members and those interested.

There were 44 members who signed the constitution and paid the entrance fee of 50 cents. This gave the club $22, money enough to buy the first music. The Cantata given June 12 netted the club $44.10 making the total receipts $66.10. The disbursements were as follows:

Feb. 13—30 Phyllis	$18 29
June 12—Accompanist	5 00
June 19—Opera House	12 00
June 19—Gazette printing	3 50
June 19—Courier printing	3 00
July 1—Wood	3 00
July 1—Janitor	2 00
July 1—K. of P. hall, 2 nights	6 00
July 1—Presb. church	1 00

This leaves a balance of $12.31 to the club's credit, which was deposited in the First State Bank.

The club wishes to take this opportunity to thank Prof. Onstad for his untiring efforts in drilling the Cantata, also Prof. Chamberlain and Mr. Tracy for their valuable assistance. We also wish to thank the Electric Light Company for the free use of their lights and the managers of the Opera House for their generous kindness in allowing the club to practice so many afternoons and evenings in their hall free of charge.

CROPS LOOK FINE

Prevailing Opinion That Red Lake County Will Have Bountiful Yield of Golden Grain.

From every part of the county comes encouraging reports as to the condition of the crops, and the hopes of the farmers and people generally are high. The past week of hot sunshine has made the grain literally jump from the ground and within a couple of weeks more of favorable weather, Red Lake county will be assured of the best crop they have had in several years.

The wheat is already heading out nicely, and flax is beginning to bloom showing that the crops as a whole are from two to three weeks ahead of last year and are of a better quality and stand.

No rust has yet appeared and it is the opinion of those who know that there will not be any rust to bother the farmer this year.

The grain gives promises of yielding better than it has done for several years past, and as a result there is cause for general rejoicing.

ELECTION IS SATURDAY

New Members of the School Board to Be Chosen By Voters of Independent District No. 15.

Saturday evening at the school house will occur the annual school election of Independent School District No. 15, and the people should turn out and see that capable men are chosen to fill the places on the board.

The terms of Messrs. Theo. Garceau and Frank E. Hunt expire this year, and as both have given such excellent satisfaction in the past, they should be unanimously re-elected. Both are of the exact type of men wanted for trustees, and their retention on the board will show the good judgment of the people. It is a decidedly poor policy to keep changing men on the school board, and especially is this true of such men as Mr. Garceau and Mr. Hunt, and The Gazette believes that the voters should demand that they again take the offices they have so competently filled the past two years.

Turn out voters, and see that they are given a flattering endorsement.

For The Farmer.

To make $10 clear from a cow, you must get at least $45 out of her every year.

The farmer who will not look after his own farm, will not long have any to look after.

The hired man question is becoming more of a problem each year, and the tendency of the times is toward smaller farms and more machinery.

Always think well of the old farm and never speak ill of it. That means that you must have a farm worth thinking and speaking the very best thinks about.

When fourteen ears of corn will plant one acre of ground one should absolutely know that each year of that corn is sound and reliable and of high germinating power.

Now that harvesting is in full swing don't neglect the most important crop on the farm—the boys and girls. If they want to go to the circus, find a way for them to go, though it is a busy time.

Try the application of a thick cement, made by mixing fine, clean sand with white lead paint, to stop the unsightly cracks that often come around chimneys, and are not large enough to mend with tin or shingles.

Winnipeg Exposition and Fair.

On account of the Winnipeg Exposition and Fair held at Winnipeg, Manitoba, July 20th to 28th, the Great Northern will sell tickets at one fare for the round trip to Winnipeg. Dates of sale are July 18th to 26th, returning limit July 31st. Ask your local agent for full particulars as to rates, etc.

Attention— that is what you should give your eyes. If they trouble you in any way have them tested. It costs you nothing.—HENRY W. ANDERSON, Optician

SHOWS SLIGHT LOSS

Red Lake Falls Will Not Show As Large A Population As We Had Fivs Years Ago.

While the definate announcement of the census returns for Red Lake Falls has not been made from headquarters. the general understanding is that the city will show a slight loss over the count of five years ago, which was 1885.

While the people generally did not believe that the city would show up with a gain of any great amount this year, owing to the time when the census was taken, yet it was generally surmised that we would come near to the 2000 mark, and had the census been taken at any other time of the year than the present such would undoubtedly have been the case.

It is easy to figure where there are a hundred or more actual residents of Red Lake Falls who were not here to be counted in June, and the enumerator had no way of ascertaining the particulars in regard to them. Aside from the several families that have left here only temporarily there are a whole lot of boys on the lumber drive and in the woods who claim Led Lake Falls as their legal residence and who vote here at every election. There was absolutely no way of getting at them to list them, however, and as a result our returns place us in a bad light with no grounds for such being the case. A count the first of November would show Red Lake Falls with better than 2000 people and The Gazette predicts that we will have double that figure when the next government census is taked.

THE MAY SETTLEMENT.

Auditor And Treasurer Complete Comprehensive Table.

Auditor James E. Ford and Treasurer Karl Hansen last week completed the May tax settlement and the various amounts have been appropriated to the several funds. The figures show the county to be in good shape financially, a total of $56, 509. 41 having been collected since the last settlement, March 1st. The following are the amounts collected for the various funds:

Delinquent Road	2,530.25
Other Special Taxes	964.63

On penalties, interests and costs $1902.47 was collected and on interest, and principal on state loans and from tax list of 1904 and former years, $566.17 was collected.

The showing made is a good one and puts the county's cash box in good condition.

HARRY SHANNON'S

Powerful Comedy Drama, "The Banker's Child."

As apple blossoms fall in the spring after a shower of rain and the wind has blown through the orchard, so do tears fall from the eyes of the spectator during the production of "The Banker's Child." And just as the sun follows the rain, so does laughter succeed the tears in the rendering of the play. It is not an effected story, but a simple tale woven around the lives of a few people, among them a man who deserts his wife and little child, the principal incidents of their lives tied together with beautiful language. It is just a stage poem with all those things which make tears and laughter commingle. This great play will be presented by The Shannons, supported by a most clever cast. The play is from the pen of Eunice Fitch,

At Metropolitan Opera House for one night only, Wednesday, July 19.

Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the ills attendant on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses of ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

STRIPED GRUNTS KISSING.

Little Fishes in New York Aquarium Afford Amusement to Spectators.

In one of the tanks at the aquarium is a lot of striped grunts, handsome little fishes from Bermuda, which do one thing that is peculiar and different from anything done by other fishes in the aquarium, relates the New York Sun.

If the outside of the glass front of the tank is stroked softly and repeatedly downward with the finger tips, the pretty fishes will come swimming toward it, opening wide their mouths, which are within of a beautiful red.

When near the glass two of them, each with its mouth wide open, will approach each other and gently lock jaws in an attitude of kissing. Sometimes when the glass has been stroked as many as four pairs of the striped grunt have gone through this performance at once.

Why the striped grunts do this nobody knows. It may be due to some sort of hypnotic influence exercised by the moving finger tips; but men experienced in the care of fishes in captivity have observed that all the species of the grunt family do the same thing in like circumstances.

Little Plume, chief of the Blackfoot Indians, of Montana, in company with another Indian chief and an interpreter, visited the aquarium one day recently and viewed all the other exhibits with interest, though with all of the Indian's traditional immobility. But at the exhibition given by the kissing striped grunts Little Plume laughed outright.

DIVORCE IN ENGLAND.

Report of Consul General Evans Shows That It Is Increasing Rapidly.

Interesting statistics concerning divorce proceedings in England and Wales are contained in an official report from United States Consul General Evans, at London. The number of petitions for dissolution of marriage filed in 1902 was 1,050, as against 900 filed in 1901. Of the petitions filed in 1902, 609 were filed by husbands and 441 by wives. The prompt action of the courts is shown by the fact that of the total number of petitions filed, 930 were set for trial during the year. Judgments were rendered as follows: For husband, plaintiff, in 397 cases; for wife, plaintiff, in 284 cases; for husband, respondent, in 17 cases, and for his wife, respondent, in ten cases. The annual number of petitions filed during the past five years was 853.

The population of England and Wales is about 33,000,000, showing, says Consul General Evans, that there was one petition for dissolution of marriage in some form filed in the courts in 1902 for about each 32,500 population. He adds that experimental or trial marriages, seemingly, are not encouraged by the ease of securing divorce, and that the sentiment of the people, sustained by the courts, is clearly against divorces or the divorced. The established church, he says, is against performing the marriage ceremony where either party to the proposed marriage is a divorced person.

TOUGHNESS OF CURRENCY.

Single Treasury Note Will Sustain Lengthwise a Weight of Forty-One Pounds.

That Uncle Sam's notes stand a great deal of rough and careless handling is a fact that impresses itself upon anyone who has ever chanced to note the manner in which the average cashier pulls and jerks the bills before he pushes them through the window to the waiting patron, says the Philadelphia Record.

A single treasury note measures 3⅛ inches in width by 7¼ inches in length. It will sustain, without breaking, lengthwise, a weight of 41 pounds; crosswise, a weight of 91 pounds. The notes run four to a sheet—a sheet being 8¼ inches wide by 13½ inches long. One of these sheets lengthwise will suspend 108 pounds, and crosswise 177 pounds.

It will be observed that a single note is capable of sustaining crosswise a weight of 91 pounds, which is twice the amount, by nine pounds, of the weight the note can sustain lengthwise; while in the case of the sheet, the crosswise sheet lacks 39 pounds of double the sustaining power of the lengthwise sheet.

English Village Life.

A writer in Cornhill says of village life in England: "The plain and terrible truth of the matter is that, in districts far wider and more numerous than the kind dwellers in towns and casual visitors to our pretty villages can be expected to realize, the agricultural laborer, his wife and his children are half-starved from the beginning to the end of life."

MUTINEERS GIVE UP

CREW OF RUSSIAN BATTLESHIP SURRENDERS TO ROUMANIAN AUTHORITIES.

Captors Agree to Treat the Prisoners as Foreign Deserters and They Are Conveyed to the Frontier and Allowed to Go Free—Japanese Troops Land on Sakhalin Island and Its Early Capitulation Is Predicted.

Kustenji, Roumania, July 8.—The Russian flag once again floats over the battleship Kniaz Potemkine and the torpedo boat which have given such terrors to the Black sea communities for a couple of weeks. The formal surrender of the mutinous crews occurred at 1 p. m., after a series of discussions and negotiations between the Roumanian authorities and the leaders of the mutineers.

The vessels arrived here early in the day and the Roumanian authorities who boarded the battleship called on the crew to surrender, in which case they would be treated as foreign deserters, or else leave the port forthwith. It speedily became apparent that the Russian vessels returned to this port with the intention of giving themselves up to a foreign government and the crews soon announced their acceptance of the Roumanian terms. The mutineers wanted to be permitted to take off the treasure which was on board the Kniaz Potemkine, but the Roumanian authorities declined to acquiesce.

The Russians will gradually be conveyed to any frontier they may select and will then be liberated, the local officials having given an undertaking to this effect. The Roumanian flag has been hoisted over the Russian war vessels as well as the Russian, so as to prevent any attack on them in Roumanian waters by the vessels of the Russian squadron, which are reported to be in pursuit of the mutineers.

JAPS ON RUSSIAN SOIL

LANDING OF ENEMY'S TROOPS ON ISLAND OF SAKHALIN OFFICIALLY REPORTED.

St. Petersburg, July 8.—A landing of Japanese troops on the island of Sakhalin has been officially reported and startled military circles in St. Petersburg, though it has been realized since the defeat of Admiral Rojestvensky that the Japanese were able to take possession of the island as soon as they thought fit. The strength of the landing force cannot be ascertained, but the garrison of the island is too weak to offer an effective defense.

Though the Japanese seem unwilling to risk a general battle with General Linevitch pending the peace meeting at Washington the landing of troops at Sakhalin is considered to express Japan's decision regarding the formal conclusion of a general armistice, namely, that in the interval before the meeting it is necessary to occupy the island whose possession is an important card in Japan's diplomatic contest at Washington.

ON STEAMSHIP MINNESOTA.

Jap Peace Plenipotentiaries Sail for United States.

Yokohama, July 8.—The steamer Minnesota of the Great Northern line, having on board the Japanese peace plenipotentiaries, sailed from this port for Seattle at 4:30 p. m. The governor of Yokohama and the civic bodies escorted the plenipotentiaries to the pier, where they were received by a military guard. At the pier the plenipotentiaries and their suites entered launches and were conveyed to the Minnesota, which was dressed with flags, as were all the other ships in the harbor.

Marquis Ito, Premier Katsura, the other members of the cabinet, Mr. Griscom, the American minister, and the staff of the legation were among those who accompanied Baron Komura and his party to the Minnesota. An enormous crowd of Japanese and foreigners, with bands of music, assembled at the water front and general enthusiasm was manifested, the bands playing patriotic airs and the crowds discharging fireworks. On arriving on board the Minnesota Baron Komura and those who accompanied him partook of a collation, after which the ship sailed amidst a storm of "banzais."

Fifty Others Injured by the Tornado in Texas.

Fort Worth, Tex., July 7.—Twenty-six persons are known to have been killed and 50 injured by the tornado which swept over a portion of Montague county in the northern part of this state Wednesday afternoon. The property loss will probably total $200,000. Following is a revised list of the dead: A. P. Earle, Sadie Earle, Buck Earle, infant of Lawrence Pillow, Mr. Tomlinson and his wife and four children, Mrs. C. C. Chackelford, Linnie Schackelford, Mrs. S. L. Tumleson and her three children, Mrs. Mary Lester and her four children, Caleb White, Mrs. C. P. Williams, Frank Eakin and two unknown persons, at Jacksboro.

VERY HOT IN NEW YORK.

Ten Deaths and More Than Two Score Prostrations.

New York, July 11.—Ten deaths and more than two score cases of prostration resulted from the continuance Monday of the wave of intense heat which reached the city Saturday. A grateful breeze from the sea served in a measure to temper the torrid temperature and excessive humidity, but the suffering, especially in the swarming tenement house quarters, was intense and throughout the day the ambulances were kept busy removing sunstruck patients to the various hospitals.

WORK OF A REFORMER

THREE SALOONS AT IOLA, KAN., DEMOLISHED BY USE OF DYNAMITE.

Iola, Kan., July 10.—Three saloons in West street, in the heart of the business section of Iola, were completely wrecked by dynamite early in the day. Much damage was done to other property in the vicinity and the loss is conservatively estimated at $100,000. J. E. Thorpe, the owner of one of the saloons, was injured, but not seriously.

The dynamite was exploded apparently by some temperance reformer. No arrests have been made.

The wrecked saloons were known as the "Red Light," the "Blue Front" and the "Eagle." There were two distinct explosions, each of terrific force. Besides demolishing the three saloons the explosions damaged the Palace shoe store, the drug stores of Campbell & Burrell and Cowan & Ausherman, across the alley in the rear, and shattered dozens of plate glass windows in the business section. The explosions were heard at Humboldt, nine miles distant.

EIGHT MEN BLOWN TO BITS.

Premature Explosion Cause of Serious Disaster.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 10.—Eight men were blown to pieces and two others were injured by the premature explosion of a blast of rock powder on the Pennsylvania railroad improvements near Cumberland.

All the victims were employes of P. S. Kerbaugh & Co., contractors, who are building the double tracks for the Pennsylvania railroad to connect with the Enola yards. The bodies of the men were terribly mangled and particles of flesh and bone were scattered for a distance of 200 yards from the scene of the explosion.

The explosion shook the country for miles around and broke many windows in Harrisburg and towns across the river.

WILL REST IN AMERICA.

Body of Paul Jones Delivered to Representatives of United States.

Paris, July 6.—The ceremony of the delivery of the body of Admiral Paul Jones to the representatives of the United States was held at 3:30 p. m. in the American church on the Avenue de l'Alma in the presence of a distinguished gathering of the highest official, military and naval dignitaries of France, the diplomatic representatives of many countries and the special ambassadors and naval authorities sent from the United States to receive the body.

The formal ceremony consisted of the delivery of the body by General Porter, as the finder and custodian, to Mr. Loomis, representing the United States, appointed to receive it, and Mr. Loomis commissioning Admiral Sigsbee to transmit it to America.

FOR WORK ON THE CANAL.

Commission Decides to Import Foreign Laborers.

Washington, July 11.—To test the capacity for work of Italians, Chinese and Japanese and also the contract method of securing and handling laborers the Panama canal commission has decided to import 2,000 men of each nationality for a 500-day contract, subject to renewal. Proposals for furnishing these laborers soon will be issued. It is the object of the commission to reduce the amount of this sort of labor as much as possible by the introduction of modern machinery, but it will be necessary to secure several thousand additional workmen.

Wealthy Chicagoan Dead.

ROOT SUCCEEDS HAY

FORMER SECRETARY OF WAR BECOMES HEAD OF STATE DEPARTMENT.

Will Take the Oath of Office in a Couple of Weeks, but Does Not Intend to Go to Washington Permanently Until Some Time in September—Acceptance of Mr. Root Gratifying to President Roosevelt.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 8.—Official announcement was made here during the day that Elihu Root has been appointed secretary of state. The announcement was made on the authority of President Roosevelt in the following statement:

"Elihu Root has accepted the office of secretary of state. He will take the oath of office in a couple of weeks, but it will necessarily be some little time before he closes up his business affairs. He will not go to Washington permanently until some time in September."

President Roosevelt is much gratified at Mr. Root's acceptance and is deeply sensible of the personal sacrifices made by Mr. Root in again taking up the burdens and duties of a member of the cabinet.

It is the intention of Mr. Root to assume the duties of secretary of state practically at once, although it will be perhaps two weeks before he formally will take the oath of office. His professional interests are so large that he will have to devote considerable time to a satisfactory arrangement of them before he goes to Washington to take permanent charge of the state department.

When he takes active charge of the department he will give up entirely his law practice.

REFINERY LAW KILLED.

State Supreme Court Decides Kansas Cannot Engage in Oil Business.

Topeka, Kan., July 8.—The law passed by the legislature last winter appropriating $410,000 to build an independent oil refinery at Peru, has been declared unconstitutional by the state supreme court in an opinion rendered by Associate Justice Greene.

The oil refinery law was considered one of the most direct blows struck at the Standard Oil company by the last legislature, which adopted several measures tending to restrict that concern in the handling of the Kansas product.

ELEVEN MEN PERISH

THEIR BOAT OVERTURNED IN THE CHIPPEWA RIVER IN WISCONSIN.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., July 8.—A terrible accident occurred Friday at Little Falls dam, in which eleven men lost their lives by drowning. They are:

Louis Gokey, Flambeau; Saul Brackett, Eau Claire; Max Billard, Drywood; Ole Horn, Chippewa Falls; Joe Peloquin, Drywood; Andrew Cagnon, Jim Falls; Oscar Bocquest, Anson; Bert Larry, Anson; Byron Ferguson, Chippewa City; Adolph Toutant, Cadott; Patrick Leiden, Stanley.

A crew of seventy-four men had been sent out by the Chippewa Lumber and Boom company under Kenneth McLeod to break a log jam below the falls.

A crew of fifteen men started in a boat for the center of the stream. Louis Gokey and Andrew Cagnon were running the boat, which was overloaded, and as it touched the lower end of the jam, three men jumped and landed safely on the logs.

The other twelve, however, were carried swiftly away into the wild rapids, where the boat capsized, throwing all into the water. They were all good swimmers, but the water was too swift and only one succeeded in saving himself. He was a seventeen-year-old boy, Eddie Martin of Chippewa Falls.

A boat which immediately set out to rescue the drowning men arrived too late and was carried through the rapids. It also capsized, but no one was drowned.

The sessions will be held in the government naval yard at Portsmouth, in the new building just completed there.

RED LAKE FALLS MILLING CO.

It is not strange that Page fence will stretch up smoothly over hills and down through ravines. It is made to do it, and it is simply putting into use one of the innate properties of its coiled wire. It is elastic.

It is not strange that short kinks or bends in wire cannot supply this elasticity like a coil or spiral. If they could, why haven't the manufacturers of spring balances, or of car springs used a kinked, crimped or other shaped metal than a coil. Probably the reason is that kinked or crimped metal will not let out and take up, will not shorten and lengthen like a coil spring.

Further, why do you suppose that high-carbon stock is always used for springs' unless it is because low carbon stock will not make a spring. Low-carbon stock is much the cheaper.

Hair springs in watches are made of only a little higher carbon stock than Page-Wire is made of, in fact, there is not much more difference between the proportion of carbon in Page-Wire and watch-spring wire, than there is between the fence wire generally in use and that which we use for all the horizontal wires in Page fences.

Thief River also had a fire—but don't break the news to Jack Eastman.

Wonder if Thief River's fire will draw forth some more sarcastic remarks from Latta, of the Pinear?

Vote at the school election Saturday night, citizens, and see that you place good men on the board for the coming term.

Frank E. Hunt and Theo. Garceau deserve re-election as members of the board of education. See that you help endorse them.

John Eastman is in a hole. He can't even lay the blame for their big fire onto the elements. There was no thunder storm last night, Jack.

Thief River Falls in intervening in the Erb mandamus case is likely to find herself in the position of the Irishman who caught the wild cat. They will want some one to help them "lave go uf it" before they get done.

Thief River Falls partisans claim that Red Lake Falls won't stand a show for the county seat in another year. Strange that they imagine they are the whole world, and never help out another part of the county in a celebration or in any other way. It will take more than the votes of the people of Thief River Falls to win the county seat, and as fast as the public generally tumbles to their antics this is all they will have left.

"The Banker's Child."

Opera House one night only Wednesday, July 19, Harry Shannon's 4 act comedy-drama, "The Banker's Child". The Minot Daily Optic of July 5. N. D. says: "Last night a large audience witnessed the play, "The Banker's Child" at the opera house and everyone present left at the close of the play with the highest praise for Harry Shannon's play. It is a long time since a show has come to Minot as elevating in its tone and as prettily staged and costumed as "The Banker's Child." The elegant costumes are seldom equalled on the stage and the play from beginning to end is intensely interesting. Little Stella known as the banker's child is a marvel, she played her part in a manner that captured the audience. The specialties were also very fine, it is hoped that Manager Shannon will give us a return date next season. This excellent company will be at Red Lake Falls for one night only Wednesday July 19. Seats on sale Saturday.

BUSINESS CHANGE.

"Little" Ed Bray Buys Out J. E. Bray Saloon.

A deal was closed yesterday whereby "Little" Ed Bray became the owner of the J. E. Bray saloon business, and the new proprietor took charge yesterday.

The new owner has been a resident of Red Lake Falls for a long time and is known as a first class fellow, who will endeavor to conduct an up-to-date place, and who is assured a share of the public business.

The Gazette has not learned of the intention of the retiring owner, but trusts that he will remain a resident of Red Lake Falls.

The people will hope that success may abide with both.

Fire at Thief River.

Several business buildings in the block north of the Ogahmah hotel at Thief River Falls were destroyed by fire early this morning The fire got a good start before it was discovered but prompt action on the part of the department saved the row from going up in smoke. Arthur Mercier's place had a close call, the roof and one side of his building being destroyed. He suffered no loss, however, as the building was the property of others. The origin of the fire was a mystery.

Woman's Column.

Furniture dealers believe in short courtships.

A woman who is subject to burning feet should never wear heelless slippers about her room.

Plunge the hands and wrists in cold water when over heated. Wonderful how refreshing it is

When nails are to be driven into wood which it is feared they may split first lay them in soapy water or drive into a bar of soap and there is no danger.

Educational has taught the woman of today that health is the first essential of beauty, consequently the woman of today cultivates health and knows better than did her predecessors how to take proper care of her body.

Most women make the mistake of having too many clothes and buying cheap ones. Two good dresses are worth more than a dozen poor ones. They last three times as long and it is only a matter of saving one's money and making a good investment.

Because a girl has not married young and is approaching the age where, if single, she will be put into the "old maid" class, is no proof that she is not good and nice, but rather is an evidence that she knows her own worth; that she has good sense and a proper appreciation of life and will not "hitch up" with just anybody who might propose. We have a few such in our vicinity, and they are jewels, worth their weight in gold. In this locality, as elsewhere, the best are not the easiest obtained, but lucky is the worthy young man who is accepted.

Hurt In A Runaway.

While starting for her home east of town Monday evening, Mrs. Jeff Porter was the victim of a runaway accident, which might have resulted in her instant death. Shortly after leaving the store her team started to run and when at the foot of Main street threw her out of the buggy and continued in their mad flight. Assistance was soon at hand and Dr. Lemieux immediately summoned, and upon examination found that the collar bone had been broken. The injury was dressed and the unfortunate lady taken to her home east of town. She will be laid up several weeks as a result of the mishap.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses of ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

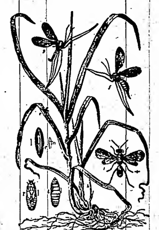
FARM AND GARDEN

PARASITES OF HESSIAN FLY

How the Insect Friends of the Farmer May Be Distinguished from the Enemy of the Wheat Field.

The importance of parasitic enemies of insects that prey upon our farm crops is very great and grave. In a recent bulletin from the Missouri experiment station Prof. J. M. Stedman calls attention to a number of parasites of the Hessian fly as follows:

"The great importance of the work of various parasitic insects in destroying the Hessian fly and preventing its undue increase can scarcely be overestimated. Undoubtedly these parasites kill practically every year from 50 to 90 per cent. of the Hessian flies before they reach maturity, and in some years a greater per cent. are thus destroyed. Still, notwithstanding this great reduction by parasitic insects and also by unfavorable climatic conditions, these insects frequently become unduly numerous and consequently destructive. It is not only because of the economic importance of these parasites of the Hessian fly, but also because of the fact that otherwise the cultivator would not as a rule be able to distinguish them from the Hessian fly itself, that we have thought best to give an illustration of the more common species of these parasites found in this state. A glance at the illustration shown will go much farther toward acquainting the average agriculturist with these insects, and of enabling him to recognize and separate them from the Hessian fly, than any amount of description would do; and hence we will not enter into description of each species.



WHEAT PLANT AND HESSIAN FLY.

a, egg; b, larva; c, puparium or "flaxseed;" d, pupa; e, adult female; f, adult female, enlarged; g, male, enlarged; h, "flaxseeds;" l, parasite of Hessian fly.

"It should be observed that the Hessian fly has but one pair of wings, the second pair being represented by a slender club-like rudiment; while in all the parasites there are two pairs of wings, the first pair, however, much larger than the second pair. In one species, Baetomus subapterus, the insect is frequently found without wings at all. Although the Hessian fly and its various parasites look alike to the casual observer, the above facts will enable one to note the difference, if followed with a little close observation and sharp eyes, especially if one be provided with a hand lens."

CUTTING POTATO FOR SEED

Rules Which Should Be Observed in Preparing the Pieces for Planting.

In cutting seed potatoes take the potato in the left hand with the stem end toward you. If it is large cut off a good-sized piece with two or three eyes. Revolve the potato to the right and keep cutting off about the same size pieces, finishing the potato by splitting the seed end. Cut potatoes as you want to use them and after they are cut never expose to the sun or air to dry out.

If you cannot use them immediately pour out on damp ground in the shade of trees or building and cover with a blanket. Seed the least bit dry, says Farm and Home, comes up slower, blights easily, and yields lighter, just in proportion as it is dried out. To cut seed use a kitchen knife ground down narrow and thin, so that the potato can be cut with very little force and not tire the hand.

FARM NOTES.

Scatter a little wheat where the quails can get it.

Sell the hay and straw through the medium of live stock, and save on the fertilizer bill.

Does the cold wind triumphantly whistle: "No windbreaks here!" If so, take the hint.

The farmer who uses a nail keg in the village store for his workshop on rainy days rarely has his tools in repair.

The farmer who speculates in stocks is pretty certain, sooner or later, to furnish stock for the village gossips to speculate on. Our folks will not do it.

There are classics in agriculture, as in other books. No farmer can afford to be without those works which bear directly on his farming.

Fred R. Pennell, Pianist, Grand Opera House, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

"Two years ago I came to Hot Springs to take the baths and be treated for bladder and kidney trouble. After spending two months here under the care of one of the most prominent physicians and receiving little or no benefit, I was persuaded to try Peruna. I had little faith in it, but after using one bottle I noticed a marked improvement. Three bottles entirely cured me. I can cheerfully recommend Peruna to any one afflicted as I was."—Fred R. Pennell.

Thomas M. Hicks, 1131 13th St., Louisville, Ky., writes:

"Neglected colds, irregular habits and overwork brought on serious kidney and bladder trouble. My blood seemed inflamed with poison, my stomach became entirely demoralized, a bad odor emanated from my urine, and I realized I was a sick man. The doctors dosed me to their heart's content, but I kept growing worse. Then fortune brought Peruna to my notice and I at once began to mend. I kept taking it for five months before I was completely cured. I feel now that I owe my life to Peruna and will never cease to be grateful."—Thomas M. Hicks.

S. L. Earle, Superintendent of Streets, Jacksonville, Fla., writes:

"I am a firm believer in Peruna. I find that it has been of practical benefit to a number of the men employed in the Street Cleaning Department in the city of Jacksonville. They are especially exposed to the inclemency of the weather and a number who caught cold, which later developed into pneumonia, kidney or liver trouble, were cured through the use of Peruna."—S. L. Earle, Superintendent of Streets.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage executed and delivered by Anna B. Proper and Erastus S. Proper, her husband, Mortgagors, to the First State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, Mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 24th day of February, 1904, was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 25th day of February 1904, at 11 30 o'clock a. m., in Book 21 of Mortgages on page "219" and is now recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, in Book 21 of Mortgages, on page 219, to wit: Lots numbered eight (8), nine (9), ten (10), eleven (11), twelve (12), twenty (20), twenty one (21), twenty two (22), twenty three (23), and twenty four (24), of Block numbered one hundred two (102), in Kretzschmar's Addition to the city of Red Lake Falls, according to the Plat thereof on file and of record in the Office of the Register of deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, containing 10 lots and was given to secure the payment of the sum of one hundred-twenty five ($125.00) Dollars with interest thereon at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, payable annually, on the 24th day of February 1905, according to the conditions of one principal note, by failure to pay the annual interest and principal falling due on the 24th day of February 1905 and by failure to pay the taxes levied upon said real estate, and whereas, said mortgage provided as one of its conditions that in case of failure to pay any part of said interest when the same becomes due or to pay any taxes levied upon said real estate before the same becomes delinquent, the whole sum of money or indebtedness thereby secured shall thereupon become due and payable; and whereas said mortgage also provides that if such taxes are not so paid the holder of said mortgage may elect to pay the same and be entitled to interest on the same at the rate of 10 per cent per annum and said mortgage stand as security for the amount so paid, with interest.

And Whereas, there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice on said principal indebtedness and interest thereon to the date hereof and for said amount paid for taxes and interest thereon the sum of one hundred forty and 42-100 ($140.42) dollars.

And Whereas, because of said defaults and each of them the power of sale in said mortgage contained has become operative, and no action at law or in equity having been instituted to cover said mortgage indebtedness.

A Grim Tragedy

is daily enacted, in thousands of homes, as Death claims, in each one, another victim of Consumption or Pneumonia. But when Coughs and Colds are properly treated, the tragedy is averted. F. G Huntley, of Oaklandon, Ind., writes: "My wife had the consumption, and three doctors gave her up. Finally she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which cured her, and today she is well and strong." It kills the germs of all diseases. One dose relieves. Guaranteed at 50c and $1 by W. A. Schreiter druggist. Trial bottle free.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climate conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists A. L. Reichert.

BANKER CLEMENT CONVICTED.

Found Guilty on Twenty-four Counts of Indictment.

St. Paul, July 8.—Guilty as charged in twenty-four of the counts in the indictment was the verdict returned by the jury in the United States district court in the case of Thomas B. Clement, the aged Faribault banker, charged with misapplying the bank's funds and with making false entries in the books and in reports to the comptroller of the currency.

The indictment contained twenty-seven counts and the court directed a verdict of not guilty in two of these, so that the jury found the defendant guilty in all but one of the counts submitted to it.

George N. Baxter, the defendant's attorney, made a motion for a new trial and Judge Morris set the date for the hearing on this motion as Nov. 10. The defendant will continue at liberty on his bond, which is a continuing one, and the passing of sentence will be deferred until after the court has passed on the motion for a new trial.

The penalty under each of the counts is from five to ten years' imprisonment, but the court may make the sentences concurrent. This would probably be done in this case, as the jurors unanimously recommended mercy in behalf of the defendant.

GERMANY IS PLEASED

MOROCCAN AGREEMENT CONSIDERED A SPLENDID DIPLOMATIC VICTORY.

Berlin, July 10.—The agreement between France and Germany on the subject of Morocco cannot but be recorded here as a diplomatic success of the first importance over both Great Britain and France, although it is expressed in terms of great moderation, the agreement being referred to as "an accord based on a full appreciation and recognition of each government's rights and aims." Yet officially the issue is regarded as a triumph for Emperor William and Prince von Buelow that will strengthen Germany's diplomacy everywhere on the Continent.

The attitude of the American government towards the Moroccan controversy was altogether satisfactory to Germany. Precisely what part President Roosevelt took in forwarding the settlement is not made public in Berlin, but it is appreciated that the influence he exerted at Paris and London contributed towards the settlement.

Judge Spencer immediately qualified, furnishing a $250,000 bond and at once took charge of the concern.

Secretary of State Swanger made the following statement in regard to the bank's assets:

"The People's United States bank has various sums on deposit with banks in different cities of the United States, the total amount of cash being about $1,500,000. It has also $75,000 in government bonds. There are also securities of the University Heights property and of the Lewis Publishing company amounting to $900,000.

542 1-2 Congress St.,
Portland, Maine, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Dizziness, Headache, Backache, Worry, Fretfulness, Irritability, Melancholy, Lack of Ambition.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. G. HASKIN, Freeville, N. Y.

WEAR MUCH WIRE IN SKIRT

Yards of Steel and Whalebone and Armor Plate Used in Ladies' Apparel.

London.—Fashionable women will wear during the summer of 1905 something very closely akin to that monstrosity of bygone days—the crinoline.

So large, indeed, are the quantities of wire and steel used by fashionable dressmakers in the manufacture of the new spring skirts that there is some justification for the reported return of the dreaded crinoline.

Under the skirt is an elaborate framework of wire and whalebone, very suggestive of the crinoline. This produces the full and outstanding effect now aimed at by the leading French dressmakers.

"In Paris quantities of wire and steel are absorbed in the making of all skirts of thin material," said a well known court dressmaker to a reporter.

"For a full ten inches below the waist the skirt must fit like a glove, and this effect can only be obtained by the use of a whalebone encasement.

"Nine steels—about seven and one-half feet—in the upper part of a skirt is an ordinary allowance, but in the case of pleated skirts, every pleat may require to be held in piece by five whalebones, and in order to accentuate the straight line from the bust to the waist, which is a great feature of the new styles, a broad band of steel is inserted in the bodice.

"A single row of whalebone at the hem, about 18 feet, insures the skirt standing out, and above this are inserted several rows of wire, the quantity varying according to the texture of the material. In the case of a thin voile or crepe de chine dress from 108 to 150 feet would be necessary."

WEDS TWO IN SINGLE DAY

Good-Looking Youth Admits the Soft Impeachment, But Pleads Lack of Memory.

New York.—According to the judges of general sessions there has never been such a strange case of bigamy brought to their attention as that of John Steffler, who pleaded guilty before Judge Newberger of marrying two women on the same day.

Steffler is a good-looking young man. He told his attorney and the court that he had no recollection of contracting either marriage and could offer no explanation of his conduct.

Judge Newberger remanded him to the Tombs for sentence, and will make an investigation into his case. When Steffler pleaded guilty he said:

"I'm married all right to these two women, but I don't know why I did it. I must have been in a trance. I don't remember anything about it."

The indictment charges Steffler with marrying Estelle Deffely August 13 last. On the evening of the same day Steffler married Hannah Ackerman.

Both of Steffler's wives were in court and intermittently denounced Steffler as a "brute." The two women sat together in the rear of the courtroom where he was arraigned.

CLEVER PLOT TO BREAK JAIL

Convict, an Electrician, Puts Out All the Lights with a Switch—Recaptured.

Salem.—By means of an ingeniously contrived cut-off switch with which he controlled the lighting system of the prison Charles Williamson, a trusty convict, escaped from the penitentiary, but was recaptured before he succeeded in getting out of town.

Williamson is an electrician serving a five-year term for forgery. He tapped the main current wire in the pumphouse and put in an improvised switch. When ready to leave before daylight, Williamson shut off the lights, tied a string to his switch lever, to which he attached a water bucket. He punctured the bottom of the bucket and dropped it into the water tank outside the building. The water slowly filled the bucket, which was weighted with lead, until it sunk after a period of two hours and a half and turned on the lights again.

In the meantime Williamson scaled the penitentiary wall in a dark spot and escaped. Warden Curtis happened to be at the Southern Pacific depot, recognized the fellow as he was about to board the train for Portland and rearrested him.

EX-MAYOR NOW A "NAVVY"

Former Executive of Des Moines Seeks Work on Streets from Officials He Had Appointed.

Des Moines, Ia.—That his family might continue to have a home to shelter them, James Brenton, ex-mayor of Des Moines, took pick and shovel and commenced work upon the public streets. Of the members of the board of public works, who had received their appointments at his hands, he asked the privilege of joining the street working gang, and the request was granted, at a salary of $2 per day.

Brenton's case has been peculiar. Uneducated, he went into politics, and was nominated and elected county superintendent of schools here. Later he was elected mayor. During his administration the mayor's office was a political storm center.

He served but one term, and went out of office with scarcely a dollar. Next he appeared as a bartender in a Des Moines saloon.

ARRANGEMENT OF HOGPENS

Practical Plan Which Has Been Tried by One Farmer with Success.

The great difficulty in planning a hog-house is to get it so that it will be dry and clean. In this plan, 16x20 feet, I have four sleeping—or nest—pens, and four feed pens; close partitions between them, except passageway between the nest pen and the feed pen, explains John M. Jamison, in the Rural New Yorker. Each feed and nest pen is to be 5x6 feet, and the alleyway 4x20 feet. The building should stand east and west, with pens on south side, and alley on north side, and have a yard on south side as large as desirable. I would make a double doorway at two of the partitions, and make the doors so they will close tight. As arranged, the sows can make their nests in corners away from doors, and the wind will not blow on them when the doors are open. The pens next to the alley can be used to feed in, when the weather is bad, and when good, the feeding can be done in lots outside. The more feeding done inside, the more work required to keep the house clean.

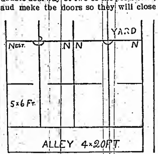

DIAGRAM OF HOG PEN.

I would lay the floor with cement concrete, making the alley floors level, but the pen floors I would slope from the south wall towards the alley, about three inches in the 12 feet. This will tend to cause all water to flow towards the alley, and keep the nests and feed stalls comparatively dry. The bedding from the nests, when soiled, can go into the lots or alley, just as the feeder wishes, when he cleans out the stalls. The yards should be kept clean by throwing in straw, or other coarse material. Over this floor plan the builder can put such building as suits him best; a shed in form, the roof sloping one way, or a comb roof. In either case, if he wishes, a room for bedding and feed above the pens. This building should be located on an elevated point of ground, so the water will flow away from it in all directions, and the roof spouted, to keep water from making it wet about the building. Make doors at the ends of the alley. If the doors are cut in half, it will often be an advantage in airing out the pens. There should also be plenty of windows on the south side, for sunshine is a very important factor in the health and comfort of swine.

THE BEST HOG TROUGH.

With Slats Across the Top It Will Keep the Hogs from Lying in Them.

I have tried all kinds of hog troughs and like best the one shown here, writes an Illinois farmer to the Farm and Home. It can be made of two boards for water, swill or grain, is stout and durable, is not liable to burst when water freezes in it. The boards should be 2x12, and 16 feet long is a good length; 1x12-inch boards make a very good trough, but are not so durable as two-inch. The slats across the top keep the hogs from lying in the trough when it is filled with water in hot weather.

THE LIVE STOCK.

Study the individual needs of each cow and supply those needs.

Keep the horse judiciously shod and exercised.

Be cheerful—help to inspire the other fellow too.

Some cows would be better ones if they were fed more.

It is the steady, quiet horse that can do the biggest day's work when it is hot.

You can change the quantity of milk by the feed, but the quality is born with the cow.

A strong, well-grown sow may be bred to farrow at one year, but a small one should not be bred until 10 or 12 months old.

Chaff and loose straw dropping through the cracks of an ill-constructed ceiling are a constant source and cause of dust during milking. The ceiling of the stable should be as tight as your house.

Many a stable of four or more horses, if intelligently mated and driven, would do better work and do it easier. An old horse mated to a young one, a heavy horse to a light one, a slow horse to a fast one, often causes trouble, which might easily be avoided by a little foresight and judgment in the matter.

The Horse to Reject.

Reject a horse with toes turned in or out. The twist generally occurs at the fetlock. Toes turned out are more objectionable than toes turned in. When toes are turned out the fetlocks are generally turned in, and animals so formed are very apt to cut or bruise. Both, however, are weak formations.

CLOSELY-PENNED FOWLS.

The Best Results Not Obtained from the Chickens Which Have to Be Confined.

I have found by large experience that it is not advisable to pen up fowls unless they have to be penned, writes an Indiana correspondent of a farm journal. Closely penned fowls are generally deprived of many of the things fowls should have to enable them to do their best work. Usually the green stuff in the yard is so small in quantity that it soon disappears altogether. I have a lady friend who was very anxious to keep hens. She had a house built for them, about ten by ten feet in size, and a yard about as wide as the house, and 30 feet long. She bought four beautiful White Rocks and a rooster. How pretty they looked in the yard, bright with green grass! If she had but been content with the little flock, she might have been keeping hens yet.

But alas! She thought if 80 eggs a month were such a help, 400 eggs a month would be far better, so she bought 20 more fowls of the same breed. That made a flock of 25. How the grass did disappear from that yard! By midsummer not a green thing was left there. When the fall rains began, even the roots of the grasses that had made up the texture of the sod had disappeared, having decayed in a few weeks after the tops were killed. The birds spattered around in a lake of mud. How they did look, covered with mud from foot to wing.

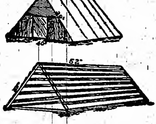
Their mistress no longer took her visitors out to see them. Her enthusiasm had died out, and she gave the fowls as little attention as possible. Another month, and they had disappeared. The lady said she had got tired of keeping chickens, "they are so dirty."

Now, if my friend had retained her little flock and at the same time retained that bit of green grass, she would not have become disgusted. Looks count for a great deal.

COOPS FOR HEN AND CHICK

An A-Coop, Boarded Tightly at the Back and Part of Front Is Best for Spring.

A handy coop and run for hen and chicks is shown in the cut. This is an A-coop, boarded tightly at the back and part of the front so as to afford protection in early spring. An A-shaped run the width and height of coop and of any length desired can be used to give the hen greater liberty.—Farm and Home.



HEN COOP AND RUN.

THE DEPTH OF FRAMES.

For Comb-Honey the Divisible Brood Chamber Hive Is Probably the Best.

While all are agreed as to the desirability of keeping bees on movable frames, there seems to be a great diversity of opinion regarding style and depth of same.

Movable frame hives may be divided into two classes as far as general principles go. One is known as the divisible brood chamber, and the other as the non-divisible, or single chamber hive. As all hives and fixtures about the apiary should be of one style and size, the beginner ought to weigh well this hive problem before marrying himself to any particular one. He will find that changing from one to another is an expensive proceeding. The style or depth best for any certain locality can be ascertained only by being on the spot and studying conditions.

Whether comb or extracted honey is to be produced also has a great deal to do with it. If extracted honey is to be produced, a frame as deep, or deeper than the "L" will most probably be best. If honeycomb is the object, the divisible brood-chamber hive would probably suit better. Consider these points well before proceeding.—Midland Farmer.

DURABLE HIVE STAND.

One Made Out of Drain Tiles Proves the Most Satisfactory—Easy to Make.

Stands are convenient to keep the hives off the ground. Four drain tiles set three or four inches in ground and leveled and packed well around with earth, will make one of the cheapest and best stands. They hold the hive up, provide no place for mice or moles and one can easily mow around them, says Farm and Home. Put a board up in front of an alighting board and the thing is complete. Bricks set on end in the ground would be nearly as good and cheaper.

To keep up the stamina of the flock it is considered a good policy to mate old males with pullets, and cockerels with old hens.

WAIL OF ROYAL CHEF

WELL PAID BUT MASTERS ARE MOST EXACTING.

How the Kingly Menus Are Prepared—Franz Joseph Selects His Own—Kaiser Eats in Four Languages—Sultan Fears Poison.

London.—"Menus are the greatest burden of sovereignty," once remarked the emperor of Austria, and this, coupled with the statement of the late Czar Alexander III. that a monarch required more diplomacy in dealing with his cooks than with his ministers leads one to believe that culinary matters are a source of unceasing worry to every crowned head.

Emperor Franz Josef has, however, good cause to grumble, because although the actual cost of the food he consumes himself does not amount to $5,000 a year, he pays his chef—a Belgian—a salary of $10,000 per annum, and the kitchen expenses at the palace are never less than $75,000. The reason for this is that, whereas the emperor always takes his meals alone in his study, his palace dinners are produced regardless of expense.

The emperor's chef always submits a menu for the following day's dinner to his royal master when dinner is served. Punctually at six o'clock his valet enters with a large tray, which he places on the emperor's desk, and while Franz Josef is negotiating his soup he scans to-morrow's menu and crosses off with a blue pencil anything he does not care for.

At the German court things are somewhat different. There are four chefs—a German, a Frenchman, an Englishman and an Italian—because the kaiser never decides till the day arrives whether he will have a German, a French, an English or an Italian meal, with the result that there is much scurrying to prepare a menu. This is not an easy matter if there are many guests present, because each chef is only allowed so much a head, and he must serve up an elegant meal at that figure. Each chef has five assistants and has to render an account of each day's expenses to the head steward.

The chef at the Portuguese court is an Englishman and he receives only $4,000 a year. When King Carlos paid his first visit to England and was staying with the late Lord Salisbury, he said that what struck him most about Britain was the roast beef, and he forthwith took back with him an English chef. King Carlos insists on an English meal every day, but the queen and the members of the household have two French chefs to study their wants, and they each receive salaries of $5,500 per annum.

The most trying post any man can wish for is that of chef to the sultan of Turkey at the palace at Yildiz. Here the royal kitchen is situated right under the royal apartments; it is quite a small room, strongly guarded, and even the windows are barred. The sultan's horror of poison led him on one occasion to install a soldier whom he trusted as chef, and for two years he endured badly cooked food rather than face the risk of poison.

The present chef has held his post seven years, but he is only responsible to Kelarji, the chief steward, for the food, and this official is in his turn responsible to the sultan. When the meal is ready it is placed on a tray and the tray is then covered with a black cloth, the ends of which are sealed by Kelarji before it is borne into the imperial apartment.

The czar of Russia's chef is likewise a much harassed individual, but as he is well paid—his salary from all sources being over $10,000 a year—he is not to be pitied.

THIRTEEN PROVES UNLUCKY

Courtship Lasted 13 Months; April 13 Set for Wedding; Groom Dies After 13 Days' Illness.

Muskegon, Mich.—The number "13" proved unlucky to F. Delong, who died here after all preparations had been completed for his marriage to one of the most prominent young women of this section.

After a courtship of just 13 months Delong proposed and was accepted. April 13 was set as the wedding day, and all preparations for the wedding were completed when the prospective bridegroom became ill. For 13 days and 13 nights the bride-to-be was his constant attendant, even to eating her meals at his bedside.

The unlucky combination of thirteens had been noted, and when the thirteenth day of illness ended to-day the sudden death of the patient was hardly a surprise to his superstitious friends.

The young woman who was to be a bride April 13 is hysterical, and refused to leave the hospital or be consoled.

Never Had Seen White Men.

Nordenskjold, the famous arctic explorer, has returned to Montevideo, Paraguay, from an expedition into the interior of South America to the borders of Brazil, Bolivia and Peru, where he found Indians who had never seen white men. They are among the most primitive people in the world. They believed him to be some god because he gave them flesh of monkeys he had hunted. They begged him to remain as their chief, but he did not accept the offer, knowing the prestige would not outlive his ammunition.

Reaching the Goal.

Russia is to carry on the war to "the bitter end." There must be rather a bad taste in the Russian mouth already.

LUCKY NUMBER IN DICE.

Cubes Believed to Turn with Fives Up Oftener Than Any Other Side.

"Dice seem to have a fancy for fives," said a clerk in a cigar store. "We get sets of them frequently that show many more fives than any other number. We call it running to fives. The players seem to know this, and they nearly always select fives when they begin to roll. I have never seen the dice show partiality for any number other than fives, and I do not understand why this is. It is a fact, however," says the Louisville Courier-Journal.

"The five and six sides of a dice should be the least frequent thrown, [illegible] lighter, having more [illegible] But this does not seem to make any difference. The fives keep on coming just the same.

"Of course, if one number shows oftener than another it means that the dice are not properly made; but it does seem curious that this irregularity should always make the five side come up instead of some other. Since I have been here we have had a number of sets of dice that ran to fives.

"Another peculiar thing is that nine men out of ten who roll the dice in this game choose fives or sixes. It is the [illegible] thing that anyone takes one of the smaller numbers. It may be superstition, but if so almost all men are superstitious, for they will have nothing to do with aces or twos. And those who win almost always win with the larger numbers. Fives are the favorite, and are selected most often."

WHITE RABBITS AS PETS.

They Are Easy to Take Care Of and Are Very Satisfactory Little Companions.

"What do white rabbits most like to eat?" Almost everything. They are not in the least fussy as to diet, says St. Nicholas. For that reason, and for their attractive appearance and playful ways, they make excellent pets. Always have an ample supply of good, clean hay and oats before them. Good green food once or twice a day, and only in quantities that will all be eaten. If at any feeding they do not eat all you give them, omit the next feeding, and then give less thereafter. They are fond of almost any kind of grain or vegetable—in fact, anything that a cow or a sheep will eat; and they will devour almost any wild plant, except poison-ivy or wild parsnip. Among the favorite delicacies of the summer are clover, dandelion, plantain, blackberry briers and blackberry leaves.

Give them water once or twice a day. Some dealers and breeders may tell you not to do this; but if you love your pets, pay not the slightest attention to such advice. It is cruel treatment. Hay should be kept in a rack on the side of the hutch; oats, in a "self-feeder" or in a firm dish that will not tip over easily. Clean the hutch frequently, and cover the floor with a light layer of sawdust or of fine shavings.

NATURAL GAS IN ENGLAND.

Was Struck in 1832, But No Use, It Seems, Has Ever Been Made of It.

During the last summer, says an English magazine of 1832, a bore was put down at Johnstone, to the depth of 150 feet, for the purpose of procuring water. The boring was mostly through shale or till.

At the depth of 125 feet, or thereby, the workmen heard a noise proceeding from the bore, which they supposed to be from water rushing upward, but which proved to be from gas.

The bore was sunk 25 feet deeper, when an abundant supply of water was procured, so as nearly to rise to the surface. The supply of gas, however, did not fail. It continues to ascend through the superincumbent column of water with a hissing noise, and, when a light is applied, burns with a blue flame.

No analysis has been made of the gas, but from the accounts of the workmen it may safely be concluded that it is hydrogen. The quantity is so considerable as nearly to be sufficient to supply two or three gas burners of the ordinary size. It gives out little light in combustion, probably from the absence of carbon in its composition.

A Russian Idea.

In Russia if you don't pay your photographer's bill, he hangs your picture in his window upside down. Every Russian photographer's window has five or six of these reversed pictures in it, and there is always a little crowd of people outside craning their necks and saying: "Oh, that is Vasili Popoffsky. Won't he be ashamed?" "And look at Anna Olinsky. You'd think she'd be able to pay." "Is that Senia Gogol there? It certainly is. What a pity."—Detroit Free Press.

It Hurt His Feelings.

"I'll scalp that reporter," growled old Weston Nurox, over the morning paper.

"Why, popper," replied his daughter, who had had her coming out reception the night before, "I thought he wrote me up real nice."

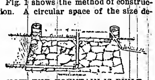
A SENSIBLE LAWN FOUNTAIN

Suggestion for the Beautifying of the Grounds About the Farmhouse.

The general idea of a lawn fountain seems to be a vase-like affair standing up from the ground and looking generally inartistic. It is because of an unwillingness to have such an affair before one's house that many are deterred from having a fountain upon the lawn. It is possible, however, says the Country Gentleman, to have a simple, yet artistic, fountain that will not only prove attractive, but will be inexpensive.

Fig. 1 shows the method of construction. A circular space of the size desired is dug in the ground, to a point below the frost line. This is to be filled nearly to the surface of the ground with loose stones, wider at the bottom than at the top, that the frost may have no chance to "lift" on the outside. The supply pipe must be put in position as the stones are filled in, the diagram showing the position. Over the top of the loose stones place a layer of cement. Around the edge of the circular space lay up a little wall of stones, placing cement between them, and covering the outside, top and inside of this little wall completely with the cement.



HOW THE FOUNTAIN IS BUILT.

As this wall is made, a waste-pipe should be inserted, as suggested, the top of this being the limit to which the water can rise in the fountain. The top of the low wall should be nicely rounded and smoothed. The upper end of the supply-pipe should have a spray nozzle, so that a shower of spray may be sent up, to fall gracefully over into the water of the tank. The height to which the water will rise depends, of course, upon the force with which the water is pressed through the supply-pipe from its source. It also depends upon the nozzle. A very fine spray will not rise to the height of a coarser spray, or a solid stream of water. Much of the work of making such a fountain can be done by the owner of the place, in which case the only expense would be for a little cement and the iron pipe.

THE FOUNTAIN COMPLETED.

FERTILIZE THE GARDEN.

The Absolute Necessity of Enriching the Soil If Good Crops Are to Be Secured.

After you have given the time and the energy in spading and digging and hoeing and raking your garden spot into shape, have spent money for good seeds that you have carefully planted, you certainly expect to have a crop of nice, luscious vegetables, providing you have given the garden the proper cultivation. You will not have, though, if you do not feed the soil that is to feed the plants that are to grow into feed for you. Don't expect an impoverished soil to grow vegetables, says the Farmers' Review. That is one of the impossibilities. If you do not know it now you will find it out to your regret and cost if you try it. Give the garden the heaviest dressing of fertilizers of any spot on the farm. Use all the old, well-rotted manure that you have available and then add a liberal quantity of such of the commercial fertilizers as your soil most needs, and nearly all soils need all of the elements of fertility to grow vegetables to perfection. Buy of a reliable manufacturer some of his best complete vegetable manure and apply it at the rate of from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds per acre. It will cost something to do this, but the return that will be made to you in the crop will amply repay you for the expense.

RYE MAKES GOOD PASTURE

How One Farmer Manages to Get Good Feed for His Live Stock.

I draw the manure on the sod ground, plow and harrow well, then plant to corn and cultivate well, writes a New York farmer in the Farm and Home. The next spring I plow the corn, top-dress with stable manure and sow oats. As soon as the oats are off, plow and top-dress again, then sow to rye. In six weeks I have big feed and pasture the rye until it freezes.

The last of May I cut the rye as soon as it heads, and the stock like it and do well on it. In the spring I seed on the rye with equal parts of clover and timothy. I pasture this in the fall, and the rye will be headed out the second time.

I cut the grass for hay three years, and plow again and follow the same rotation. I manage a piece of land this way every year, have nice fall feed and never fail to have big crops. Last fall I got first and second premiums on my corn at our fair. My rye was very stout and five feet tall, the grass so stout that I could not cut it with a machine until I cleared a place for it to run.

Early War on Weeds.

The early killed is the easy killed weed and the weed that robs the crops the least. Proper bedding is essential in making richer manure, as well as increasing the bulk.

Nine Nations
Now Use Liquozone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquozone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some-one whom Liquozone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquozone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquozone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

LOSES FOUR HORSES.

Sam Luxemburger, of Lake Pleasant, Suffers Loss From Storm.

During the heavy electrical storm last Friday night, Sam Luxemburger, of Lake Pleasant township, had the misfortune to have four valuable horses killed by lightning.

The bolt entered the barn and evidently followed along the beams until it had accomplished its deadly work, and escaped without doing a particle of harm to the building, and when Mr. Luxemburger went to the barn he found the four valuable horses dead.

The animals were insured for some where in the neighborhood of $300, and while this will not cover the entire loss, Mr. Luxemburger was fortunate on having them insured in this amount.

The storm in Lake Pleasant was a hard one, but Mr. Luxemburger was the only loser.

No school meeting was held in District 32 in Lake Pleasant last Saturday evening from the fact that no one turned out to attend but the meeting and election will be held Saturday evening of this week, and Clerk Ducharme reports that a good attendance is looked for.

Young Boy Crazy.

Deputy Sheriff Jarman came down from Thief River Falls Tuesday evening with Peder Nepper, an eighteen-year-old boy from the town of Norden, who had gone insane. The young fellow was brought before Judge Tarrant yesterday and after the examination was committed to the hospital at St. Peter. The patient was but a mere boy, and although he was completely "daffy" he was good natured and wanted to sing and dance all the time, and never cared about eating or sleeping. It is not known what unbalanced him, but is likely that the treatment at Fergus Falls will restore his reason.

EQUALIZERS AT WORK

Board of Commissioners Adjusted Figures In Tax Books of Various Assessors.

The board of county commissioners met Monday at the auditor's office as a board of equalization, and have been hard at work on the tax books returned by the assessors raising and lowering the assessments where needed, and making such changes as they see fit.

The work is necessarily slow, but the board has worked hard and nearly completed their labors last evening.

A great many changes have been made in the assessments throughout the county, but lack of time and space prevents the publication of the figures this week. A complete resume of their work will be given next week.

Takes Needed Vacation.

Rev. Father Ansgar, pastor of St. Mary's church, left Monday evening for Milwaukee, where he intends to spend the next month or six weeks in a large sanitarium, resting up and taking treatment to regain his accustomed health. Father Ansgar, has worked very hard during the past couple of years and has not had any chance to enjoy a much needed rest, with the result that his physical condition has not been satisfactory to him or his friends of late, and it is hoped that his sojourn at Milwaukee will be highly beneficial.

Rev. Father Alto, of St. John's University, arrived here Friday and will have charge of the pastorate at St. Mary's while Father Ansgar is away.

Messrs. Frank E. Hunt and Theo. Garceau Have No Cpposition for School Board Places.

The annual school election was held at the Lafayette school house last Saturday, but as was predicted by thetGazette there was no opposition to the re-election of the two retiring members of the board, Messrs. Frank F. Hunt and Theo. Garceau, and both received the total vote cast.

But twenty voters turned out, owing to the fact that the general opinion was that these efficient officers should be re-elected, and all that the people wanted was to know that enough voters attended to insure their unanimous re-election.

The Gazette is pleased that the people showed such excellent judgment in this case, and by re-electing these two efficient and capable school officers, and we feel that they will never have the least cause to regret their wise action.

Both Mr. Hunt and Mr. Garceau have the experience, ability and judgment of splendid officers, and their re-election assures the people of a continuation of the broad policy on which the district affairs have been conducted during the past several years.

Population 911.

According to the returns of Census Enumerator A. F. Lang, St. Hilaire has a population of 911. While this is only a gain of 71 for the past five years it is a fairly good showing considering that the saw mill has reduced its capacity fully one half and not over one half as many men are employed as five years ago.

If the addition north of town was in the village it would bring the total to about one thousand.

The township of River Falls has a population of 346 people.

LIGHTNING GETS BUSY

Red Lake Falls People Witness Beautiful Electrical Display Last Friday Night.

Between the hours of two and five last Saturday morning, the people of Red Lake Falls had the opportunity of witnessing one of the most beautiful electrical displays ever seen in the state, and while a great many of those who watched it did not really enjoy it during the time it lasted, nevertheless after it was all over they were glad that they had seen it.

The day before was very hot and sultry and it was feared that wind and hail might accompany the big storm that came up from the northwest during the early hours of the evening, but the clouds held back and it was long after midnight when the storm broke. No wind to speak of accompanied it, but the lightning, thunder and rain made up for the absence of the wind.

No damage was done about town that amounted to much, several electric light and telephone wires being the only things that suffered and as no wind accompanied the rain, the storm did not damage the crops in the least.

The storm was a beauty from a spectacular standpoint, but resulted to the satisfaction of the people in the slight damage done.

MAKE MODERN MILL.

Messrs. Kenkel & Zieglar, of Terrebonne, Making Improvements.

C. O. Kankel, the senior member of the popular Terrebonne mill firm, was a business caller here Saturday evening, and made this office a short visit.

Mr. Kankel informs The Gazette thgt the Terrebonne mill was closed down Saturday evening for improvements and that they will do no more grinding until about the first of August.

They intend to add a lot of new machinery, and will also put in a new flume and a complete steam heating plant. They contemplate the purchase of a dynamo to furnish electric lights, also, but have not yet decided upon this definately. The new machinery to be installed is to be of the latest make and will equip the mill to handle their large trade in a whole lot better shape. They have had a very successful run during the past year, and look forward to a large increase in their business from now on.

The Terrebonne mill is coming to be recognized as one of the best mills in this section of the state, and the enterprising proprietors have many friends who are pleased at their success.

Treasurer's Annual Report.

The annual report of T. A. Crompe, treasurer of Independent School District No. 15, is published elsewhere in The Gazette. The statement shows up very well, the cash on hand July 12, 1905, being $4970.21. This includs the insurance so far collected; but as some $2500 remains yet to be received, the total cash on hand is something near $8000. At the end of last year there was $8.77 on hand, and the showing made now is a first-class testimonial of the ability and farsightedness of the school board. Independent District 15 is in excellent shape financially, which is pleasing to the people of the city.

BAND TO WINNIPEG

Red Lake Falls Musical Organization Gets Important Engagement At Canadian Metropolis.

The Red Lake Falls band organization has been engaged to furnish music at the Western Canada Industrial Fair Friday and Saturday of this week, and will leave here this evening, twenty-five strong, to fulfill their part of the agreement.

The engagement is rather an important one for a band from a town the size of Red Lake Falls, as the competition is very strong for these engagements, and the best bands in the Northwest all strive for the job, this being the first time that a Minnesota band has been engaged for several years.

The big fair starts Thursday, and our band will play during the first and second days of the exhibition. On these days the members of the Northwestern Minnesota Editorial Association will look at the big fair and take in Winnipeg, so that our band will meet many North Star staters during their visit to the foreign country.

The railroads are making a very liberal rate for the round trip and it is more than likely that a large number of people from here will accompany the band on their pleasant trip.

Red Lake Falls is receiving a whole lot of good advertising from her band and the people at large as well a the members of the organization have just cause to feel proud of the work being done by their musical organization.

IN PEACEFUL SLEEP.

Ole Mikkelsen, Respected Resident of Red Lake Falls, Called Home.

With the coming of the evening shadows last Saturday, the spint of Ole Mikkelsen, a highly respected resident of this city, was called to its maker, after a struggle of three weeks with typhoid fever, and while the news was generally expected, the announcement of the end was received with profound sorrow by the neighbors and friends of the family.

Mr. Mikkelsen came to Red Lake Falls some four years ago, and during all the time he has resided here has been prominent in the circles of the city, and had established a friendship with the people here that was lasting and true.

Ole Mikkelsen was born at New Lisbon, Juneau county, Wisconsin, on November 22, 1852, and spent his boyhood days there, moving with his parents to Minnesota while yet a yong man. He was married to Miss Anna Odette at Dalavan, this state, April 6, 1884, and one son, Cecil, born May 17, 1891, was the result of the union. Mr. Mikkelsen was a member of the Baptist church, having become united with that body in 1889. The family moved to Murray county in 1896, where they lived five years, arriving in Red Lake Falls during the summer of 1901.

Mr. Mikkelsen had never enjoyed rugged health, and for the past three years has been practically an invalid although able to be about town. Three weeks ago he was taken sick with typhoid fever, and although everything known to medical science was done for him the Grim Reaper could not be foiled and claimed him for the unknown shore.

The deceased is survived by a wife and son, two brothers and two sisters, who along with the numerous other relatives have the sincere sympathy of the people at large.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. W. Knox, of the Presbyterian church, at the residence at 2:30 Monday afternoon, the remains being shipped to Blue Earth city for interment.

Another good man is gone. May his soul rest in peace.

Attendance at the Summer School Reaches A Record Breaking Figure For The Year.

The summer school has been moving along smoothly during the past week and the attendance has been increased to 94, a record-breaker for a Red Lake county school. Sixteen teachers are taking first grade subjects.

Prof. Yeager, of Fosston, is making an enviable reputation as conductor, and enjoys the fullest confidence of the teachers. His knowledge of the work makes him a very valuable man for the school, and the general opinion is that Red Lake county was fortunate in securing him. The other instructors are all competent, and there is not a county in the state that has a better corps of teachers than those in attendance at this summer school.

County Superintendent S. J. Race, of Redwood county, addressed the school Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, and his talk was pronounced one of the finest efforts ever heard in the county. His remarks were along the lines of school management and school work, and will prove beneficial to the teachers who heard him.

President Frank Weld, of the Moorhead Normal school, will be here on some day of next week and will speak at the opera house. On this date Frank E. Packard, of Crookston, will also be present and address the teachers. Both of these gentlemen are recognized as able talkers, and the people as well as the students of the school should make it a point to hear both speakers.

Rev. H. W. Knox, of this city, will address the school Saturday, and other local people are expected to make addresses during the session.

Prof. T. A. Hoverstad, of the experimental school at Crookston, will speak a week from Saturday, the 30th inst.

The school is far exceeding the expectations in point of attendance and enthusiasm, and will undoubtedly be remembered as one of the most successful summer schools ever held in the Red River Valley.

CUT SLIDES OUT.

Great Northern Has Tussel With New Track.

The heavy rain last Friday night caused a large-sized washout in the new Great Northern railroad cut in this city, and as a result the passenger train was held here until nearly noon, while the section men fixed up the damage.

In one place the dirt slid over the track for a space of twenty or thirty feet, while further up all the gravel and ballast washed out from under a stretch of track, leaving the ties and rails suspended with no support. The section crews were out bright and early with gravel and timbers to brace up the slide, and Roadmaster Regan arrived from Thief River about nine o'clock with some extra men to help get the track in shape.

The Great Northern passenger pulled in on the N. P. tracks and unloaded its passengers and mail and then waited for several hours before being able to proceed on its north trip.

The slide is again in as good shape as ever, but the road isn't through with its trouble yet.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses of ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

New Towns in North Dakota.

The extensive railroad building now being done in North Dakota has brought tributary to railroad facilities an additional vast area of the rich agricultural sections of northern and western North Dakota. The Great Northern railway is building a number of new extensions from its main line northward notably that of the Surlee extension of the Edmora line, the Thorne extension running north from York, the Maxbass extension running northwestward from Towner, and a further extension of the Westhope line to Antler.

The building of these new lines has brought into being a number of new towns which are fully described in a pamphlet recently issued by the Great Northern railway. By application to Mr. F. I. Whitney, Passenger Traffic Manager, St. Paul, Minn., a copy of these pamphlets "New Extensions in North Dakota" or "New Towns in North Dakota" will be mailed to any address. 6w

Fred Durette, nine years old, was drowned while bathing in a pond of water on the flats at the foot of Tennessee street in St. Paul.

Mrs. Lydia Porter Fisher, widow of one of the pioneer newspaper men of St. Paul and a resident of that city since 1854, is dead, aged seventy-seven years.

Fearing that his wife would contract consumption from him George H. Murray of St. Paul, aged fifty-two years, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid.

John Hutchison, Jr., son of Professor J. C. Hutchison of the Greek department of the state university, was drowned in Ten Mile lake, between Elbow Lake and Dalton.

Complete unofficial returns from all but one district of Winona indicate that the present census will show a population of about 20,700, a gain of 1,000 in the past five years.

The doors of the Northern Pacific bank of Brainerd have been reopened by order of Bank Examiner P. M. Kerst and business resumed after a suspension of several weeks.

Ira Miller of New Ulm was killed by lightning while standing in a barn door on a farm near Fairmont. Miller was traveling about the country in search of his wife, who had left him.

Daring safecrackers, who departed without leaving a single clew, wrecked the safe in the postoffice and general store of Weum & Dalens at Georgetown, escaping with $300 in cash and stamps.

S. P. Eggen of Minneapolis was chosen president of the Northwestern Photographers' association, in annual meeting at Duluth, and Minneapolis was selected as the next place of meeting.

Louis A. Mallory of Minneapolis, fifty years of age, committed suicide in that city by shooting himself. He had been in ill health for some time and on this account was compelled to give up his work.

Vernon B. Martin, a well known Minneapolis athlete and university student, was drowned during the Fourth of July yacht races at Lake Minnetonka. He fell overboard following the breaking of a mast on the Babbc, which he was sailing.

Mrs. Nels Anderson of Two Harbors, who was committed to the Fergus Falls insane hospital about one year ago for insanity and who returned home two months ago apparently cured, committed suicide by hanging. Her husband discovered her body hanging in the woodshed.

The decomposed body of August Byjorason was found in a swamp fifteen miles from Eveleth. Byjornson had been missing from home for a week. A slightly rusted revolver was evidence that it was a case of suicide. He was twenty-two years of age and lived with his widowed mother on a homestead.

An argument over the relative merits of two shirts, one costing 49 cents and the other 50 cents, resulted in the killing of an Indian at the settlement north of Grindstone Lake, near Sandstone. The alleged slayer, John Ashawa, is in the lockup at the latter place. The dead Indian's name was Dave Skunk.

While the Fourth of July programme was being carried out at the pavilion at Excelsior two men robbed the rooms occupied by George Darsow above his bakery and secured $30 in cash and jewelry. The cashier of the restaurant discovered the men in the act of rifling a dresser and was held up while the burglars finished their ransacking.

Fully 60,000 pupils of the Minnesota public schools are suffering from defective eyesight and not less than 10,000 are afflicted with defective hearing. This is the record of the first year's inspection of the eyes and ears of the school children, which has been carried on by the state board of health, assisted by the state superintendent of public instruction and the school authorities throughout the state.

The validity of the mineral leases issued by the state, the total value of which reaches into the millions of dollars, depends on the termination of the suit of the state of Minnesota against Mabel Evans of Princeton, which Attorney General Young has brought in the district court of St. Louis county to set aside a lease issued to the defendant. Mr. Young takes the position that the law is in violation of that section of the state constitution which provides that no portion of the state school lands shall be sold in any other manner than at public sale and that swamp lands shall be appraised and sold in the same manner.

STRIPED GRUNTS KISSING.

Little Fishes in New York Aquarium Afford Amusement to Spectators.

In one of the tanks at the aquarium is a lot of striped grunts, handsome little fishes from Bermuda, which do one thing that is peculiar and different from anything done by other fishes in the aquarium, relates the New York Sun.

If the outside of the glass front of the tank is stroked softly and repeatedly downward with the finger tips, the pretty fishes will come swimming toward it, opening wide their mouths, which are within of a beautiful red.

When near the glass two of them, each with its mouth wide open, will approach each other and gently lock jaws in an attitude of kissing. Sometimes when the glass has been stroked as many as four pairs of the striped grunt have gone through this performance at once.

Why the striped grunts do this nobody knows. It may be due to some sort of hypnotic influence exercised by the moving finger tips; but men experienced in the care of fishes in captivity have observed that all the species of the grunt family do the same thing in like circumstances.

Little Plume, chief of the Blackfoot Indians, of Montana, in company with another Indian chief and an interpreter, visited the aquarium one day recently and viewed all the other exhibits with interest, though with all of the Indian's traditional immobility. But at the exhibition given by the kissing striped grunts Little Plume laughed outright.

DIVORCE IN ENGLAND.

Report of Consul General Evans Shows That It Is Increasing Rapidly.

Interesting statistics concerning divorce proceedings in England and Wales are contained in an official report from United States Consul General Evans, at London. The number of petitions for dissolution of marriage filed in 1902 was 1,050, as against 900 filed in 1901. Of the petitions filed in 1902, 609 were filed by husbands and 441 by wives. The prompt action of the courts is shown by the fact that of the total number of petitions filed, 930 were set for trial during the year. Judgments were rendered as follows: For husband, plaintiff, in 397 cases; for wife, plaintiff, in 284 cases; for husband, respondent, in 17 cases, and for his wife, respondent, in ten cases. The annual number of petitions filed during the past five years was 853.

The population of England and Wales is about 33,000,000, showing, says Consul General Evans, that there was one petition for dissolution of marriage in some form filed in the courts in 1902 for about each 32,500 population. He adds that experimental or trial marriages, seemingly, are not encouraged by the ease of securing divorce, and that the sentiment of the people, sustained by the courts, is clearly against divorces or the divorced. The established church, he says, is against performing the marriage ceremony where either party to the proposed marriage is a divorced person.

TOUGHNESS OF CURRENCY.

Single Treasury Note Will Sustain Lengthwise a Weight of Forty-One Pounds.

That Uncle Sam's notes stand a great deal of rough and careless handling is a fact that impresses itself upon anyone who has ever chanced to note the manner in which the average cashier pulls and jerks the bills before he pushes them through the window to the waiting patron, says the Philadelphia Record.

A single treasury note measures 3⅛ inches in width by 7¼ inches in length. It will sustain, without breaking, lengthwise, a weight of 41 pounds; crosswise, a weight of 91 pounds. The notes run four to a sheet—a sheet being 8¼ inches wide by 13½ inches long. One of these sheets lengthwise will suspend 108 pounds, and crosswise 177 pounds.

It will be observed that a single note is capable of sustaining crosswise a weight of 91 pounds, which is twice the amount by nine pounds, of the weight the note can sustain lengthwise; while in the case of the sheet, the crosswise sheet lacks 39 pounds of double the sustaining power of the lengthwise sheet.

English Village Life.

A writer in Cornhill says of village life in England: "The plain and terrible truth of the matter is that, in districts far wider and more numerous than the kind dwellers in towns and casual visitors to our pretty villages can be expected to realize, the agricultural laborer, his wife and his children are half-starved from the beginning to the end of life."

WITTE HEADS MISSION

APPOINTED CHIEF PLENIPOTENTIARY FOR RUSSIA AT THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

New Commissioner, Who Is Regarded as Russia's Leading Liberal Statesman, Is Clothed With Plenary Powers and the Peace Party Feels Confident of a Successful Termination of the Negotiations With Japan.

St. Petersburg, July 14.—Emperor Nicholas has signed the appointment of M. Witte, president of the committee of ministers, to be chief plenipotentiary representing the Russian government in the peace negotiations to be conducted next month in the United States. The appointment, which was signed after midnight, clothes M. Witte with plenary powers.

Official notification of the designation of M. Witte to head the mission was forwarded to Washington during the morning. M. Witte will take passage on the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which sails from Cherbourg July 26.

The peace party is overjoyed at the appointment of M. Witte and believes this action not only insures a successful termination of the negotiations, but that M. Witte will secure the best possible terms for his country. Some of the grand dukes and courtiers of the emperor's entourage, however, are reported to be furious at M. Witte's selection.

Washington, July 14.—The appointment of M. Witte is well received in Japanese circles, though the hope is expressed that there will be no more changes in the Russian selections.

GREAT DAMAGE DONE

JAP BOMBARDMENT CAUSES A DESTRUCTIVE FIRE AT KARSAKORSK.

Tokio, July 13.—An eyewitness of the Japanese bombardment of Karsakorsk wires that the Russian forts were silenced on July 7 after the exchange of a very few shots. The piers, warehouses and other buildings were set on fire and the conflagration was reflected by the foggy atmosphere converting the sky into one mass of blood red color. The Japanese army landed amidst the fire, which was fast spreading to the forts, from the tops of which the bewildered inhabitants were seen fleeing in every direction, carrying with them what property they could remove. The fires were not subdued for over forty-eight hours.

The Russian cruiser Novik, which was destroyed by the Japanese at Karsakorsk last August, and the ruined town and forts are sad witnesses of the rapidity with which destruction is wrought in modern warfare.

RUSSIANS DRIVEN BACK.

Compelled to Retire Northward Before Advance of the Japanese.

Tokio, July 17.—Reliable information has been received here that the Russian forces in Northern Korea have gradually been driven northward since last month and now hold only two positions south of the Tumen river.

The latest information from the front, however, reports the advance south of a large force from Vladivostok, but it is believed the Russians will halt at Nokiefsk, north of the Tumen, and concentrate their forces to make a resolute stand there against the Japanese advance.

RETRIBUTION IS SWIFT.

Outlaws Slain by Posse for Murder of Railroad Detective.

Winfield, Kan., July 13.—C. S. Calhoon of Kansas City, an Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway detective, was shot and instantly killed at Cedarvale early in the day by two outlaws, who were shot down later by a posse of citizens at Hewins, seven miles from Cedarvale, close to the Oklahoma state line. One of the outlaws, Ed Madigan of Ponca City, Okla., was killed instantly by the posse. The other, William Chadburn of this city, was fatally wounded. The outlaws exchanged shots with the posse. During the exchange J. M. Pope, a merchant, was shot through the foot and a woman named Malone was struck in the leg by a stray bullet.

EPIDEMIC OF TYPHOID.

Collinsville (Pa.) Physicians Unable to Check Scourge.

Pittsburg, July 15.—Typhoid fever is epidemic at Collinsville, southwest of here. There are about thirty houses in the village and in every house there are from one to five cases of the disease. Five children of a family named Litt have died and a number of families have lost from one to two members. Physicians seem unable to check the scourge.

Little Hope for Henderson.

Des Moines, Ia., July 17.—There is little change in the condition of General D. B. Henderson, who is suffering from paresis, and very little hope is entertained for his recovery, although he may linger many months.

SENATOR CLARK RALLYING.

Montana Man Recovering From Effects of an Operation.

New York, July 17.—United States Senator William A. Clark of Montana continues to rally satisfactorily from the operation which he underwent Saturday for the removal of an abscess in the brain. The strength which brought him through a fairly comfortable night continued throughout the day and Sunday night the physicians in attendance said that the senator's condition was such as was to be expected following a delicate and grave operation. While the conditions are all in favor of the patient, the gravity of the senator's condition is not withheld from the family. They are aware that it will be at least four or five days before his ultimate safety can be assured. Mrs. Clark, who is in Paris, has been advised of the senator's condition in a cablegram sent by the senator's private secretary.

TRIAL OF DR. KOCH BEGUN.

County Attorney Wilson Opens the Case for the State.

Mankato, Minn., July 18.—The trial of Dr. George R. Koch of New Ulm on the charge of having murdered his rival dentist, Dr. Louis A. Gerhardt, on the evening of Nov. 1, is now under way. The jury was completed Monday afternoon, and the case was opened for the state by County Attorney Wilson.

BLACKMAR STRICKEN

COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE G. A. R. PASSES AWAY IN CAPITAL CITY OF IDAHO.

Boise, Ida., July 17.—General W. W. Blackmar, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., is dead here of intestinal nephritis. His wife was with him during his illness.

The general arrived here on July 10 on a tour during which he intended to visit Grand Army posts throughout the Northwest. He was ill when he arrived and gradually failed.

GENERAL W. W. BLACKMAR.

General Blackmar was born July 25, 1841, at Bristol, Pa. He enlisted in the Fifteenth Pennsylvania cavalry and subsequently joined the First West Virginia. He served with distinction throughout the war and at Five Oaks was promoted on the field by General Custer to the rank of captain. Throughout three administrations, those of Governors Long, Talbott and Nice, he was judge advocate general of Massachusetts. At the last national encampment of the G. A. R. he was elected commander-in-chief.

RECEIVER IS DISCHARGED.

Decision in Case of People's United States Bank.

St. Louis, July 17.—On motion of the attorneys for the People's United States bank, capitalized at $2,500,000, Judge McElhinny of the St. Louis county circuit court has dissolved the receivership for that institution and discharged Receiver Selden P. Spencer, appointed by him several days ago on the request of Secretary of State Swanger of Missouri.

Judge McElhinny's action was based on the ground that Secretary of State Swanger failed to make a personal investigation of the affairs of the bank before making application for a receiver.

SUSTAIN SERIOUS INJURIES.

Prominent Philadelphia Lawyers in Elevator Accident.

Philadelphia, July 17.—District Attorney Jerome C. Bell, Assistant City Solicitor Harry T. Kingston and William Born of Collingswood, N. J., were seriously injured by a fall of an elevator in the Land Title building, the highest building in the city.

Mr. Bell sustained a compound fracture of a leg, Mr. Kingston had both legs broken and Mr. Born was injured about the body and received lacerations of the scalp.

The elevator dropped from the sixth floor of the building to the basement. The cause of the accident is unknown.

Auto Reduced to Scrap Iron.

New York, July 17.—Two young women were probably fatally hurt and their two male companions had a remarkable escape from injury when the automobile of Frederick E. Marshall of St. Louis, which had been borrowed by Mr. Marshall's chauffeur, was caught between an elevated railroad pillar and a street car. The automobile was reduced almost to scrap iron.

DEATH BY DROWNING

NINE PERSONS PERISH IN RIVER AND LAKES IN VICINITY OF MINNEAPOLIS.

Majority of the Victims Were Young Men and Most of Them Lost Their Lives While Enjoying a Swim—Intensely Hot Weather Extends Over the Entire Country From the Mississippi Valley Eastward.

Minneapolis, July 17.—Nine victims of drowning were reported to the Minneapolis police during the past two days. The dead are:

Andrew Zemzik, aged eighteen years; Peter Mesnick, aged twenty-four years; Frank Banko, aged ten; John E. Paradis, St. Paul; Arthur Johnson, aged twelve; John Gasda, aged twenty-two; James B. Hynd, aged twenty-two; Edward Ward and John Mulcare, the latter two residents of New Brighton.

Zemzik and Mesnick went swimming in the Mississippi river with several companions. Both were good swimmers, but they swam too far out into the stream and became exhausted. Both threw up their hands and sank at the same time.

Frank Benko was fishing with his father at Twentieth avenue North and the river. He was sitting on some logs some distance from shore. The boy lost his balance and fell into the water. The father plunged in after him, but the current was so swift that he was barely able to save himself.

Arthur Johnson was drowned in Nine Mile creek. It is thought that he tried to cross the creek on a log and fell into the water. He could not swim.

James B. Hynd was drowned in the Mississippi above the stone arch bridge. He went to the river with two companions. Hynd did not wait to cool off before going into the water. He was in an overheated condition and when he had gone but a short distance from shore he was taken with cramps and sank.

John Gasda went swimming in the river near Fourth avenue northeast. He was alone and the manner of his drowning is not known.

Edward Ward and John Mulcare were drowned in Pike lake. They started to row across the lake with James Quinn. When in the middle the boat upset. Quinn swam to shore, but his companions were seemingly unable to save themselves.

COVERS LARGE AREA

EXTREMELY HIGH TEMPERATURE OVER ENTIRE COUNTRY EAST OF THE MISSISSIPPI.

Washington, July 18.—The weather bureau Monday night announced that there was no prospect for several days at least of a let-up of the extreme heat which has extended over the country for the past few days. The entire country from the Mississippi valley eastward to Southern New England and the Florida coast is in the midst of a well marked midsummer hot spell.

The maximum temperatures Monday were as follows:

Philadelphia 96, Chicago 94, Cincinnati 4, New York 94, Detroit 94, Washington 93, St. Louis 92, Pittsburg 92, St. Paul 92, Boston 90.

RED LAKE FALLS MILLING CO.

It is not strange that Page fence will stretch up smoothly over hills and down through ravines. It is made to do it, and it is simply putting into use one of the innate properties of its coiled wire. It is elastic.

It is not strange that short kinks or bends in wire cannot supply this elasticity like a coil or spiral. If they could, why haven't the manufacturers of spring balances, or of car springs used a kinked, crimped or other shaped metal than a coil. Probably the reason is that kinked or crimped metal will not let out and take up, will not shorten and lengthen like a coil spring.

Further, why do you suppose that high-carbon stock is always used for springs' unless it is because low-carbon stock will not make a spring. Low-carbon stock is much the cheaper.

Hair springs in watches are made of only a little higher carbon stock than Page-Wire is made of, in fact, there is not much more difference between the proportion of carbon in Page-Wire and watch-spring wire, than there is between the fence wire generally in use and that which we use for all the horizontal wires in Page fences.

Red Lake Falls Gazette

L. A. DAUTREMONT, PROPRIETOR
SAM S. HAISLET, EDITOR AND MANAGER

Published weekly, Thursday evening, and entered as second-class matter in the post office at Red Lake Falls.

Official Paper of Red Lake County.

Official Paper of Red Lake Falls.

Subscription, $1.00 per Year

Red Lake Falls receives some more good advertising through the band this week. Guess the people are justified in feeling a little proud of this splendid organization.

The Plummer Pioneer speaks of the Red Lake Falls "gang" and the "people" of Thief River Falls. Why discriminate, brother? Or is it true that "money makes the mare go?"

The assessment books at Thief River Falls show only one hog listed in that city. It is a problem what Assessor Sweaas meant by this; and no one knows whether he just meant to enumerate himself, or bunched the whole population and called it one. Explanations are in order.

St. Hilaire has passed an ordinance requiring all dogs to be muzzled, especially while there are mad dogs at large in the county. This is a sensible move, as it is better to take precautions in time to avoid any danger from the spread of this dreaded disease. Red Lake Falls might profitably pass such an ordinance.

The new newspaper published at Sunbeam, on the reservation, sizes up matters as follows this early in the game: "What this part of the county needs is some roads, and they can not very well get them until the townships are organized, but Thief River and Red Lake Falls are taking up so much of the time of our commissioners in the county seat removal case that the poor fellows can not attend to any other business."

The new 11 townships that were opened for settlement last summer is destined to be the richest and best part of the county as the land is very rich and has a natural drainage thru the Red Lake and Clearwater rivers, and is being rapidly settled up by a thrifty class of farmers that have money to improve their farms remarks the new Sunbeam, just established on the reservation.

The first number of the Sunbeam, published at Sunbeam postoffice, on the reservation, came to hand this week. The Sunbeam is a continuation of the Gully Sunbeam, formerly published at Gully in Polk county, and is edited by W. G. Hunt. Mr. Hunt is a good newspaper man, and The Gazette takes pleasure in welcoming him to the journalistic ranks of Red Lake county, trusting that the Sunbeam may live long to cast its beneficient rays on the good people of the county.

The Thief River Falls Press says that Thief River Falls will soon have votes enough to win the county seat fight without any help from the rest of the county. This is the plan they have worked on all along, and it is honest of them to openly state that they have never cared a snap whether the people of the county wanted the county seat at Red Lake Falls as now Thief River would take it away from them. They are the whole county, gentlemen, and will endeavor to impress you with this fact if they can.

In accounting for the remarkable decrease in Thief River Falls' personal property valuation shown by the figures of this year's assessment, The Press of that city last week devotes a half column of hot air on the proposition, and makes the excuse that a great many people from Thief River Falls have moved onto the reservation with their property since last year, hence they are not listed this year. This might be accepted as the truth were it not for the fact that the Press in another column talks long and loud how Thief River Falls has gained in population, and tells of the many people that have settled there during the past year. Putting two and two together leaves the conclusion, that either the Press is stretching the thing in regard to population, or the people who have moved in as claimed are without property or anything assessable, but it isn't likely that the last horn of the dilemma is the correct one. To tell the real truth the Press might have stated that the last years assessment was padded double in order to help pay off "Soo" railroad bonds, and now that there is no real reason for being inflated with property the people have become poor again "Artful taxdodgers" is an easy name for the bunch of fellows up the river who would call an elephant a mouse if they had reason to and thought the public coold be led to believe them.

Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the vile attendant on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. Fred R. Pennell, Pianist, Grand Opera House, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

"Two years ago I came to Hot Springs to take the baths and be treated for bladder and kidney trouble. After spending two months here under the care of one of the most prominent physicians and receiving little or no benefit, I was persuaded to try Peruna. I had little faith in it, but after using one bottle I noticed a marked improvement. Three bottles entirely cured me. I can cheerfully recommend Peruna to any one afflicted as I was."—Fred R. Pennell.

Thomas M. Hicks, 1131 13th St., Louisville, Ky., writes:

"Neglected colds, irregular habits and overwork brought on serious kidney and bladder trouble. My blood seemed inflamed with poison, my stomach became entirely demoralized, a bad odor emanated from my urine, and I realized I was a sick man. The doctors dosed me to their heart's content, but I kept growing worse. Then fortune brought Peruna to my notice and I at once began to mend. I kept taking it for five months before I was completely cured. I feel now that I owe my life to Peruna and will never cease to be grateful."—Thomas M. Hicks.

S. L. Earle, Superintendent of Streets, Jacksonville, Fla., writes:

"I am a firm believer in Peruna. I find that it has been of practical benefit to a number of the men employed in the Street Cleaning Department in the city of Jacksonville. They are especially exposed to the inclemency of the weather and a number who caught cold, which later developed into pneumonia, kidney or liver trouble, were cured through the use of Peruna."—S. L. Earle, Superintendent of Streets.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses of ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climate conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. The force at the auditor's office have been working hard the past couple of weeks prepraing the list of lands to be sold at the forfeited tax sale to be held here sometime in October. The list comprises all of the lots bid in to the state, and over 4000 descriptions are included in the table, all the descriptions being lots in Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls. The sale will be conducted under the new law of 1902, by the state auditor or his authorized agent, and the lots will be sold the highest bidder, when the price exceeds the value of the lot. The sale will probably not attract a great many buyers, as a great many of the lots offered are not worth taking as a gift.

It is reported that the heavy fog that has hovered over the office of the St. Hilaire Spectator for the past few months has risen as the dew before the morning sun, and that the genial Editor Ives is as happy and contented sgain as a boy with a brand new pair of boots. Nn, dear reader, it isn't because he hss taken unto himself a better half but because a travelling machinist this week hit St. Hilaire and put Harry's automobile in first-class order. Ever since Harry has had the pesky brute it has had a penchant for taking him and a pretty school marm or some other young lady out for several miles in the country on a pleasant afternoon, and then refusing to run back to town and the result is that the entire feminine population of the up-river village swear vengeance on Harry's unhalterless neck. Now that he has the the "bubble" in first class running order he expects to regain his lost prestige, and if the machine makes good on a few trips he has promised to psy Red Lake Falls a visit. Come on, Harry, the girls there will enjoy an auto spin.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

542 1-2 Congress St.
Portland, Maine, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Dizziness, Headache, Backache, Worry, Fretfulness, Irritability, Melancholy, Lack of Ambition.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. G. HASKIN, Freeville, N. Y.

MY TEXAS.

Oh, if ever in your travels it is your good luck to go
Where midwinter blasts are tempered into winds that softly blow,
And the mocking bird is singing, swinging high and swinging low,
That's the land I'm always loving, loving so!

Where each fresh recurring season brings new blossoms in its train,
Where the sunshine is like nectar and there's glory in the rain,
Where pink roses shed their petals while the bushes bloom again,
That's the land I'm always loving, loving so!

Where blue violets are hiding 'neath the leaves the year around,
And each prospect is like music and the air is sweet with sound,
And forgetmenots are snuggling, wee blue stars against the ground,
That's the land I'm always loving, loving so!

Oh, you cannot help but know it! Its each voice will bid you stay!
You will know it by the sweetness of its every night and day!
You will know it by its memory when you have gone away!
That's the land I'm always loving, loving so!

On Their Honeymoon

Funny Things Seen by a Capitol Guide

NEVER noticed such a big lot of doves as there are around here this year," was the observation of a capitol guide the other day.

"Doves?" inquired the man to whom the remark was made, involuntarily gazing up into the cornices to see if any of the white birds were visible.

"Yes, doves," repeated the guide. "Cooers, hand-claspers, ear-whisperers, eye-searchers, dark-corner hunters."

"Oh, you mean newly married people."

"Well, what did you think I meant?" said the guide. "I haven't seen anything like so many of them in all the 20 years I've been prowling around this building.

"I took a finely feathered pair of them around the building the other day. They were New York people, too, and you'd naturally have thought that living in that cold-blooded town would have put enough frappe in them to enable them to be chilly and haughty and self-contained when in the sight and hearing of a whole lot of other folks.

"But they weren't chilly and haughty with each other by the whole size of these grounds. They didn't mind the Little Brighteyes me, either. You'd have thought that I was the star pupil in a deaf, dumb and blind asylum if you had been around and seen and heard them. It was the most touching and tender case of love's middle-aged dream that ever I came into contact with.

"'Lucille, dream of my life,' said he, 'if you persist in standing in that cruel draft your little boy will go stark, staring mad! Of what possible value would your poor little bubbsy wubbsy's life be to him if his 'ittie-bittie Lucille were to get pneumonia and be carried away up to the stars by the whitest angel that ever,' and so on—you can fill out the rest yourself, but that was the general line of escaping steam that the old boy let out.

"'Never 'oo mind, Oodzy-Woobzy,' she replied. 'Baby's not going to 'eave her teeny-weeny Bubbsy-boy,' and so on, until, say, I'd have given $98 to 've been alone in the woods for about a minute, so that I could bust loose and howl like a wild man of Borneo.

"They're not all cooers, though. I showed the scrappiest young couple around the other day that I ever nudged alongside of. There wasn't a coo in either of them, and yet I could tell by their make-up that they hadn't been married more than three days. You know the way they're rigged: Man with fearfully brand-new suit, hat, shoes, gloves and cane, and that wriggly, uncomfortable look that some fellows wear when all of their togs are right off the hook; and the girl, too, with everything new, from hat to spats, and looking as if she'd appreciate about ten minutes of a house-wrapper and slippers a whole lot.

"Well, this pair certainly carried the brittle chip on their shoulders. They seemed to be just a-hunting trouble with each other, and I came near spraining my neck looking dreamily up into the air while their scraps were in progress.

"It looked to me as if they'd got married on a bet or to get even with each other for something.

"'Let's go up to the dome,' suggested the girl.

"'Not much,' said the man. 'I'm too strong.'

"'Well, I'll go up alone, then,' said she, batting her eyes wickedly.

"'Not to-day you won't,' said he, with 'mean man' sticking out all over the way he said it.

"'Oh, I don't know,' said the girl, dreamily. 'Not that I haven't been up before a few times.'

"'Oh, you have, have you?' chopped the man. 'You never told me that, did you? Who with, I'd liuke to know?'

"'You don't know, do you?' said she, with one of those slow smiles some women use to work a man into state's prison with.

"Well, then they had it out some more, I'm a-telling you. I went off into a corner and pretended to be watching a spider weaving a web while the battle was on. Then I heard a gurgle or two and it was all right—for a while.

"About three minutes later I started them for the sub-basement to show them the machinery. The man made a little stumble on the dark steps, and he said 'd—!'

"'Do you know whom you are with, pray?' inquired the girl, stopping stock still.

"'Er—unfortunately, yes,' he replied, and I began to hunt around for another spider to take an interest in for a spell.

"'Oh, well, come along,' said the bride, after a pause. 'It is impossible for me not to reflect, however, that the last time I was here I was not compelled to listen to such language from—'

"'Look a-here,' broke in the groom, 'I want to know, and I went to know right now, who the confounded, blithering, Miss-Nancy idiot was that you traipsed around here with,' and so on, and I was reduced to the necessity of twirling the pedals of a bicycle that was tethered in the corridor for the five minutes or so that this mix-up lasted. I am wondering yet whether that pair hailed from a state where 'incompatibility of temperament' is a loophole for a breakaway in the high court of part-them-asunder.

"A few weeks ago I had a pair of British goo-gooers around who provided me with an exceedingly queer pain.

"They were making a tour of the world. I couldn't exactly figure how long they had been married, but they certainly were as affectionate a sketch team as ever I showed around. This sort of puzzled me, too, for I had always heard so much about the reserve of English people.

"But with these two it was 'Agnes, ma own,' and 'Algernon, me love,' from cellar to garret.

"Of course I walked about ten feet ahead of them to let them have room, but all the same they gave me that empty feeling.

"But I didn't start to tell you how much they loved each other, but how they disliked the United States. Neither of them could tolerate this country at all, and they gave everything at the capitol the joyous ha-ha from the minute they set foot in it.

"Now, I stood this patiently for quite a long while, but all the time I could feel the Indiana-American creeping through my system like a mountain cascade.

"They looked at the pictures on the walls.

"'How stoopid,' they said in unison.

"They looked at statuary.

"'What a Brummagem lot!' said they in one voice.

"It was the same all over the building. The whole works, from one wing to the other, got he laugh from them, till the spirit of '76 began to rattle around in me so hard that I could just barely hang on to myself.

IN DARK CORNERS.

"Finally, I got them around to the picture of the battle of Lake Erie, over on the senate side.

"'What a frightful daub!' they exclaimed together. 'What is it supposed to represent, gee-ide?'

"Well, say, this made me too hot to handle.

"'That,' said I, 'is considered an admirable work of art. It is also regarded as an accurate representation of the battle of Lake Erie. That battle, as you will of course recall, took place between the American and British fleets during the war of 1812 between Great Britain and the United States. And if any fleet on salt or fresh water was ever ker-soaked, smothered, jolted, hammered, torn in two, ripped up the back, hamstrung, keel-hauled, butchered to make a Roman holiday, and knocked into eighteen hundred and twelve different kinds of junk and kindling wood, it was the lime-juicer British fleet on that occasion, when Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry put it on and all over them!'

"Well, y'ought to 've seen their faces. I had never had a chance to twist the British lion's tail at such close range before, and under such justifiable circumstances, and just then it would have been all one to me had I been addressing the prince of Wales.

"'Fellow,' said the male Briton, indignantly, and he tossed me a two-bit piece. I let it lay where it fell, and walked off with a tip of the hat.

"I don't read the London Times, but I'll bet a can of tomatoes that that Britisher wrote to the London Times about the incident, and described the lack of proper subservience on the part of American gee-ides."—Washington Star.

AFRICAN HOSPITALITY.

Considered the Duty of Every Citizen to Entertain Strangers Without Compensation.

Hospitality may be considered as one of the characteristics of not only the Veis, but of the whole African race. It is considered the duty of every citizen to entertain strangers without the smallest compensation, writes the author of "Africa's Appeal to Christendom," in Century. Places of rest stand always open, and when these are found occupied by strangers, a man goes and tells his wife, who will send her servants with water for the strangers to wash their feet; for, as they wear no shoes, they naturally need such accommodation. Afterward rooms and cloth wrappers are given them, food is brought from all quarters, or they are invited to eat with the people. They continue to be so provided for, even if they stay months. Their garments are also washed and returned to them. On leaving, they generally make a small gift to the wife of the host, though not more than two or three cola nuts or two or three English pennies.

TOWN TO RUN PAPER

WEBSTER CITY, IOWA, TO PUBLISH A DAILY.

Fight Over Gas Franchise the Cause of the New Departure in Municipal Ownership—Alderman to Edit Sheet.

Webster City's (Ia.) penchant for municipal ownership is to take a new form—that of a city-owned daily newspaper. This departure in municipal enterprise probably has not a counterpart in the United States. The paper is to be known as the Daily Graphic-Herald, and will be issued from the present office of the Weekly Graphic-Herald, the only democratic paper in Hamilton county.

Webster City began her career as a municipal ownership city many years ago. She first acquired possession of her waterworks. Next came the electric light and power plant. Then came the city heating plant, and now this latest venture. With the single exception of her heating plant, all the municipal ventures of the city have proved to be paying investments, and have materially lowered taxes. The aim, however, always has been to furnish the product of a plant to the consumer as near cost as could be done, and leave a fair reserve margin.

The venture of the city into the field of journalism has been on the hottest kind of a red-hot gas campaign. M. E. Springer, representing the Practical Gas and Construction company, of Chicago, is asking that the people vote him a franchise to erect and maintain a gas plant in the city. Mr. Springer last year asked the same thing. He was beaten because a company of local capitalists banded together and offered the city $4,000 and a certain per cent. of the gross receipts of the plant for the franchise. The latter company received the franchise, although at the same time the citizens also expressed themselves as in favor of a municipal gas plant to compete with the private corporation. Mayor F. A. Edwards was a member of the private company, and the attorney general of the state declared the franchise to be illegal for the reason that no contract or franchise can be granted a city official under the Iowa statutes.

This decision having knocked out the local private company, Mr. Springer has returned to the city again to ask the citizens to vote him a franchise. There are now two dailies there, but neither is strenuous enough in its promulgation of the municipal ownership idea, so the council proposes to launch a strictly municipal ownership daily. Alderman J. D. Riete, of the First ward, the "father of the council," is slated to be the editor-in-chief, and will have several assistant editors in the person of other councilmen.

The decision of the council to launch a daily came as a general surprise, as no one there dreamed that the city would enter the journalistic field. The members of the council, however, evidently believe that if they can run electric light and power works, heating plants and water plants, they can likewise run a daily newspaper.

BOY PLEADS OPHTHALMIA.

Nineteen-Year-Old Boy Seeks Divorce from His Bride—Over Three Times His Age.

Fred H. Brenner, of Cleveland, who was 19 when he married Marguerita Brenner, 62, has filed an amended divorce petition. In her answer and cross petition Mrs. Brenner alleged that her boy husband had deserted her, taking with him all her money.

In his latest pleading Brenner says: "During the years of his infancy he was not accorded the privilege of a college of matrimony, and unfortunately his tutelage in that branch of speculation under the parental roof was sadly neglected. And when defendant crossed his path he was an infant under the age of 21 years and susceptible to the follies of inexperienced youth, and when at said time she poured into his ears the impassioned protestations of love and affection, conned from the purchasable stereotyped stories of love that guarantee complete directions for success in the hymeneal art, he was stricken with opthalmia and Cupid's arrow had penetrated the seat of his affections."

After two weeks his eyes were opened and he left.

MUST BE BUILT STRONGER

Naval Inspectors Declare Speed of Torpedo Boats Will Be Sacrificed for Heavier Construction.

The result of the recent thorough examination of the naval torpedo-boats is unsatisfactory, only one of the little craft having a record of escaping breakdowns.

The faults developed pertain mostly to the machinery, and, while not serious, collectively they are understood to have influenced the naval inspection board to recommend a heavier inspection of machinery, even at the cost of a loss of speed.

The experts have decided that it is better to have a 25-knot boat which can be depended upon to make that speed at all times and in all weather than a 30-knot boat liable to breakdowns at any time, and so weak that she cannot keep the sea in bad weather.

Always Something Doing.

"Torrential rains" have succeeded the recent fierce blizzards in Manchuria. The Philadelphia Inquirer asks if such a country is worth fighting for.

Called Down.

Some time ago in an old-fashioned negro revival which was held on the outskirts of the city of Atlanta the colored divine who was in charge of the meeting called upon the brethren for voluntary prayers. One old colored brother who felt moved by the spirit began to wax exceedingly warm in calling down the favor of heaven upon the assemblage, when another brother in the audience, whose curiosity got the better of his reverence, cried out in loud tones which completely drowned the prayer:

"Who dat prayin' ober dar?"

"Dat's Brudder Mose," some one responded.

"Hold on, Brudder Mose," shouted the interrupter. "You'se sed enuff. Let Brudder Jones pray. He's better 'quainted wid de Lord dan you is!"—Philadelphia Press.

Women on the Golf Links.

Golf is a grand old game, of course, but its widespread popularity in this country, its marvelous growth here in the last few years, is largely due to the interest that is taken in it by young women. If it were not for their presence in goodly numbers on the links no such public favor as golf has met with would have been recorded. It is a repetition of the old story of the opera season; the presence of pretty women in the boxes makes us all pretend to love music and crowds the Metropolitan. The young American girl who plays golf not only fills in the picture prettily, but plays a rattling good game—as is evidenced in the scores made in the women's metropolitan championship games on the Apawamis grounds, which were concluded in fine the other day.—N. Y. Herald.

Governments in United States.

There are at present just nine different forms of government practiced in the United States, to-wit:

1. Constitutional, state and territorial.
2. Special conditions for Alaska.
3. Special conditions for Indian territory.
4. A commission for the Philippines.
5. An experiment in Porto Rico.
6. Naval officers in charge of Guam.
7. Temporary government in Tutuila, Samoa, and other Pacific islands.
8. The territory of Hawaii.
9. The Panama canal zone.—Denver News.

Egg Experiments.

Agricultural experiment stations in several states have been trying to discover whether the flavor and color of eggs can be affected by the food given to the hens. Among the foods used were smoked herrings, oil of celery, oil of sassafras and onions. Nothing but the onions affected the taste of the eggs. White corn, however, produces eggs with light yolks, whereas yellow corn makes the yolks dark. The experimenters have decided that the color of the yolk depends on the coloring matter in the food, and has nothing to do with the richness of the eggs.

Holland's Paupers.

There are few able-bodied paupers in Holland. A tract of public land containing 5,000 acres is divided into six model farms, to one of which the person applying for public relief is sent. Here he is taught agriculture, and is subsequently permitted to rent a small farm for himself. Holland also has a forced-labor colony, to which vagrants are sent to do farm and other work, whether they like it or not.—London Spare Moments.

The Worst.

"Doctor," said the beautiful young woman who had become the wife of a rich old man, "tell me the worst. I will be brave and try to bear it."

Leading her gently from her suffering husband's bedside, the doctor answered:

"Nerve yourself, then, for a terrible shock. He's going to get well."—Tit-Bits.

Toasting Futile.

A man named Brown courted a lady unsuccessfully for many years and drank her health every day. On being observed to omit the custom, a gentleman said—"'Come, Brown, your old toast!"

"Excuse me," the other replied, "as I can't make her Brown, I'll toast her no longer!'—Smith's Weekly.

Another One of Them.

"I've met several other people from your city," said the Bostonian, "and every one of them said: 'Where is it at?'"

"Where is what at?" demanded the New Yorker.—Catholic Standard-Times.

Speaking of Ranges.

"That tenor," remarked young Muggins at the concert; "has a tremendous range."

"Speaking of ranges," rejoined Miss Nurich, "you just ought to see the one pa bought. It takes up the whole end of the kitchen."—Chicago Daily News.

World's Oldest Woman.

The Local Overflow.......

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James I. Wyer, at Excelsior, this state, next Wednesday, June 26, will occur the marriage of their daughter, Mabel, to John H. Rowe, of Minneapolis. Miss Wyer was at one time a resident of Red Lake Falls, and has a host of friends here who will join in wishing her a long and happy wedded career.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hayton came over from Bemidji last Saturday and remained until Wednesday with their relatives and many friends here. Mr. Hayton is now located at Thoreau, New Mexico, where he has a lucrative position with a large lumber concern, and is up for the purpose of moving his family to that part of the world. They will leave next Monday for their new home, and their many friends here will join The Gazette in wishing them unbounded success.

Crookston Times: Frank E. Packard, President of the Crookston College, who spent yesterday at Red Lake Falls, received an invitation to address the teachers attending the summer school at that place next week, and will accept. Mr. Packard will speak upon "Japan and the Japanese" in the afternoon and from his personal experiences on the East Pacific Isle during the Spanish war, should be able to deliver a very interesting discourse. In the evening "Soldiering in the Far East," in which Mr. Packard has a great fund of personal experience should delight his audience.

If the Gazette is shy on local news this week, we are in hopes of receiving the indulgence of the readers, as a combination of causes has made this a regretted realization. Our competent right-hand man, Raymond [illegible], has been enjoying an outing at Maple Lake since last Thursday, while Dan Johnson, another valued employee left this week for Minneapolis, which has left us short handed with an extraordinary rush of work outside of the newspaper. We will do better, however, when conditions get normal again, and hope to make up for all discrepencies noticable during the vacation spell.

Crookston Times: Great Northern railroad officials some time ago sent out a bulletin relative to new towns upon the Great Northern extensions in North Dakota in which it was stated that Marcus Johnson of the Crookston and Red Lake Falls Milling Companies would be president of a large flour milling company organized for the purpose of erecting a 200 barrel mill at the new towns along the line. Mr. Johnson who is in the city today states emphatically that there is no truth in the story and that he knows nothing whatever of the new mill proposition and has not been consulted in the matter, let alone being made president of the company.

Frank E. Packard, of the Crookston Business Academy, at Crookston, spent Monday in the city interviewing our people in behalf of his school and looking over the best town in the valley. Mr. Packard, in company with his sister, assumed control of the Crookston Academy the first of July, and will make it the best school in the northwest. Besides the usual commercial courses taught in a school of this kind they will have departments of music and elocution, and intend to give their pupils as thorough a training as they could get in any business school in the state. They have a fine building, a competent corps of instructors, and plan on making theirs the real school of [illegible], so that the people of this part of the state can get the best of service without sending their children to the expensive city colleges. Aside from his duties at the college, Mr. Packard is editorial writer on Northern Minnesota's best daily, the Crookston Times, and is recognized as one of the brightest writers in the northern country. Mr. Packard is always a welcome visitor here, and will undoubtedly get a good patronage for his school from this part of the state.

New Towns in North Dakota.

The extensive railroad building now being done in North Dakota has brought tributary to railroad facilities an additional vast area of the rich agricultural sections of northern and western North Dakota. The Great Northern railway is building a number of new extensions from its main line northward notably that of the Sarles extension of the Edmore line, the Thorne extension running north from York, the Maxbass extension running northwestward from Towner, and a further extension of the Westhope line to Antler.

The building of these new lines has brought into being a number of new towns which are fully described in a pamphlet recently issued by the Great Northern railway. By application to Mr. F. I. Whitney, Passenger Traffic Manager, St. Paul, Minn., a copy of these pamphlets "New Extensions in North Dakota" or "New Towns in North Dakota" will be mailed to any address. 6w

PLUMMER

(From the Pioneer.)

M. J. Dunn, superintendent of the Prairie Elevator Co, was a business visitor here Tuesday night.

Dan Coroll was in from his reservation home on Tuesday and reports the crops are looking fine out his way.

Ole Swenson was in from Gernes on Wednesday to secure a supply of lumber for some new building operations.

Chairman Ole Johnson was at Red Lake Falls the first few days of the week attending the county board meeting.

P. S. Medchill was among the number of those who spent Tuesday at Red Lake Falls. He was interested in the Plummer ditch petition before the county board.

Olaf Tande was in on Thursday hauling lumber for a big barn which he is about to build on his farm in Gernes.

O. E. and A. J. Lillo and L. Fore were among those who came in from Equality on Monday to transact business with the Plummer merchants.

Jo Belair announces that he will be here from Tuesday to Friday of next week with his Percheron Stallion 'Maje'. This will be his last visit to Plummer this year.

Peter Nelson and sister Mary left on Tuesday for Minot N. D., west of where they have taken some land. They took a carload of stock and implements with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Ole Matheson, of Wyandotte, are the proud parents of a pair of twin boys born on Sunday last. The census man should have waited a few weeks before figuring up the census this year as this is the second pair of twins born in this vicinity within a few days.

Last week Julius Pleth closed a deal for the Swen Felsvn farm on the eastern boundary of Plummer, and promptly sold the place again to Goodhue parties for $5000 or $25 per acre. Considering the excellent location of the land and the improvements on it this figure is to be regarded as a bargain. The new owners will not move here for a year or and in making the sale Mr. Pleth reserved the present crop and garden for himself.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Finrow spent Tuesday at Red Lake Falls where Mr. Finrow represented the village of Plummer on behalf of its ditch petition before the county board.

Den Shew, County Commissioner from the Thief River Falls district, was a visitor here Wednesday evening. He was on his way home from the meeting of the county board at Red Lake Falls and drove over with Ole Johnson to take the evening train to Thief River Falls.

The latest addition to the creamery patrons is Percy Taggot the ever genial and industrious agent for the Soo railroad company here. He is half inclined to divide the profits with the base ball club if the boys will take turns in doing his chores for him including milking.

A big delegation of citizens of Garnes were at Red Lake Falls the first of the week and registered a big kick to the county board because of the condition of the Garnes-Emardville ditch which they claim was never properly finished and does not perform the work for which it was constructed.

Quite an enthusiastic meeting was held on Wednesday evening at the depot to talk over the possibility of organizing a band here. About thirty people were present and a good deal of interest was manifested. About eighteen of those present signified their willingness to join the band if organized and P. Taggart was appointed as a committee of one to ascertain the cost of the necessary instruments. An adjournment was taken until next Wednesday when Mr. Taggart expects to have his report ready and the organization will probably be perfected.

Creamery Is Paying Farmers.

The patrons of the Red Lake Falls creamery today received their checks for cream delivered at the creamery during the past month. The net price, that is after deducting cost of running the creamery and of marketing the butter, for the month is 18¾ cents per pound of butter fat. From this sum 1½ cents per pound of butter fat was deducted for the sinking fund as the management desires to get the business upon a sound basis and no business can be run without a reserve.

The showing of the creamery for this season is a very creditable one and shows that this year the interests of the patrons have been and are being looked after with the greatest of care. The patrons can be assured that every cent of the output of the creamery will be accounted for, and further that an excellent quality of butter is being made which will command the highest market price.

More cream is needed as then the expense per pound of butter would be cut down and thus better results can be secured. The farmers of this vicinity have an excellent opportunity to get established in the dairy and stock business and thus be insured of a steady and reliable income. Come in and look over the local creamery, examine the methods upon which it is being run, as the officers of the creamery invite your investigation. They want your patronage and will be able to convince you that your interests will be well taken care of. And when you come to realize that several of the patrons of the creamery are drawing monthly checks of $50 and over you can see what this means in the way of paying of that mortgage upon the farm.

WAY TO SAVE DOCTOR BILLS.

Physicians Give Free Advice By Which Parents May Profit.

It's a matter of general interest just now how one's physical condition can be got into shape to best receive the benefits of the summer season. Especially is this true of the children. They have become run down by a winter of unnatural manner of living because of ill-considered food and much time spent indoors. Spring comes with its sunshine, its fresh vegetables and all else invigorating, but the children are in no condition to receive nature's remedies.

Many parents call in the family physician. Many other parents take advantage of what the physician told them when he was first called in consultation. All good family physicians say: "Give the children Castoria." Healthy parents know this remedy of old, for they took it themselves as children. It was more than thirty years ago that Castoria made a place for itself in the household. It bore the signature of Charles H. Fletcher then, as it does to-day. The signature is its guarantee, which is accepted in thousands of homes where there are children.

Much is printed nowadays about big families. Dr. William I. McCann, of Omaha, Neb., is the father of one of these much-read-about families. Here is what he says:

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experiences I have, in my years of practice, found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Charles H. Fletcher has received hundreds of letters from prominent physicians who have the same esteem for Castoria that Dr. McCann has. Not only do these physicians say they use Castoria in their own families but they prescribe it for clients. First of all it is a vegetable preparation which assimilates the food and regulates the stomach and bowels. After eating comes sleeping, and Castoria looks out for that too. It allays feverishness and prevents loss of sleep, and this absolutely without the use of opium, morphine or other baneful narcotic.

Medical journals are reluctant to discuss proprietary medicines. Hall's Journal of Health, however, says: Our duty is to expose danger and record the means for advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health by regulating the system, not by stupefying it, and our readers are entitled to the information."

Nine Nations
Now Use Liquozone. Won't You Try It—Free?
Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquozone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some-one whom Liquozone has cured.
If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquozone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquozone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.
We Paid $100,000
For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.
Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.
There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.
Germ Diseases.
These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

Big Time At The Peg.

The members of the local band organization arrived home Monday morning from their three days' playing at the big Industrial fair at Winnipeg, tired out but more than satisfied with the excellent time they had enjoyed. The boys arrived at the Canadian metropolis early Friday morning and remained until Sunday afternoon, and every minute of the stay at that beautiful city was thoroughly enjoyed, the boys pronouncing it the trip of their lives. Friday afternoon the band played at the fair grounds and between showers furnished good music and took in the show. Friday evening they gave an hour's concert and at every appearance delighted the crowds that congregated. Saturday morning was devoted to playing on the streets of the city, and at noon the band serenaded the members of the Northwestern Minnesota Editorial association, who were quarted at the Corona hotel for a couple of days of sight-seeing. The afternoon of Saturday was spent in concert work at the fair grounds and the boys conducted themselves in a manner that greatly pleased the fair visitors. Saturday evening a concert was given from the balcony of Mariaggi's hotel, one of the finest hotels in the city, and this is where the band distinguished themselves for fine work. The streets were jammed with people for several blocks on either side of the street, and the efforts of the "Yankee" band seemed to meet with their approval. The proprietor of the hotel, Mr. Skinner, and his associates, did all in their power to make it pleasant for our band, and gave them a banquet Sunday afternoon that was on a grand scale. To Mr. John C. Armytage, Mr. Crothers, Mr. Nelson, Hartley, Mr. Ball, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Tuckwell, musical director of the exposition, and many others is the band deeply indebted for the kindness shown, and words cannot express the gratitude that the boys from here felt at the princely treatment accorded them during their entire stay. Of the city of Winnipeg a great deal could be said without doing it half justice. With over 100,000 people now this greatest western city is forging ahead at a pace seldom equalled and will within but few years be the greatest city of the western hemisphere. On every hand can be seen new and handsome business blocks and residences, and as a commercial center there is no description available of the immense business done. Time and space prevent more being said along this subject, but it is the unanimous opinion of all that the people are right royal entertainers, and if the occasion ever presents itself the boys will be heartily glad of the opportunity of making another trip there.

Was the Date Wrong?

The Mizpah people have been greatly surprised and excited over the arrest of Theodore Larson at Northome for the killing of a man near Crookston. Larson was well known to the people here being here the greater part of the past two years and generally considered an inoffensive and harmless old man. According to his statement in which it is claimed he confesses (?) he struck the man on the head with an axe while crossing a bridge near Crookston and threw the body in the river, afterwards going into North Dakota. The time of this was November 17, 1903.

Now in looking over the Message files we note in the issue of November 5, 1903, that Theodore Larson had just returned.

Is the story a myth, is the date wrong, or is the Message mistaken.

LAND SALE IN OCTOBER

State Auditor Iverson Will Sell Red Lake County School Lands October 26.

Auditor Ford received notice Monday of the state land sale to be held in this county this fall, when some 20,000 acres of choice lands will be sold by State Auditor Iverson at the court house in this city.

The sale will be held on Thursday, October 26, and it is likely that the bidding will be spirited.

The list of lands embraces some of the choicest pieces of farm property in Red Lake county, and the general opinion seems to be that a good figure will be secured for every quarter sold.

Mr. Iverson will be here to personally conduct the sale, and as he is known as a competent and obliging official the bidders will get a square deal, and no one will have reason to be dissatisfied.

The sale will likely bring many new settlers into Red Lake county, and should be the means of increasing the valuation to a large extent.

Cement School House.

District No. 81, in Terrebonne township, is building a new school house out of cement blocks, and have the work well along. The cement blocks are made at Dugdale, and the building will be a lasting and substantial structure when completed. Other districts could well afford to follow the example of District 81 in this respect, as no improvement could show up a country to better advantage.

COUNTY SHOWS GAIN

Census Figures For Red Lake County Give Us a Population of 15,917, Against 12,195 Five Years Ago.

The official figures on the census of Red Lake county were announced the latter part of last week, and the showing made is an exceptionally good one. The county now has 15,917 people as against 12,195 five years ago, which is as good a showing as was made by many counties in the state.

Several of the towns show a small loss, but in the majority of cases a substantial increase is evident, and the new figures will put Red Lake county in an entirely different class among the counties of the state.

Red Lake Falls was unfortunate in showing a loss over five years ago, but the figures cannot possibly be accurate, from the fact that everything points to an increase instead of a decrease. The attendance at the schools in this city is larger than at any time previous, while at the time the census was taken a great many of the younger fellows who are actual residents of the city were away and could not be enumerated. While the city has probably not increased materially in population over the count of the boom days in 1900, yet if every actual resident was enumerated the showing would be 2,000 or better.

Thief River Falls, on the other hand, is crowded to the doors with transients, and it is safe to say that they were all counted—and then some. With a large crew of men on the railroad work, and another big crowd engaged in the waterworks building there was an excellent chance to make a showing and the returns indicate that this was what was done.

The count of the county at large was on the whole quite satisfactory to the people, and means a new era in more ways than one.

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS

Crowd of Representatives of Leading Newspapers and Magazines On Tour of the Valley.

Red Lake Falls entertained a crowd of distinguished visitors a short time yesterday, while the Great Northern train stopped here, and many of our people were out to shake hands with the visitors.

The party was in charge of State Auditor Iverson on a tour of inspection of the Red River Valley, was composed of a great many of the representatives of the leading daily and monthly publications of the west, and their visit was for the purpose of getting information in regard to the valley in order to tell the people of the west the advantages offered here.

Ed L. Healy, our ever wide awake land man, worked all day Tuesday preparing a grain display and when the train pulled in to the station the crowd of distinguished gentlemen spent several interested minutes in examining the beautiful samples of Red Lake county grains and grasses shown in the display. Mr. Healy had samples of Yankee corn, sweet corn, dent corn, alfalfa, silver mine oats, barley, flax, red clover, white Russian oats, fife wheat, macaroni wheat, No. 169 Minnesota wheat, blue stem wheat, timothy, allsyke, wild pea vine and several others, besides a nice vegetable display, and every sample was secured from fields and gardens the day before. The gentlemen were more than impressed with the samples shown, and were loud in their praises of Mr. Healy for his enterprise in preparing a display of this sort. The band was at the train and serenaded the visitors while they stopped here.

The trip was made to Greenbush and return and the news men will give this section a write-up that will be far reaching, and it is safe to say that the enterprise of Mr. Healy and some of the leading citizens in planning the reception given them here will be means of giving Red Lake Falls a good send-off.

The party was composed of a jolly lot of fellows and they were thoroughly enjoying their trip.

CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS.

Young Man Gets Into The Meshes of the Law For Stealing.

Percy Brown, a travelling picture artist, was arrested here last evening charged with stealing $25, a ring and other articles from the room of a couple of teachers attending summer school here, and at the hearing today he was bound over to the grand jury and will wait until fall to be dealth with.

The teachers were rooming at the Central hotel and when they returned to their rooms yesterday they found the money and other articles missing. Suspicion pointed to this fellow Brown, who roomed directly across the hall from the ladies, and it was learned that he had left hurriedly for Thief River Falls yesterday, after telling the hotel people that he was going to his room to sleep until noon. He imbibed freely of the flowing bowl while at Thief River Falls, and returned here the same evening, only to be nabbed by the officers. He was searched, and the ring etc., were found on his body, but the money was not secured. Judge Lewis bound him over to the grand jury, and he will likely suffer for his wrong doing. Evil doers are getting humped hard in Red Lake county these days, and it wont be long before they give us a wide berth.

Later—Since the above was put in type The Gazette learns that the culprit has asked Attorney Germo to enter a plea of guilty, so he will be sentenced by Judge Watts this week.

NEW JUDICIAL DITCH

Farmers of Polk and Red Lake County Ask For New Waterway To Drain Parts of Both Counties.

A petition signed by B. Benson and others has been presented to the auditors and clerks of Polk and Red Lake counties, praying for the construction of a new Judicial ditch, to be known as Judicial Ditch No. 5, Fourteenth District, and it is likely that steps will at once be taken to have the matter brought up for action.

The proposed new waterway will drain a whole lot of swamp land in eastern Polk county, and will traverse through several townships, finally entering Terrebonne ditch No. 2. The petition asks that the ditch be constructed as follows:

Commencing at a point in a lake 40 rods south of the southeast corner of the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 3-147-42, Polk county, thence running in a northerly direction through section 3, following the natural water course into a lake in section 28-148-42, Polk county, thence following the natural water course in a westerly direction into Lake Sarah thence through the outlet of Lake Sarah, following the natural water course into the lake near the center of section 20-148-42, Polk county, thence in a northwesterly direction following a coolie across sections 20 and 17, into a creek running into Badger lake, in sections 34 and 35-149-42, thence following Badger creek, the outlet of said Badger lake, down stream, through sections 34, 27, 22, 21, 28, 20, 17, 8, 7, 6, in 149-42, thence along said creek to section 1, and to the north boundary thereof, to the source of Terrebonne Ditch No. 2, Red Lake county, thence down stream to point where said ditch has sufficient capacity to carry off the water that will be carried down by said proposed ditch.

The proposed waterway covers several miles in length and will be great benefit to the lands in that part of the counties affected.

MEETS NEXT TUESDAY

The program is a long one and embraces talks by such well known men as Governor Johnson, Knute Nelson, Moses E. Clapp, J. A. Tawney, Halvor Steeneason. J. Adam Bede, C. N. Buckman, B. N. Jones, S. G. Iverson, P. E. Hanson, A. L. Cole, L. G. Pendergast, A. D. Stephens, George Ralph, Asher Murray and many other prominent Minnesotans.

The proprietor of the hotel, Mr. Skinner, and his associates, did all in their power to make it pleasant for our band, and gave them a banquet Sunday afternoon that was on a grand scale. To Mr. John C. Armytage, Mr. Crothers, Mr. Nelson, Hartley, Mr. Ball, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Tuckwell, musical director of the exposition, and many others is the band deeply indebted for the kindness shown, and words cannot express the gratitude that the boys from here felt at the princely treatment accorded them during their entire stay. Of the city of Winnipeg a great deal could be said without doing it half justice. With over 100,000 people now this greatest western city is forging ahead at a pace seldom equalled and will within but few years be the greatest city of the western hemisphere. On every hand can be seen new and handsome business blocks and residences, and as a commercial center there is no description available of the immense business done. Time and space prevent more being said along this subject, but it is the unanimous opinion of all that the people are right royal entertainers, and if the occasion ever presents itself the boys will be heartily glad of the opportunity of making another trip there.

Was the Date Wrong?

The Mizpah people have been greatly surprised and excited over the arrest of Theodore Larson at Northome for the killing of a man near Crookston. Larson was well known to the people here being here the greater part of the past two years and generally considered an inoffensive and harmless old man. According to his statement in which it is claimed he confesses (?) he struck the man on the head with an axe while crossing a bridge near Crookston and threw the body in the river, afterwards going into North Dakota. The time of this was November 17, 1903.

Now in looking over the Message files we note in the issue of November 5, 1903, that Theodore Larson had just returned.

Is the story a myth, is the date wrong, or is the Message mistaken. —Mizpah Message.

LAND SALE IN OCTOBER

State Auditor Iverson Will Sell Red Lake County School Lands October 26.

Auditor Ford received notice Monday of the state land sale to be held in this county this fall, when some 20,000 acres of choice lands will be sold by State Auditor Iverson at the court house in this city.

The sale will be held on Thursday, October 26, and it is likely that the bidding will be spirited.

The list of lands embraces some of the choicest pieces of farm property in Red Lake county, and the general opinion seems to be that a good figure will be secured for every quarter sold.

Mr. Iverson will be here to personally conduct the sale, and as he is known as a competent and obliging official the bidders will get a square deal, and no one will have reason to be dissatisfied.

The sale will likely bring many new settlers into Red Lake county, and should be the means of increasing the valuation to a large extent.

Cement School House.

District No. 81, in Terrebonne township, is building a new school house out of cement blocks, and have the work well along. The cement blocks are made at Dugdale, and the building will be a lasting and substantial structure when completed. Other districts could well afford to follow the example of District 81 in this respect, as no improvement could show up a country to better advantage.

COUNTY SHOWS GAIN

Census Figures For Red Lake County Give Us a Population of 15,917, as Against 12,195 Five Years Ago.

The official figures on the census of Red Lake county were announced the latter part of last week, and the showing made is an exceptionally good one. The county now has 15,917 people as against 12,195 five years ago, which is as good a showing as was made by many counties in the state.

Several of the towns show a small loss, but in the majority of cases a substantial increase is evident, and the new figures will put Red Lake county in an entirely different class among the counties of the state.

Red Lake Falls was unfortunate in showing a loss over five years ago, but the figures cannot possibly be accurate, from the fact that everything points to an increase instead of a decrease. The attendance at the schools in this city is larger than at any time previous, while at the time the census was taken a great many of the younger fellows who are actual residents of the city were away and could not be enumerated. While the city has probably not increased materially in population over the count of the boom days in 1900, yet if every actual resident was enumerated the showing would be 2,000 or better.

Thief River Falls, on the other hand, is crowded to the doors with transients, and it is safe to say that they were all counted—and then some. With a large crew of men on the railroad work, and another big crowd engaged in the waterworks building there was an excellent chance to make a showing and the returns indicate that this was what was done.

The count of the county at large was on the whole quite satisfactory to the people, and means a new era in more ways than one.

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS

Crowd of Representatives of Leading Newspapers and Magazines On Tour of the Valley.

Red Lake Falls entertained a crowd of distinguished visitors a short time yesterday, while the Great Northern train stopped here, and many of our people were out to shake hands with the visitors.

The party was in charge of State Auditor Iverson on a tour of inspection of the Red River Valley, was composed of a great many of the representatives of the leading daily and monthly publications of the west, and their visit was for the purpose of getting information in regard to the valley in order to tell the people of the west the advantages offered here.

Ed L. Healy, our ever wide awake land man, worked all day Tuesday preparing a grain display and when the train pulled in to the station the crowd of distinguished gentlemen spent several interested minutes in examining the beautiful samples of Red Lake county grains and grasses shown in the display. Mr. Healy had samples of Yankee corn, sweet corn, dent corn, alfalfa, silver mine oats, barley, flax, red clover, white Russian oats, fife wheat, macaroni wheat, No. 169 Minnesota wheat, blue stem wheat, timothy, allsyke, wild pea vine and several others, besides a nice vegetable display, and every sample was secured from fields and gardens the day before. The gentlemen were more than impressed with the samples shown, and were loud in their praises of Mr. Healy for his enterprise in preparing a display of this sort. The band was at the train and serenaded the visitors while they stopped here.

The trip was made to Greenbush and return and the news men will give this section a write-up that will be far reaching, and it is safe to say that the enterprise of Mr. Healy and some of the leading citizens in planning the reception given them here will be means of giving Red Lake Falls a good send-off.

The party was composed of a jolly lot of fellows and they were thoroughly enjoying their trip.

CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS.

Young Man Gets Into The Meshes of the Law For Stealing.

Percy Brown, a travelling picture artist, was arrested here last evening charged with stealing $25, a ring and other articles from the room of a couple of teachers attending summer school here, and at the hearing today he was bound over to the grand jury and will wait until fall to be dealth with.

The teachers were rooming at the Central hotel and when they returned to their rooms yesterday they found the money and other articles missing. Suspicion pointed to this fellow Brown, who roomed directly across the hall from the ladies, and it was learned that he had left hurriedly for Thief River Falls yesterday, after telling the hotel people that he was going to his room to sleep until noon. He imbibed freely of the flowing bowl while at Thief River Falls, and returned here the same evening, only to be nabbed by the officers. He was searched, and the ring etc., were found on his body, but the money was not secured. Judge Lewis bound him over to the grand jury, and he will likely suffer for his wrong doing. Evil doers are getting bumped hard in Red Lake county these days, and it wont be long before they give us a wide berth.

LATER—Since the above was put in type The Gazette learns that the culprit has asked Attorney Germo to enter a plea of guilty, so he will be sentenced by Judge Watts this week.

NEW JUDICIAL DITCH

Farmers of Polk and Red Lake County Ask For New Waterway To Drain Parts of Both Counties.

A petition signed by B. Benson and others has been presented to the auditors and clerks of Polk and Red Lake counties, praying for the construction of a new Judicial ditch, to be known as Judicial Ditch No. 5, Fourteenth District, and it is likely that steps will at once be taken to have the matter brought up for action.

The proposed new waterway will drain a whole lot of swamp land in eastern Polk county, and will traverse through several townships, finally entering Terrebonne ditch No. 2. The petition asks that the ditch be constructed as follows:

Commencing at a point in a lake 40 rods south of the southeast corner of the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 3-147-42, Polk county, thence running in a northerly direction through section 3, following the natural water course into a lake in section 28-148-42, Polk county, thence following the natural water course in a westerly direction into Lake Sarah thence through the outlet of Lake Sarah, following the natural water course into the lake near the center of section 20-148-42, Polk county, thence in a northwesterly direction following a coolie across sections 20 and 17, into a creek running into Badger lake, in sections 34 and 35-149-42, thence following Badger creek, the outlet of said Badger lake, down stream, through sections 34, 27, 22, 21, 28, 20, 17, 8, 7, 6, in 149-42, thence along said creek to section 1, and to the north boundary thereof, to the source of Terrebonne Ditch No. 2, Red Lake county, thence down stream to point where said ditch has sufficient capacity to carry off the water that will be carried down by said proposed ditch.

The proposed waterway covers several miles in length and will be great benefit to the lands in that part of the counties affected.

THREE SCORE DEAD

EXPLOSION OF BOILER CREATES TERRIBLE HAVOC ON GUNBOAT BENNINGTON.

IN ADDITION TO THOSE KILLED SIXTY OF THE CREW ARE BADLY INJURED.

VESSEL BEACHED IN SAN DIEGO HARBOR AS A RESULT OF THE ACCIDENT.

San Diego, Cal., July 22.—Broken and blackened, with her flag flying at half mast, her hold filled with fifteen feet of water, the United States gunboat Bennington lies beached on the shores of San Diego harbor. Nearly sixty of her crew lie dead at city morgues, one is missing and three score are stretched upon beds of pain in various hospitals. This is the result of the explosion which wrecked the trim little naval craft and wrought such terrible havoc among her crew at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning.

The Bennington at the time of the accident was lying in the stream off the Commercial wharf at the foot of H street. The warship had received orders from the navy department at Washington to sail Friday morning to Port Harford, where she was to meet the monitor Wyoming and convoy that vessel to the Mare Island navyyard. Steam was up and everything was in readiness for sailing when suddenly and without any warning whatever, the starboard forward boiler exploded with a deafening roar.

It was immediately apparent that a terrible disaster had happened on the Bennington. The ferryboat Romona was coming across the bay at the time and her captain immediately gave orders to change the course of the boat and hurried to the assistance of the stricken warship. The tug Santa Fe, which was tied up at the Commercial wharf, the launch McKinley, the government launch Derussey, and a large number of launches and water craft which were near the scene at the time of the ship. By the time the Ramona had arrived, many of the sailors of the Bennington who had jumped into the bay to escape the scalding steam had been rescued and the removal of the wounded, which had already begun, was being conducted in perfect order. Crews of the Santa Fe, Derussey, McKinley and the other boats lent yeoman aid in picking up the wounded sailors and transferring them to the shore.

On board the Bennington were presented terrible sights. The force of the explosion had blown a great hole in the starboard side of the ship and the vessel was already commencing to list. A section of the upper deck was carried away from stem to stern. Debris and wreckage were distributed over the entire ship, the forward cabin and deck in the vicinity of the boiler resembled a charnel house. Over it all hung the cloud of white steam, which drifted slowly toward the Coronado shore.

Most of the dead and injured were taken ashore, where the undertakers and physicians were summoned to take charge of the dead and minister to the needs of the living. The bodies of the men killed in the interior of the ship were mutilated almost beyond recognition. The faces of many were covered with blood and gashes.

As fast as possible the wounded were hauled in ambulances, automobiles, carriages, etc., to the hospitals. It was not until late in the afternoon that the last of the bodies was removed from the boilerroom. Some of the bodies were tightly wedged in by a bulkhead. The woodwork had to be hewn away to free them.

The boiler which exploded, it is said, was regarded as unsafe. Commander Young stated that during a recent return trip from Honolulu the pressure was kept reduced during the entire passage.

TWELVE DIE BY FIRE

NEGROES WHO WERE TRYING TO STOP SPREAD OF FLAMES AT HUMBLE, TEX. PERISH.

Houston, Tex., July 25.—The fire in the Humble oil fields, which started Sunday night, is still burning fiercely, but it remains confined to the tanks of the Texas company. While no names are ascertainable, it is believed that twelve persons lost their lives. So far as can be learned these were all negroes who were employed in trying to prevent the spread of the flames.

Forty-three mules are known to have perished. The managers of the Texas company state that the tanks contained approximately 2,500,000 barrels of oil, which was valued at about 25 cents per barrel, and that none of the oil will be saved. In addition they say that the big pumping plant at the tanks was entirely destroyed.

BODY LIES ON AMERICAN SOIL.

Remains of Paul Jones in Vault on Naval Academy Grounds.

Annapolis, Md., July 24.—In a simple vault in the grounds of the naval academy lie the remains of John Paul Jones. With the simple ceremony attending the landing of the body from the cruiser Brooklyn the naval expedition authorized to accomplish its transfer from the Paris cemetery which has been its place of repose for more than a century is completed. The formal national reception of the body with appropriate exercises is reserved until it shall be placed in the splendid naval chapel now being erected near the site of the temporary vault.

The work of the day consisted of the removal of the body from the Brooklyn to the naval tug Standish and from that to a float moored to the shore, where stalwart jackies placed it in a hearse, which was escorted by an imposing cortege of marines, jackies and midshipmen, in which the French nation participated with a landing party of officers and men from the French cruiser Jurien de la Craviere.

DR. KOCH TESTIFIES.

Defendant in Murder Trial Takes the Stand.

Mankato, Minn., July 25.—Dr. George R. Koch Monday took the stand in his own defense at his trial for the murder of Dr. L. A. Gebhardt of New Ulm, and Asa P. Brooks, the only eye witness of the crime, also was called by the defense. Their testimony was largely a repetition of the testimony they gave in the two former trials. Mr. Brooks testified in the morning and Dr. Koch in the afternoon.

DANIEL LAMONT DEAD

HEART DISEASE BRINGS CAREER OF FORMER SECRETARY OF WAR TO SUDDEN END.

Millbrook, N. Y., July 24.—An attack of heart trouble has caused the sudden death of Colonel Daniel S. Lamont, first private secretary to President Cleveland, later secretary of war and afterward vice president of the Northern Pacific railroad. The fatal illness was so brief that it startled even the medical men attending him.

Colonel and Mrs. Lamont were out driving during the afternoon and Colonel Lamont appeared to be enjoying the best of health. After dinner he complained of feeling ill and Dr. Stewart of New York, who was a guest at the house, immediately went to his aid. The physician diagnosed the case as an attack of heart failure and in spite of the heroic treatment Mr. Lamont passed away within half an hour. At his deathbed were Mrs. Lamont and two daughters, Frances and Bessie. Several guests at the Lamont home were also present when the end came.

Colonel Lamont was fifty-four years of age.

CHEATS THE GALLOWS

EDWARD GOTTSCHALK COMMITS SUICIDE IN HIS CELL IN THE JAIL AT ST. PAUL.

St. Paul, July 20.—Edward Gottschalk, who confessed to murdering his accomplice, Joseph Hartmann, in the murder of Christian H. Schindeldecker, a West Seventh street butcher, the motive for the latter crime being robbery, hanged himself in the county jail about noon during the absence of the death watch at dinner. The condemned man used a strip of cloth torn from a bedtick.

That Gottschalk had carefully planned to kill himself before the date of his execution was evident from the success of his effort. He seemingly had the strands of his mattress plaited and formed into a noose, in readiness for killing himself at the first opportunity. He tied the improvised rope to the top bars of his cell, made a noose in the lower end and, inserting his neck, dropped nearly to his knees, slowly strangling to death while his body dangled on the floor.

BULGARIANS KILL MANY.

Night Massacre Wipes Out Population of Two Turkish Towns.

Salonica, European Turkey, July 22.—A report received here says that a large Bulgarian band attacked the villages of Baitlna and Gradeshultza, in the Morinevo district, at night, murdering the entire population indiscriminately, and that the carnage did not end until morning.

The number of victims is not known. Troops proceeded to another village in the district and, finding that the population had fled, burned the village, the inhabitants of which were suspected of having murdered thirty Turks near Doiren.

YELLOW JACK AT NEW ORLEANS.

Officials Hard at Work to Prevent Spread of the Fever.

Washington, July 24.—The officials of the public health and marine hospital service are working in harmony with those in Louisiana in the efforts to prevent any spread of the yellow fever from which an Italian died Saturday in New Orleans. Several cities have declared quarantine against New Orleans.

KAISER ADVISES CZAR

GERMAN AND RUSSIAN RULERS HOLD CONFERENCE OFF THE SWEDISH COAST.

While Details of the Meeting Are Kept Secret it Is Known the German Emperor Went Prepared to Urge the Conclusion of Peace and Reconciliation With the Discontented Portion of the Russian People by Granting Reforms Asked.

Berlin, July 25.—The foreign office here is advised that a meeting between Emperor William and the czar took place early in the day off the Swedish coast near the island of Bjoerkoe.

Emperor Nicholas wrote to Emperor William several days ago that if, during the latter's yachting in the Baltic, he should approach the Russian shore he (Emperor Nicholas) would be pleased to meet him. The German emperor replied that he would be glad to cruise to any convenient point and the island of Bjoerkoe was suggested. It was understood that the conversation was to be entirely personal and intimate and therefore no minister from either government was to be present, although the Russian minister of marine is in Emperor Nicholas' suite. The meeting is a sequence to the correspondence that has been going on between the two emperors concerning peace, in which Emperor William urged Emperor Nicholas to take steps toward peace. Emperor William was then co-operating with President Roosevelt in seeking to bring the belligerents to a discussion of the terms of peace and in the present meeting the Associated Press is authoritatively informed Emperor William will continue to advise peace should the Russian emperor ask for his further views, and it would be very natural that Emperor Nicholas should do so as a development of the correspondence which has already taken place. Emperor William went to the meeting, as the Associated Press is officially informed, prepared to say if he were asked that he thought Emperor Nicholas could attain a full understanding and reconciliation with the discontented portions of his people only through reforms.

MISSES THE SULTAN

BOMB THROWN AT TURKEY'S RULER KILLS OR INJURES HIS ATTENDANTS.

Washington, July 22.—Minister Leishman, at Constantinople, has cabled the state department a report of the attempt made on the life of the sultan during the zelamlik ceremony. Mr. Leishman states that a large bomb was exploded just as the sultan was leaving the mosque. He escaped injury and at once drove back to the palace in the customary manner. Between thirty and forty persons were killed or wounded and a number of carriages were wrecked. The perpetrators of the outrage have not been detected.

HOLDS MUCH DEVLIN PAPER.

City National Bank of Kansas City Closes its Doors.

Kansas City, July 20.—The City National bank failed to open its doors during the day. The bank held paper of C. J. Devlin of Topeka to the amount of upwards of $100,000 and the failure is the direct result of the closing of the First National bank of Topeka, of which Mr. Devlin was the principal stockholder.

The City National bank was organized in 1900 and is one of the youngest of the national banking institutions in the city. Its capital is $300,000 and it has deposits of $1,476,648.

The majority of the bank's depositors are persons in medium circumstances, two-thirds of whom live outside Kansas City.

BY LEGISLATIVE INQUIRY.

Investigation of Life Insurance Business in New York.

Albany, N. Y., July 21.—There will be a legislative investigation of the life insurance business as carried on in this state, both by New York state corporations and by those of other states doing business within this state. This investigation will be made by a special joint committee with ample powers, of which the chairman will be Senator William Armstrong of Rochester, a Republican.

The institution of the committee followed hard upon a message from Governor Higgins to the legislature, which came as a complete surprise.

BALFOUR MINISTRY BEATEN.

Vote of Want of Confidence in the House of Commons.

London, July 21.—The government was defeated in the house of commons Thursday night by a majority of three on the motion to reduce the membership of the Irish land commission.

On the announcement of the vote a scene of the greatest excitement was produced by the Liberals and the Irish members yelling "resign."

TO CLEANSE THE BUREAU.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Hays Takes Hold of Statistics.

Washington, July 20.—Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Willet M. Hays has taken hold of the affairs of the bureau of statistics with instructions from Secretary Wilson, approved by President Roosevelt, to cleanse the bureau of the stigma left by the cotton leak scandal. His authority is unlimited. He has been told that he may have whatever clerical force he needs and if there are any employes whose services he thinks should be dispensed with they will be discharged. It is regarded as extremely likely there will be a complete reorganization of the force employed in the statistical department, as well as a thorough revision of the orders governing the monthly crop reports, the latter having already been outlined in a circular by Secretary Wilson.

GETS NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

Order Issued Staying Execution of Albert T. Patrick.

New York, July 24.—Justice O'Brien of the court of appeals has granted an order staying the execution of Albert T. Patrick, convicted of the murder of William M. Rice, pending the hearing and determination of the argument on the motion for a reargument of his case. The time for the reargument has been fixed for Oct. 2 next.

The application for stay of execution was granted on the contention of David B. Hill, counsel for the condemned man, that important points have been overlooked by a majority of the court in affirming the judgment of conviction.

LONG STRIKE ENDED

CHICAGO TEAMSTERS SURRENDER UNCONDITIONALLY AND SEEK OLD PLACES.

Chicago, July 21.—The teamsters' strike that has so greatly disturbed business conditions in this city for the past three months, is at an end. The strikers have made a complete surrender and will at once seek their old positions without an agreement of any kind with the employers.

The first break in the ranks of the strikers came Thursday afternoon when the lumber teamsters voted to return to work, regardless of what action might be taken by any other union. At night the department store drivers and the railway express drivers voted to call off the strike and seek their old positions in the morning. It is expected that about 60 per cent of the department store drivers will be reinstated and the express drivers declared they believed that about 100 of their number would be taken back by the express companies. The express companies have declared all through the strike, however, that not one of the men who struck would ever be reinstated.

GAYNOR AND GREENE CASE.

Defendants Withdraw Petition for Leave to Appeal.

Washington, July 24.—Mr. MacMaster, Canadian counsel for the United States government in its case against Gaynor and Greene, has cabled the department of justice from London that the two men have withdrawn their petition for leave to appeal to the privy council at London and that on Wednesday the council will formally dismiss the appeal. This leaves pending in the courts only the habeas corpus proceedings, which will come up before Judge Ouimet at Ottawa about Aug. 7.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses of ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. RED LAKE FALLS MILLING CO.

It is not strange that Page fence will stretch up smoothly over hills and down through ravines. It is made to do it, and it is simply putting into use one of the innate properties of its coiled wire. It is elastic.

It is not strange that short kinks or bends in wire cannot supply this elasticity like a coil or spiral. If they could, why haven't the manufacturers of spring balances, or of car springs used a kinked, crimped or other shaped metal than a coil. Probably the reason is that kinked or crimped metal will not let out and take up, will not shorten and lengthen like a coil spring.

Further, why do you suppose that high-carbon stock is always used for springs' unless it is because low-carbon stock will not make a spring. Low-carbon stock is much the cheaper.

Hair springs in watches are made of only a little higher carbon stock than Page-Wire is made of, in fact, there is not much more difference between the proportion of carbon in Page-Wire and watch-spring wire, than there is between the fence wire generally in use and that which we use for all the horizontal wires in Page fences.

Gossip, says an exchange, is a humming bird with eagle wings and a voice like a fog-horn. It can be heard from Dan to Bersheba and has caused more trouble than all the bedbugs, fleas, mosquitoes, rattle-snakes, coyotes, grasshoppers, chinch-bugs, sharks, sore toes, cyclones, earthquakes, blizzards, smallpox, yellow fever and indigestion that this United States has known or will know when the universe shuts up shop and begins the final invoice. In other words, it has got war and hell hacked up in a corner yelling for water. It has broken up homes, separated lovers, caused murders, suicides and subjected innocent persons to unjust criticism and redicule and oftentimes to persecution. Don't encourage it. It is one of the greatest vices in the world today.

Those who are acquainted with the circumstances attending the murder trial at Wheaton last week will scarcely condemn the jury for bringing in a verdict of not guilty, and thus releasing from imprisonment the child who had shot her lover as a consequence of his having brutally betrayed her after winning her love. In her inexperience she perhaps thought she took the only means at hand to revenge herself for the ruination of her life, and many an older head who contemplates the utter inadequacy of the laws to protect the young girls against the degenerates who prey upon their defenselessness will approve of the action of this girl, and at the same time deplore the depraved condition of a civilization in which exists a cause for such radical measures. There are many young men, and not a few older ones, who can study this case with profit to themselves and society in general says the Morris Sun.

Speaking of the agitation now going on for the repeal of the existing bankruptcy law Senator Nelson says: "While the law undoubtedly still has imperfections—and what human law has not—and might be improved upon in several particulars, yet I think that all persons who are conversant with our bankruptcy laws from 1800 down to the present moment will concur in the opinion that, on the whole, the present law is by far, taking all matters into consideration, the fairest, the most equitable and the least expensive of all the bankruptcy laws that have, from first to last, been on our statute books." Senator Nelson has made a more minute and careful study of the operation of this law than any other man in the State, and his opinion should therefore have considerable weight with those in whom are reposed the power to effect its repeal. So far as we can see, the law, with an amendment, perhaps, here and there, should remain upon the statute books. We see no reason for its repeal.

Farm Topics.

There is a growing demand for mules.

A car load of wool sells for about $7,000 today.

A few leaves in that hat may prevent sunstroke.

A splendid team: Young Courage and Old Caution.

Calloused hands are much to be preferred to caloused hearts.

To make $10 clear from a cow, you must get $45 out of her every year.

The hired man question is becoming more of a problem each year, and the tendency of the times is toward smaller farms and more machinery.

The south is trying melons, peaches Bermuda onions and several other crops in place of cotton to the benefit of the soil and growers as well.

Always think well of the old farm and never speak ill of it. That means that you must have a farm worth thinking and speaking the very best things about.

A stallion may be handsome and yet be worthless as a breeder. High feeling has a good deal to do with the looks of a horse. He is not able to transmit his grain rations.

It is said that the truck and fruit crops in the Unitet States are injured by insects to the extent of $80,000,000 Judicious spraying is one way to reduce this great loss.

Dairy cows in good flesh will give a more even flow of milk than thinner ones under the same conditions. The reason is that a cow having a good store of fat draws on the reserve when needed, while the thin cow shrinks in milk flow when off feed or during severe weather.

The time has arrived when we can not afford to keep one cow for one year for one calf and it has also come when we cannot afford to milk one cow for one year for 100 pounds butter fat. This is nearly the average cow of the farmer. The cows to be used for milking should be of such a kind as will warrant at least 200 pounds butter-fat per year. This will give a paying business but if it is much below that it will not.

WILL GRIND MACARONI.

Crookston Milling Company To Try New Experiment.

Crookston is to have a completely arranged and modern Macaroni wheat flouring mill of a capacity of 150 barrels per day. Machinery for the plant which is to be installed in the old Maim Flour Mill by the Crookston Milling company for the express purpose of handling the large amount of Macaroni wheat raised in this section has already been purchased and is on the road there. The officials of the milling company will be able to pay higher prices for the Macaroni here than could be obtained by the farmers by shipping to Minneapolis, and it is expected that practically all the Duran raised in this section will be ground right here in the valley. This summer there is an unusually large amount of Macaroni or Duram wheat sown and the stand of grain now in evidence in fields planted with the new wheat is phenomenal. The wet weather at the beginning of the growing season apparently was about as good a thing as could have occurred.

The Duram is tall, healthy heads large and well started on what is expected to be a magnificent fill. Thirty and forty bushels to the acre of the wheat is anticipated upon all of the farms where the grain has been put in in season and the ground in any shape at all

"Macaroni flour is shipped to the eastern thickly settled laboring districts and to the mining countries of Pennsylvania, Michigan and the west where large crews of Italian laborers are employed" said Marcus Johnson, president of the Crookston Milling company yesterday, "The starchy nature of the Duram kernel and the fact that the flour manufactured from it possesses a great deal of gluton, more than ordinary wheat flour, makes the product very much sought for among the laborers of a dark hue from Italy who are used to starchy food, macaroni, vermicelli and spaghetti manufactured in their native lands from the Duram wheat. The flour will sell for less than ordinary wheat flour by $1 per bushel but increase in yeild per acre over Fife and Blue Stem will make the raising of the Duram very profitable despite that fact as well as permitting millers of the Northwest to get in on the rough wholesale trade of the laboring sections of the country."

"No grain ever introduced in the Red River valley has brought such remarkable results from a crop standpoint as Duram. Farmers who have experimented with the new grain, invariably have turned their entire farm into macaroni fields and have discarded all of their old Fife and Blue Steam wheat. Their neighbors have secured seed from them and they in turn have become so enraptured over the wonderful returns from the new grain that they have devoted all of their ferms to Durem." "Five years from today," said one of the most prominent elevator men in the country, "All of the product of the Red River valley practicall speaking will be Duram wheat and the large flouring mills of Minneapolis and Duluth will be forced by the change of conditions ere long to adopt the coarser screnes and silks which are required in the manufacture of flour from macaroni wheat. Blue Stem and Fife spring wheat will be the exception to the rule of sowing in the Red River valley and in my opinion the farmers will profit from the change for never has there been a hardier stand of grain or bigger yield than that which results from the sowing of Duram."

Fred R. Pennell, Pianist, Grand Opera House, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

"Two years ago I came to Hot Springs to take the baths and be treated for bladder and kidney trouble. After spending two months here under the care of one of the most prominent physicians and receiving little or no benefit, I was persuaded to try Peruna. I had little faith in it, but after using one bottle I noticed a marked improvement. Three bottles entirely cured me. I can cheerfully recommend Peruna to any one afflicted as I was."—Fred R. Pennell.

Thomas M. Hicks, 1131 13th St., Louisville, Ky., writes:

"Neglected colds, irregular habits and overwork brought on serious kidney and bladder trouble. My blood seemed inflamed with poison, my stomach became entirely demoralized, a bad odor emanated from my urine, and I realized I was a sick man. The doctors dosed me to their heart's content, but I kept growing worse. Then fortune brought Peruna to my notice and I at once began to mend. I kept taking it for five months before I was completely cured. I feel now that I owe my life to Peruna and will never cease to be grateful."—Thomas M. Hicks.

S. L. Earls, Superintendent of Streets, Jacksonville, Fla., writes:

"I am a firm believer in Peruna. I find that it has been of practical benefit to a number of the men employed in the Street Cleaning Department in the city of Jacksonville. They are especially exposed to the inclemency of the weather and a number who caught cold, which later developed into pneumonia, kidney or liver trouble, were cured through the use of Peruna."—S. L. Earle, Superintendent of Streets.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the evils attendent on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. THE VALUE OF GOOD COWS

Few Farmers Realize the Income Which May Be Realized from Them.

Prof. Eckels, in charge of the department of dairy husbandry at the University of Missouri, says of the value of good cows:

"Very few farmers realize the income that can be had from a good cow. The farmer who keeps a cow a year to raise a $15 or $20 calf, usually thinks he has done well, but his profits do not compare with those of the dairyman. Except with the high-priced registered cattle, the milk, not the calf, is the most valuable product of the cow.

"The milk produced by the average Missouri cow in a year will sell for about $50 at the creamery or when made into first-class butter. A good cow of the dairy breed will make at least $50 cash income every year. I have a list of about 50 Missouri farmers who report a cash income of $50 to $100 a cow every year, and these figures do not include the income from the sale of calves, and pigs fed on the skim milk. 'But,' says one, 'milking is a tremendous task.' As a matter of fact, it takes only 60 hours, worth 15 cents an hour, to milk a cow twice a day for ten months.

"Last year the cash income from the herd of cattle on the college farm was $82.50 a cow for butter sold and $12.50 a cow for milk, skimmed milk and calves, making a total income from each cow of $95. This year the average income per cow from the same source will be over $100 for the entire herd of 28. These results do not come from expensive or excessive treatment of any kind. But they are the result of doing the right things at the right time in the proper way."

A DAIRY CATECHISM.

Some Questions and Answers for the Education of the Keeper of Cows.

Q. How many kinds of cows are there?

A. Three.

Q. What are they?

A. Dairy cows, beef cows and combination cows.

Q. What is a dairy cow?

A. One that has the ability to turn all she may eat and digest, over and above that required for maintenance, toward the udder, there to be transformed into milk.

Q. What is the beef cow?

A. One that turns her surplus food into fat.

Q. What is the combination cow?

A. One that tries to take both turns of the road and never gets anywhere.

Q. What causes this difference in cows?

A. Heredity.

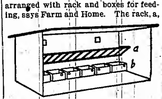
Q. What is heredity?

A. The biological law by which living beings, whether animal or plants, tend to reproduce themselves in their descendants.—Blooded Stock.

FEEDING RACK FOR CATTLE

Cattle Shed with Convenient Feeding Boxes for the Dairy Farm.

The cut shows interior of cattle shed arranged with rack and boxes for feeding, says Farm and Home. The rack, a, may be built of two by fours placed horizontally above and below with slats one by two or two by two vertically for holding the hay. The boxes, b, may be made of any suitable size. They are placed in position loose and have a large hole bored in one end to make them easily removed for cleaning, which we do after each feed.



FEED RACK AND BOXES.

HINTS FOR THE DAIRY.

Wasteful feeding may mean too much or too little.

Always skim sweet milk; never let cream thicken.

Cows should be milked with dry hands and the udders should be washed clean.

Provide a milking stool with a bottom to set the pail on for the boy. Don't expect him to hold the pail between his legs.

Improved machinery improves every industry. The dairy cow is the most important of the machinery connected with the dairy.

Cream is a very perishable article and must be kept under the most favorable conditions if good butter is to be made out of it.

A Missouri writer says: "Missouri has 800,000 dairy cows, and has sunshine, water, grass and feed enough to support 10,000,000 cows."

Any farmer that has ten or more cows should have a silo unless he is selling his milk to some company that refuses to take milk made out of silage.

Stable ventilation is best secured by some well-constructed and easily operated device, rather than by loose boards or accidental holes in the windows.

Borers.

Borers burrow in the base of the trunks of trees. The only way to fight them at this time of year is to inspect the trees and dig out the borers with a stiff wire. It is well to scrape all the loose bark off the trunks of the trees and whitewash them. This will at least make it easy to find the borers, and the whitewash will perhaps prevent to some extent the entrance of borers.—Farmer's Review.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

CHICAGO NOW TO MAKE LONG-TALKED OF EXPERIMENT.

LEADER THE NEW MAYOR

Pros and Cons of the Question—Orators in Late Campaign Advocated While Others Warned—Result of General Interest.

CHICAGO.—Judge Dunne has assumed his new duties as mayor of Chicago. And now the people await the carrying out of municipal ownership of Chicago street railways.

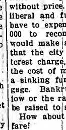
It was the municipal ownership feature of the platform that elected Judge Dunne. Some philosopher remarked at the time of the election that many of the gentlemen exercising their suffrage privilege on that day thought voting for Judge Dunne meant an immediate three-cent fare, that once the candidate was in office the poor man might begin to hoard his hard-earned nickels.

Whether or not this fling was an injustice to the Chicago voter we are not informed, but may surmise the mass of the people arrayed itself on the side it thought would make a radical move towards the betterment of transportation. If Chicago voters en masse do not possess superior intelligence, even the most unlettered knows five cents should entitle him to a seat or at least a strap in a street car, knows whether or not the cars are uncomfortable and slow.

Judge Dunne's opponents said intelligence came in in proper selection of reforms; they averred they, too, stood for municipal ownership, but municipal ownership worked out gradually. Mr. Harlan, the republican candidate, declared that, owing to the complications of the question, to the fact that the different franchises expired at different times, the best plan would be to make new contracts, all the franchises to expire at one and the same time; it being demanded that the companies in the meantime put their lines in good condition.

Charges and counter charges flew merrily back and forth. Judge Dunne told the people that Harlan was acting as the "agent of the Morgan and Wall street crowd of corporate and overfed trust magnates." In return the Harlan men told the people the plan of immediate ownership would cost the city $50,000,000 more than it ought; that Dunne, rather than Harlan, would be playing into the hands of the greedy trusts.

View of the Conservatives.



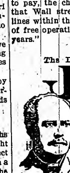
THOSE that opposed Judge Dunne's plan as offered during the campaign, denounced it as irrational, unbusinesslike and dangerous. We cull here and there from the campaign speeches: "In this proposition to pay the traction companies a 'fair, liberal and full price,' for all their tangible property and franchise rights he (Dunne) favors J. Pierpont Morgan and not the city by enabling Wall street to sell franchise rights to the city for many millions of dollars, when these same rights were given to the traction companies without money and without price. In addition to the fair, liberal and full price the city would have to expend $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 to reconstruct the lines. This would make a capitalization so large that the city could not meet the interest charge, the operating expenses, the cost of maintainance and provide a sinking fund to pay off the mortgage. Bankruptcy would quickly follow or the rate of fare would have to be raised to six or seven cents."

How about our voters' three-cent fare!

The opposition continued: "If the street car lines are to be bought the city should get them as cheaply as possible. Why offer in advance to pay Morgan and his associates a 'full, fair and liberal' amount for a lot of junk and a lot of franchise rights, the latter of which the city donated to the company without any cost, except grafters' fees? Shall we buy back this watered stock and pay good hard dollars for it?

If Judge Dunne could get the car lines immediately, as he proposes, and at the price he says he is willing to pay, the chances are many to one that Wall street would get back the lines within three years with the right of free operation on the streets for 20 years."

The Democratic Side.



JUDGE Dunne asserted the Harlanites were vague, obscure in their promises. These are the words used by the democratic candidate in his opening speech of the campaign: "As between the two platforms, one is sincere, one is straightforward, one will accomplish things; one stands for municipal ownership that will own and municipal operation of affairs, a fighter. He won his spurs as a social investigator in Chicago, and is now one of the best authorities in the country upon problems of poverty, his recent book upon the subject being a mass of hard-won information. He was in his bachelor days head worker of the University Settlement. To-day he and his wife are living in a pretty little tenement among thousands of other tenements that are not at all pretty in a slum neighborhood. Into similar quarters will Mr. and Mrs. Stokes go—a notable quartette.

I am the more inclined to insist upon the devotion of such people because the profession of settlement worker has become of late so very professional. The first workers were practically all amateurs. Sometimes an exceptionally valued worker who happened to be poor in this world's goods was allowed free board to permit him or her to continue the work. To-day nine out of ten of the workers in the largest settlements are as frankly professional as any other teachers. Boys going through college go into the work because they like gymnastics or because they can get free room rent and free board. After graduation men and women alike are salaried as workers; I have even known cases where settlement work has been looked upon as a resource by those for whom ordinary teaching was thought to be too difficult. In ten years the situation has in this respect entirely changed. Very likely the professionals do their work a great deal better than the volunteers did. But you are not called upon to admire too greatly their sacrifices—when they have made none—nor their privations—when they suffer none.

Hence I find such cases as Mr. Stokes' interesting. They carry me back to the old days when such people as Charles B. Stover and "Jimmy" Reynolds and Miss Wald were the type of workers in the social settlement, as they are still the type of its best product.

May Moving Day.

A SMASHER MOVING DONE RATES 100 A DAY

THE May moving habit of all New York about this time every year seems ridiculous until you reflect that all New York cannot help it—and then it still seems ridiculous.

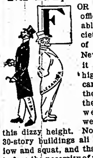
A bridge approach is cut through a tenement section and 5,000 persons are homeless. An avenue is extended and 250 residences are torn down. The great depots of the Pennsylvania and New York Central are planned, and 50 acres of land covered almost solidly with houses must be cleared. Parks are to be opened, streets closed. Whole sections of the city have so changed that old residents can no longer find friends or even casual acquaintances about them without learning new languages to speak.

Does anybody still read or remember the "Ragged Dick" stories of Col. Alger? Dick boarded in Mott street when he engaged in the bootblack business. I know a young man of purest New England parentage who was born in Mott street, where for 20 years there have been nothing but Chinamen and their white associates. No wonder May moving is busy!

On an average all New Yorkers move every second year. That makes a flitting of about 1,000,000 persons every spring, and about as many more scattered through the rest of the year. They range from the poorest to the richest. The Alfred Vanderbilts have lived this winter in a hired flat. So has "Charley" Schwab, the steel man. So do bank presidents, actors, clergymen, railroad presidents. Where a man does not own his home he finds more frequent occasions for moving.

If the people who are moving this month could be ranged in one long procession they would make a parade of 50 miles in length in file of 20 abreast spaced only five feet apart. Their goods and chattels arranged upon two-horse trucks would make a single-file procession from New York to Omaha. And some of the people move their goods upon wheelbarrows and hand-carts at that.

Even the Equitable Must Move.



FOR years the home office of the Equitable Assurance society has been one of the sights of New York. Why, it is ten stories high! When I came to the city the instruments of the United States weather bureau were perched upon this dizzy height. Now with 20 and 30-story buildings all about, it looks low and squat, and the directors begin to face the necessity of rebuilding. Ten-story buildings are now called "tax-payers."

The Equitable building may be worth $10,000,000 or more including its site. Or rather the site is worth that and the building little in addition. The Lawyers' club installed upon two floors at the top was one of the pioneers of the downtown club idea in the city. To this day there is no more splendid place of marble fittings and magnificence.

This building is a monument to the memory of a strong man, the late Henry B. Hyde. Whatever difficulties his idolized company may have got itself into since his death, Hyde built to last everything that he touched. It is a thousand pities that such work should have to be torn down and pried apart. The fate of the Equitable building—once the show place of the city, now doomed to be torn down that it may rise upon the site more resplendent than ever—is it symbolic of a rebuilding needed in the company itself? I wonder!

FEMALE WEAKNESS

PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Dizziness, Headache, Backache, Worry, Fretfulness, Irritability, Melancholy, Lack of Ambition.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. G. HASKIN, Freeville, N. Y.

A LITTLE DECEPTION

IT WAS only after the death of her mother that Hermance Desriguy thought it well to consider in earnest the possibility of marriage and vowed not to die a spinster. She was now 29, possessed in her own right of a modest competence, and had a heart full of warm and generous impulses, but she was deformed—in short, a humpback.

Seated alone in her quiet home at Chatillon with pleasant surroundings about her, she considered her lonely future with a shudder. But where to seek for a husband? Whom might she address?

She knew she did not possess the physical attractions of a young and more perfect beauty; she must confess that one shoulder was higher than the other, and from some words she overheard, she knew herself considered a little angular. But what of this in so loyal a heart?

One evening in her daily paper she found this advertisement, which immediately engrossed her attention.

The Matrimonial Institute of France, founded by Madame de Saint Elme. This Institute has for its object the promotion of honorable marriages between members of families best fitted both in a physiological and social point of view.

Dowries from 2,000 to 2000,000 francs. Office hours, one to five p. m. Correspondence solicited.

And the address followed.

Hermance considered this matter that day and again the following day. Finally she said to herself:

"I will write to that woman."

And she wrote at once.

By return post she received a magnificently printed prospectus, beautifully lithographed on rose colored paper, which in a great many words explained, magnified and praised "the moral purpose of the Matrimonial Institute of France."

In conclusion Mme. de St. Elme invited her correspondent to send her the modest sum of two dollars as subscription to the Nuptial Veil, in which would be found a large list of candidates for matrimony, all guaranteed of good social rank, regularly registered and submitted to the choice of readers of both sexes. To be thus registered or to make choice of any name in these lists the further sum of five dollars must be remitted in advance.

Hermance sent, in conformity with the above conditions, the double fee, adding also, as advised in the prospectus, one of her photographs, a little portrait taken the year before, in which there appeared her fine head and neck, full of expression and grace, but showing her only as far as the shoulders.

As she glanced at the long list of possible husbands named in the Nuptial Veil she was embarrassed, there were so many. Marking out 20, these she reduced to 15, and then to 10, and 8. She paused, and then tired of the attempt, she finished by placing her pencil where it would fall, which happened to be No. 12,818, reading thus:

Employment, public; salary 3,500 francs, with advancement assured; aged 38 years, good health; simple tastes; desires to marry young lady of age and fortune, excellent habits and character.

"Simple tastes," of course it was impossible to tell what these words might mean, but trusting to the maternal character of the lady at the head of the institute, and forwarding a new check for the additional $10 required, she received a photograph of No. 12,818, with a note giving the name, residence, etc., of the candidate.

His name was Adrien Bastide, and he was a public officer in the little town of Kernoveu, in Brittany. In the picture, which represented him at full length, he appeared a man full of good humor and good will, with a full, open countenance, and a long beard, flowing down his breast. But how tall he was! You might have taken him for a drum major. What a contrast to poor little humpback Hermance!

"Ah, but he is a very good man for me," whispered she to herself.

At the same time that the photograph was sent to Hermance, Mme. de Saint Elme, always attentive to the interests of her clients, advised No. 12,818 of the distinction which had befallen him, and for a consideration, forwarded the note and portrait of Mlle. Desriguy, who straightway received the following letter:

Mademoiselle: While not having the honor of being personally known to you, yet I cannot resist the deep emotion which only one look at your photograph has aroused in me, and to tell you by what all powerful, almost providential, sympathy I am turned to you.

Yes, it seems as if I hear a voice from heaven guiding and leading me to you. It is impossible to look upon a countenance so pure, so open, so frank, on eyes so full of spirit and impossible to deceit, and not to know you have a generous, loving heart.

And the writer of the letters prayed for the opening of a correspondence between them preparatory, if mutually agreeable, to a meeting at some future time.

An exchange of letters now ensued. Each day becoming more and more intimate, they confided to one another the stories of their youth, their hopes for the future and how and why they had had recourse to Mme. de Saint Elme.

The interview between the two could no longer be delayed. Adrien Bastide announced his intention to visit Chatillon in a fortnight, and the affair was readily and easily arranged.

Mlle. Desriguy would advise with some old friends of the family who would be glad to assist her. There would be nothing risked in acquainting them how matters were a few days in advance of the coming of her fiance. Her fiance! Ah, how sweet that word was to pronounce; how deliciously it made her heart throb.

Finally the great day came and Hermance was notified that M. Bastide would present himself at her house at two o'clock.

Everything in and around the house had been put in perfect order, and all was ready. Hermance kept repeating to her servant:

"I hear some one coming, Ionette."

"Mademoiselle has said that very often."

"Well, don't go to sleep in the porch, and be sure to bring him in—that person—to the parlor."

"Surely, mademoiselle. Don't you fear. I will hide myself in the corridor and run at the first sound of the bell."

The bell rang. The visitor, the tall drum major with the long beard, appeared, but limping with one foot, and walking with a cane.

"Mademoiselle Desriguy?" said he.

"It is I, Monsieur Bastide," tremblingly answered the little humpback, dropping the book in which she seemed to have been reading.

"You! But! Mademoiselle Hermance Desriguy who wrote to me?"

"Yes."

And both stood thunderstruck, facing each other, stupidly gazing without a word.

"But, mademoiselle, you have never—you ought to have told me." And Hermance replied, her cheeks now grown scarlet:

"Yes I know, I ought to perhaps, but you, you also, monsieur. I was born so—me—no—oh, no. Adieu, monsieur."

And our poor little heroine, wholly confused, her eyes filled with tears, fled away, leaving the room to her visitor, her exfiance.

The great giant stood still some minutes. What was there to do? Finally he opened a door into the hall and shuffled back to his hotel. There he seated himself on one of the soft banks of grass, and with eyes mechanically fixed upon the windings of the valley, tried to meditate over the occurrences of the afternoon, and gave himself up to the strange thoughts to which they gave rise.

Humpbacked! She was a humpback, and she had said nothing about it. This was the game, a shallow trick, and that maternal directress of the Matrimonial Institute of France, whose only object was to enable her children to make a better acquaintance and to shield them in marriage—charlatan, cheat.

But how about himself? What had he said about his infirmity?

He had been very careful in not speaking of that. He he tried to trick her? No, truly, that was not his object. He had not wished to hurry.

And she—oh, without doubt, it was her timidity; perhaps in her case also she felt ashamed. He had no reason to be proud.

Adrien Bastide had been tenderly brought up by a mother who idolized him. Jealous of every woman who approached him, yet she had had an intention certainly of seeing him married, and she truly meant not to disappoint him. But years passed on and she discovered no one worthy of him, and finally she died without placing her hand upon the fine pearl sought for.

Adrien at the age of 22, on account of a fall from a horse, had lost the free use of his right leg. After his mother's death he said to himself that now was the time to replace her. But how?

Providentially, as he then thought, he saw the advertisement of the marriage institute and paying his subscription and enrollment fee he received a photograph and communication in which Hermance, No. 19724, was described:

Orphan, 29 years, musician, dowry 40,000 francs, living in a neat cottage with garden and running stream of water, would espouse man of honor, in preference official.

This exactly suited him; perhaps even the 40,000 francs no less than the garden and stream full of fish attracted him.

Alas, some points had been omitted in the advertisement in the Nuptial Veil and also in the letters from Mme. de St. Elme—yet how full of sweetness and spirituality her letters had been.

Well, he was not coming 200 miles for nothing; he would go and explain himself at least.

Hermance during this time was reflecting on the situation. It was not so easy to find a husband at 29, she well knew.

He was a cripple, yet, but she was—well a little peaked.

"Nothing," she thought, "will make M. Bastide return to the house. There are three trains to Paris, two in the morning and one in the afternoon at 4:30.

"He will do nothing until train time. I might at least try to meet him, as it were by accident, at the station."

So with hat and mantle she quickly set out. But two steps from her house she ran into the good giant.

"Monsieur Adrien, must you leave town at once?" she asked.

And she had a look so contrite, and eyes so ready to fill with tears that the giant bent over her and took her hand respectfully.

"I ask your pardon," he said, "for all I did. You were much excited; so was I. But I do not wish to return without seeing you again. Permit me to enter with you. Now we know each other, and we can speak more quietly."

There were two happy persons in that little house and they are now happy, those two who had not told the truth.—From the French in N. Y. Sun.

Character and Laws.

How ridiculous it would seem, writes Annie Payson Call, in Leslie's Monthly Magazine, if a man tried to make water run up hill without providing that it should do so by reaching its own level, and then got indignant because he did not succeed, and wondered if there was not some "cure" by means of which his object might be accomplished. And yet it is no more strange for a man to disobey habitually the laws of character and then to suffer for his disobedience, and wonder why he suffers.

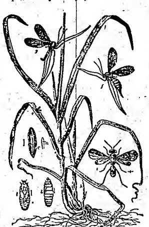
FARM AND GARDEN

PARASITES OF HESSIAN FLY

How the Insect Friends of the Farmer May Be Distinguished from the Enemy of the Wheat Field.

The importance of parasitic enemies of insects that prey upon our farm crops is very great and grave. In a recent bulletin from the Missouri experiment station Prof. J. M. Stedman calls attention to a number of parasites of the Hessian fly as follows:

"The great importance of the work of various parasitic insects in destroying the Hessian fly and preventing its undue increase can scarcely be overestimated. Undoubtedly these parasites kill practically every year from 50 to 90 per cent. of the Hessian flies before they reach maturity, and in some years a greater per cent. are thus destroyed. Still, notwithstanding this great reduction by parasitic insects and also by unfavorable climatic conditions, these insects frequently become unduly numerous and consequently destructive. It is not only because of the economic importance of these parasites of the Hessian fly, but also because of the fact that otherwise the cultivator would not as a rule be able to distinguish them from the Hessian fly itself, that we have thought best to give an illustration of the more common species of these parasites found in this state. A glance at the illustration shown will go much farther toward acquainting the average agriculturist with these insects, and of enabling him to recognize and separate them from the Hessian fly, than any amount of description would do; and hence we will not enter into description of each species.



WHEAT PLANT AND HESSIAN FLY.

a, egg; b, larva; c, puparium or "flaxseed;" d, pupa; e, adult female; f, adult female, enlarged; g, male, enlarged; h, "flaxseeds;" i, parasite of Hessian fly.

"It should be observed that the Hessian fly has but one pair of wings, the second pair being represented by a slender club-like rudiment; while in all the parasites there are two pairs of wings, the first pair, however, much larger than the second pair. In one species, Baetomus subapterus, the insect is frequently found without wings at all. Although the Hessian fly and its various parasites look alike to the casual observer, the above facts will enable one to note the difference, if followed with a little close observation and sharp eyes, especially if one be provided with a hand lens."

CUTTING POTATO FOR SEED

Rules Which Should Be Observed in Preparing the Pieces for Planting.

In cutting seed potatoes take the potato in the left hand with the stem end toward you. If it is large cut off a good-sized piece with two or three eyes. Revolve the potato to the right and keep cutting off about the same size pieces, finishing the potato by splitting the seed end. Cut potatoes as you want to use them and after they are cut never expose to the sun or air to dry out.

If you cannot use them immediately pour out on damp ground in the shade of trees or building and cover with a blanket. Seed the least bit dry, says Farm and Home, comes up slower, blights easily, and yields lighter, just in proportion as it is dried out. To cut seed use a kitchen knife ground down narrow and thin, so that the potato can be cut with very little force and not tire the hand.

FARM NOTES.

Scatter a little wheat where the quails can get it.

Sell the hay and straw through the medium of live stock, and save on the fertilizer bill.

Does the cold wind triumphantly whistle: "No windbreaks here!" if so, take the hint.

The farmer who uses a nail keg in the village store for his workshop on rainy days rarely has his tools in repair.

The farmer who speculates in stocks is pretty certain, sooner or later, to furnish stock for the village gossips to speculate on. Our folks will not do it.

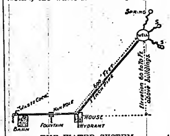
There are classics in agriculture, as in other books. No farmer can afford to be without those works which bear directly on his farming.

THE DAIRY

THE FARM WATER SUPPLY.

A Subject of Vital Importance to the Man Who Has a Large Dairy.

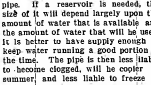
"I am thinking of gathering up some springs on hillside above my buildings and piping the water down to house and barn. I think of putting in self-watering devices for stock in barn and inside closet in house, with fountain in dooryard. About 600 feet from house I have a rise of 60 to 80 feet; at 1,000 feet would have considerably more, probably 100 feet. The supply of water is not large and I thought of collecting the water from one spring and one well, about 18 feet deep, into a reservoir, and from there conveying it to house and barn through one-inch galvanized iron pipe. In case well and spring would give out, I might drill well and put up wind wheel to pump into reservoir. How shall I go about it?"



THE WATER SYSTEM.

The above letter is from W. W. Gibson, a farmer of Lawrence county, Pennsylvania, to which the Ohio Farmer replies as follows:

A one-inch pipe under the circumstances stated will deliver from 12 to 15 gallons of water per minute. With small pipes of great length, friction greatly retards the flow, and your correspondent should not use less than one-inch galvanized pipe; he would find it more satisfactory to use a one and one-half-inch pipe. Assuming that he will use a one-inch pipe, the most important question for him to decide is whether he will need a reservoir or not. If he can collect water from different springs and get a flow equal to about the amount per minute named above, he will need no reservoir.



SIPHON AT WELL ON HILL.

Dig out the lower spring and put in two lengths of 36-inch sewer pipe. Then drill through just below the joint between them and connect the iron pipe. Place a screen over entrance to pipe. If a reservoir is needed, the size of it will depend largely upon the amount of water that is available and the amount of water that will be used. It is better to have supply enough to keep water running a good portion of the time. The pipe is then less liable to become clogged, will be cooler in summer, and less liable to freeze in winter.

Run the pipe as straight as possible from spring to buildings and without any abrupt turns. Lay it at least two feet deep so that it will remain cool in summer and keep from freezing in winter. T joints should be inserted wherever water is to be taken from the main pipe line. At the fountain there may be a manhole giving access to a stop-cock to shut water off from the fountain and a gate to let water out of fountain pipe in winter so as to avoid damage from freezing.

A waste-cock is put in at the barn so that, at times, the surplus water may be allowed to escape, and thus keep up more of a flow in the pipe than might otherwise be required. No filter will be needed.

In regard to drawing water from a well 18 feet deep: It could be siphoned out, but I should avoid this if possible, as air will sometimes collect in the siphon and water stop flowing. If a siphon is put in, at the highest point should be an opening with valve in order to facilitate filling the pipe with water, to get the flow started.

For Wrapping Butter.

Only the very best pure vegetable parchment paper should be used in wrapping butter. Inferior paper encourages the growth of mold and does not protect the butter. Much of the paper used is too light in weight. A ream of 500 sheets, measuring 50x12½ inches should weigh at least 40 pounds, and the same number of sheets 38x12½ inches should weigh not less than 30 pounds.

The Rattling Farm Wagon.

If your lumber wagon rattles take off the nuts, drive out the bolts and put a leather washer under the bolt head and under the nut or washer. Tell the boys and hired man not to drive so fast when the wagon is empty.

Old-Time Methods.

Every man who has given any thought to the subject knows that old-time methods will not apply to modern conditions. Every dairyman should keep this constantly in mind.

Nine Nations

Now Use Liquozone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquozone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some-one whom Liquozone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquozone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquozone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

TEACHERS HOLD MEET

Red Lake County Association Has Larger Attendance Than Ever and Interest Is Increasing.

The Red Lake County Teachers' Protective association held a meeting at the school house here Monday, and one of the largest crowds in the history of the society attended. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Chas. Moller, re-elected; vice-president, Amasy Crompe; secretary, Joseph G. Weeks; treasurer, Wm. K. Harlow; librarian, F. M. Shanahan.

It was decided to hold the next regular meeting of the association at Thief River Falls the first Friday and Saturday in November, when an elaborate program will be prepared and rendered.

The members entered into a general discussion for the good of the society and many valuable ideas were advanced that will tend to increase the interest in the work.

The new officers are recognized hustlers and the society gives promises of becoming better with each meeting.

Heavy Rain Storm.

Red Lake county was visited by one of the heaviest rain storms of the season early this morning, and while the downpour only lasted a short time a whole lot of water fell. The rain was accompanied by a heavy wind and it was feared that great damage would be done to the standing grain, but it appears that the storm was worse right here in town than anywhere around the country. The rain will retard the haying considerably, but with a few days of warm sunshine things will soon assume their normal conditions.

NEW LEADERS IN FIGHT

Thief River Falls Throws Jonah Lee Overboard and Puts Ship In Charge of New Men.

The steenth chapter of the litigation over the attempted removal of the county seat to Thief River Falls was duly written, read and approved before Judge Watts at his chambers in Crookston on Tuesday evening last. Thief River Falls appeared under a new leader, as Attorney Stanton seems to have been selected to lead the forlorn hope. He had as aides, Col. Richardson, vice commander, Col. Cook in charge of the commissary department, and corporal Clark as assistant and attache to the commissary.

Despite such an array of legal talent the battle went rather against the up-river people and Judge Watts decided that a peremptory writ of mandamus compelling the commissioners to meet and act on the petition would not lie. This means that the matter will lie in statuo quo until the fall term of the district court, unless an appeal should be taken from the Judge's order. Red Lake Falls would welcome such an appeal as we are firmly of the opinion that the Supreme Court would sustain the lower court and would hold that the petitioners are not entitled to a peremptory writ.

Messrs. Boughton and Grady represented the interests of the county commissioners at the hearing and W. A. McIntyre appeared on behalf of William Erb, of Deer Park, the relator in the action.

SUMMER SCHOOL OVER

Extraordinary Successful Session Comes To An End Tuesday After Four Weeks Of Work.

The four weeks session of the Red Lake county teachers' training school came to a close Tuesday of this week, after an exceptionally successful term, and the various instructors and some of the teachers left for their homes. Most of the teachers, however, remained to take the state examinations being held here this week.

The school was a record breaker from point of attendance, over 100 teachers having been enrolled, and the result of their four weeks of excellent training will mean much to the schools throughout the county.

A complete report of the work, with the names of those in attendance, will be published next week.

PERCY AT ST. CLOUD.

Young Fellow Who Robbed Teachers Gets Reformatory Sentence.

Percy Brown, the young fellow who was arrested here last week for stealing $25 and some other property from a couple of school teachers at the Central Hotel, was taken before Judge Watts last Friday, where he pleaded guilty and was given a sentence to the St. Cloud reformatory, Sheriff Linnihan and Arthur Lizee, of this place, taking him to his new home Saturday evening.

This was the young fellow's first offense here, and the length of his sentence will depend altogether upon his behavior at the reform institution.

He was the second to be committed to the reformatory from this county under the new law, which is one of the real sensible amendments made to the statutes within recent years.

BUILD BRICK SCHOOL

J. K. Johnson Secures Contract For New School Building On The North Side.

The Board of Education of School District No. 15 met at Clerk Toupin's office last Friday morning to consider bids for the erection of a school building to replace the Washington school recently destroyed by fire.

A large number of bids were submitted for both brick and frame, and after deliberation the board accepted the bid of J. K. Johnson of this city, who agrees to build the building according to the plans of Architect Strassburger for $6000.

The building will be a two story brick, 43.2x49 and will contain four large rooms, halls, etc. A large basement will be built, and later a complete heating plant installed. The basement is to be built of stone, and the trimmings of the building are to be of cement blocks. The building is very pretty from an artistic standpoint, and will make a substantial addition to the North Side.

The Board has purchased the property of Mrs. M. Hennings, on the North Side, and work for the new building has already been commenced on the new location. There are eight lots in the property bought, and the building will be located 50 feet from the street on both sides. The lawn and shade trees on the property will be kept up, and the new location and handsome building will make an improvement of which the city may well be proud.

Work has already been commenced and will be pushed as rapidly as possible, the contractor hoping to have the building ready early this fall.

The board is to be congratulated on the stand they have taken in the matter, as their action shows that they are for Red Lake Falls first, last and all the time.

County Surveyor Wood was a caller here Tuesday and filed his report on the proposed new ditch in Emardville, having completed the survey last week. The surveyor reports the route outlined for the proposed ditch as feasible, and the viewers, Messrs. Zeh, W. E. Wood and Wm. Erb will start the work of viewing the lands August 14.

The new waterway will drain a large amount of wet lands in Emardville, and its construction will be heralded with delight by the people of that section of the county.

MADE FINE TALK.

Superintendent Olson Pleases Large Audience.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. W. Olson addressed a large audience of teachers and others at the Metropolitan opera house last Thursday evening, and his effort is spoken of as being one of the best ever listened to in this city.

Mr. Olson's whole energy is devoted to educational work, and his address was along the lines of schools and school work, being of untold benefit to his hearers. He is a first-class talker, and held his audience very attentive during his discourse.

The Gazette regrets that it is not able to give an extended resume of his remarks, but it is from the fact that other matters made it impossible for the writer to attend. The lecture was spoken of very highly, however, and should Mr. Olson ever come here again he will be given a hearty reception.

It will wash and not come off

OPERATORS ON STRIKE

As A Result Of Differences Operators On Great Northern and Northern Pacific Systems Quit Work.

Hundreds of operators in the employ of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads quit their offices yesterday in response to a strike call issued that morning by H. P. Perham, president of the Order of Railway Telegraphers.

All along the lines from the twin cities to the Pacific coast the men turned the danger signal and abandoned their keys. Trains thus deprived of facilities for getting running orders proceeded slowly over the rails. In some instances they stopped at various places and sent handcars ahead to ascertain the condition of the tracks. In many places trains were running without the usual clearance orders. Up to 2:30 today no reports had been received of any accidents due to the strike.

Officials of the roads said that while traffic was impeded there would be no tieup. Representatives of the telegraphers, however, declared that the strike will be so complete by tonight that no trains would be run.

Although the railroads have engaged many men to take the places of the telegraphers who have walked out, no violence has as yet occurred.

The strike is a result of differences between the telegraphers union and officers of the company and has been pending for several weeks. The differences are reported to be over wages and the reinstatement of several members of the union discharged by the companies.

Railroad officials predict that the troubles will be adjusted shortly, while the officers of the union declare that they are prepared to fight to the bitter end.

So far the trains have run all right, but a general tie-up is looked for unless matters take a turn for the better.

WANT ANOTHER SCHOOL.

Teachers Desirous of Having Summer School Next Year.

The teachers of the summer school which closed Tuesday after a successful four weeks session, were unanimous in their opinion that a school be asked for in this county next year, and it is likely that the matter will be laid before Superintendent Olson early in the season in order to be sure of getting a session. The work and attendance at this year's school have been so highly satisfactory that the authorities will doubtless grant the request for a next year's session.

A vote was taken as to where the next year's school should be held, and Thief River Falls was chosen from the fact that all previous sessions had been held here. This matter is of course optional with the state authorities, but in case a session is held in Red Lake county next year it is likely that it will be held at the up-river Falls.

The teachers of Red Lake county are enthusiastic attendants at these summer schools and the people will hope that they may be given a school again next summer.

Phil Is Prospering.

The following from the Tacoma Daily News, of Tacoma, Washington, indicates that Phil A. Kaufer, formerly of this city, is still in the game, and the news of his success will be received here with pleasure: "The board of education, at its last meeting awarded the contract for supplying the city schools the coming year with stationery, ink, crayons, etc. The bulk of the contract went to P. A. Kaufer, dealer in stationery, office and school supplies, 1109 C street. Mr. Kaufer has been in business in the city for about a year and a half, formerly located on Tacoma ave., opposite the new library. His new location is one of the best in the city, opposite Stone, Fisher & Lane's new building and his store is one of the rising business institutions of the city."

APPRAISING THE LANDS

State Appointees Getting Figures In Shape For State Land Sale In October.

Hugh McRae, of Aitkin, a representative of the state auditor's office, arrived here Monday and in company with Adam Zeh, of this city, and Louis Paranteau, of Terrebonne, commenced the work of appraising the state lands to be sold at the sale here in October.

About 12,000 acres of land, located in every township outside the reservation, will have to be gone over and the value determined by these gentlemen, and the work will likely take a couple of weeks.

The sale here has already begun to attract the attention of people living in the southern part of the state, and The Gazette has already had several inquiries regarding it. A whole lot of good land will be sold, and the indications are that the most of it will go to people who will become actual settlers.

NEPPER WASN'T CRAZY.

Fergus Falls Authorities Refuse To Keep Him.

Dr. Frank R. Sedgley, one of the officials of the state insane hospital at Fergus Falls arrived here Saturday morning with Peder Nepper, the young fellow from Norden township who was committed to the asylum a couple of weeks ago.

After making an examination of the patient, the authorities at Fergus Falls came to the conclusion that the young man was not crazy, and from the fact that he had been discharged from the asylum before, they recommended that he be turned over to his parents or committed to the home for the feeble minded at Faribault.

The young fellow was considerably improved as a result of his stay at Fergus, and was not at all violent, being at times quite rational, but when again put back in jail to await the arrival of Sheriff Linnihan he commenced his queer actions and attempted to climb the walls of his cell, giving every evidence of being "daffy" in the fullest sense of the word.

It is thought that his parents reside in Roseau county, and he was taken there Monday and turned over to the authorities, who will either compel his parents to care for him, or commit him to a home for the feeble minded. The young fellow isn't exactly violently insane, but he has apparently no control over his mental faculties, and should by all means be placed where he will get decent care.

A GOOD INDIAN NOW.

Famous Moose Dung Dies On Reservation Home.

Moosedung Chief of the Indians at the Red Lake Reservation died last week due to a cold which he caught while attending the celebration at Devils Lake on the Fourth. The old Chief was the eldest of six children. It was his father who received the large grant of land near Thief River Falls. On his father's death there was a law suit over the property left. Moosedung thought that according to Indian custom being the oldest son he was entitled to all the property. The case was taken to the U. S. supreme court which rendered a decision against him and as a result the property was divided among the children of the deceased. Moosedung was fifty years of age and was highly honored and respected by the members of his tribe.

Hearing September 30.

Auditor James E. Ford has received the notice of the hearing on the new Judicial Ditch No. 5, which will be held at the court house in Crookston September 30. The desire for the ditch is great along the route proposed, and it is probable that the matter will go through without a hitch.

CZAR WINS APPROVAL

DECLARATION NOT TO ACCEPT A DISHONORABLE PEACE FAVORABLY RECEIVED.

Militant Spirit Aroused by Russian Ruler's Message Announcing the Government's Intention to Resist Too Onerous Conditions—Influences at Work Tending to Unify the Nation Should the War Continue.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—Emperor Nicholas' martial message to the Orenburg clergy in which he expressed his determination never to conclude a peace dishonorable to Russia or unworthy of her greatness and which was gazetted Sunday, was reprinted in every paper in Russia Monday. It has struck a responsive chord in many quarters, even among the friends of peace. The emperor's words, however, by no means bear out the construction placed upon them by the jubilant war party, nor do they at all exclude the idea of a successful termination of the approaching negotiations at Portsmouth, but certainly strengthen the militant spirit aroused by the cabled versions of the Sato interviews and the cold figures representing the supposed extent of the contributions to be demanded by Japan.

Subsequent explanations have failed to [illegible] this idea of oppression entirely, and many voices have been raised to the government to resist too onerous conditions. For example the [illegible] of Moscow, who are large [illegible] who control much of the wealth of the nation, are sending addresses to General Linevitch to express confidence that the army will defend Russia's honor and that a humiliating peace will not be made.

While many influences tending to unify the nation if it should be necessary to continue the war are evidently in operation, no disposition is shown to anticipate the result of the peace conference nor to make the task of the peace commissioners more difficult, and M. Witte's presence at the head of the mission is regarded as a guarantee that acceptance of a basis of peace will be found it possible.

DISSOLUTION OF UNION

BOTH HOUSES OF SWEDISH PARLIAMENT ADOPT REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

Stockholm, July 28.—Both houses of the Swedish parliament have approved the report of the special committee appointed by parliament to deal with the crisis between Norway and Sweden. In the first chamber the report was adopted without debate.

In the second chamber the recommendation in the report regarding negotiations for a dissolution was adopted unanimously, but there was some objection to the proposed loan of $25,000,000 to meet the new conditions. About a score of members voted against the loan, the Social Democrat leader, Herr Branting, pointing out the danger of militarism and declaring that the proposed loan was contrary to the peaceful spirit of the recommendation to negotiate. It was a [illegible] precedent, he said, for Sweden never heretofore had borrowed money for military purposes, and [illegible] Norway would regard it as [illegible] in the nature of a threat of war. This view was contested by other speakers, who pointed out that [illegible] in its unanimous approval of the condition of dissolution, had shown its willingness to dissolve the union and its desire for peace both in the present and in the future.

TWENTY-THREE KILLED.

Disastrous Collision on English Electric Railroad.

Liverpool, July 28.—An electric express train on the Lancashire and Yorkshire railroad, bound from Liverpool to Southport, collided with an empty stationary train at the Hall Road station, causing the death of twenty-three persons and the injury of many others.

The collision lifted the first car of the express completely off the steel frame and crashed it down again on the unfortunate passengers, twenty of whom were killed outright.

Almost immediately after the crash the wreckage burst into flames. The mangled bodies of the dead and the cries of the injured, vainly beseeching that they be extricated from the burning wreckage, formed a terrible scene and many women fainted on the platform.

VICTIMS NUMBER SIXTY-TWO.

Two More Deaths as Result of Bennington Disaster.

San Diego, Cal., July 27.—The list of Bennington dead now numbers sixty-two, there having been two more deaths, S. Tacate, a Japanese mess attendant, and H. A. Metius, pay clerk. The case of Metius is peculiar. He was able to walk up town after the accident and was thought not to have been badly injured. After his wounds had been dressed he was out on the streets. Suddenly he collapsed and had to be taken to the hospital on a stretcher. It is supposed that the shock and a weak heart were the causes of his death.

AGAINST THE EQUITABLE.

Suit Instituted in the Name of the People of New York State.

New York, Aug. 1.—An action was instituted Monday by State's Attorney General Julius M. Mayer in the supreme court, New York county, in the name of the people of the state of New York against the Equitable Life Assurance society, its officers, directors and members of the executive and finance committees, all of which are named in the complaint.

The complaint contains twenty-one sections and covers thirty-three pages of typewritten matter, refers to the Frick committee report and the investigation made by State Superintendent of Insurance Hendricks; is based on information and belief and Attorney General Mayer in his prayer to the court says that the action was brought on behalf of the people of the state of New York in the public interests and pursuant to the provisions of law.

He therefore asks that each of the defendants, other than the Equitable society, account for their management of the society's funds and property; pay back to it any money they have acquired by a violation of their duties; removal of any director guilty of misconduct; net surplus of the society be applied for the benefit of the policyholders, and such other relief as may be just, equitable and profitable.

GRANTED A REPRIEVE

JOHANN HOCH GIVEN A STAY OF EXECUTION BY THE GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS.

Chicago, July 29.—Johann Hoch, "Bluebeard" and confessed bigamist, who was sentenced to be hanged Friday for poisoning one of his wives, was granted a reprieve Friday afternoon until Aug. 25 by Governor Deneen. The stay of execution followed hours of anxiety on the part of Hoch, who had never given up hope and was allowed by the governor only after the latter had been assured that the necessary sum to appeal the case had been raised. The amount, $500, was given by an attorney and friend of Hoch's counsel. The attorney declared he was actuated by purely humanitarian motives.

An incident at the jail during the preparations for the execution was the appearance of a physician and a woman who told Jailer Whitman that they wanted to help in Hoch's battle for life. They said they wished to raise funds for the condemned man and asked Jailer Whitman to delay the hanging as long as possible. Hoch's attorney, however, had already been in communication with the authorities respecting the stay of sentence.

LIGHTNING HITS BATHHOUSE.

Five Persons Killed and Nine Seriously Injured.

New York, July 31.—During a thunder storm of terrific intensity which passed over New York five persons were struck by lightning and instantly killed and nine were seriously injured at the Parkway baths, Coney Island. At the same time one man was killed and three others prostrated at Gravesend Beach.

The intense heat of the morning attracted a great multitude to the shore resorts and late in the afternoon when the storm blew up from the west the parkway beach was thronged with bathers and spectators. The rain descended in torrents and hundreds of men, women and children sought shelter under the big bathhouse, which is elevated above the sand on piles. A few minutes before 5 o'clock a bolt struck the flagstaff and grounded in the very thickest of the crowd. Nearly fifty persons were prostrated and the rest, screaming with terror, rushed out into the storm.

BISHOP JOYCE DEAD.

Recent Stroke of Paralysis Terminates Fatally.

Minneapolis, July 28.—Bishop Isaac W. Joyce of the Methodist Episcopal church is dead. The end came peacefully, after a four weeks' illness following a cerebral hemorrhage.

Bishop Joyce was stricken while preaching at a Red Rock camp meeting July 2. He rallied after several days and hope was entertained for his recovery. Then followed a relapse, with a gradual sinking until the end.

Bishop Joyce was nearly seventy years of age. He was a native of Hamilton county, O., and was educated at Hartsville college and Depauw university. In 1859 he was ordained a minister and attached to the Indiana conference. He served in several large congregations, including one at Cincinnati, until 1889, when he was made a bishop. He was attached to the Southern district and was assigned to preside over every conference in America for a few years.

FAILS FOR THREE MILLIONS.

Big French Speculator Unable to Meet Engagements.

Paris, July 31.—Owing to the failure of a big speculator to meet engagements said to amount to $3,000,000 two of the leading sugar houses have suspended payments.

Case of Fever on Board.

Santiago, Cuba, July 31.—Five of the crew of the steamer Athenia from Colon were brought ashore here and placed in the inspection hospital. One of the sailors has since developed quite positive symptoms of yellow fever.

WEED OUT GRAFTERS

ALL BUREAUS OF AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT TO UNDERGO RIGID INQUIRY.

Secretary Wilson Confers With the President Regarding Scandals Recently Developed and if Facts Warrant it Prosecutions Will Follow. Head of Department Will Remain in the Cabinet.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 31.—A conference took place during the day at Sagamore Hill concerning the scandals recently developed in the department of agriculture at Washington.

President Roosevelt entertained at luncheon Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture, who had come to Oyster Bay by invitation of the president to discuss the recent developments of the cotton report leak scandal and of the exploitation of nitroculture which induced the resignation of Dr. George T. Moore. Both of these cases are now under investigation by the department of justice. By direction of the president the inquiries will be made very thorough and if the facts disclosed should warrant it prosecutions against the offenders will be instituted by Attorney General Moody.

Meantime a rigid inquiry will be made into all other bureaus of the department of agriculture, it being the intention of both the president and Secretary Wilson to purge the department of any taint of corruption. With this general inquiry the president is not interfering in any way. Secretary Wilson is directing it and the president's confidence in him is such that he is assured the investigation will develop all the facts.

Secretary Wilson has no present idea of resigning and even if his resignation were tendered it is probable that the president would decline to accept it.

WILL VISIT SOUTH DAKOTA.

Commission Sent Out to Investigate Alleged Frauds.

Washington, July 31.—A picked commission of government officers has been sent West by Secretary Hitchcock to aid in exposing new lines of graft in three important branches of the government service. The investigators will examine into certain alleged frauds in the general land offices of several states, in the forestry service and in the reclamation service.

The commission will go first to Deadwood, S. D. It will spend two or three weeks in that state and will then move to other sections where allegations of irregularities have been made. The commission will inquire into certain alleged frauds in connection with the irrigation service. It has been charged that advance information has been given to persons concerning areas to be irrigated by the government, thus enabling them to take out land claims within the region to be watered.

Many complaints have lately been made to Secretary Hitchcock regarding trespassing on government forest reserves. Bold thieves have invaded the federal forests and cut timber therefrom.

The commission will also look into the charge that frauds existing in the public land service in a number of states have been overlooked, in the general investigation that has been made of these matters in the past three years.

ANOTHER OFFICIAL OUT.

Physiologist of Agricultural Department Tenders Resignation.

Washington, July 29.—George T. Moore, physiologist and algologist of the department of agriculture, has tendered his resignation to Secretary Wilson and it has been accepted.

This action is the culmination of a hearing at the department at which it was alleged by the representatives of an agricultural publication that Moore's wife held stock in a company manufacturing culture for soil inoculation, while Moore, who had charge of the preparation and revision of bulletins regarding the enrichment of farms, directed farmers to the concern in question for their supplies of the culture.

PEACE PLANS WRECKED.

Chicago Coal Teamsters Vote to Continue Strike.

Chicago, July 31.—With the capitulation of the striking teamsters nearly complete and the release of Chicago from the oppression of the long labor war practically assured a handful of coal teamsters have wrecked the well developed peace plans.

The coal drivers, 350 strong, have voted unanimously to continue the strike. As a result the Employers' association, it is said, may close the doors to thousands of their former employes who were to have been re-engaged. The strike area, with its police guarded wagons, also will continue indefinitely.

PURDY IS PROMOTED.

Minnesotan Becomes Assistant Attorney General.

Boston, July 29.—The resignation of Assistant Attorney General William A. Day and the appointment of Milton D. Purdy to succeed him was announced during the day by Attorney General William H. Moody, who was in this city on his return from a vacation in Maine.

Muskogee, I. T., July 31.—In a fight on Deep Fork river two deputy United States marshals, J. H. Noble and E. S. Edwards, killed J. E. Coleman and his wife and arrested their fifteen-year-old son. The Colemans had stolen horses, cattle and mules in the Choctaw Nation. They passed through Checotah and sold some of the stock.

Officers were put on their track and overtook them on Deep Fork river. The thieves were surprised but fought hard. The woman as well as the men began to shoot when the officers approached. Coleman and his wife were shot dead. The son was not injured.

ADMIT IT IS SERIOUS

LITTLE CHANGE APPARENT IN YELLOW FEVER SITUATION AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, July 31.—Little change is apparent in the yellow fever situation here. A number of new cases were unofficially reported to the board of health. The campaign in the interest of cistern screening continues and hundreds of gallons of oil are being placed in gutters and water receptacles. The large majority of new cases and deaths continues to be in the old infected area below Canal street. The official fever report for Monday is as follows:

New cases up to 6 p. m., 21; cases to date, 304; deaths to 6 p. m., 5; total deaths to date, 62; new foci, 5; total foci, 46.

Basle, Switzerland, July 31.—The Zionists in session here have decided to attempt the establishment of their first colony in Palestine, rejecting the offer of a tract of land in East Africa made by Great Britain.

RED LAKE FALLS MILLING CO.

It is not strange that Page fence will stretch up smoothly over hills and down through ravines. It is made to do it, and it is simply putting into use one of the innate properties of its coiled wire. It is elastic.

It is not strange that short kinks or bends in wire cannot supply this elasticity like a coil or spiral. If they could, why haven't the manufacturers of spring balances, or of car springs used a kinked, crimped or other shaped metal than a coil. Probably the reason is that kinked or crimped metal will not let out and take up, will not shorten and lengthen like a coil spring.

Further, why do you suppose that high-carbon stock is always used for springs unless it is because low-carbon stock will not make a spring. Low-carbon stock is much the cheaper.

Hair springs in watches are made of only a little higher carbon stock than Page-Wire is made of, in fact, there is not much more difference between the proportion of carbon in Page-Wire and watch-spring wire, than there is between the fence wire generally in use and that which we use for all the horizontal wires in Page fences.

The General Paper company, better known as the paper trust, is being investigated by Special Examiner Taylor in the federal building St. Paul, and, if the evidence of newspaper men is worthy of credence, this organization of robbers surpasses in the extent of its systematic extortions the beef, leather, oil or any other trust extant says the Princton Union. Since its organization print paper has advanced in price at least fifty per cent, and the end seems to be not yet unless the anti-trust law can be so applied as to break up the combination. And even then there would be no certainity of relief, for the designing rascals would likely resort to other means of extortion not within the reach of the law but equally obnoxious to the consumer. Verily these trust companies are hard propositions to subdue.

WESLEY IS UGLY.

Man Accused of Dahl Murder In Jail At Bemidji.

"Shorty" Wesley, accused by the grand jury of the Beltrami county district court last fall of the murder of N. O. Dahl, the Quiring homesteader, and Dahl's daughter, Aagot, both of whom are well known in this city, was brought from St. Paul to Bemidji by Sheriff Bailey and confined in the Beltrami county jail, is now awaiting his trial, which will commence in two months, when the fall term of district court will begin.

A rumor has been circulated to the effect that Wesley has confessed that he commited the murder. County Attorney E. E. McDonald, when asked about the matter, stated that he had nothing to say.

Deputy Sheriff John Bailey denies that any confession has been made.

When Wesley was interviewed he refused to say anything about the crime whatever and seemed to harbor ill feeling against all newspapers in general. He would not make any statement about the case except that the newspapers had misrepresented him in picturing him as a desperate character. He said that report to the effect that two revolvers were hidden under his pillow when he was arrested at the home of his parents at Green Bay, Wis., was untrue.

"This is the first time I have been arrested on any charge," said Wesley, "and I will be d——d glad when the time for my trial comes along. It's only two months yet, but it seems a long time when you are locked up in a cell."

Wesley said that before leaving the Ramsey county jail he had a talk with Gottschalk, murderer of Christian H. Schiroeldecker, and that Gottschalk was in a very nervous condition. He was surprised to hear about Gottschalk's suicide and expressed himself as pleased that the convicted murderer had cheated the gallows. "If I ever get sentence to hang," said "Shorty," "I will certainly try to commit suicide."

Wesley talked quite freely with a deputy who was present while he was being interviewed at Bemidji by a representative of the Pioneer, but kept the conversation away from the Dahl affair as much as possible. He used very foul and profane language and oaths accompanied every sentence.

He is apparently 30 years of age and is about five feet six inches in height. He has blue eyes and dark brown hair. He was arrested at Green Bay, Wis., on March 27, and taken to St. Paul by Sheriff Bailey on April 2. Since the latter date he was held at the Ramsey county jail until this week, when he was taken to Bemidji.

"Two years ago I came to Hot Springs to take the baths and be treated for bladder and kidney trouble. After spending two months here under the care of one of the most prominent physicians and receiving little or no benefit, I was persuaded to try Peruna. I had little faith in it, but after using one bottle I noticed a marked improvement. Three bottles entirely cured me. I can cheerfully recommend Peruna to any one afflicted as I was."—Fred R. Pennell.

Thomas M. Hicks, 1131 13th St., Louisville, Ky., writes:

"Neglected colds, irregular habits and overwork brought on serious kidney and bladder trouble. My blood seemed inflamed with poison, my stomach became entirely demoralized, a bad odor emanated from my urine, and I realized I was a sick man. The doctors dosed me to their heart's content, but I kept growing worse. Then fortune brought Peruna to my notice and I at once began to mend. I kept taking it for five months before I was completely cured. I feel now that I owe my life to Peruna and will never cease to be grateful."—Thomas M. Hicks.

S. L. Earle, Superintendent of Streets, Jacksonville, Fla., writes:

"I am a firm believer in Peruna. I find that it has been of practical benefit to a number of the men employed in the Street Cleaning Department in the city of Jacksonville. They are especially exposed to the inclemency of the weather and a number who caught cold, which later developed into pneumonia, kidney or liver trouble, were cured through the use of Peruna."—S. L. LABOR DAY, NEXT MONTH.

Gov. Johnson Issues Proclamation Designating Sept 4 Labor Day.

Gov. Johnson yesterday issued the following proclamation:

"The legislature of the state having designated the first Monday in September of each year as Labor Day, and it being desirable that this day be generally observed; now, therefore, I John A. Johnson, governor of said state, pursuant to law and custom, do hereby request that on Monday, Sept. 4, 1905, there be a general suspension of trade and soil.

"Labor is the basis of all wealth and prosperity. In the community of interest so essential to our well being and our progress the relation of the employe should not be strained. Between capital and labor there should be no difference. Labor, seldom asking for more, should always be given a fair chance. In all problems involving any difference between capital and labor there should not only be a just toleration but wise and patriotic consederation. On this day let there be not only the healthful recreation of the holiday but a discussion of problems looking toward a settlement of difference, the realization of the true dignity of labor and the establishment of all industry on the basis of equal rights to every citizen. Let full co-operation follow and in the enjoyment of this day let the central thought be the upbuilding of the state and nation and the elevation of the citizen to the highest possible standard."

THE HABIT OF SAVING

Some have the idea that it takes a large amount to start a bank account. It doesn't. And for the convenience of some we take deposits as small as $1.00. It is the small amout deposited and added to regularly that makes you independent and ready for a rainy day.

Deposit your money with us and pay all your bills by check; the safest and simplest way; for when you give anyone your check, and they endorse it on the back, they give you the best kind of a receipt. Moreover a checking account with your home bank shows a good business principle.

We are as accomodating as the sound principles upon which we conduct our business will permit.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climate conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists A. L. Reichart.

Grave Trouble Foreseen.

It needs but little foresight, to tell, that when your stomach and liver are badly affected, grave trouble is ahead unless you take the proper medicine for your disease, as Mrs. John A. Young, of Clay, N. York., did. She says: "I had neuralgia of the liver and stomach, my heart was weakened, and I could not eat. I was very bad for a long time, but in Electric Bitters I found just what I needed, for they quickly relieved and cured me." Best medicine for weak women. Sold under guarantee by W. A. Schreiter druggist, at 50c a bottle.

Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the ills attendent on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size 75c. At all druggists. A. L. Reichert.

Fraud Exposed.

A few counterfeiters have lately been making and trying to sell imitations of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and other medicines, thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit, through stealing the reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing diseases, for over 35 years. A sure protection, to you, is our name on the wrapper. Look for it, on all Dr. King's or Bucklen's remedies, as all others are mere imitations. H. E. ARRANGEMENT OF HOGPENS

Practical Plan Which Has Been Tried by One Farmer with Success.

The great difficulty in planning a hoghouse is to get it so that it will be dry and clean. In this plan, 16x20 feet, I have four sleeping or nest—pens, and four feed pens; close partitions between them, except passageway between the nest pen and the feed pen, explains John M. Jamison, in the Rural New Yorker. Each feed and nest pen is to be 5x6 feet, and the alleyway 4x20 feet. The building should stand east and west, with pens on south side, and alley on north side, and have a yard on south side as large as desirable. I would make a double doorway at two of the partitions, and make the doors so they will close tight. As arranged, the sows can make their nests in corners away from doors, and the wind will not blow on them when the doors are open. The pens next to the alley can be used to feed in, when the weather is bad, and when good, the feeding can be done in lots outside. The more feeding done inside, the more work required to keep the house clean.

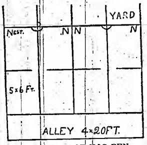

DIAGRAM OF HOG PEN.

I would lay the floor with cement concrete, making the alley floors level, but the pen floors I would slope from the south wall towards the alley, about three inches in the 12 feet. This will tend to cause all water to flow towards the alley, and keep the nests and feed stalls comparatively dry. The bedding from the nests, when soiled, can go into the lots or alley, just as the feeder wishes, when he cleans out the stalls. The yards should be kept clean by throwing in straw, or other coarse material. Over this floor plan the builder can put such building as suits him best; a shed in form, the roof sloping one way, or a comb roof. In either case, if he wishes, a room for bedding and feed above the pens. The building should be located on an elevated point of ground, so the water will flow away from it in all directions, and the roof spouted, to keep water from making it wet about the building. Make doors at the ends of the alley. If the doors are cut in half, it will often be an advantage in airing out the pens. There should also be plenty of windows on the south side, for sunshine is a very important factor in the health and comfort of swine.

THE BEST HOG TROUGH.

With Slats Across the Top It Will Keep the Hogs from Lying in Them.

I have tried all kinds of hog troughs and like best the one shown here, writes an Illinois farmer to the Farm and Home. It can be made of two boards for water, swill or grain, is stout and durable, is not liable to burst when water freezes in it. The boards should be 2x12, and 16 feet long is a good length; 1x12-inch boards make a very good trough, but are not so durable as two-inch. The slats across the top keep the hogs from lying in the trough when it is filled with water in hot weather.

THE LIVE STOCK.

Study the individual needs of each cow and supply those needs.

Keep the horse judiciously shod and exercised.

Be cheerful—help to inspire the other fellow too.

Some cows would be better ones if they were fed more.

It is the steady, quiet horse that can do the biggest day's work when it is hot.

You can change the quantity of milk by the feed, but the quality is born with the cow.

A strong, well-grown sow may be bred to farrow at one year, but a small one should not be bred until 10 or 12 months old.

Chaff and loose straw dropping through the cracks of an ill-constructed ceiling are a constant source and cause of dust during milking. The ceiling of the stable should be as tight as your house.

Many a stable of four or more horses, if intelligently mated and driven, would do better work and do it easier. An old horse mated to a young one, a heavy horse to a light one, a slow horse to a fast one, often causes trouble, which might easily be avoided by a little foresight and judgment in the matter.

The Horse to Reject.

Reject a horse with toes turned in or out. The twist generally occurs at the fetlock. Toes turned out are more objectionable than toes turned in. When toes are turned out the fetlocks are generally turned in, and animals so formed are very apt to cut or bruise. Both, however, are weak formations.

WAIL OF ROYAL CHEF

WELL PAID BUT MASTERS ARE MOST EXACTING.

How the Kingly Menus Are Prepared—Franz Joseph Selects His Own—Kaiser Eats in Four Languages—Sultan Fears Poison.

London.—"Menus are the greatest burden of sovereignty," once remarked the emperor of Austria, and this, coupled with the statement of the late Czar Alexander III. that a monarch required more diplomacy in dealing with his cooks than with his ministers leads one to believe that culinary matters are a source of unceasing worry to every crowned head.

Emperor Franz Josef has, however, good cause to grumble, because although the actual cost of the food he consumes himself does not amount to $5,000 a year, he pays his chef—a Belgian—a salary of $10,000 per annum, and the kitchen expenses at the palace are never less than $75,000. The reason for this is that, whereas the emperor always takes his meals alone in his study, his palace dinners are produced regardless of expense.

The emperor's chef always submits a menu for the following day's dinner to his royal master when dinner is served. Punctually at six o'clock his valet enters with a large tray, which he places on the emperor's desk, and while Franz Josef is negotiating his soup he scans to-morrow's menu and crosses off with a blue pencil anything he does not care for.

At the German court things are somewhat different. There are four chefs—a German, a Frenchman, an Englishman and an Italian—because the kaiser never decides till the day arrives whether he will have a German, a French, an English or an Italian meal, with the result that there is much scurrying to prepare a menu. This is not an easy matter if there are many guests present, because each chef is only allowed so much a head, and he must serve up an elegant meal at that figure. Each chef has five assistants and has to render an account of each day's expenses to the head steward.

The chef at the Portuguese court is an Englishman and he receives only $4,000 a year. When King Carlos paid his first visit to England and was staying with the late Lord Salisbury, he said that what struck him most about Britain was the roast beef, and he forthwith took back with him an English chef. King Carlos insists on an English meal every day, but the queen and the members of the household have two French chefs to study their wants, and they each receive salaries of $5,500 per annum.

The most trying post any man can wish for is that of chef to the sultan of Turkey at the palace at Yildiz. Here the royal kitchen is situated right under the royal apartments; it is quite a small room, strongly guarded, and even the windows are barred. The sultan's horror of poison led him on one occasion to install a soldier whom he trusted as chef, and for two years he endured badly cooked food rather than face the risk of poison.

The present chef has held his post seven years, but he is only responsible to Kelarji, the chief steward, for the food, and this official is in his turn responsible to the sultan. When the meal is ready it is placed on a tray and the tray is then covered with a black cloth, the ends of which are sealed by Kelarji before it is borne into the imperial apartment.

The czar of Russia's chef is likewise a much harassed individual, but as he is well paid—his salary from all sources being over $10,000 a year—he is not to be pitied.

THIRTEEN PROVES UNLUCKY

Courtship Lasted 13 Months; April 13 Set for Wedding; Groom Dies After 13 Days' Illness.

Muskegon, Mich.—The number "13" proved unlucky to F. Delong, who died here after all preparations had been completed for his marriage to one of the most prominent young women of this section.

After a courtship of just 13 months Delong proposed and was accepted. April 13 was set as the wedding day, and all preparations for the wedding were completed when the prospective bridegroom became ill. For 13 days and 13 nights the bride-to-be was his constant attendant, even to eating her meals at his bedside.

The unlucky combination of thirteens had been noted, and when the thirteenth day of illness ended to-day the sudden death of the patient was hardly a surprise to his superstitious friends.

The young woman who was to be a bride April 13 is hysterical, and refused to leave the hospital or be consoled.

Never Had Seen White Men.

Nordenskjold, the famous arctic explorer, has returned to Montevideo, Paraguay, from an expedition into the interior of South America to the borders of Brazil, Bolivia and Peru, where he found Indians who had never seen white men. They are among the most primitive people in the world. They believed him to be some god because he gave them flesh of monkeys he had hunted. They begged him to remain as their chief, but he did not accept the offer, knowing the prestige would not outlive his ammunition.

Reaching the Goal.

Russia is to carry on the war to "the bitter end." There must be rather a bad taste in the Russian mouth already.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

542 1-2 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Dizziness, Headache, Backache, Worry, Fretfulness, Irritability, Melancholy, Lack of Ambition.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. G. HASKIN, Freeville, N. Y.

MINE ON FIRE SINCE 1857.

Vein of Coal in Pennsylvania Still Unextinguished After Forty-Seven Years.

President Lewis A. Riley, of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, in his annual report, says that one of the company's mines near Tamaqua has been on fire for 47 years, says Fuel. Regarding the efforts now made to quench these subterranean fires the report says:

"A portion of the outcrop of the Mammoth vein in this locality has been on fire since 1857, the fire being confined by the water filling the workings below water level and cut-offs on the outcrop. Before opening the colliery below water level it is necessary either to extinguish the fire or get it under control. During the past year efforts have been made with this end in view which have met with a large measure of success. A boiler plant and pumping machinery have been erected on the bank of the Little Schuylkill river at Tamaqua for the purpose of pumping water to the level of the outcrop. A branch of the Panther Creek railroad has been extended nearly two miles to reach the outcrop, and more holes have put down at various places where there were indications of fire. The fire is being extinguished by washing fine coal dirt through bore holes on the fire and filling up the vacant spaces so as to cut off the air supply."

HE DIDN'T WANT THE COAT

But There Was Something in the Inside Pocket He Did Want.

The truth of this story is vouched for by the victim, says the New York Sun.

"Where is that old blue coat I knocked around in last summer?" he asked his wife. She was not quick to offer an explanation.

"It was here only yesterday," remarked the husband. "I know it was."

"Yes," said the wife with a touch of anger, "I know it was. I just got sick and tired of seeing that coat and a lot of other old stuff lying around cluttering things up, and I sold it this morning."

"You sold it! Sold the coat—the old blue coat?"

"Yes, I sold it. And I don't want you to go around moping about it."

"Dear, I didn't want the coat, but to-morrow is your birthday and I had hidden a ring and a nice yellow bill in the inside pocket. I wanted to surprise you and I couldn't think of a better hiding place."

The victim says that what happened after that is nobody's business.

TRUE HEROISM OF LIFE.

Found in Every-Day Occupations That Call for Steady Heads and Hands.

Prof. William James, of Harvard university, relates that, upon a certain journey, he was questioning with himself whether or not the higher heroism of life was passing out of human society; and that, at the very moment, he looked from the car window and suddenly got sight of a number of workmen performing some task on the dizzy ledge of an iron construction at a great height. This at once brought to his mind, says Success Magazine, a sense of the everyday bravery of men in everyday occupations. It flashed upon him, on the instant, that the true heroism of life is found, not only on the day of battle and in desperate adventures, but also in building every bridge, or in the ordinary day-by-day service of the world, whether of the sailor upon his deck, the brakeman upon his train, the lumberman upon his raft, or wherever else men are at work.

"As I awoke to this unidealized heroic life around me," he says, "the scales seemed to fall from my eyes, and a wave of sympathy greater than I had ever before felt with the common life of common men began to fill my soul."

WOODS FOR FURNITURE.

Objections to Oak and Rosewood—Walnut's Day Gone—Seasoning Mahogany.

Some of the best cabinetmakers of New York are chary of working in oak. Really old and well-seasoned oak is hard to get and harder to work, says the New York Sun.

There is no great quantity of old oak furniture in the market, and old pieces that would supply large enough lumber for important work are seldom found. New kiln-dried oak is uncertain, being liable to warp and crack.

Paneled articles can be made of such material with some safety, but large solid articles are likely to give a bad account of themselves at the end of a winter in a steam-heated house.

Rosewood also the best cabinetmakers distrust. This wood has a peculiarly oily quality that makes it uncertain when glued. For this reason rosewood is used chiefly as a veneer. Thin sheets lose much of their oil and take glue satisfactorily.

Solid rosewood furniture is hard to find.

Unpardonable.

Mrs. Flip—That new neighbor is a fearfully slipshod housekeeper.

Mr. Flip—How do you know?

"Why, every single time I send over there to borrow something she's always out of it!"—Detroit Free Press.

It Sure Does.

Hear the Glee club!

Why do they call it a Glee club?

Because it effectually removes all evidences of glee from the adjacent populace.—Pittsburg Post.

DYNAMITE MAKES CHANNEL

Ice in Long Island Sound Was Blown Up to Permit of Navigation.

The severity of last winter in the neighborhood of New York is emphasized by an occurrence at Port Chester, N. Y., on Long Island Sound, says the New York Tribune. Usually the harbor of that place is not closed in the winter by the ice. The steamers from New York are able to make their way up the Byram river, the mouth of which forms the harbor of Port Chester, to the wharves. In the winter just ended it has been impossible for them to do this, for ice more than a foot in thickness formed and effectually blocked navigation in the channel.

The manufacturers became tired of waiting for nature in the form of gentle spring to release them from their icy bonds. When March came roaring in, and the ice was found still to be from a foot to 18 inches in thickness, they decided to treat the ice themselves. Procuring 450 pounds of dynamite, they set to work. Beginning at the open end of the ice field the ice was divided into huge blocks with plows. Then sticks of dynamite were inserted in holes made for the purpose. The dynamite was exploded by an electric current, and three or four miniature geysers of mixed ice and water would shoot up into the air.

Foot by foot the ice was broken away. Finally after five days of ice breaking of this sort the channel was opened sufficiently to permit a steamer to reach a wharf.

AN APPEAL FROM AFRICA.

What the People of the Dark Continent Ask of Those of Other Nations.

It is but very little that we ask—the right to work on our own soil, among our own people, ruled by some, at any rate, of our rulers, and to be permitted to eat and drink what we think good for us, instead of having deadly poison poured down our throats, says an extract from "Africa's Appeal to Christendom," in Century. Even if foreign powers should for a time be financial losers, they cannot eventually be anything but gainers—aided by a country almost unlimited in its capabilities, and the willing, grateful service of 20,000,000 of people rescued from the moral as well as physical death now staring them in the face. They will not have the obstacles presented to them in their own country; all will be with them in this crusade; leaders and people alike are stretching out their hands for aid. We appeal, not to England, not to France, not to Germany, not to other empires and states, but to the consciences of the individual men forming such nations. We appeal, not for a gift or favor, but for our right. Even as the Americans appealed for their rights, and obtained them by heroic measures, so do we claim the right for "freedom to worship God," and to worship Him by sobriety, industry, good will and all the Christian graces.

FOUND IN "LEMON" PIES.

Analysis of Restaurant Pastry Fails to Bring to Light Any Lemon.

Three lemon pies brought from the shelves of downtown restaurants were analyzed in the office of the state food inspector, and this is the composition of the filling of one of them, as announced by the chemist, reports the Chicago Record-Herald.

"Starch, in thick, firm paste, flavored slightly and very little acid; 21 per cent. sugar. Aniline coloring (methyl-orange group). The color is made synthetically from aniline, and aniline from coal. Method—di-methyl-aniline on diazo-benzine sulphonic acid. Methyl orange is poisonous in large doses. Found to contain very little flavoring and acid from lemon. Filling of starch paste, sugar and colored deep yellow."

In plain English, it was explained by the chemist that aniline is used instead of eggs. The butter was neglected altogether and the lemon juice was slighted.

Another lemon pie was beginning to decompose when it was delivered to the laboratory. There was dough at the bottom. The third lemon pie examined was said to be tolerably good. The much-abused mince pie escaped with good reputation, but one of the two pumpkin pies examined was said to be old.

Largest Known Sun Spot.

The Abbe Moreux has published a chart of the great sun spot made at the Observatory of Bourges, when on February 2 it attained its greatest extension of about 175,000 kilometers long and 102,000 kilometers wide—that is to say, about one-twenty-ninth part of the solar disk. It is the largest yet known. Lengths of 200,000 kilometers have been noted, but they represented a group of spots. One in 1858 was 250,000 kilometers long, but owing to its narrowness only measured one-thirtieth of the solar surface. The spot passed the central meridian of the sun on the night of February 3. It lay in the southern hemisphere, and varied notably in its aspect.—London Globe.

CLOSELY-PENNED FOWLS.

The Best Results Not Obtained from the Chickens Which Have to Be Confined.

I have found by large experience that it is not advisable to pen up fowls unless they have to be penned, writes an Indiana correspondent of a farm journal. Closely penned fowls are generally deprived of many of the things fowls should have to enable them to do their best work. Usually the green stuff in the yard is so small in quantity that it soon disappears altogether. I have a lady friend who was very anxious to keep hens. She had a house built for them, about ten by ten feet in size, and a yard about as wide as the house, and 30 feet long. She bought four beautiful White Rocks and a rooster. How pretty they looked in the yard, bright with green grass! If she had but been content with the little flock, she might have been keeping hens yet.

But alas! She thought if 80 eggs a month were such a help, 400 eggs a month would be far better, so she bought 20 more fowls of the same breed. That made a flock of 25. How the grass did disappear from that yard! By midsummer not a green thing was left there. When the fall rains began, even the roots of the grasses that had made up the texture of the sod had disappeared, having decayed in a few weeks after the tops were killed. The birds spattered around in a lake of mud. How they did look, covered with mud from foot to wing.

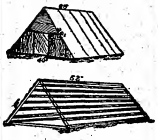
Their mistress no longer took her visitors out to see them. Her enthusiasm had died out, and she gave the fowls as little attention as possible. Another month, and they had disappeared. The lady said she had got tired of keeping chickens, "they are so dirty."

Now, if my friend had retained her little flock and at the same time retained that bit of green grass, she would not have become disgusted. Looks count for a great deal.

COOPS FOR HEN AND CHICK

An A-Coop, Boarded Tightly at the Back and Part of Front Is Best for Spring.

A handy coop and run for hen and chicks is shown in the cut. This is an A-coop, boarded tightly at the back and part of the front so as to afford protection in early spring. An A-shaped run the width and height of coop and of any length desired can be used to give the hen greater liberty.—Farm and Home.



HEN COOP AND RUN.

THE DEPTH OF FRAMES.

For Comb-Honey the Divisible Brood Chamber Hive Is Probably the Best.

While all are agreed as to the desirability of keeping bees on movable frames, there seems to be a great diversity of opinion regarding style and depth of same.

Movable frame hives may be divided into two classes as far as general principles go. One is known as the divisible brood chamber, and the other as the non-divisible, or single chamber hive. As all hives and fixtures about the apiary should be of one style and size, the beginner ought to weigh well this hive problem before marrying himself to any particular one. He will find that changing from one to another is an expensive proceeding. The style or depth best for any certain locality can be ascertained only by being on the spot and studying conditions.

Whether comb or extracted honey is to be produced also has a great deal to do with it. If extracted honey is to be produced, a frame as deep, or deeper than the "L" will most probably be best. If honeycomb is the object, the divisible brood-chamber hive would probably suit better. Consider these points well before proceeding.—Midland Farmer.

DURABLE HIVE STAND.

One Made Out of Drain Tiles Proves the Most Satisfactory—Easy to Make.

Stands are convenient to keep the hives off the ground. Four drain tiles set three or four inches in ground and leveled and packed well around with earth, will make one of the cheapest and best stands. They hold the hive up, provide no place for mice or moles and one can easily mow around them, says Farm and Home. Put a board up in front of an alighting board and the thing is complete. Bricks set on end in the ground would be nearly as good and cheaper.

To keep up the stamina of the flock it is considered a good policy to mate old males with pullets, and cockerels with old hens.

Yards of Steel and Whalebone and Armor Plate Used in Ladies' Apparel.

London.—Fashionable women will wear during the summer of 1905 something very closely akin to that monstrosity of bygone days—the crinoline.

So large, indeed, are the quantities of wire and steel used by fashionable dressmakers in the manufacture of the new spring skirts that there is some justification for the reported return of the dreaded crinoline.

Under the skirt is an elaborate framework of wire and whalebone, very suggestive of the crinoline. This produces the full and outstanding effect now aimed at by the leading French dressmakers.

"In Paris quantities of wire and steel are absorbed in the making of all skirts of thin material," said a well known court dressmaker to a reporter.

"For a full ten inches below the waist the skirt must fit like a glove, and this effect can only be obtained by the use of a whalebone encasement.

"Nine steels—about seven and one-half feet—in the upper part of a skirt is an ordinary allowance, but in the case of plaited skirts, every plait may require to be held in place by five whalebones, and in order to accentuate the straight line from the bust to the waist, which is a great feature of the new styles, a broad band of steel is inserted in the bodice.

"A single row of whalebone at the hem, about 18 feet, insures the skirt standing out, and above this are inserted several rows of wire, the quantity varying according to the texture of the material. In the case of a thin voile or crepe de chine dress from 108 to 150 feet would be necessary."

WEDS TWO IN SINGLE DAY

Good-Looking Youth Admits the Soft Impeachment, But Pleads Lack of Memory.

New York.—According to the judges of general sessions there has never been such a strange case of bigamy brought to their attention as that of John Steffler, who pleaded guilty before Judge Newberger of marrying two women on the same day.

Steffler is a good-looking young man. He told his attorney and the court that he had no recollection of contracting either marriage and could offer no explanation of his conduct.

Judge Newberger remanded him to the Tombs for sentence, and will make an investigation into his case. When Steffler pleaded guilty he said:

"I'm married all right to these two women, but I don't know why I did it. I must have been in a trance. I don't remember anything about it."

The indictment charges Steffler with marrying Estelle Deffely August 13 last. On the evening of the same day Steffler married Hannah Ackerman.

Both of Steffler's wives were in court and intermittently denounced Steffler as a "brute." The two women sat together in the rear of the courtroom where he was arraigned.

CLEVER PLOT TO BREAK JAIL

Convict, an Electrician, Puts Out All the Lights with a Switch—Recaptured.

Salem.—By means of an ingeniously contrived cut-off switch with which he controlled the lighting system of the prison Charles Williamson, a trusty convict, escaped from the penitentiary, but was recaptured before he succeeded in getting out of town.

Williamson is an electrician serving a five-year term for forgery. He tapped the main current wire in the pump-house and put in an improvised switch. When ready to leave before daylight, Williamson shut off the lights, tied a string to his switch lever, to which he attached a water bucket. He punctured the bottom of the bucket and dropped it into the water tank outside the building. The water slowly filled the bucket, which was weighted with lead, until it sank after a period of two hours and a half and turned on the lights again.

In the meantime Williamson scaled the penitentiary wall in a dark spot and escaped. Warden Curtis happened to be at the Southern Pacific depot, recognized the fellow as he was about to board the train for Portland and re-arrested him.

EX-MAYOR NOW A "NAVVY"

Former Executive of Des Moines Seeks Work on Streets from Officials He Had Appointed.

Des Moines, Ia.—That his family might continue to have a home to shelter them, James Brenton, ex-mayor of Des Moines, took pick and shovel and commenced work upon the public streets. Of the members of the board of public works, who had received their appointments at his hands, he asked the privilege of joining the street working gang, and the request was granted, at a salary of $2 per day.

Brenton's case has been peculiar. Uneducated, he went into politics, and was nominated and elected county superintendent of schools here. Later he was elected mayor. During his administration the mayor's office was a political storm center.

He served but one term, and went out of office with scarcely a dollar. Next he appeared as a bartender in a Des Moines saloon.

Farmers Claim Their Crops Have Been Damaged.

Thief River News: Paul I. D. Ostby, the well known Emardville farmer who was a candidate for county auditor on the Republican ticket last year, was in the city Monday, being en route to North Dakota to attend to some business.

While here Mr. Ostby stated that a number of farmers living in his township had combined forces and were going to bring a suit against the Soo railroad company for damages sustained to their land by reason of the grade for the railroad obstructing the natural flow of the water, thus causing their lands to be flooded.

Culvert Causes Trouble.

Plummer Pioneer: The good people of Wyandotte last week nearly had a mess of trouble over a culvert in the road between sections 20 and 29. It seems that parties living on the north side removed the culvert, which carried water over on their land, and the supervisors had a new one put in. This stirred up a little feeling and a warrant was got out for the arrest of the board of supervisors. Wiser thoughts seem to have prevailed and the warrant has not yet been served.

The parties removing the culvert claimed that it caused water from the south to overflow their lands, and the supervisors claim that it empted into a natural waterway and, in order to prevent more than the natural supply of water from passing through it, they dammed up a small ditch leading to it from the east. The culvert is now doing duty at the old stand and will, in all probability be allowed to remain.

Koch Is Acquitted.

The famous Koch murder trial, that has been before the people three times during the present year, was brought to a close at Mankato Tuesday when the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty." Koch was tried three times, the jury in both other trials not reaching a verdict. Thus endeth one of the most widely read murder trials ever held in the state, and the murderer of Dentist Gebhardt will never be found. There are a lot of people who believe Koch guilty despite the opinion of the jury.

Mrs. Grace Adamson committed suicide at Minneapolis by swallowing a drug and jumping into the Mississippi river. Despondency due to the serious illness of her husband was the cause of the woman's act.

William Adamson of Minneapolis, whose hopeless illness is supposed to have been the cause of his wife's sensational suicide in that city on Wednesday evening, died at St. Mary's hospital Thursday morning.

Mrs. Carl Malmberg, living on a farm four miles northwest of Renville, committed suicide by hanging. The deceased was about seventy-five years of age. It is thought the cause of the rash act was undue religious excitement.

Another iron ore district, which, it is thought, may prove profitable, has been discovered in Northern Minnesota. This is located in Cass county about thirty miles southwest of Grand Rapids and it is believed to be an extension of the Mesaba range.

The organization of the league, which was begun a few weeks ago, will be perfected.

Mrs. Chris Dobmeier of St. Paul accidentally shot her six-year-old daughter. On retiring Mr. Dobmeier left a loaded revolver on the kitchen table and his wife, not knowing it was loaded, picked it up and pointing it at her little daughter pulled the trigger. The bullet struck the child in the abdomen, fatally injuring her. The mother is prostrated with grief.

The representatives of the Duluth, St. Cloud, Glencoe and Mankato Railway company, who have been in Albert Lea for a few weeks securing the right of way for the line, have about completed the work and farmers have mostly been paid, except in cases where condemnation proceedings have been necessary. The grading has been commenced and will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

"Mary Strong," the woman burglar caught recently while rifling a desk in the Highland Park Presbyterian church at Minneapolis, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to ninety days in the workhouse, sentence being suspended for a year. Later she was spirited away by the police to the House of the Good Shepherd in St. Paul. When brought into court the woman was attired in a neat brown suit and was heavily veiled. The police took good care to help her conceal her identity, for she was brought into the room through the judge's chambers and was taken out again the same way.

Nine Nations

Now Use Liquozone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquozone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some-one whom Liquozone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquozone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquozone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

RED LAKE FALLS GAZETTE.

Vol. 22. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, AUGUST 10, 1905 No 48

LIKED THE SOUTH.

Frank H. Kratka Back To Thief River From Extended Trip.

Ex-Mayor Frank H. Kratka of Thief River Falls passed through this city this week enroute home from Alabama and an extended trip to the south, says the Crookston Times. Most of his time was spent at Thorsby Alabama, and he had a very good impression of that section of the south. Thorsby is a new town located in about the central part of Alabama and the building of a railroad through that section has opened up the country tributary to it. It is surrounded by a fine fruit and cotton country in which Thorsby is located. Almost the entire population of the country is Norwegians who have gone there from Minnesota, and they are all well pleased with their new home.

"That section of the south," said Mr. Kratka to the Times "has been lying dormant since long before the war and it is the new blood that is now going down in there that is making things move along. I passed through large cities in which it is said no improvements—not even the painting of a house—has been made for the past one hundred years. That is putting it rather strong but you would say so if you saw those places. I like the country and climate fine but nothing would ever induce me to live in any of the southern cities."

On his way south, Mr. Kratka suffered a sunstroke in Chicago and was confined to his bed there for three days and his health was poor during his entire stay in the south.

A CLOSE CALL.

Louisville People Have Narrow Escape From Fatal Accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lacoursiere and child, of Louisville township, came near drowning in the Red Lake river last Saturday morning, and their escape from a watery grave was indeed fortunate.

They were on their way to this city, and in crossing the ferry at Louisville Mr. Lacoursiere got out of the buggy to handle the raft. When about half way across the river the small rope broke and the jar frightened the horses so that they backed the buggy, containing Mrs. Lacoursiere and child, off into the river. The lady hung onto the child and managed to keep it and herself above water until rescued by the husband, but they had floated down stream nearly five hundred feet before Mr. Lacoursiere could succeed in getting them out of the water. The horses got to shore themselves without any assistance.

The escape was miraculous, and might easily have resulted in the death of all three of the participants.

Sabbath School Institute at Red Lake Falls.

On August 30 and 31 there will be a union Sabbath School Institute held in the Presbyterian Church in this city. The Institute will be in charge of Mrs. Jean E. Hobart, of Minneapolis, primary secretary of State Sabbath School association, and John Orchard, of Fargo, North Dakota, the general secretary of the North Dakota State association, both of whom are experts in religious education. This Institute is the first ever held in the county presents a rare opportunity to parents and Sunday School workers in this county and nearby places. Those attending from out of town will be entertained by the people of the city. The program will appear in the paper next week.

Local Fire Department Orders New Apparatus.

The local fire department held their regular monthly meeting at the city hall last Saturday evening and considerable important business was transacted.

The most important feature of the meeting was the selection of a new running cart, and it was decided to order it through Thomas Johnstone, of Crookston, agent for the American LaFrance Fire Engine company. The new cart will cost $225 and will be an excellent addition to their outfit.

The firemen also passed a resolution requesting the city fathers to purchase a new chemical fire engine as a needed addition to the department apparatus.

The department is in excellent shape, financially and otherwise, and the people of the city have reason to feel proud of the record they have made.

Band To Thief River.

The Red Lake Falls band and about fifty others from here went to Thief River Falls this morning to spend the day at the county fair being held there this week. Last year Red Lake Falls sent over two hundred people to the fair, but early in the season John Eastman, of the Thief River News, informed the people here that they were not needed at the fair this year, with the result that a very small crowd went. The feeling between the two towns should not be strained in such a manner, and The Gazette knows positively that a large number of people from here would be at Thief River Falls today had they not been told that they were not wanted.

AFTER EARLY HUNTERS

Game Wardens Making Careful Plan to Capture Early Season Hunters This Year.

Throughout the state comes the news that the state game and fish commission is making extraordinary attempts to put a stop to illegal hunting this year, and from reports will place several extra game wardens in every northern county in order to strictly enforce the letter of the law. The wardens are instructed to show no leniency, but give every offender caught the extreme penalty of the law.

The state commission realizes that in order to insure a continuation of game birds in this part of the state, that stringent measures must be taken to keep hunters away from the birds while they are yet scarcely able to fly, and will use a lot of money enforcing the provisions of the game law, which provides that it is illegal to hunt or even train a hunting dog in a field before the first of September.

It is the duty of the people of the county, who wish to see the chickens remain with us for future years, to assist the authorities and report every violation of the law they can learn of.

Senator Clapp at The Fair.

Several of our people had the opportunity of shaking hands with United States Senator Moses E. Clapp at the depot yesterday morning, while that distinguished gentleman was on his way up the north line. He went to Greenbush that morning, returning to Thief River Falls in the evening where he was billed to speak at the county fair today. The "Black Eagle" has a whole lot of warm admirers in Red Lake county and has spoken at every fair yet held here. He is a firm friend of the Red River Valley and has done a lot of good work for this part of the state during his term in the upper branch of the national congress.

JOHN B. BOURDON.

At his home in this city late last Thursday afternoon, occurred the death of John B. Bourdon, one of the pioneers of Red Lake county, after a lingering illness with diabetes.

Deceased was born in LaPrairie, Canada, January 1, 2842, moving to Minnesota in 1860. In 1861 he answered his country's call for volunteers and for two years and nine months withstood the hardships of army life in order that there should be but "one country, one flag." He came to Red Lake county when he was about thirty years of, where he has resided continuously since, always being a hard working, respected citizen, and until stricken with the fatal illness was able to do his days' work with the strongest men. Mr. Bourdon leaves a wife and seven children, two brothers and numerous relatives and friends to mourn the loss of a kind husband, father and friend.

The funeral was held from St. Joseph's church Saturday morning, a great many of our citizens turning out to pay their last tribute to an honored fellowman.

The Gazette joins with the people in extending sympathy to the bereaved family.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climate conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists A. L. Reichert.

WILL LOSE GOOD MAN.

Attorney W. A. McIntyre To Move To Fargo This Month.

Attorney W. A. McIntyre, recognized as one of the brightest legal lights in this part of the state, announces that he will locate at Fargo, North Dakota, about the 20th of this month, having been offered a partnership in one of the leading law firms of that progressive city.

This news will not be received very well by the people of Red Lake Falls, and everywhere regrets are expressed that Mac is to leave us. During the time he has lived here he has won the esteem and confidence of the people and the city can ill afford to lose men of Mr. McIntyre's ability and standing.

However, the new location offers better inducements for a young man, and there is no question but what Mr. McIntyre will make a record creditable to himself and his profession in the new field. He is a hustler from the word go, and is recognized as a careful counsellor and attorney, who with health spared to him is bound to make his mark in the world.

While the people of Red Lake Falls will be loath to see Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre leave, they will join with The Gazette in trusting that their future life may be filled with naught but success.

New Towns in North Dakota.

The extensive railroad building now being done in North Dakota has brought tributary to railroad facilities an additional vast area of the rich agricultural sections of northern and western North Dakota. The Great Northern railway is building a number of new extensions from its main line northward notably that of the Sarles extension of the Edmore line, the Thorne extension running north from York, the Maxbass extension running northwestward from Towner, and a further extension of the Westhope line to Antler.

The building of these new lines has brought into being a number of new towns which are fully described in a pamphlet recently issued by the Great Northern railway. By application to Mr. F. I. Whitney, Passenger Traffic Manager, St. Paul, Minn., a copy of these pamphlets "New Extensions in North Dakota" or "New Towns in North Dakota" will be mailed to any address. 6w

CAN MAKE A SHOWING

Red Lake County Should Have A State Fair Exhibit—Best Kind Of An Advertisement.

The Gazette has heard it remarked this week that Red Lake county should have an exhibition of grains, grasses, vegetables, etc., at the coming state fair, and believes the idea is an excellent one.

Nearly every county in Minnesota has an exhibit at this greatest of all shows, and there is no question but what it is absolutely the best kind of an advertisement for a community.

The cost would not be anything compared with the good it would do us, and the wheels should be set in motion that will have the desired result.

Lepperts Will Move.

The Gazette learns that Leppert Bros., the popular hardware merchants at Wylie, will move their stock to one of the new towns on the Great Northern's new extension in North Dakota in the near future and that Romsos Bros., general merchants, are contemplating a like move. Both of these firms have been very successful since going to Wylie, but now that the railroad company has abandoned that line they feel that they can do better elsewhere. They have been very popular with the people of their community, who will regret to learn of their decision to leave.

MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

Indications That It Will Be Bigger Than Ever.

The promise for the Minnesota State Fair this year is brighter than ever before. Special pains have been taken in all the preparations, which were commenced immediately after the close of the fair of 1904, and the months of careful work over details seem about to be crowned with an unusual success. From Monday morning Sept. 4 till 11 o'clock Saturday night Sept 9 the state fair grounds, midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis, will be crowded with exhibits and gay crowds of visitors. This has become the holiday week of the year for thousands of Minneapolis people—a custom which is becoming more and more popular each season.

This year's fair is being developed along the lines which have proven so successful in the past: and indications a short time before the fair point to larger and better exhibits in every department.

The fair will be opened on Monday morning Sept. 4 with an address by Senator Doliver of Iowa. In the afternoon of the same day, Dan Patch the fastest harness horse of the world will make a sensational mile on the race track in an effort to lower his pacing record of 1:56. Dan Patch will appear on Monday only. It will be the greatest day of the fair. The management guarantees that all exhibits will be in perfect order Monday morning and the entire amusement program will be given complete.

Each evening of the week there will be a magnificent pyrotechnic spectacle given by the Pains who are widely known as the greatest fireworks people in the world.

Half fare rates will be made on all railroads.

YELLOW FEVER GRADUALLY EXTENOING ITS GRASP ON NEW ORLEANS.

Turning Over Control of the Fight Against the Epidemic to the Federal Government Inspires Renewed Courage and Is Expected to Result in Restoration of Confidence and a Occrease in Number of New Cases.

New Orleans, Aug. 5.—Yellow fever is gradually extending its grasp on New Orleans, but as this is the third day in which no new cases have been reported outside of Louisiana the spread of the disease to adjoining states is believed to have been effectively checked. In New Orleans the situation is admittedly serious, but by no means hopeless and the turning over of the fight to the federal government has inspired the local health authorities with renewed courage and determination. Hearty co-operation of the state and city health authorities with the federal bureau is assured beyond a doubt and with a largely augmented corps of fever experts at work in New Orleans and competent persons in the employ of the United States government seeking to modify the rigidity of quarantines, where such action can be safely taken, will, it is thought, soon produce a splendid effect on the disturbed region, restore confidence generally and soon show a decrease in the number of new cases.

Eighteen cases in New Orleans of persons other than Italians were contained in the day's official report, showing that other nationalities are beginning to be infected. An Irishman was among those who died in the Emergency hospital. The bulk of the cases continue to come from the Italian quarter, but the maps on file in the health office begin to show infection in many other districts in the city, though there has been no actual spread as yet from outlying infection, all cases being traceable to the original infection.

The total cases to date number 482 and 93 deaths have occurred as a result of the outbreak.

FIGHT ON YELLOW FEVER.

Federal Officials In Charge of Situation In New Orleans.

New Orleans, Aug. 7.—Dr. J. H. White of the federal forces took charge of the fever situation in New Orleans during the day on final instructions from Washington. A decrease in the number of new cases and subfoci is a hopeful indication that the strenuous work instituted by the New Orleans authorities on the appearance of the first case July 13 is at last bringing results. Two deaths, both of Italians, occurred in the Emergency hospital early in the day and another was reported from Jefferson parish, across the river and opposite New Orleans. Two suspicious cases have been reported near Bon Ami, in Calcasieu parish, and one has since died. The officials of Calcasieu asked that an expert be sent at once to investigate the sickness, but owing to the suspension of train service in that parish no physician could be sent and the case was left in charge of the local authorities. There is also a suspicious case in St. Mary's parish and it is being investigated.

DIED IN SAVING OTHERS.

Young Woman Perishes in Philadelphia Tenement Fire.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Rebecca [illegible], a young woman, lost her life while endeavoring to save the occupants of the tenement house at 315 [illegible] street during a fire early in the day. The fire started in the lower floor and Mrs. [illegible]wustein rushed to the [illegible] of the building with her baby, which she placed in the hands of a [illegible]. Returning to the third floor of the burning building she endeavored to arouse the others in the house [illegible]. While hastening through a hallway she was overcome by smoke and died before the firemen arrived. The other occupants were rescued.

TRAIN LEAVES DEATH TRAIL.

Three Men Killed in a Day at Various Points on Road.

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 5.—The Guyandotte Valley passenger train, from Logan to this city, killed three men and injured another. Frank Adkins was killed near Logan while crossing the track and a companion was seriously injured. George Assan, an aged farmer, was killed when the train reached Barboursville. While the engine was returning to the roundhouse here George Selckel, who was walking on the track, was struck and instantly killed.

COLT KILLS AGEO EOUCATOR.

Professor Graves Dies at Ackley, Ia., as Result of Accident.

Eldora, Ia., Aug. 5.—Professor G. A. Graves, a prominent Iowa educator, died during the day at Ackley as the result of trying to break a colt to harness. The animal became unmanageable and Professor Graves was thrown from the rig and fatally injured. He was seventy-eight years old and for the last forty years had taught in schools, colleges and academics in Iowa. For many years he conducted a preparatory school at Iowa City.

TAFT PARTY AT MANILA.

Greeted on Arrival by Gorgeous Water Pageant.

Manila, Aug. 5.—Upon their arrival here Secretary Taft and his party were greeted by a gorgeous water pageant. Governor General Wright, Major General Corbin and Rear Admiral Train, with their staffs and the official reception committee, met the party when the Manchuria anchored.

The battleship Ohio, the forts and craft in the harbor fired the regulation salute for the secretary of war. After the party left the steamship they proceeded to the governor general's residence, where the official welcome was made and where the golden keys of the city were presented to Secretary Taft.

Thousands lined the streets, which were elaborately decorated.

PROBING NEW CHARGES.

Another Agricultural Department Employe Under Investigation.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has admitted that a rigid investigation is being made into the condition of affairs in the bureau of animal industry as a result of admission by Dr. E. F. Salmon, chief of the bureau, that for six years prior to 1902 he was a silent partner of George E. Howard, now vice president of the George E. Howard Printing company, which has had contracts for printing meat inspection labels.

MAKING BETTER TIME

TRAINS ON GREAT NORTHERN AND NORTHERN PACIFIC SHOW LESS OELAY.

St. Paul, Aug. 7.—The restoration of transcontinental train service to almost the normal standard and the acceptance of perishable freight for all points on both roads are positive gains claimed by the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern companies in their struggle with the striking telegraphers. But the telegraphers retort that they have never sought to interrupt the movement of passenger traffic and that perishable freight is accepted "subject to delay," a condition that amounts in many cases to a real embargo. For the strikers it is also claimed that the trainmen have refused to continue to run trains under any of the new conditions, as flagging and telephoning, that have been introduced since the strike began.

Great Northern and Northern Pacific officials declare that the stations are being rapidly manned with operators and that freight and passenger traffic is moving satisfactorily. They say many strikers are returning to work and that within a week practically normal conditions will prevail.

President H. B. Perham of the telegraphers declares that the strike is a success from his point of view. The men, he says, are standing firm and freight traffic is paralyzed.

MOODY OROERS INVESTIGATION.

Would Locate Blame for Interruption of Telegraphic Service.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Attorney General Moody has telegraphed the United States district attorneys at Madison, Wis.; Milwaukee, Wis.; St. Paul, Minn.; Fargo, N. D.; Helena, Mont.; Boise, Ida.; Spokane, Wash.; Seattle, Wash., and Portland, Ore., to investigate the facts as to the interruption of telegraph service on the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads in view of the government's duty to keep unobstructed the avenues of interstate commerce. The Western Union Telegraph company, in connection with the inquiry, announces that that company "and its employes are in no way involved in the strike of the railroad telegraphers."

JAIL COURTSHIP FREES GANG.

Woman Prisoner, in Embrace of Lover, Passes Him a Saw.

Sioux City, Ia., Aug. 5.—While locked in the embrace of George Elmer Custer, her prison lover, Mrs. Grace Butts, serving a sentence for shooting her rival, passed to him the saw that enabled him and seven other dangerous criminals to escape from the county jail. This is the explanation for the jail break, which was accomplished by ripping off the sheet iron ceiling of a cell and sawing a hole through the floor above.

Mrs. Butts and Custer, who was in jail for highway robbery, called sweet nothings across the jail corridor for months. They pleaded for one minute in which to bind their betrothal with a kiss. Jailer McDougall finally consented and Custer was allowed to go to her cell.

Closely did the woman clasp her lover as she planted kiss after kiss upon his lips. Then, it is believed, she gave him the tool that meant freedom.

OISTURBANCES AT WARSAW.

Strikes Incessantly Occurring in Oifferent Trades.

Warsaw, Aug. 5.—Detectives made a successful raid on a house in Crochmalna street, in the Jewish quarter, and captured seventy members of the Social Democratic party, three of whom are organizers.

Strikes are incessantly occurring in the different trades. A battalion of infantry has been posted at the Lilpotrau iron works, which the strikers threaten to destroy.

PEACE ENVOYS MEET

PRESIDENT INTRODUCES COMMISSIONERS TO RUSSO-JAPANESE CONFERENCE.

Luncheon Is Served on Board the Yacht Mayflower and the American Chief Executive Proposes a Toast in Which He Expresses His Most Earnest Hope for an Early and Lasting Peace in the Far East.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Aug. 5.—Representatives of Japan and Russia, who have come to this country to enter into conferences looking to the negotiation of a treaty of peace, were formally introduced to each other during the day by President Roosevelt on board the Mayflower.

When both peace commissions had been received and formally presented to each other they were entertained at luncheon on the Mayflower. At luncheon the president proposed the following toast:

"Gentlemen—I propose a toast to which there will be no answer and to which I ask you in silence standing. I drink to the welfare and prosperity of the sovereigns and peoples of the two great nations whose representatives have met on this ship. It is my most earnest hope and prayer in the interest of not only these two powers but of all mankind that a just and lasting peace may speedily be concluded between them."

President Roosevelt left the Mayflower at 2:40 to return to Sagamore Hill. Ten minutes later the Japanese envoys went on board the Dolphin for the trip to Portsmouth.

ON VERGE OF BATTLE

HOSTILE FORCES SOUTH OF THE TUMEN RIVER IN KOREA ABOUT TO CLASH.

Tokio, Aug. 5.—It is reported that the advance guards of the hostile forces south of the Tumen river are within rifle range. An early conflict is regarded as inevitable.

Godzyadani, Manchuria, Aug. 5.—Dispatches received from Korea report that the Japanese have begun a simultaneous advance from Kuanchodori against the Musariet and Platsabang passes, but that both columns were checked under pressure of the Russian advance detachments. The Russian losses, the dispatches say, were insignificant.

Japanese warships are reported to be cruising off the mouth of Peter the Great bay, on which Vladivostok is situated, their lights often being visible from Russian island.

OETAILS OF SURRENDER.

Japs Captured Over Three Thousand Russians on Sakhalin Island.

Tokio, Aug. 5.—A report giving details of the final pursuit and surrender of the majority of the Russian garrison on Sakhalin island has been received here. It shows that the Russian governor general, Liapnoff, 70 officers and 3,200 men surrendered to the Japanese, with all the maps, records, supplies, etc., of the Russian forces and administration.

COLONIAL TROUBLES INCREASE.

Outbreak Among Natives of German East Africa.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—The governor of German East Africa has telegraphed to the colonial bureau of the foreign office that the natives in the Mtuerbi mountains north of Kilwa have risen; also that there has been an outbreak on the coast at Samanga during which several warehouses were burned. The causes of the discontent appear to be unexplained.

While rebellions are in progress in other German African colonies East Africa hitherto has been quiet. The outbreak therefore causes some concern. The government is thoroughly tired of these colonial wars, in which considerable sums of money have been sunk without bringing either profit or glory.

PREFERS A MONARCHY.

But Emperor William Fears Norway Will Be a Republic.

Copenhagen, Aug. 2.—Since his arrival at the Danish court Emperor William appears to have become convinced that there is no hope of a prince of the house of Bernadotte becoming king of Norway. His majesty now favors Prince Charles of Denmark and he is quoted as saying:

"If Prince Charles does not become king Norway will be a republic. Of course I prefer a monarchy and therefore shall hereafter support the candidacy of Prince Charles."

Another Russian Internal Loan.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—The government has decided on the issuance of another internal loan to the amount of $100,000,000, of which, however, only $75,000,000 may be issued at first. The loan will be practically of the same nature and under the same conditions as that of March last and will probably be issued in about a fortnight.

SWEDISH RIKSDAG ADJOURNS.

Will Reassemble When Norway Replies to Proposals.

Stockholm, Aug. 3.—The extraordinary session of the riksdag was brought to a close during the day. King Oscar was not present but was represented by the new premier, Christian Lundeberg.

In declaring the session closed the speaker of the lower house said the situation still contained disquieting elements, but Sweden would be absolved from blame if a breach occurred after the offer made by the riksdag.

Another special session will be called as soon as Norway is ready to act on the Swedish conditions.

BOLO OAYLIGHT ROBBERY.

Negroes Obtain $900 From a Oes Moines Contractor.

Des Moines, Aug. 4.—Two negro robbers entered the office of Contractor S. T. Roberts in the business district shortly after 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon and robbed him of $415 in cash and more than $500 in checks that he was making out to pay his men. Roberts was in his office alone and pedestrians were on the street when the robbery was committed. One of the negroes assaulted him and beat him while the other seized the money and checks. They made good their escape, but the police have a working description.

AFFECTS 50.000 MEN

EXECUTIVE BOARD OF STRUCTURAL IRON WORKERS FAVORS STRIKE.

Cleveland, Aug. 7.—"Five of the seven members of the executive board of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers have voted in favor of a strike against the American Bridge company," said Secretary J. J. McNamara.

"The strike is contingent on the action that may be taken by President Frank Buchanan. He is in Chicago, but we expect that he will arrive in Cleveland shortly. I have not the least idea that he will go against the vote of the executive board; that being so a strike, in my opinion, is inevitable."

If the structural iron workers are called out on account of the grievances that exist at New Haven, Conn., it is said 50,000 men will be involved, mostly in the Eastern states. In the event of a general strike forty-three counties in Eastern Ohio will be affected.

BOYCOTT REACHES YOKOHAMA.

Chinese Refuse to Handle Freight on Steamer Manchuria.

Yokohama, Aug. 5.—The boycott against America has started here, the Chinese refusing to handle freight on the Pacific Mail steamer Manchuria, bound for Hongkong.

Senator Farris Acquitted.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 7.—State Senator Frank H. Farris was Sunday acquitted by a jury in the circuit court on a charge of bribery in connection with a bill introduced at the session of the state legislature, in 1901, to repeal the statute prohibiting the use of alum in the manufacture of baking powder, commonly known as the "alum bill."

Ole Robertson, a farmer of Hentho township, is the second person to drown in the waters of the Minnesota river south of Appleton this season. It is thought that his horse, which was blind, wandered from the road into the water. The victim was a single man about fifty years old. Life was extinct when the body was found.

Official census returns from sixty-nine of the eighty-three counties in the state have been announced by George F. Wright, supervisor of the census. The counties showing a falling off are nearly all in the southern part of the state, including Blue Earth, Dodge, Faribault, Fillmore, Houston, Le Sueur, McLeod, Murray, Olmsted, Scott, Sibley, Wabasha and Waseca.

Attorney General Young, in an opinion to the railroad and warehouse commission, holds that the law passed by the last legislature relating to mileage tickets or books issued by railroads does not include the transferability of interchangeable mileage. It is the contention of many that the legislature in passing the law intended that all mileage should be transferable, but in some way the clause "except interchangeable mileage now in use" crept into the act after it had left the committee's hand. This clause in the act practically nullifies the entire act, as the railroads now only issue interchangeable mileage.

WAIL OF ROYAL CHEF

WELL PAID BUT MASTERS ARE MOST EXACTING.

How the Kingly Menus Are Prepared —Franz Joseph Selects His Own—Kaiser Eats in Four Languages —Sultan Fears Poison.

London.—"Menus are the greatest burden of sovereignty," once remarked the emperor of Austria, and this, coupled with the statement of the late Czar Alexander III. that a monarch required more diplomacy in dealing with his cooks than with his ministers leads one to believe that culinary matters are a source of unceasing worry to every crowned head.

Emperor Franz Josef has, however, good cause to grumble, because although the actual cost of the food he consumes himself does not amount to $5,000 a year, he pays his chef—a Belgian—a salary of $10,000 per annum, and the kitchen expenses at the palace are never less than $75,000. The reason for this is that, whereas the emperor always takes his meals alone in his study, his palace dinners are produced regardless of expense.

The emperor's chef always submits a menu for the following day's dinner to his royal master when dinner is served. Punctually at six o'clock his valet enters with a large tray, which he places on the emperor's desk, and while Franz Josef is negotiating his soup he scans to-morrow's menu and crosses off with a blue pencil anything he does not care for.

At the German court things are somewhat different. There are four chefs—a German, a Frenchman, an Englishman and an Italian—because the kaiser never decides till the day arrives whether he will have a German, a French, an English or an Italian meal, with the result that there is much scurrying to prepare a menu. This is not an easy matter if there are many guests present, because each chef is only allowed so much a head, and he must serve up an elegant meal at that figure. Each chef has five assistants and has to render an account of each day's expenses to the head steward.

The chef at the Portuguese court is an Englishman and he receives only $4,000 a year. When King Carlos paid his first visit to England and was staying with the late Lord Salisbury, he said that what struck him most about Britain was the roast beef, and he forthwith took back with him an English chef. King Carlos insists on an English meal every day, but the queen and the members of the household have two French chefs to study their wants, and they each receive salaries of $5,500 per annum.

The most trying post any man can wish for is that of chef to the sultan of Turkey at the palace at Yildiz. Here the royal kitchen is situated right under the royal apartments; it is quite a small room, strongly guarded, and even the windows are barred. The sultan's horror of poison led him on one occasion to install a soldier whom he trusted as chef, and for two years he endured badly cooked food rather than face the risk of poison.

The present chef has held his post seven years, but he is only responsible to Kalarji, the chief steward, for the food, and this official is in his turn responsible to the sultan. When the meal is ready it is placed on a tray and the tray is then covered with a black cloth, the ends of which are sealed by Kelarji before it is borne into the imperial apartment.

The czar of Russia's chef is likewise a much harassed individual, but as he is well paid—his salary from all sources being over $10,000 a year—he is not to be pitied.

THIRTEEN PROVES UNLUCKY

Courtship Lasted 13 Months; April 13 Set for Wedding; Groom Dies After 13 Days' Illness.

Muskegon, Mich.—The number "13" proved unlucky to F. Delong, who died here after all preparations had been completed for his marriage to one of the most prominent young women of this section.

After a courtship of just 13 months Delong proposed and was accepted. April 13 was set as the wedding day, and all preparations for the wedding were completed when the prospective bridegroom became ill. For 13 days and 13 nights the bride-to-be was his constant attendant, even to eating her meals at his bedside.

The unlucky combination of thirteens had been noted, and when the thirteenth day of illness ended to-day the sudden death of the patient was hardly a surprise to his superstitious friends.

The young woman who was to be a bride April 13 is hysterical, and refused to leave the hospital or be consoled.

Nordenskjold, the famous arctic explorer, has returned to Montevideo, Paraguay, from an expedition into the interior of South America to the borders of Brazil, Bolivia and Peru, where he found Indians who had never seen white men. They are among the most primitive people in the world. They believed him to be some god because he gave them flesh of monkeys he had hunted. They begged him to remain as their chief, but he did not accept the offer, knowing the prestige would not outlive his ammunition.

It is not strange that Page fence will stretch up smoothly over hills and down through ravines. It is made to do it, and it is simply putting into use one of the innate properties of its coiled wire. It is elastic.

It is not strange that short kinks or bends in wire cannot supply this elasticity like a coil or spiral. If they could, why haven't the manufacturers of spring balances, or of car springs used a kinked, crimped or other shaped metal than a coil. Probably the reason is that kinked or crimped metal will not let out and take up, will not shorten and lengthen like a coil spring.

Further, why do you suppose that high-carbon stock is always used for springs unless it is because low-carbon stock will not make a spring. Low-carbon stock is much the cheaper.

Hair springs in watches are made of only a little higher carbon stock than Page-Wire is made of, in fact, there is not much more difference between the proportion of carbon in Page-Wire and watch-spring wire, than there is between the fence wire generally in use and that which we use for all the horizontal wires in Page fences.

Who will John Eastman support for governor next year? The Republican campaign managers better find out before they attempt to make any nominations.

Query: Will the narrow escape of a family from drowning at the Louisville ferry last week have a tendency to hurry the honorable board of commissioners in their work of putting in a much needed bridge at this point on the river.

An exchange tells of an editor in South Dakota who started about fifteen years ago with fifteen cents, and who is now worth $100,000. His accumulation of wealth is owing to his frugality and strict attention to business and to the fact that his uncle died and left him $99,998.

"Northome seems to be the best town on the "North line" of the M. & I. Why? That is the only place where the local papers show that the merchants have enough "git" in them to go after the business by advertising," is a timely remark from the Itasca County Independent.

The latest from the state editorial association is to the effect that that body of Minnesota scribes will go down the great lakes to Sarnia, Ontario, this summer and upon the return trip through Duluth will tour the Iron Range country for a week. Hibbing, Eveleth and Virginia will be visited if the present plans of the executive committee of the association carry.

It is suggested that Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls harmonize on the county seat fight until the issue is brought to a vote, which will be after all the legal trimmings are exhausted and that time will be at least five years hence, says the Roseau County Times. Our experience in Roseau county is such that it is safe to advise our brother newspaper men in Red Lake county to drop the subject until the real fight comes up.

The Thief River Press has its axe out for the county officers who have been "aiding and abetting Red Lake Falls in the county seat fight" and tells its readers that their officials necks are in danger of getting the full effect of the vengence of Secretary McDonald. There are strange developments in every campaign, but friend McDonald will have to develop greater power than he did in the recent campaign before anyone needs to be uneasy. There are things people can do and again some things they can't, and McDonald will find he has a job on his hands before he can deliver the goods politically in Red Lake county.

In dealing with the young people who leave school early and the after conditions of each, Lafe Young, editor of the DesMoines Capital, says; "The boys of DesMoines who are tired of going to school, should commit the following to memory: The average educated man gets a salary of $1,000 a year. He works 40 years making a total of $40,000 in a life-time. The average day laborer gets $1.50 per day, 300 days in a year or $450 per year. He works 44 years and earns $18,000. The difference of $22,000 equals the education. To acquire this earning capacity it takes twelve years at school of 180 days each, or 2,160 days. Divide $22,000, the value of an education, by 2,180, number of days required in getting it, we find that each day in school is worth more than $10 to the pupil"

The Prison Mirror, published at the Stillwater penitentiary by inmates of the prison, has started on its nineteenth volume. Editorially the paper says: "With this week's issue The Mirror enters on its nineteenth year. During this period the paper has frequently changed management, but it has never missed an issue. The present editor, like the majority of his predecessors, has had no training as a newspaper man. In fact, during the eighteen years of its existence there has been only two or three men on the paper who have had any previous experience in newspaper work. This either indicates that editors are phenomenally honests, or else they are so rich that they need not depart from the straight and narrow path. The Mirror takes pride in the fact that it is the oldest institutional paper in the country. Since it was inaugurated almost every other penal or corrective establishment has started a paper along similar lines."

CHAMP CLARK AND 1908.

The following from the Saturday Evening Post, is as concise and straight-from-the-shoulder opinion as has appeared bearing on the presidential campaign of 1908. Both opinions come from able leaders, and Mr. Payne's answer to Mr. Clark will probably throw as much light on the position of the Republicans in the next campaign as can be found anywhere. The article follows:

Very recently in political circles at Washington, Champ Clark, of Missouri, was quoted as having expressed the positive belief that the nomination and election of Bryan are already assured. One of the long-time friends of the distinguished Missourian wrote him a letter of inquiry, telling him the answer was to be for publication, and he promptly received the following reply:

"What I told Brother W—— was this: If a convention were held now, Colonel Bryan would undoubtedly be nominated, for two reasons: Because he raised his stock largely in the St. Louis Convention, coming out much bigger than be went in, and because the Eastern brethren made such a botch of the last campaign.

"The way the Republicans are performing, all the Democrats have to do is to stand still and see the salvation of the Lord. In ten days after the committees get to work when Congress meets, the Republicans will be worse split on the Tariff than we have been on Finance since 1894. Dunne's overwhelming victory in Chicago, Colonel Tom Davis' glorious triumph in West Virginia, and the reduced Republican majority in the election of Hemenway's successor in the Evansville District in Indiana, are straws—great big straws at that—showing which way the wind blows. The Democrats are coming out of the brush and putting on their fighting clothes.

"Meantime, I am farming, writing a book, studying the Tariff from the year One, and lecturing when it suits me. Birds, bees, pigs and calves are more comfortable companions than 'Standpatters.'"

Honorable Serenu E. Payne, chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means of the National House of Representatives, was informed that Champ Clark expresses hope of Republican dissenions, particularly on the Tariff, and he was requested to give some expression of his views on the subject. Mr. Payne replied very promptly, as follows:

"I agree with Mr. Clark so far as he recommends that the Democrats 'stand still.' It would have been better for the Democratic party, and for the country, if they had taken this position years ago.

"He will not find much division in the Republican ranks on the Tariff question when Congress meets. The Republican party is a party of protection, and, to a man, its members believe in the principles of the Dingley Tariff Law. Some of them believe that a few amendments would improve it. Some of those who framed it believed that when it was enacted. But no one man can have his own way about all the items of a law of this kind. The Republican party is firm in the belief that a policy decided upon by a majority of the Republican members of the present Congress will be the policy of the party. The result will not give hope or comfort to our Democratic friends—the enemy.

"It would seem that Mr. Clark would have enough to do to help turn his own Republican State back into the Democratic ranks without indulging in optimistic prophecies concerning the country. He will awake some day to find that Missouri is a great, enterprising, commercial and manufacturing State; that its farms are being taken up by the farmers of Iowa and other Republican States who know the benefits of protection from past experience. Mr. Clark will find that it will require all the arguments he can muster to convince his own people that Republicanism is wrong.

"Nothing but widespread financial distress will bring a glimmer of hope to the Democratic party. If the distinguished Missourian will but 'stand still' and possess his gentle soul in patience, he will witness 'the salvation of the Lord' in continued Republican ascendency."

Pointers For Men.

Sauk Centre Herald:

Men ought to know that—

College girls are as willing to get married as any other but men are not so willing to ask them.

Nothing makes a married woman so mad as to intimate she proposed Yet everyone helps some.

When one wife persuades her husband to do wrong, a thousand keep theirs in the paths of rectitude.

Marriage is a lottery in which no man draws a blank but there is an awful lot of men who wish they had.

Married life is divided into three periods—the lovey-dovey, the ducky-darling and "I'll go home to mother."

A wife sometimes sticks so close to her husband that he regards her in the same light he does a sticking plaster.

When a man is first married he always thinks his wife is out of sight. After a while he often wishes she was.

If it wasn't absolutely essential to have a man at a wedding ceremony we men would have a hard time in the world.

The funniest thing about a wedding ceremony is the way a bride winks at herself when she promises to "obey."

The first thing that pops in a woman's mind when a young man asks for her daughter's hand is "who will the grandchild resemble?"

If the brides were as particular about the groom's purity as grooms are about bride's there would be a great improvement to the world's morality.

When a girl is first married she thinks she belongs in another class generally changes her mind and thinks she belongs in another class after six months of wedded life.

"Two years ago I came to Hot Springs to take the baths and be treated for bladder and kidney trouble. After spending two months here under the care of one of the most prominent physicians and receiving little or no benefit, I was persuaded to try Peruna. I had little faith in it, but after using one bottle I noticed a marked improvement. Three bottles entirely cured me. I can cheerfully recommend Peruna to any one afflicted as I was."—Fred R. Pennell.

Thomas M. Hicks, 1131 13th St., Louisville, Ky., writes:

"Neglected colds, irregular habits and overwork brought on serious kidney and bladder trouble. My blood seemed inflamed with poison, my stomach became entirely demoralized, a bad odor emanated from my urine, and I realized I was a sick man. The doctors dosed me to their heart's content, but I kept growing worse. Then fortune brought Peruna to my notice and I at once began to mend. I kept taking it for five months before I was completely cured. I feel now that I owe my life to Peruna and will never cease to be grateful."—Thomas M. Hicks.

S. L. Earle, Superintendent of Streets, Jacksonville, Fla., writes:

"I am a firm believer in Peruna. I find that it has been of practical benefit to a number of the men employed in the Street Cleaning Department in the city of Jacksonville. They are especially exposed to the inclemency of the weather and a number who caught cold, which later developed into pneumonia, kidney or liver trouble, were cured through the use of Peruna."—S. L. The Drama Of The Century.

Klaw & Erlunger's mammoth mechanical production of Gen. Lew Wallace's mighty play, "Ben Hur", with its lustrous Star of Bethlehem its camels, Arabian steeds, Oriental trappery and mimic splendor of the "gorgeous East", is beyond dispute the most elaborate spectacle ever staged in the history of the world. Its series of seventeen scenes present to the eyes a feast of mutifarious beauty and variety, all set to a symphonic accompaniment of graceful music. The exciting episodes such as the galley scene, with its horde of chained slaves, the sea-fight, the rescue in mid-sea and the thrilling race with two chariots and eight horses, combinen with the picturesque scenes illustrating the Wise Men in the desert, the moon-lit lake in the Orchard of Palms, where Ben-Hur and Iras enjoy seclusion and make love in Iras' barge, the palm-waving worshippers on Mount Olivet and the Grove of Daphoe with its nymphs and Devadasi, dancing in their skins of beasts, to the music of the kissing cymbals, simply captivate the great audiences that are nightly in attendance wherever it is being enacted.

Whatever may be thought of the purely dramatic element supplied by William Young in his adaptation of General Wallace's unique romance, it must be admitted that the result is an effective popular appeal to four classes of play-goers—the spectacle-loving, the sensation-loving, the book-lovers, who like to see their favorite novels enacted on the stage and the religious people of the community who are always attracted when a play containing healthy religious influence is presented.

"Ben Hur" is now in its seventh season with no abatement in interest, Its booking at the Metropolitan Opera House, St. Paul, for the week of Aug. 28th and the Metropolitan Theatre, Minneapolis, for the week of Sept. 4th, will attract hundreds from this vicinity. It will be well for those who intend to witness it to write in advance and reserve seats.

Joseph Helm, of this city, has been working on a plan to run a binder with a gasoline engine, the engine to be used as a means of power for the machinery while the horses would merely move the binder. Throughout the country there are many fields of grain ready to cut, but owing to the water standing on the fields the binders would refuse to work, the bull wheel slipping so as to retard the movement of the machines. With Mr. Helm's idea carried out, the engine would do the work now depended on of the bull-wheel, and the grain could be cut regardless of the mud. Joe has submitted his plans to several of the leading machine firms, and it would not be at all surprising if his ideas wuuld be put into vogue. The plan is certainly feasible, and may mean considerable to the farmers of the state.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climate conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clima, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists A. L. Reichart.

Fraud Exposed.

A few counterfeiters have lately been making and trying to sell imitations of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and other medicines, thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit, through stealing the reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing diseases, for over 35 years. A sure protection, to you, is our name on the wrapper. Look for it, on all Dr. King's or Bucklen's remedies, as all others are mere imitations. H. E. New Towns in North Dakota.

The extensive railroad building now being done in North Dakota has brought tributary to railroad facilities an additional vast area of the rich agricultural sections of northern and western North Dakota. The Great Northern railway is building a number of new extensions from its main line northward notably that of the Sarles extension of the Edmore line, the Thorne extension running north from York, the Maxbass extension running northwestward from Towner, and a further extension of the Westhope line to Antler.

The building of these new lines has brought into being a number of new towns which are fully described in a pamphlet recently issued by the Great Northern railway. By application to Mr. F. I. Whitney, Passenger Traffic Manager, St. Paul, Minn., a copy of these pamphlets "New Extensions in North Dakota" or "New Towns in North Dakota" will be mailed to any address. 6w

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo O. Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the vile attendant on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. FEMALE WEAKNESS

542 1-2 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wilhelmina Snow

"I have for several years suffered at times with heart trouble. I got so bad I could not sleep half the night, and had to sit up on the side of the bed lots of times to get breath. Three of my brothers have died of heart trouble, and I thought I was going the same way, but about two and a half years ago I got a pamphlet about Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and thought I would try a few bottles. After using them I recovered, and have had better health since then than before for several years. I can heartily recommend them for heart trouble."—REV. ECHOES.

"Eenie, meenie, miney mo,
Crack a fenney, finey fo,
Ommanuga, poppatuga,
Rick, stick, dan do."
No sense for savants wisdom laden
Lies within that childish strain;
But there's bliss that comes from Aidenn
Down life's golden shore again,
When the lay that used to throb us
Comes from out the long ago,
Time, old graybeard, cannot rob us
Of our "eenie, meenie mo."

"Entry, mentry, cutey corn,
Apple seed and apple thorn,
Wire, brier, limber lock,
Six geese in a flock."
Ah! old graybeard, you can never
Still the song that used to thrill,
Hide away the forms that ever
Troop along the meadow hill.
Song of cheer and mery laughter!
Lad and lassie, they will flock
Through the years of the hereafter
With their sunny "limber lock."

"One zaw, two zaw, zig zaw zam,
Bobtail, vinegar, ticklum tan,
Harum, scarum, virgum marum,
Stringlum, stranglum, buck and John."
Ah! we recall each joyous fellow,
And each lassie sweet and fair,
With the silver moonbeams mellow
Spreading halos o'er them there.
And again their faces meet us
As no other faces can;
And their voices come to greet us
With the dear old "zig zaw zan."

"Eenie, meenie, monie my,
Bassaloney, boney, stry,
Hare, ware, crown, nack,
Alko, balko, we wo wack."
No classic stanzas laid before us
E'en by master hands can thrall,
Cannot thrill us and implore us
Like that far-off echoing call.
There is throb of joy and frolic,
Sweetness of the days gone by,
Trembling in each ringing rollick
Of our "eenie, monie my."

THE EVICTION OF MONSIEUR

By
J. C. PLUMMER

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"OUT on the street he goes, bag and baggage," said Mrs. Raggett, "unless he pays me what he owes me. And to-morrow morning, too."

"I think Musseer Grande means all right," remonstrated Capt. Gaggett, somewhat feebly.

"You are a nice judge of people, you are," retorted his wife, scornfully, "there's not a rum-sucking old sailor about the wharves who hasn't borrowed money from you, and they all mean well. You'd think the Old Boy meant well, I suppose, if he stuck you on his fork."

Capt. Raggett, guiltily conscious of having loaned Capt. Simon Bond a dollar, that very morning, held his peace.

"For a whole month that old Frenchman has been promising me my money," continued Mrs. Raggett, "says he's a letter coming from France with a lot of money in it. Where's the letter, I'd like to know? I won't be made a fool of no more."

"Wait until to-morrow night," pleaded Capt. Raggett, "the letter may come to-morrow."

"Letter from the moon," sniffed his wife, "there's no letter, you ninny; he's only playing off on me for time."

"If you please," said a gentle voice from the staircase, "is it that the post has come not yet?"

"Yes, he's come, gone and forgot it," replied Mrs. Raggett, roughly.

"And no letter," cried Monsieur Grande, with a gesture of despair. "I am desolated, Madame Raggett. Again I cannot fulfil my promise. But patience, Madame, it must come, it must come."

"There may have been gales at sea," put in Capt. Raggett.

"Yes, yes," exclaimed the Monsieur, "and held the ships ahead, no aback; patience, Madame, patience."

The old man ascended the stairs to his room, supperless, for Mrs. Raggett had made no hospitable sign.

Monsieur Grande was the sole boarder at the Raggett mansion. The tall, thin, old Frenchman, with the oval of his face accentuated by the grey imperial at his chin, with his gentle manners and perpetual struggle with the idioms of the English language, had made many friends in the neighborhood, but he had never made a favorable impression on Mrs. Raggett. That strenuous lady denounced his gentleness as weakness, and his mistakes in language, stupidity. At first the Monsieur made a meagre living, writing for some French newspaper, but, latterly, his contributions seemed unwelcome, and he became back in his board. Then a letter came from France, and the Monsieur came to Mrs. Raggett, his face as radiant as a sunny day in June. In his excited manner he read that a legal matter had been settled in France, and that a remittance of 3,000 frans would be made the monsieur by the next mail. Monsieur trod on tha air. He invited both the captain and his wife to a dinner at a French restaurant, and to the theatre afterwards. He promised treats, galore, to the neighbors, and presents to tha dirty children, who loved to play tricks on the old Frenchman.

But day succeeded day, and the letter came not. Day by day the irony of Mrs. Raggett changed to insulting mockery, and the gentle old man was overwhelmed with shame. Wistfully he watched for the postman each day, and sadly he bowed his head, as he passed the house, without leaving the expected missive.

Capt. Raggett, entering his room, stealthily, found the old man sitting with his face on his hands.

"Ahoy, musseer," said the captain, softly, "here's a bit of bread and 'am I hooked from the safe. Eat it."

"I am desolated," groaned the monsieur, "will the letter nevaire come?"

"Musseer," said the captain, suffering from a throat obstruction, "you'd better get ready to weigh anchor to-morrow."

"Comment?" asked the monsieur.

"The missus 'll ask you to get out to-morrow," explained the captain, still suffering with impeded utterance. "I want to give you the word."

"I must leave; is it that I must leave?"

"That's what she says," said the captain, "and you come straight down to the schooner Nautilus. I'll give you a berth."

"But, my letter, captain. It will come here, and I must be here to get it."

Capt. Raggett shook his head, sadly. He did not believe in the letter, but not for the world would he have had tha monsieur suspect his doubts.

Mrs. Raggett arose the next morning, in a first rata humor for an eviction. She had slept poorly, and had discovered that her husband had loaned a dollar to Capt. Bond. She ate breakfast with a ferocious gleam in her eyes, which chilled the blood of the captain, and directly the meal was finished she prepared for action.

"Mister Grande," she said, sharply, entering the room of the old Frenchman, "I've come for the money due me."

"Mais the letter, it has not come," exclaimed the old man. "When it comes I will pay you."

"Mister Granda," said Mrs. Raggett, "you will do me the favor of leaving this house and board."

Monsieur Grande made no move to leave. He sat, as if stunned, in his room.

Mrs. Raggett was a woman of prompt action. She summoned a ragged, slattern of a man, called Pete, who did odd jobs for enough to buy a drink, and ordered him to carry the monsieur's scanty furniture out on the sidewalk.

The neighbors gathered, as the small pile of effects were placed alongside the gutter, and commented in undertones. When the last piece of furniture was out of the room, Pete grasped the arm of the old man, as he leaned against the wall, and began to drag him out. Then something happened. Pete lay down, suddenly, on the floor, his head striking the boards with a thump, and Capt. Raggett, his face as red as a lobster, escorted the old man carefully down stairs.

Pathetically, the old man perched himself on the pile of his household goods, and concealed his face with his hands. The neighbors looked on, silently. Many of them had undergone the same misfortune in their time, and their sympathy was not the less, because they were silent. They were not wont to be expressive of their emotions.

Suddenly, the old Frenchman's head arose, a hopeful, wistful expression came into his eyes, for away up the street he saw the grey uniform of the postman. He came briskly down the street, stopping at one house after another, until he reached the Raggett house.

"IT MEANS THAT I AM RICH."

Monsieur gazed at him, eagerly.

"Nothing," said the postman, shaking his head.

"Rien," groaned the old man, his head dropping on his breast.

Mrs. Raggett laughed scornfully, and Capt. Raggett, who was leaning against the mantel-piece in the lowest possible spirits, was so depressed at the non-delivery of the letter that he knocked a nickel clock off the mantel and with it a mass of papers tucked behind the clock.

"Orkard idjut," exclaimed Mrs. Raggett.

The captain solemnly picked up tha clock and replaced it. Then he gathered up the papers. There was one bulky envelope from some installment house which had come unsealed and contained advertising matter. As the captain picked this up another letter dropped from out of the advertisements.

"What's this?" exclaimed he, "a letter for M. M. Francois Grande. Where did this come from?"

Mrs. Raggett colored. "I suppose it got tucked into that there other letter and nobody noticed it," she said. "Let me see it."

"It belongs to Musseer Grande," said the captain, and he bore it to him.

With eyes gleaming, with gaelic utterances pouring from his lips, the old man opened the letter. There was the draft for 3,000 francs, and, more, a promisa of a like sum in two months.

The old Frenchman waved the draft, triumphantly.

"I was sure, captain," he exclaimed. "It is that I am riche. It is that we have a dinner at the restaurant, that tha friends have presents and the children hava bon-bons."

Mrs. Raggett was harsh, but she had some feeling. She declined the invitation to the dinnar.

"It'd have choked me," she exclaimed.

Monsieur still boards at the Raggett house. His articles sell again, and in two months' time another draft and another dinner, more presents, more bonbons for the children.

If the imported ants really destroy the boll weevil, they will be forgiven any additional annoyance they cause in connection with the picnic pie and cake.

The Stork.

The stork has been known to perish in the flames of a burning house rather than to desert her young.

First Cultivated Rose.

It is said that the first cultivated rose was planted in Belgium in the year 1522. The damosk rose was taken to England from France in 1573, the moss rose about 1724 and the China rose fifty years later.

Tobacco For Wives.

One hundred and twenty pounds of tobacco was the stipend paid for a wife by some of the early settlers of Virginia.

Weird "Angel Shark."

A fish known as the "angel shark" and generally found only in the north Pacific has just been caught by a trawler in the North sea. It is over four feet long and has oddly shaped fleshy wings instead of the ordinary fins.

Ether was first used in surgical operations in 1846.

Brutal Law.

In England some centuries ago if an ordinary workman without permission moved from one parish to another in search of work or better wages he was branded with a hot iron.

"Fourteenth Guest" Agency.

There is a most curious agency in Paris whose business it is to supply the fourteenth guest. Parisians, like some other people, have a superstitious objection to dinner parties of thirteen, and this agency undertakes to supply at short notice a lady or gentleman "warranted to give satisfaction."

The Book of Job.

The Book of Job is believed to be the most ancient literary work in existence. It is known to have been written prior to the Pentateuch and prior to the promulgation of the law.

Literary Mexico.

Mexico is credited with being at the head of the Latin-American countries in the matter of letters. Besides possessing the oldest organs of Spanish-American journalism, it is said to have in active existence the first library established in America, which is now at least 300 years old.

Potato Pancakes.

Pare and grate eight large potatoes, cut in an onion, beat in four eggs, add a teaspoonful of salt, mix with two tablespoonfuls of baking powder, add and mix well. Fry in a hot skillet.

Bamboos Grow Best at Night.

The growth of the giant bamboos of the East Indies is so rapid that a difference in the rate of increase between day and night can be observed. The growth is more rapid at night, because then the air is more charged with moisture than in the daytime.

The First Typewriter.

The first typewriter was received by the public with suspicion. It seemed subversive of existing conditions. A reporter who took one into a courtroom first proved its real worth.

Autumn Leaves.

It is popularly believed that autumn leaves assume their brilliant hues when touched by the frosts. This is an error. Autumn leaves turn red and yellow and brown and intermediate tones because that is the natural way for leaves to ripen.

Gaborian's Visitors.

Gaboriau was troubled with visitors, and of those he desired never to see again he suspended photos in his servants' room for guidance. Once an author called. The servants ran to consult the cartes and, being puzzled, asked the visitor to smile, which being complied with he was informed determinedly, "Master is not at home."

The United States is the largest consumer of tin in the world, but derives its supplies mainly from the Straits Settlements, from Bunka and other eastern sources.

Gold jewelry, says an authority, may be perfectly cleansed by being placed for half an hour in a bowl of warm water to which a generous quantity of ammonia has been added. Stir the jewelry around in the water for a moment, cover the bowl and let stand.

The black diamond fields in Brazil belong to the government, which farms them out and makes a further profit by a 13 per cent export duty.

Germany's Oldest Inn.

The oldest inn in Germany is the Gasthof Zum Riesen in Miltenberg-on-the-Main, which was already of considerable age when the Emperor Frederick I. stayed there in 1158. Since then it has entertained a succession of historical personages, including Gustavus Adolphus and Martin Luther and in more recent times General von Moltke.

THE PORCUPINE.

Only Known Creature That Eats the Foliage of the Hemlock.

"You don't have to skirmish around much to get feed to fatten one of these hemlock porcupines on," says an old woodsman. "Just sprinkle some salt over a stick of cordwood or saw log for tha matter, and he'll eat the whole business and enjoy it as you would mince pie." The customary diet of these animals is hemlock browse. They make themselves a home in a hollow log or under the roots of some old tree, but always within reach of a big hemlock.

The hemlock is their pasture, and they make beaten paths going to and fro between the tree and their home. Once up in a tree the porcupine goes out on the big limbs and, pulling the small branches in with one paw, browses on the pungent leaves. In going through the woods you will find little piles of these fine leaves on the ground under hemlock trees. That means that a porcupine is feeding in the tree, the leaves on the ground being dropped from his feast.

Sometimes a porcupine will remain in a hemlock tree for a week at a time, hugging close to the trunk at night and feeding during the day. This curious little beast is the only known living thing that eats the foliage of the hemlock.

DANGER SPOTS IN A STORM.

Places to Avoid When the Lightning Is Flashing.

Out of doors trees should be avoided in a thunderstorm, and if from the rapidity with which the explosion follows the flash it is evident that electric clouds are near at hand a recumbent posture is the safest. It is seldom dangerous to take shelter under sheds, carts or low buildings or under the arch of a bridge, and a distance of twenty or thirty feet from tall trees or houses is an eligible situation, for should a discharge take place these elevated bodies are most likely to receive it.

It is well also to avoid water, for it is a good conductor, and the height of a human being near the stream may determine the direction of a discharge. Within doors we are tolerably safe in the middle of a carpeted room or when standing on a thick hearth rug. The chimney should be avoided on account of the conducting power of the carbon deposited in it, and gilt moldings or bell wires are sources of risk. In bed we are tolerably safe, since blankets and feathers are bad conductors.

It is injudicious to take refuge in a cellar, because the discharge is often from the earth to a cloud, and buildings frequently sustain the greatest injury in their basements.

THE TERM "IDIOT."

In the Original Greek It Simply Meant a Private Person.

The word idiot is itself of interesting history. Its primary Greek significance was that of a private as distinguished from a public person. Our words idiom, idiosyncrasy, etc., are from the same root. The idiot in Greek was simply one not engaged in public affairs. The beginnings of the degradation of the word are shown in its application soon to the common people as distinguished from the upper classes. It was then applied to unprofessional and lay people and soon became the slurring title of the unskillful and awkward. By slow degrees it became applicable to the stupid and at last to the imbecile and idiot. As late as the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries the word was still used in its earlier senses. This long sad history speaks indirectly of the pathetic history of the imbecile. If he was not killed or starved to death by neglect, etc., he was usually reduced to the condition of a beast either about the house or fields or was actually driven into the woods and forced to live in caves, among wild animals, etc. In 1799 Itard took a "wild boy" found in the forests of Aveyron and tried to teach him. The ability of the wild boys and wolf children to live and the number that did so shows that idiocy, as we have later learned, is of all degrees and that a mind may be variously defective in some ways, even idiotic, but in others with capabilities well preserved. Blind Tom, the pianist, and the large number of mathematic idiots are examples that show how far we are from understanding the real nature of idiocy, and they more than suggest the partial retention of sound mentality of the defective, the possibility of seizing upon the one or few normal or even highly developed faculties and perhaps bringing others into co-ordination with them and to normality. The court fools and jesters of the olden times were often such partial idiots and defectives, and they truly lived upon their "wits," which were often better than those of their masters.—American Medicine.

THE VALUE OF EXAMPLE.

To have your child truthful, be truthful.

To have him temperate, be temperate in all things.

To have him kind to others, be yourself kind to others.

Prescribe healthful amusements and so far as you can take part in them.

Prove to him by your life that a good name is to be chosen before great riches.

Teach him that riches are not to be despised, but should never be got by doing harm to others; that when acquired should be treated as a trust, not as a hoard.

To have him honest, present to him in yourself a living example of honesty. The chief part of a child's knowledge comes through observation. Acts mean more to him than speech.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

From an authentic source it is reported that owing to lack of transportation and storage facilities in Russia, the grain shipping situation is in a precarious condition. This spring transportation at St. Petersburg was blocked. At all times tens of thousands of cars were received at St. Petersburg in a fermented condition and were condemned to be burned. This blockade not only affects the grain now in storage and in transportation, whereby thousands of carloads will be lost, but the safety of the present crop is also jeopardized, as the outlook at present is that the way cannot be cleared to handle the new crop.

Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the evils attendant on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. Nine Nations

Now Use Liquozone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquozone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some one whom Liquozone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquozone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquozone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

Vol. 22. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, AUGUST 17, 1905 No 49

ASK FOR A NEW DITCH

Freeholders of Gervais Township File a Petition For a New Ditch To Drain Wet Lands.

Auditor Ford received a petition this week signed by August Konikson, et. al., asking that a public ditch be constructed in Gervais township for the purpose of draining seventeen swamps in that town and the matter will come up for preliminary hearing at the meeting of the board on September 9.

The route of the proposed ditch will be as follows: Commencing at the southwest corner of section 12-151-43, thence going north on the section line to the northwest corner of the southwest quarter of section 12 in said town, thence west on the quarter line to about the center of section 11, thence running southwest to the southwest corner of section 11, thence running south through the eastern part of section 15 to at or near the section line between sections 22 and 23 of said town and terminating at the southeast corner of section 22.

The ditch will result in a great deal of benefit to the lands in that part of the county, and will likely be ordered by the board.

Mostly Graft.

The Red Lake County Agricultural Society's annual fair was held at Thief River Falls this week closing yesterday. The exhibits in the stock and agricultural product lines were considerably smaller than usual but the horse racing program was better than usual. A big crowd attended and from a financial standpoint the fair was a decided success.

To tell the plain truth about the fair it was not satisfactory to the public, as there was entirely too much "graft" in evidence.—Plummer Pioneer.

MONEY ALL IN.

Treasurer Crompe Has Drafts For Rest of Insurance On School.

Treasurer Crompe, of Independent School District 15, received two drafts for $994.70 last Monday morning, being the balance of the money due the district on the Washington school building destroyed here early this year.

Part of the money was received earlier in the season, and with the rest the district is in fine shape financially.

Work on the new building on the North Side is moving along nicely and it is expected that the contractor will be ready to go to work on the framework and brick laying within a few days. The basement is being completed, and as soon as things can be put in shape the building will be rushed with all haste.

The new structure will be an ornament to the North Side and the city at large, and the people will hail the day when it is completed.

"Sheeney" Will Wed.

The many Red Lake Falls friends of the genial Art Ittuer, of St. Hilaire, will learn with pleasure that he is to be married this week to a prominent young lady of St. Hilaire, whose name is Christine J. Torreson. The ceremony will take place at the bride's home in St. Hilaire and will be witnessed only by the immediate relatives and friends of the young couple. Art is an exemplary young man, and while the young lady is not known here she is said to be well fitted as a life's companion to the man of her choice. The Gazette joins with the people of this city in extending congratulations.

PLUMMER'S FIRST FIRE

Butcher Shop and Harness Shop At the New Town Out East Go Up In Smoke Monday Morning.

Red Lake county's prosperous new town out east suffered her first fire loss early last Monday morning, at which time two of their business houses went up in smoke and the town had a close call from being seriously damaged by the fire fiend.

Early that morning fire was discovered in the Rothstein butcher shop and when noticed was well under way. The alarm was given as soon as possible and the people did all in their power to check the flames, but being without fire fighting apparatus they were handicapped and the building was soon doomed, as was also the harness shop of A. Reibe adjoining the meat market.

Mr. Rothsteid's family occupied living rooms over the meat shop and were forced to make a hasty exit from the building, losing nearly all their clothes and their household goods. The contents of the market and of the harness shop were partly saved.

The origin of the fire is a mystery, as no one was in the building down stairs at the time. Neither of the losers had any insurance to speak of, and the loss falls heavily on them at the time they were getting a fair start. It is understood that both will rebuild.

L. L. Smith, of Ada, has accepted the position as manager of the electric light plant, and will enter upon his new duties within a week or so. PAY TO HUNT.

Game Licenses Under New Law Are Different from Old.

The Red Lake county nimrods may soon procure their hunting licenses. It was expected that the auditor's office would have begun to issue them by this time, but owing to the fact that the state game commission neglected to have printed on the license form one of the most essential things called for under the new game laws, the applicants will have to wait a few days until the proper forms arrive here.

No provision is made on the license for the applicant's affidavit of residence, age, heighth, etc., a point that is even more essential than last year, for the reason that a person securing a hunting license for big or small game must swear he or she is a resident, not only of the state but also of the county.

The new license forms are much different than any which have before been received, though not perhaps, any larger in size, they will have the appearance of a blanket ballot at a municipal election and will make a comfortable pocketful for the person possessing one of them.

Attached to the licenses this year are five coupons for shipping purposes, one being for moose, two for deer and two for game birds. These shipping coupons permit the shipping of moose, deer or fifty birds from any point within the state to any other point within the state.

In securing a license this year, the auditor or his deputy will have, in addition to filling out the license to write the number of the license thirteen times, the name of the county seventeen times and the applicant's description four times.

The licenses cost $1, are nontransferable and expire December 31, 1905. There must be a personal application for every license issued This means that a person residing away from Red Lake Falls cannot procure a license by proxy or through the mails. He must present himself in person to be sized up by the auditor or deputy when the description is written. The description includes heighth, weight, color of the hair and eyes, complexion and any distinctive marks.

Quite a number of people do not yet understand that licenses to hunt big and small game is included in one form issued by the county auditor. To hunt birds in this county a person does not need license, but the resident of one county must have a license if he desires to hunt birds in another county of his state. Then, too no birds can be shipped even within the county where they were shot, without the shipping coupon found on a hunting license.

Gored By Vicious Cow.

Ole Olson whose home is in section 31 of Garnes township lies in a precarious condition as the result of being gored by a vicious cow several days ago.

It seems that the cows had broken out of the pasture onto the road and the Olson brothers, Ole and Charlie, went to turn them back. The particular cow involved ran away and Ole gave chase, on coming close to the animal she turned suddenly and made a vicious lunge with her horns.

The horn entered the lower right hand side of Mr. Olson's abdomen and penetrated several inches at the same time ripping upwards. The injured man was carried to his home and Dr. Carman of Brooks was called at once. An examination showed that Olson's injuries were terrible and Dr. Nerall was called in. The two physicians operated on the patient for a couple of hours before they sewed up the ugly wound. Since then Mr. Olson has been hovering between life and death, but is now expected to recover.

Chas. Olson brother of the injured man, says that the cow has been vicious all her life but she was killed shortly after her nearly fatal attack on his brother.

Knox in advance of the meetings in order that accommodations may be arranged for.

Cigar Company Quits.

The J. B. Cigar company of this city has quit the manufacture of cigars, and last Saturday let out the workmen that have been employed there for several years past. Mr. LaPlante, the manager, decided that he would like some other business better than the manufacture of cigars, and as a buyer was not at hand decided to close out his stock and quit. The J. B. Cigar company was brought up to a high standard by its founder Mr. Armstrong, and since assuming control of the business Mr. LaPlante has done very well, so the close down was surprising to the people of the city. Mr. LaPlante has not yet announced what he intends doing, but it is probable that he willl leave the city. Red Lake Falls has always supported her home institutions in a first-class manner and it is more than likely that the city will not be long without a cigar manufactory.

ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.

Pretty Sight In Store For People This Month.

An eclipse of the sun which will be nearly total here, is scheduled to occur on Aug. 30, the sun rising eclipsed. The eclipse will be total at Winnipeg, and will appear as a partial eclipse over the greater part of North America, and a little later over portions of Europe, Asia and Africa. Astronomers are making great preparations to observe it, as total eclipses are very rare occurrences. There has been no total eclipse of the sun visible in the British Isles since 1720 and there will be none until 1927.

ON SERIOUS CHARGE.

Transient at Thief River Falls Bound Over to the Grand Jury.

"Kid" Lemere, a high dive and loop the loop artist that spent last week at Thief River Falls, is languishing at the county jail in this city, and later in the fall will be called upon to make answer to a decidedly serious charge before the grand jury.

It seems that last week the fellow hung around the up-river town and Thursday evening was out in company with a 13-year-old girl of that place. The girls parents sent Deputy Sheriff Jarmau out to hunt for her the following morning and he found her in a room in company with this Lemere, where the two had spent the night. The fellow was arrested and County Attorney Germo called, with the result that he was bound over to await the action of the grand jury.

The offense he is charged with is a very serious one in the eyes of the law and it is likely that he will serve a term in the pen for his folly.

OFF FOR THE WEST.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Sivertson Start On Delightful Trip.

Mr. and Mr. S. M. Sivertson left Monday evening on their trip to the exposition at Portland and extensive journey throughout the west. They went by way of the Soo from Erskine and over the Canadian Pacific to the coast, and will take in the principal cities in Canada as well as those of the states. After visiting the exposition several days they intend making a tour of that part of the country and will stop at all the principal points thereabouts. They expect to be absent nearly a month and contemplated an enjoyable outing.

MUST BE PROMPT.

Reservation Settlers Must Dig Up Cash When Due.

The following is a letter Hon. Halvor Steenerson has sent to a prominent reservation settler and explains itself.

I have your favor of the 24th inst., inquiring if I can not possibly secure a ninety days further extension upon the first payment of the lands opened last June, under the act of February 20, 1904.

Replying to this, I have the honor to say that I should take great pleasure in appealing to the department in behalf of the settlers if such an appeal would do them any good, but under the law it would be utterly beyond the power of the department to extend the time of payment. Section 3 of the Act of February 20, 1904, is very specific in regard to payment for the land and leaves no discretion whatever in the secretary of the interior. It provides:

"In case any purchaser fails to make said annual payments promptly when due, or within sixty days thereafter, all sights in and to said lands covered by his or her purchase, shall at once cease, and any payments made thereupon be forfeited and the Secretary of the Interior shall thereupon declare such forfeiture by re-offering such lands for sale."

From which you will see that the law itself gives you sixty days in which to make your payment, but, if you allow it to run a single day beyond this sixty days, there is no power whatever in the interior department to extend the payment or to accept the money after that time, but they are compelled to re-offer the land and you will lose all prior payments. These are the terms upon which the land was sold and is a law of congress and there is no power to change it, and I might add that this provision was inserted in compliance with an agreement with the Indians, upon the faith of which they parted with their lands. It is well for all the settlers to understand this plainly, for otherwise they might subject themselves to a forfeiture of their lands.

Yours sincerely,
H. STEENERSON.

SETTLE MINOR POINTS

FIRST THREE ARTICLES IN THE RUSSO-JAPANESE TREATY OF PEACE AGREED TO.

Japan's Preponderating Influence in Korea Recognized, Evacuation of Manchuria by Both Parties Held Obligatory and Russia Acquiesces in Demand to Cede Chinese Eastern Railroad to China.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 15.—Although very rapid progress was made in the peace negotiations Monday, three of the twelve articles which constitute the Japanese conditions of peace having been agreed to by M. Witte and Baron Rosen on behalf of Russia, neither of the two articles to which M. Witte in his reply returned an absolute negative was reached. The crisis, therefore, is still to come. It may be reached during the day, as the cession of Sakhalin comes fifth in the list. The three articles, as they are officially designated in the brief communications authorized to be given to the press, which were disposed of Monday, are in substance as follows:

First—Russia's recognition of Japan's "preponderating influence" and special position in Korea, which Russia henceforth agrees is outside of her sphere of influence, Japan binding herself to recognize the sovereignty of the reigning family, but with the right to give advice and assistance to improve the civil administration of the empire.

Second—Mutual obligation to evacuate Manchuria, each to surrender all special privileges in that province, mutual obligation to respect the "territorial integrity" of China and to maintain the principle of equal opportunity for the commerce and industry of all nations in that province (open door).

Third—The cession to China of the Chinese Eastern railroad from Harbin southward.

JAPAN'S PEACE TERMS

CONDITIONS TO BE MET BEFORE HOSTILITIES IN THE FAR EAST CAN END.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 11.—The terms of peace offered Russia by Japan are said to be substantially as follows:

Reimbursement for the expense of prosecuting the war.

The cession of the island of Sakhalin, which is the only Russian territory proper to be taken by the Japanese.

The cession of the Russian leases to the Liaotung peninsula, comprising Port Arthur and Dalny.

The evacuation of the entire province of Manchuria.

The retrocession to China of any privileges Russia may have in the province and the recognition by Russia of the principle of the "open door."

The cession to Japan of the Chinese Eastern railway below Harbin, the main line through Northern Manchuria to Vladivostok to remain Russian property.

The recognition of the Japanese protectorate over Korea.

The granting of fishing rights to Japan in the waters of the Siberian littoral northward from Vladivostok to the Behring sea.

[illegible] to Japan of the [illegible] interned in neutral ports.

Limitation upon the naval strength of Russia in Far Eastern waters.

RUSSIAN REPLY MADE.

Refuses to Discuss Indemnity or Cession of Sakhalin.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 12.—The Russian reply to the Japanese terms handed by M. Witte to Baron Komura declines to discuss two points—indemnity and cession of Sakhalin. Others it accepts and still others it accepts conditionally.

The reply is long, taking up the conditions seriatim and setting forth the reasons and arguments for the decision reached in each case. The argument against the payment of an indemnity or the cession of territory is based on the general theory that Russia is not responsible for the war and that as Russia is still prepared to continue the struggle and has sought the meeting, not as a vanquished nation suing for terms, but because she sincerely desires peace if an equitable peace is possible. Therefore she could neither agree to foot Japan's bill for war expenses nor cede territory. The argument can be fairly stated as follows:

Russia is not vanquished. She has suffered reverses, but she is not reduced to accept peace at any cost. She desires peace now as she always did, even before Japan opened hostilities. That Russia did not court or want war was evident by the fact that she was not prepared for it either in a military, naval or administrative sense. Russia could possibly be properly accused of only one thing—of having given the occasion which Japan was seeking and for which Japan had been preparing for ten years to make war upon her. The responsibility for the war, therefore, falls on Japan and not on Russia.

WARNING TO CHINESE.

President Calls Attention of Officials to Treaty of Commerce.

Shanghai, Aug. 12.—The report is current here that President Roosevelt has instructed Minister Rockhill to warn the Chinese government that the United States government will insist on the full observance of article 15 of the Tientsin treaty of 1858.

Article 15 of the Tientsin treaty provides that "at each of the ports open to commerce citizens of the United States shall be permitted to import from abroad and sell, purchase and export all merchandise of which the importation or exportation is not prohibited by the laws of the empire."

The state department some days ago directed the attention of Minister Rockhill to this particular article, in view of the published reports that it was the intention of those managing the boycott against American goods to interfere with the landing of American goods and to prevent stevedores from removing American goods from vessels in Chinese ports.

Husband and Wife Drowned.

South Glastonbury, Conn., Aug. 14.—While trying to save his wife from drowning in the Connecticut river, Columbo Serrias became the victim of her death grip, and before he could break his wife's hold they both sank to the bottom.

FIFTY DEAD OR HURT

LANDSLIDE ENTIRELY DESTROYS INDIAN VILLAGE IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 14.—A tremendous landslide has occurred about half a mile west of Spencers Bridge, near Ashcroft, B. C., sweeping the waters of the Thompson river over the entire Indian village, leaving nothing but wreck in its path. The landslide caused a wave from ten to fifteen feet high, carrying the ferry and all small boats before it. The number of dead and injured as a result of the landslide is nearly fifty. There were sixty Indians in the village when the landslide occurred and not more than a dozen escaped injury or death.

The many scattered ranches are in grave danger. At Ymir, twelve miles south of here, the whole of Jubilee mountain is on fire. The buildings of the Dundee mine have been destroyed and the Ymir mine is cut off by the destruction of the wagon roads. Several men are known to be in the mountains. Their fate is unknown.

Washington, Aug. 12. — Minister Beaupre, at Buenos Ayres, cables the state department that a laborer named Bl[illegible]oas Vicello attempted to assassinate President Manuel Quintana as the president's carriage was passing Reitro park. The assailant rushed from behind a monument with a revolver in his hand, but the president's aide-de-camp threw himself from the carriage on the assailant, overpowered him and prevented him from shooting. The man was arrested. He is supposed to be insane.

DOZEN PEOPLE KILLED

PASSENGER TRAIN IN COLLISION WITH A FREIGHT NEAR VERMILLION, O.

Majority of the Victims Were Laborers Riding in the Smoking Car, Which Was Telescoped by the Force of the Impact—Misunderstanding of Orders Said to Have Been the Cause of the Disaster.

Cleveland, Aug. 14.—A fast eastbound passenger train on the Nickel Plate road collided with a westbound freight train at Kishman, O., near Vermillion, resulting in the death of twelve persons, while at least twenty-five others were injured, eight of whom will probably die.

The wreck, according to the officials of the company, was caused by a misunderstanding of orders or neglect to obey them on the part of the crew of the freight train.

Aside from the engineer the men killed on the passenger train were all riding in the smoking car at the head of the train and were mostly foreign laborers in the employ of the Standard Oil company, on their way from Fort Seneca, O., to Brookfield, O., in charge of a foreman.

When the trains came together almost everybody in the smoker was dozing. The sudden jar hurled them out of their seats into the aisle and threw several persons to the roof and sides of the car, which seemed all at once to crush in like a paper bag, pinning down each passenger in the position in which he had been caught.

The passengers in the second car escaped more easily, as there the violence of the impact was not so severe, although few got off without cuts, bruises, sprains or broken bones. The two rear cars were sleepers and they withstood the shock without suffering serious harm. No passenger in the sleepers was injured.

IS SLOWLY SPREADING

MAGNIFICENT WORK OF AUTHORITIES UNABLE TO CHECK FEVER AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, Aug. 14.—With nearly one-half of August gone and with total deaths since July 13 of only 154, an average of five a day, the Marine hospital service authorities during the day began the second week of their fight against the yellow fever here.

The disease is slowly spreading in New Orleans despite the magnificent work of the federal authorities, but the increase in new cases outside of the Crescent City is almost imperceptible.

In spite of all the appeals that have been made by the press and the federal authorities there is still suppression of cases. One instance is that of a daughter of a well known lawyer. She is said to have had a typical case and to have been treated only by a nearby druggist. When discovered by a doctor her condition was hopeless and she has since died. The consequence is that steps are to be taken to compel druggists to make prompt report of all cases of illness that come under their observation.

Official yellow fever report up to 6 p. m. Monday is as follows: New cases, 55; total to date, 1,018; deaths, 12; total to date, 166; new sub-foci, 8; total sub-foci to date, 210; cases under treatment, 356.

Northfield, Vt., Aug. 15.—Claims aggregating 5,000,000 francs held by the French government against Venezuela, have been decided by Referee Frank Plumley of this place, to whom they had been referred for a decision and final adjudication. Eight cases involving claims of 40,000,000 francs against the government of Venezuela were submitted to Mr. Plumley. Of the eight cases two were dismissed for want of equity and one was disallowed.

The exact aggregate of the claims presented was $8,215,245, the total amount awarded to five claimants $636,212.

J. J. HILL IN ST. PAUL.

Great Northern Magnate May Take a Hand in Operators' Strike.

St. Paul, Aug. 14.—President James J. Hill of the Great Northern road has returned from the East and it is expected that his return will have some bearing within a day or two upon the situation in regard to the telegraphers' strike.

President H. B. Perham of the Order of Railway Telegraphers expressed confidence that after Mr. Hill had gone over the situation carefully and gone into all the details he would be ready to treat with the strikers, though having by wire previously refused to do so. According to President Perham no advances have been made or will be made by the operators.

The strike situation remains unchanged, the railroads refusing to discuss the matter and the strikers asserting that they are losing no ground. Mr. Perham received a report from Fargo that but four freights had passed that point Saturday and the same number Friday, whereas the normal traffic is about thirty or thirty-five freights each day.

VOTE AGAINST UNION

NORWEGIANS STRONGLY IN FAVOR OF BREAKING AWAY FROM SWEDEN.

Christiania, Aug. 15.—The returns from the national referendum on the dissolution of the union with Sweden show that out of 321,358 votes cast only 161 are against the dissolution.

The storthing has been summoned to meet Aug. 21 to take the next step towards the repeal of the act of union in agreement with Sweden. One of the members of the cabinet said to the Associated Press:

"The result surpasses the most sanguine expectations. The next official steps will be taken after the storthing meets on Aug. 21, when the result of the plebiscita will be communicated to Sweden through the Swedish cabinet and the riksdag. The storthing will repeat the request that the riksdag declare the 'riksakt' inoperative and the union dissolved.

"The storthing will also express a willingness to negotiate concerning the details of dissolution. It is the earnest desire of Norway to conclude the dissolution amicably. Norway will never retract, but everything will be done to meet the wishes of Sweden in other directions. If peace depends upon abolishing the forts they will be abolished.

"Norway must remain a monarchy; the people do not desire a republic."

WORK OF TEXAS MOB

NEGRO ACCUSED OF ATTEMPTED ASSAULT IS BURNED AT THE STAKE.

Sulphur Springs, Tex., Aug. 11.—A negro charged with assaulting the daughter of a widow near this place was caught and burned at the stake in the courthouse square here.

The crime was committed at an early hour in the morning. When the town was alarmed about an hour later a posse of armed horsemen went immediately in pursuit of the assailant. The country was scoured in all directions and the negro was finally captured. He was taken to the courthouse square, chained to a stake and burned before an immense crowd of excited citizens.

The name of the negro was Tom Williams. He attempted to assault a fourteen-year-old girl. Little resistance was made to the mob by the officers.

FOLLOWED HIS WIFE'S ADVICE.

Intoxicated Chicagoan Jumps Into Lake Michigan.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Joseph Garron returned home intoxicated and his wife told him to jump into the lake and drown himself. "All right," said Garron, "I will do just that." He did, and though he was alive when taken from the water he died in the hospital two hours later. In the pocket of his coat the coroner found this note:

"This is to certify that my wife, Maggie Garron, told me to leave the house and go to the lake and drown myself. Goodbye and God forgive her."

Mrs. Garron became hysterical when informed of her husband's act and hurried to the hospital, but she arrived a few minutes after his death.

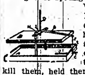
ROAD AND FARM IMPROVEMENT

AN EXCELLENT RAT TRAP.

Home-Made Device Which Will Catch the Most Wary and Cunning Rodent.

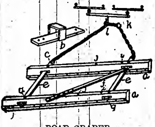
The only kind of trap proved to the writer a complete success is the deadfall shown in the accompanying cut. It has been used in his family for nearly half a century, catching, during that time, an army of rats. Simple in construction, it is, nevertheless, so swift and deadly in its action that any rodent, having once sprung it, never escapes. Wonderful to relate, as many as eight rats have been caught in such a trap at one time, which, though it did not kill them, held them prisoners until they could be dispatched, says Fred O. Sibley, in Epitomist. The platform A should be about 20 inches square, and the drop B consist of hardwood plank with two holes bored through exactly middle-way, so that it will slide readily up and down the posts supporting the crosspiece H. Through the center of this is a hole for the similar action of the circular post D, which is securely embedded into B. A piece of light hand-iron is G, which, when the trap is set, rests on the support H and, being loosely fastened to D at i by an iron pin, thus holds up the plank B. The rat enters and begins nibbling at Indian meal sprinkled in the groove of the platform at J, and finally reaching the spindle, hidden beneath it, agitates it enough to displace the button E on the outside; this, in turn, releases both the string F and hand-iron G, the latter of which, owing to the weight of the plank B, is drawn upward into a groove, sawed middle-way through D by its sliding down the hole in the center of H and as the motion of B is then exceedingly fast, the victim, ere it can scramble over the sides round the platform, is caught and killed. Provided the affair is nicely adjusted and made so that it operates easily, there is no patented trap on the market, to my knowledge, half as good, for it has such an innocent appearance that the oldest and most cunning rat will ultimately be caught by it. To work well the spindle C should have a little play, and the more lightly the button E rests against the notch cut in it and yet will hold, the better. Made on a smaller scale, this kind of trap is also most excellent with which to catch mice.



HOME-MADE ROAD SCRAPER

It Will Do as Good Work as the High-Priced Grader, and Is Very Durable.

In the illustration a a are 3x12x8 feet long, bottom edge beveled with its hoe of steel ¼x4 inches, bolted on cutting edge as shown at g. The crosspieces, e e, are bolted with inch bolts in mortises 1x8, two inches from the top of a a, and made out of 1x4x30-inch iron, which has holes in front ends to fasten draft chain to, also a hole in e at the right-hand end to bolt brace, f, on, which is also bolted to the rear a at h. The guider, f, is 1x2 inches and six feet long, with holes in back end so the rear a can be changed at any time so it will properly follow front a. A seat board, b, is bolted to a a at i i when team is hitched at h for ditching, and at j j when smoothing up the roadbed. The right-hand ends of a a are sloped back 45 degrees to prevent catching in the bank of side ditch. If properly made of good material, this is very durable, and does almost as good work as a costly grader.—Farm and Home.



ROAD GRADER.

FARM FACTS AND FANCIES.

Farming is a poor business when the farming is poor.

Wire fencing is more durable and cheaper than wood.

A farmer without plans is next to a ship without a rudder.

One way to increase the profits in farming is to reduce the cost of production.

What per cent. of that seed corn do you think will grow? If you haven't tested it, you don't know.

The greatest saving of time is made by the use of the best tools in the preparation of the ground, planting the seed, and after cultivation.

It is much more profitable to keep land in good condition than to get it out of such condition by one-sided fertilization and then try to bring it back.

Time will be saved and you will be apt to be more careful in your selection if the seed corn is selected this month. If you intend buying seed, place your order now.

Every farmer should have his seed corn testing patch on which competing selections from his own fields and varieties secured elsewhere may be subjected to a careful field test under his own eye.

A. E. Nelson, of the Hallock News, is freely mentioned as a candidate for the office of Secretary of State on the Republican ticket next fall. Mr. Nelson was state librarian under Van Sant, and if the secretary plum is coming to the northern part of the state it couldn't fall into better hands.

John Eastman, of the Thief River News, is accredited with having aspirations to a seat in the house of representatives from this district, and it is said that he has already made formal announcement of his intention of going after the plum. John is a pretty good fellow, but it occurs to most of us that he would look a little out of place in the handsome legislative chambers of the new capitol.

A certain Thief River citizen made the statement the other day that Thief River Falls would have a candidate for every office on the ticket next year, from state senator down to coroner. Asked what he thought the rest of the county would say to such a move, he said that the people up there didn't care a snap what the rest of the county thought, as they had votes enough there to carry the election any way they wanted to. This may be a good plan for the up-river town to pursue but it would seem that the people generally would have a little say in the matter and would resent the attempt of the up-river crowd to be the whole business.

Be Careful Where You Trade.

Many years ago thirty of the girls who sealed and labeled the cans in the canning factory at Alton, Iowa, got so warmed up drinking fermented juice, that they took off all their superilous clothes, sealed them in and labeled them. They got mixed with several thousand cans of preserves and for months thereafter it was nothing uncommon when you had company to open a raspberry preserve label and turn out a pink hair ribbon and a pair of stockings and maybe an old apron or a corset cover. Only a short time ago the landlady of a hotel near there was absent mindedly looking out of a window while dumping a can of supposed peaches when out rolled two hip pads. She didn't notice it and a near sighted boarder ate one for a waffle. The can was bought of a merchant who didn't advertise and it had been on his shelves for over twenty years.

Where Wheat Is Not King.

We never ran across as wise a bunch of kids as Bemidji boasts of. But a few of them meet their Waterloo not long ago they saw a grain binder loaded on a wagon ready to be transported to a farmer's home some miles out of town. They could not get through their heads what the machine was for. One thought it was a piece of machinery for a saw mill, another ventured that it was a contraption for the firemen to use. Finally one little chap, not to be daunted, blurted out: "Aw that's some fellers ice boat. See the place for the sails, and the new fangled wheel attachment to steer it with? That's about the most up-to-date one I ever saw. But I wonder what he wants to be hauling it around in the summer time for."—Grand Rapids Independent.

Benefits of the State Drainage League.

A draft of the constitution adopted by the State Drainage League at the recent meeting in Crookston giving the purpose of the league, its aim and the general management of the league's affairs as taken from the original document, is as follows:

The name of the league shall be the "Minnesota Drainage League." The objects of the league are: The advancement of the interests of the state by collecting and distributing information relating to the benefits to be obtained from scientific drainage of the swamp lands: to secure through the legislature such changes to existing drainage laws as shall from time to time be found necessary; to expedite appropriations, to secure from the national government appropriations for the drainage of land held, either in Indian or forest reservations or lands held open for settlement by the government in the state of Minnesta: to secure state appropriations in the matter of the systematic drainage of state lands in Minnesota; to assist and promote the topographic survey of the state; to investigate the national reservoir system and to secure the operation of the system to the very greatest advantage to the property owners and business interests above and below the reservoirs on the Mississippi or any of its tributaries.

The membership of the league shall be limited to the taxpayers and citizens of the state of Minnesota and of other states or premises adjacent. The executive committee shall call meetings, audit accounts issue membership tickets and maintain general control of the league's business. There shall be three special committees as follows: On legislative, on judicial and upon field work. The legislative committee shall examine and report upon all drainage matters presented to the state or national legislative bodies. The judicial committee shall examine and report all cases involving drainage arising in any of the courts of this state and report the finding of such courts to the league.

The field work committee shall investigate and report upon all drainage undertaken by the state or by private interests and report to the annual meeting of the benefits and results of such work. The annual convention of this league shall be held on the first Tuesday of August of each year, at some point to be determined by the executive committee. Special meetings may be held at any time upon the call of the majority of the executive committee provided that the said annual meeting shall not be called for any city or town unless said city or town shall guarantee the free use of a suitable meeting place and conveniences for the officers of the league. At the annual convention shall occur the election of officers and the appointment of all committees authorized by the constitution except the appointment of the legislative committee, which said committee may be deferred by the executive committee.

The membership fee of this league shall be $1 per annum, which fee shall be paid to the treasurer after first being received by the secretary. The treasurer shall be responsible for all funds deposited in his care and shall disburse them upon the order of the league, said orders for payment being first signed by the president and countersigned by the secretary. There shall be no other fees or dues, except as decided upon by the league at some future meeting. The constitution may be amended at any time by a majority vote of the membership present at any regular meeting. A quorum of the executive committee shall consist of seven members, and ten members of the league shall constitue a quorum at any regular or called meeting.

The president and secretary of the league shall be members, ex officio, of the executive committee, and the chairman and secretary of the executive committee shall also be members of the legislative committee. The secretary of the league shall be allowed a compensation of such officer of 10 per cent of all monies received by the league and shall further be reimbursed for such accounts as postage and express. The reports of each annual meeting are to be stenographically reported and published in pamphlet form, the pamphlets to be distributed by the executive committee throughout the state. Members of the league are to receive the reports first hand, however, and before any distribution occurs.

Senator Clapp's idea of reimbursable fund for the purpose of reclaiming the greater portion of the Indian and forest reserves, as well as the public land in Northern Minnesota has, since the senator's speech was made, created a decided impression throughout this section and national legislators will undoubtedly at the next meeting of congress endeavor to secure such legislation. The idea of the senator includes the return of the money expended for drainage by the government, after the lands have been sold or disposed of. In this manner the government would not be out anything.

The Drama Of The Century.

Klaw & Erlanger's mammoth mechanical production of Gen. Lew Wallace's mighty play, "Ben Hur", with its lustrous Star of Bethlehem its camels, Arabian steeds, Oriental trappery and mimic splendor of the "gorgeous East", is beyond dispute the most elaborate spectacle ever staged in the history of the world. Its series of seventeen scenes present to the eyes a feast of mutifarious beauty and variety, all set to a symphonic accompaniment of graceful music. The exciting episodes such as the galley scene, with its horde of chained slaves, the sea-fight, the rescue in mid-sea and the thrilling race with two chariots and eight horses, combined with the picturesque scenes illustrating the Wise Men in the desert, the moon-lit lake in the Orchard of Palms, where Ben-Hur and Iras enjoy seclusion and make love in Iras' barge, the palm-waving worshippers on Mount Olivet and the Grove of Daphne with its nymphs and Devadasi, dancing in their skins of beasts, to the music of the kissing cymbals, simply captivate the great audiences that are nightly in attendance wherever it is being enacted.

Whatever may be thought of the purely dramatic element supplied by William Young in his adaptation of General Wallace's unique romance, it must be admitted that the result is an effective popular appeal to four classes of play-goers—the spectacle-loving, the sensation-loving, the book-lovers, who like to see their favorite novels enacted on the stage and the religious people of the community who are always attracted when a play containing healthy religious influence is presented.

"Ben Hur" is now in its seventh season with no abatement in interest, Its booking at the Metropolitan Opera House, St. Paul, for the week of Aug. 28th and the Metropolitan Theatre, Minneapolis, for the week of Sept. 4th, will attract hundreds from this vicinity. It will be well for those who intend to witness it to write in advance and reserve seats.

Reservation Sunbeam: There was a sad accident on the farm of Walt McAndress last week. James O'Brien's man was mowing hay in the heavy pea vine when little Pat, who had followed him in the field, as children sometimes will, in some way got in front of the sickle and one of his legs was entirely severed from his body, and he bled to death. Funeral services were held in the McAndress grove and the remains laid to rest on the bank of the river, beside which he loved to play during life. We believe we forgot to mention the fact that Pat was a fine pug dog and the pet of the O'Brien household.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climate conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists A. L. Reichert.

Grave Trouble Foreseen.

It needs but little foresight, to tell, that when your stomach and liver are badly affected, grave trouble is ahead unless you take the proper medicine for your disease, as Mrs. John A. Young, of Clay, N. York., did. She says: "I had neuralgia of the liver and stomach, my heart was weakened, and I could not eat. I was very bad for a long time, but in Electric Bitters I found just what I needed, for they quickly relieved and cured me." Best medicine for weak women. Sold under guarantee by W. A. New Towns in North Dakota.

The extensive railroad building now being done in North Dakota has brought tributary to railroad facilities an additional vast area of the rich agricultural sections of northern and western North Dakota. The Great Northern railway is building a number of new extensions from its main line northward notably that of the Sarles extension of the Edmore line, the Thorne extension running north from York, the Maxbass extension running northwestward from Towner, and a further extension of the Westhope line to Antler.

The building of these new lines has brought into being a number of new towns which are fully described in a pamphlet recently issued by the Great Northern railway. By application to Mr. F. I. Whitney, Passenger Traffic Manager, St. Paul, Minn., a copy of these pamphlets "New Extensions in North Dakota" or "New Towns in North Dakota" will be mailed to any address. 6w

Fraud Exposed.

A few counterfeiters have lately been making and trying to sell imitations of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and other medicines, thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit, through stealing the reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing diseases, for over 35 years. A sure protection, to you, is our name on the wrapper. Look for it, on all Dr. King's or Bucklen's remedies, as all others are mere imitations. H. E. Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the vile attendant on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. The Kind You Have Always Bought

543 1-2 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wilhelmina Snow
Treasurer, Portland Economic League

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. WEAR MUCH WIRE IN SKIRT

Yards of Steel and Whalebone and Armor Plate Used in Ladies' Apparel.

London.—Fashionable women will wear during the summer of 1905 something very closely akin to that monstrosity of bygone days—the crinoline.

So large, indeed, are the quantities of wire and steel used by fashionable dressmakers in the manufacture of the new spring skirts that there is some justification for the reported return of the dreaded crinoline.

Under the skirt is an elaborate framework of wire and whalebone, very suggestive of the crinoline. This produces the full and outstanding effect now aimed at by the leading French dressmakers.

"In Paris quantities of wire and steel are absorbed in the making of all skirts of thin material," said a well known court dressmaker to a reporter.

"For a full ten inches below the waist the skirt must fit like a glove, and this effect can only be obtained by the use of a whalebone encasement.

"Nine steels—about seven and one-half feet—in the upper part of a skirt is an ordinary allowance, but in the case of plaited skirts, every plait may require to be held in place by five whalebones, and in order to accentuate the straight line from the bust to the waist, which is a great feature of the new styles, a broad band of steel is inserted in the bodice.

"A single row of whalebone at the hem, about 18 feet, insures the skirt standing out, and above this are inserted several rows of wire, the quantity varying according to the texture of the material. In the case of a thin voile or crepe de chine dress from 108 to 150 feet would be necessary."

WEDS TWO IN SINGLE DAY

Good-Looking Youth Admits the Soft Impeachment, But Pleads Lack of Memory.

New York.—According to the judges of general sessions there has never been such a strange case of bigamy brought to their attention as that of John Steffler, who pleaded guilty before Judge Newberger of marrying two women on the same day.

Steffler is a good-looking young man. He told his attorney and the court that he had no recollection of contracting either marriage and could offer no explanation of his conduct.

Judge Newberger remanded him to the Tombs for sentence, and will make an investigation into his case. When Steffler pleaded guilty he said:

"I'm married all right to these two women, but I don't know why I did it. I must have been in a trance. I don't remember anything about it."

The indictment charges Steffler with marrying Estelle Deffely August 13 last. On the evening of the same day Steffler married Hannah Ackerman.

Both of Steffler's wives were in court and intermittently denounced Steffler as a "brute." The two women sat together in the rear of the courtroom where he was arraigned.

CLEVER PLOT TO BREAK JAIL

Convict, an Electrician, Puts Out All the Lights with a Switch—Recaptured.

Salem.—By means of an ingeniously contrived cut-off switch with which he controlled the lighting system of the prison Charles Williamson, a trusty convict, escaped from the penitentiary, but was recaptured before he succeeded in getting out of town.

Williamson is an electrician serving a five-year term for forgery. He tapped the main current wire in the pumphouse and put in an improvised switch. When ready to leave before daylight, Williamson shut off the lights, tied a string to his switch lever, to which he attached a water bucket. He punctured the bottom of the bucket and dropped it into the water tank outside the building. The water slowly filled the bucket, which was weighted with lead, until it sank after a period of two hours and a half and turned on the lights again.

In the meantime Williamson scaled the penitentiary wall in a dark spot and escaped. Warden Curtis happened to be at the Southern Pacific depot, recognized the fellow as he was about to board the train for Portland and re-arrested him.

EX-MAYOR NOW A "NAVVY"

Former Executive of Des Moines Seeks Work on Streets from Officials He Had Appointed.

Des Moines, Ia.—That his family might continue to have a home to shelter them, James Brenton, ex-mayor of Des Moines, took pick and shovel and commenced work upon the public streets. Of the members of the board of public works, who had received their appointments at his hands, he asked the privilege of joining the street working gang, and the request was granted, at a salary of $2 per day.

Brenton's case has been peculiar. Uneducated, he went into politics, and was nominated and elected county superintendent of schools here. Later he was elected mayor. During his administration the mayor's office was a political storm center.

He served but one term, and went out of office with scarcely a dollar. Next he appeared as a bartender in a Des Moines saloon.

CLOSELY-PENNED FOWLS.

The Best Results Not Obtained from the Chickens Which Have to Be Confined.

I have found by large experience that it is not advisable to pen up fowls unless they have to be penned, writes an Indiana correspondent of a farm journal. Closely penned fowls are generally deprived of many of the things fowls should have to enable them to do their best work. Usually the green stuff in the yard is so small in quantity that it soon disappears altogether. I have a lady friend who was very anxious to keep hens. She had a house built for them, about ten by ten feet in size, and a yard about as wide as the house, and 30 feet long. She bought four beautiful White Rocks and a rooster. How pretty they looked in the yard, bright with green grass! If she had but been content with the little flock, she might have been keeping hens yet.

But alas! She thought if 80 eggs a month were such a help, 400 eggs a month would be far better, so she bought 20 more fowls of the same breed. That made a flock of 25. How the grass did disappear from that yard! By midsummer not a green thing was left there. When the fall rains began, even the roots of the grasses that had made up the texture of the sod had disappeared, having decayed in a few weeks after the tops were killed. The birds spattered around in a lake of mud. How they did look, covered with mud from foot to wing.

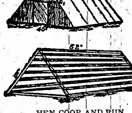
Their mistress no longer took her visitors out to see them. Her enthusiasm had died out, and she gave the fowls as little attention as possible. Another month, and they had disappeared. The lady said she had got tired of keeping chickens. "they are so dirty."

Now, if my friend had retained her little flock and at the same time retained that bit of green grass, she would not have become disgusted. Looks count for a great deal.

COOPS FOR HEN AND CHICK

An A-Coop, Boarded Tightly at the Back and Part of Front Is Best for Spring.

A handy coop and run for hen and chicks is shown in the cut. This is an A-coop, boarded tightly at the back and part of the front so as to afford protection in early spring. An A-shaped run the width and height of coop and of any length desired can be used to give the hen greater liberty.—Farm and Home.



HEN COOP AND RUN.

THE DEPTH OF FRAMES.

For Comb-Honey the Divisible Brood Chamber Hive Is Probably the Best.

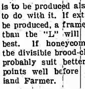
While all are agreed as to the desirability of keeping bees on movable frames, there seems to be a great diversity of opinion regarding style and depth of same.

Movable frame hives may be divided into two classes as far as general principles go. One is known as the divisible brood chamber, and the other as the non-divisible, or single chamber hive. As all hives and fixtures about the apiary should be of one style and size, the beginner ought to weigh well this hive problem before marrying himself to any particular one. He will find that changing from one to another is an expensive proceeding. The style or depth best for any certain locality can be ascertained only by being on the spot and studying conditions.

Whether comb or extracted honey is to be produced also has a great deal to do with it. If extracted honey is to be produced, a frame as deep, or deeper than the "L" will most probably be best. If honeycomb is the object, the divisible brood-chamber hive would probably suit better. Consider these points well before proceeding.—Midland Farmer.

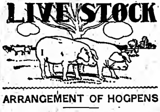
DURABLE HIVE STAND.

One Made Out of Drain Tiles Proves the Most Satisfactory—Easy to Make.



Stands are convenient to keep the hives off the ground. Four drain tiles set three or four inches in ground and leveled and packed well around with earth, will make one of the cheapest and best stands. They hold the hive up, provide no place for mice or moles and one can easily mow around them, says Farm and Home. Put a board up in front of an alighting board and the thing is complete. Bricks set on end in the ground would be nearly as good and cheaper.

To keep up the stamina of the flock it is considered a good policy to mate old males with pullets, and cockerels with old hens.



ARRANGEMENT OF HOGPENS

Practical Plan Which Has Been Tried by One Farmer with Success.

The great difficulty in planning a hog-house is to get it so that it will be dry and clean. In this plan, 16x20 feet, I have four sleeping—or nest—pens, and four feed pens; close partitions between them, except passageway between the nest pen and the feed pen, explains John M. Jamison, in the Rural New Yorker. Each feed and nest pen is to be 5x6 feet, and the alleyway 4x20 feet. The building should stand east and west, with pens on south side, and alley on north side, and have a yard on south side as large as desirable. I would make a double doorway at two of the partitions, and make the doors so they will close tight. As arranged, the sows can make their nests in corners away from doors, and the wind will not blow on them when the doors are open. The pens next to the alley can be used to feed in, when the weather is bad, and when good, the feeding can be done in lots outside. The more feeding done inside, the more work required to keep the house clean.

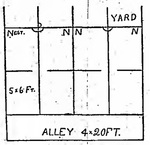


DIAGRAM OF HOG PEN.

I would lay the floor with cement concrete, making the alley floors level, but the pen floors I would slope from the south wall towards the alley, about three inches in the 12 feet. This will tend to cause all water to flow towards the alley, and keep the nests and feed stalls comparatively dry. The bedding from the nests, when soiled, can go into the lots or alley, just as the feeder wishes, when he cleans out the stalls. The yards should be kept clean by throwing in straw, or other coarse material. Over this floor plan the builder can put such building as suits him best; a shed in form, the roof sloping one way, or a comb roof. In either case, if he wishes, a room for bedding and feed above the pens. The building should be located on an elevated point of ground, so the water will flow away from it in all directions, and the roof spouted, to keep water from making it wet about the building. Make doors at the ends of the alley. If the doors are cut in half, it will often be an advantage in airing out the pens. There should also be plenty of windows on the south side, for sunshine is a very important factor in the health and comfort of swine.

THE BEST HOG TROUGH.

With Slats Across the Top It Will Keep the Hogs from Lying in Them.

I have tried all kinds of hog troughs and like best the one shown here, writes an Illinois farmer to the Farm and Home. It can be made of two boards for water, swill or grain, is stout and durable, is not liable to burst when water freezes in it. The boards should be 2x12, and 16 feet long is a good length; 1x12-inch boards make a very good trough, but are not so durable as two-inch. The slats across the top keep the hogs from lying in the trough when it is filled with water in hot weather.

THE LIVE STOCK.

Study the individual needs of each cow and supply those needs.

Keep the horse judiciously shod and exercised.

Be cheerful—help to inspire the other fellow too.

Some cows would be better ones if they were fed more.

It is the steady, quiet horse that can do the biggest day's work when it is hot.

You can change the quantity of milk by the feed, but the quality is born with the cow.

A strong, well-grown sow may be bred to farrow at one year, but a small one should not be bred until 10 or 12 months old.

Chaff and loose straw dropping through the cracks of an ill-constructed ceiling are a constant source and cause of dust during milking. The ceiling of the stable should be as tight as your house.

Many a stable of four or more horses, if intelligently mated and driven, would do better work and do it easier. An old horse mated to a young one, a heavy horse to a light one, a slow horse to a fast one, often causes trouble, which might easily be avoided by a little foresight and judgment in the matter.

The Horse to Reject.

Reject a horse with toes turned in or out. The twist generally occurs at the fetlock. Toes turned out are more objectionable than toes turned in. When toes are turned out the fetlocks are generally turned in, and animals so formed are very apt to cut or bruise. Both, however, are weak formations.

MINE ON FIRE SINCE 1857.

Vein of Coal in Pennsylvania Still Unextinguished After Forty-Seven Years.

President Lewis A. Riley, of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, in his annual report, says that one of the company's mines near Tamaqua has been on fire for 47 years, says Fuel. Regarding the efforts now made to quench these subterranean fires the report says:

"A portion of the outcrop of the Mammoth vein in this locality has been on fire since 1857, the fire being confined by the water filling the workings below water level and cut-offs on the outcrop. Before opening the colliery below water level it is necessary either to extinguish the fire or get it under control. During the past year efforts have been made with this end in view which have met with a large measure of success. A boiler plant and pumping machinery have been erected on the bank of the Little Schuylkill river at Tamaqua for the purpose of pumping water to the level of the outcrop. A branch of the Panther Creek railroad has been extended nearly two miles to reach the outcrop, and more holes have put down at various places where there were indications of fire. The fire is being extinguished by washing fine coal dirt through bore holes on the fire and filling up the vacant spaces so as to cut off the air supply."

HE DIDN'T WANT THE COAT

But There Was Something in the Inside Pocket He Did Want.

The truth of this story is vouched for by the victim, says the New York Sun.

"Where is that old blue coat I knocked around in last summer?" he asked his wife. She was not quick to offer an explanation.

"It was here only yesterday," remarked the husband. "I know it was."

"Yes," said the wife with a touch of anger, "I know it was. I just got sick and tired of seeing that coat and a lot of other old stuff lying around cluttering things up, and I sold it this morning."

"You sold it! Sold the coat—the old blue coat?"

"Yes, I sold it. And I don't want you to go around moping about it."

"Dear, I didn't want the coat, but to-morrow is your birthday and I had hidden a ring and a nice yellow bill in the inside pocket. I wanted to surprise you and I couldn't think of a better hiding place."

The victim says that what happened after that is nobody's business.

TRUE HEROISM OF LIFE.

Found in Every-Day Occupations That Call for Steady Heads and Hands.

Prof. William James, of Harvard university, relates that, upon a certain journey, he was questioning with himself whether or not the higher heroism of life was passing out of human society; and that, at the very moment, he looked from the car window and suddenly got sight of a number of workmen performing some task on the dizzy ledge of an iron construction at a great height. This at once brought to his mind, says Success Magazine, a sense of the everyday bravery of men in everyday occupations. It flashed upon him, on the instant, that the true heroism of life is found, not only on the day of battle and in desperate adventures, but also in building every bridge, or in the ordinary day-by-day service of the world, whether of the sailor upon his deck, the brakeman upon his train, the lumberman upon his raft, or wherever else men are at work.

"As I awoke to this unidealized heroic life around me," he says, "the scales seemed to fall from my eyes, and a wave of sympathy greater than I had ever before felt with the common life of common men began to fill my soul."

WOODS FOR FURNITURE.

Objections to Oak and Rosewood—Walnut's Day Gone—Seasoning Mahogany.

Some of the best cabinetmakers of New York are chary of working in oak. Really old and well-seasoned oak is hard to get and harder to work, says the New York Sun.

There is no great quantity of old oak furniture in the market, and old pieces that would supply large enough lumber for important work are seldom found. New kiln-dried oak is uncertain, being liable to warp and crack.

Paneled articles can be made of such material with some safety, but large solid articles are likely to give a bad account of themselves at the end of a winter in a steam-heated house.

Rosewood also the best cabinetmakers distrust. This wood has a peculiarly oily quality that makes it uncertain when glued. For this reason rosewood is used chiefly as a veneer. Thin sheets lose much of their oil and take glue satisfactorily.

Solid rosewood furniture is hard to find.

Unpardonable.

Auditor Ford has climbed onto the Gazette's neck this week because we stated in last week's paper that the majority of lands to be sold at the forfeited tax sale this fall were not worth much and would be hard to sell. The Gazette supposed that most of the lots were along the river bank in the cities of the county, but Mr. Ford says that the list comprises some choice lots in all three towns, and that but very little of the land is not fit for anything. The Gazette is glad to stand corrected and hopes that the sale of the lands will prove profitable to the county and to the people who are fortunate enough to secure them.

The Red Lake Falls visitors to the Thief River Fair returned home Friday and Saturday well pleased with the time they had had, and pronounced the fair the best that has been held in the county. The horse races were exceptionally good, and the amusement features were better than formerly. The general opinion was, however, that the Thief River authorities allowed too many grafters to work in and about the city and at the grounds, the visitors saying that anywhere you went skin games of all descriptions were encountered. This is not a desirable feature to the average person and if Thief River Falls wants their future fairs to be successful they should make it a point to cut out this part of the show.

Eastman Off Again.

The agent and operator at the Red Lake Falls station are not held in very high esteem by the operators and agents at other points. They both went upon a strike last week, but returned to work before they had been out 6 hours. They may have retained their own self respect by so doing, but the boys at different stations along the line do not think much of them.—Thief River News.

The Gazette fails to see where Mr. Eastman got his information, unless, it was from the striking operator at Thief River Falls, who has since got sick of the strike business and gone back to work. Neither the agent or the operator at this station went on a strike at all, so could not possibly have gone back to work they had never left. Agent Tracy is not now or has not been a member of the union or done any operating for a great many years, so the strike of the telegraphers did not effect him in the least. Operator Hall was up town when the order came to go out, and after he received his notice only deliberated a very few minutes until he decided to stay by his work and was never "out" in any sense of the work. The News may be anxious to cover the field in a news line, but it can well afford to stay closely to the truth if it cares to hold the respect of decent people.

As Fullerton Sees The Law.

Sam Fullerton, the state game warden of Minnesota, has written a deputy game warden in the northern part of the state as follows regarding the new law passed last winter relative to the running of dogs before the open season:

Yours of recent date to hand and contents noted. A warden has a perfect right to sieze all dogs that are hunted, trained, run or allowed to run in any field or on any land where prairie chickens abound. If you know of anyone who let's his dogs run like this, I wish you would notify them and tell them the law, and if they don't stop it, you have got the authority not only to kill the dogs but to arrest the parties who own them. Of course we do not advocate killing the dogs. We would like to have you sieze them and arrest the parties who own them.

Yours very truly,
SAM F. FULLERTON,
Executive Agent.

Nine Nations

Now Use Liquozone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquozone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some-one whom Liquozone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquozone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquozone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

BIG RATE REDUCTION

President Hill, of the Great Northern; Gives Farmers of The Northwest a Big Lift

The Great Northern Railway company announces a sweeping reduction in its grain rates throughout its eastern territory extending to the boundary of Montana. The new rates will add millions to the potential resources of the farmers of the northwest. They are not made in pursuance to any pressure but as a voluntary act.

This reduction of rates ranges from five cents per hundred from distant points to half a cent from points nearest to the Twin Cities and the head of navigation on the Great Lakes. The new rates show a concession of two cents per hundred from Crookston, Red Lake Falls, Warren and Moorhead, and of half a cent for Fergus Falls, Morris, Breckenridge, Litchfield, Alexandria and St. Cloud.

From Williston the reduction is five cents. On the Granville branch, Towner branch, line from York to Thoren, the Lakota branch, now extended to Sarles, the rates are cut three cents. This covers an immense stretch of country, much of it recently brought under cultivation in North Dakota.

From Minot to the head of the Lakes, from Grand Forks and Fargo and Hillsboro, on the Hannah line, running north from Larimore, on the Neche line and St. Vincent line, the reduction of two cents per hundred. On the St. John line running from Churchs Ferry, and the Walhalla line, it is two and one-half cents, and from Larimore it is a cent and a half.

Similarly in South Dakota there is a reduction of four cents per hundred form Huron, two cents from Aberdeen and Yankton and corresponding reduction from other points to Minneapolis in Minnesota.

The points are mentioned merely to show the scope and graduations of the cut in transportation charges. It applies, of course, equally to all points throughout this vast territory, and it applies to both main terminals points, existing differential between Duluth and Minneapolis rates remaining unchanged.

"The meaning of this great boon to the farmers of the northwest is something more than would be the winning of a battle or the signing of some advantageous treaty," said a prominent railroad official. "It affects the entire grain product of the northwest, for the same rates will be made by the Northern Pacific and must be met by every other line doing business in the same territory. It will reach a saving of at least one cent, perhaps a cent and a half on shipments of more than 2,000,000,000 bushels to the primary markets. This foots up from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 that will remain in the pockets of the farmers and of this total saving the Great Northern company will contribute at least one-half.

"The grain rate is a barometer that indicates prosperity or reverse for the farmer. It has the most direct and vital bearing upon his fortune.

"Not only is this movement volunlary but the revenue thus remitted in behalf of the producer cannot be made good from any other source. There can be and is intended to be no increase in rates anywhere to correspond. The sacrifice, as far as the company is concerned, is final. Moreover, it is made in the face of the fact that in the three years which have elapsed since the last reduction of rates was made the pay of the employees in various departments of the system has been materially advanced adding thus much to the cost of opperating.

"Another fact of paramount interest to one who studies the new schedule is that they are constructed with a view to the most rapid and symmetrical development of the country, and in no sense in responce to any form of pressure. The proof is that many of the greatest reductions are made from points and covering large reaches of territory where there is no competition whatever. This lowering of rates comes as a part of a plan of business partnership between the farmer and the railroad company, conceived long ago and steadily adhered to despite all misconceptions and through good and through evil report."

LINE TO BE BUILT.

Grading Outfit and Surveyors Go North To Commence Work.

The Great Northern extension from Greenbush north to Roseau and Warroad is now an assured fact, and last Friday several carloads of horses, graders, etc., went north on the Great Northern to commence work, while the surveyors' are already laying out the line.

The new road is said to be an easy one to build, from the fact that the survey runs along a ridge nearly all the way to Roseau, and but very little grading will have to be done. The new country to be opened up is some of the finest in the north country, and the Great Northern will add greatly to its revenues as soon as this stretch of road is completed.

Pushing the "Minnesota Star."

F. C. Nieili, the hustling proprietor of Thief River Falls' new cigar factory, spent last Friday evening in the city, getting acquainted with our dealers and advertising his leading brand of cigars, the "Minnesota Star." Mr. Nieili is one of the best known cigar men in the northwest and will surely make his factory at Thief River Falls a paying one. He puts up good goods, and his leader, the "Minnesota Star" is as good a cigar, or better, than nine out of every ten foreign made cigars on the market. Mr. Nieili made many friends during his short stay here, who will hope that he will call again.

CONDITIONS ARE GOOD

Past Week of Warm Sunshine Makes Things Look Bright For This Part of the Valley.

The past week of warm sunhine has accomplished wonders in the way of drying up the ground, and from present indications Red Lake county farmers will harvest a bigger crop than they have had in the past five years.

Everywhere the binders are running, and while in some places the farmers will have to use the old style cradle to harvest part of their crop, considerable over half can be cut with the binders and in most places all of the grain will be saved.

The stand is heavy, and there is every prospect of a prosperous fall season.

MET SUDDEN DEATH.

Proprietor of Antlers Hotel at Grand Forks Killed Tuesday.

John J. Freeman, proprietor of the Antlers hotel, at Grand Forks was killed Tuesday night being crushed between the floor and the side of the passenger elevator his head having been split open to the base of the brain.

The brake on the passenger elevator had become set and Mr. Freeman took the new night engineer to the top of the elevator to show him how to fix it. The damage was soon repaired, but when Freeman started the elevator the cage started for the top and he was unable to check it, being caught between the cage and the wire screening surrounding it at the third floor, and he was crushed between the ceiling and the lift, his body falling to the pit in the basement.

The engineer escaped by jumping over the screening when he found that Mr. Freeman had been caught. Freeman had lived at Dickinson eighteen years before coming to Grand Forks two years ago, and was a prominent Mason and Shriner. He is survived by a wife and grown son

Easy To Explain.

Can anyone tell us why Red Lake Falls didn't turn out a bigger crowd to the Fair? This is a Red Lake County Fair and all parts of the county should be represented; and all parts were—and well represented—except Red Lake Falls. Well, perhaps it was a fair representation from there considering the fact that the census showf that they are decreasing in population. It didn't cut much figure at any rate for we had a little larger crowd each day than we had last year, when poor old Red Lake Falls was not sulking in her tent. You, however, have a standing invitation, come again.—Thief River Press.

It is dead easy to tell the Press why Red Lake Falls didn't send a bigger crowd, and the Press really don't need to be told as it knows already. Early this year the prominent and leading newspaper of Thief Falls made the statement that Thief River Falls was open to an engagement for a Fourth of July celebration with any town in the county with the exception of Red Lake Falls, and it is useless to go any farther with the argument. Would the Press advocate the turning out of a large crowd to a Red Lake affair had the Gazette made the statement that they were not wanted. Hardly. Red Lake Falls may be decreasing in population, but they sent 300 people and a 25-piece band to St. Hilaire on the Fourth, while Thief River had their ball team and perhaps twenty-five others at the celebaation—the ball team getting good pay for being there. At Plummer, also Red Lake Falls was represented by some fifty or sixty people, while but three or four from Thief River showed up. No, dear Press, you can't make any feeling against Red Lake Falls because they didn't send a crowd to your fair, because it is a poor stick that will intrude where he is told he isn't wanted.

NO EXHIBIT THIS YEAR

Commercial Club Members Decide That We Are Too Late For State Fair Showing.

A meeting of the Commercial Club and citizens was held at the city hall Monday evening to consider the matter of making a Red Lake county exhibit at the state fair, but after considerable discussion it was decided that owing to the lateness of the season sufficient samples of grasses, etc., could not be secured, and those present at the meeting decided to abandon the project and take it up earlier next year, putting in a creditable county exhibit. The president of the club was asked to confer with the commissioners, and have a committeeman from each district in the county to help with next year's work.

Secretary Germo had corresponded with the managers of the fair and found that space could be secured for an exhibit, and he will arrange for the space next year in due season.

The following resolutions were passed by the Commercial Club before adjournment:

RESOLUTIONS OF APPRECIATION.

WHEREAS, The Hon. James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, has voluntarily reduced the carriage rates on wheat and wheat products, two cents per 100 pounds, and

WHEREAS, Said reduction will result in great permanent benefit to our farmers and people at large, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That we, the members of the Commercial Club, of the City of Red Lake Falls, fully appreciate the action of Mr. Hill, and extend our gracious thanks for his interest in behalf of the northwest.

FURTHER RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to President Hill and published in the local papers.

RESOLUTIONS OF REGRET.

WHEREAS, Attorney W. A. McIntyre, for several years past a prominent resident of the city, has deemed it advisable to seek a larger and more lucrative field of service, and

WHEREAS, We fully appreciate the sterling qualities and business ability, of Mr. McIntyre and feeling that his removal from our midst is accompanied by a great loss to the community, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That we, the members of the Commercial Club of the city of Red Lake Falls, exceedingly regret the removal of Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre from our city, and hope that they be successful in their new field of labors.

FURTHER RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this meeting, a copy of the resolution be sent to Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre at their new home and copies furnished to the local papers for publication.

WANT NEW CARRIER.

Wylie Rural Route Will Have New Man.

H. P. Anderson, the carrier on rural route No. 1 out of Wylie has sent in his resignation to the postoffice department, and advertisements have been posted for a new carrier to take his place. The examination of the new applicants will be held Sept. 16, and all applications must be sent in and be at Washington before Sept. 6. Blanks and general information may be had by application to Postmaster Ole T. Romsos at Wylie.

Aged Resident Dead.

Joseph Goyette, an aged resident of Red Lake county, died at his home in this city Tuesday evening, after a lingering illness with lung trouble. Deceased was born at St. Isadore, Canada, some 75 years ago, and moved to Wisconsin when a young man, where he lived at Green Bay for 20 years. Later he moved to St. Paul, and finally to Louisville township, this county, where he remained until about seven years ago, since which time he has made his home in this city. Deceased served three years in the war of the Rebellion and received an honorable discharge from the service. He leaves a wife, two sons and two daughters, besides numerous old friends and neighbors to mourn the loss of one near and dear. The funeral will be held from St. Joseph's church tomorrow, the remains being interred in the Catholic cemetery east of the city.

SCHOOL DAYS COMING

Approach of Season of Work For Teachers and Scholars of Independent School District No. 15.

The happy school day season is again at hand, and within a short space of time the school bell will again assemble together the young idea of the district for another term of work and study.

School will start on Monday, September 4, this year, and owing to that day being Labor Day and a holiday, only a morning session will be held, at which time the program of studies, etc., will be made out, and Professor Chamberlain urges that every person in the city who will attend school the coming year be present the first morning, in order that the program can be made out to accommodate all, and says that those who are not there can expect no consideration in the matter of preference of studies, etc.

The faculty of the two schools this year will be as follows:

Superintendent, E. W. Chamberlain.

LAFAYETTE SCHOOL.

Miss Ella Haoson, of Fertile, principal.

Mr. H. R. Tonoing, of Glenwood, mathematics and sciences.

Miss Grace L. Allen, of Green Castle, Ind., history and German.

These three teachers with Professor Chamberlain will have charge of the high school and eight grade work.

Miss Alice Coughlin, sixth and seventh grades.

Miss Eliza Trudo, fourth and fifth grades.

Miss Bertha Norby, third grade.

Mrs. J. J. Doe, second grade.

Miss Ada B. Foote, of East Grand Forks, primary.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL.

Leland E. Healy, principal, fifth and sixth grades.

Miss Ellen Brady, third and fourth grades.

Miss Pauline Nieland, second grade.

Miss Henrietta Hennemuth, primary.

The fact that the new school house on the North Side will not be ready until late in the fall, will necessitate holding school on that side in several different buildings, and as soon as the board arranges for accommodations The Gazette will announce where the different grades will assemble. The new seats have been ordered and will be here in time to be used when school opens, and moved in the new building later.

The Lafayette building has been repaired considerably during vacation and will be in first-class shape to accommodate the pupils there. Messrs. Dubuque and Beaulieu have been re-elected janitors, the former for the Lafayette and the latter for the Washington school.

The usual high school affairs and societies will be renewed as soon as school is well under way, and besides the several societies, foot ball team, etc., a school Glee club will likely be organized, so that the coming year's work promises to be both instructive as well as interesting to the pupils and people at large.

CAR STRUCK BY TRAIN

NINE PERSONS DEAD AND MORE THAN A DOZEN INJURED AT BUTTE, MONT.

Trolley Crowded With Merrymakers Hit by a Freight at a Crossing and Crushed to Bits, the Passengers Having No Warning of Impending Disaster—Railroad Men Hold Motorman Responsible for Accident.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 21.—Nine persons were killed, one fatally injured and about thirteen more or less injured in a collision between a street car filled with returning merrymakers from the Columbia Gardens and a freight train on the Butte, Anaconda and Pacific railway. The dead are:

Maggie Harrington, aged nineteen, Butte; Maud Johnson, aged nineteen, Butte; Mrs. Jacobs, colored, Butte; Mrs. Sadie Smith; Maggie Keefe, aged nineteen, Butte; Vera Haughton, aged fourteen, Butte; Chris Wold and an unidentified man and woman.

Loaded with passengers, many of them women and girls, the car was struck by the end of a freight train on the railroad tracks north of the Butte, Anaconda and Pacific depot and crushed beneath the weight of one freight car. That more of those on the car were not killed is miraculous, for the accident occurred with a suddenness that precluded any hope of escape for those on the front end of the car. Most of them were women and young girls and six of these were killed, the other two victims being men.

The train which struck the street car was composed of fourteen freight cars, being pushed east on the tracks by a Butte, Anaconda and Pacific engine.

The street car was approaching from the south. Conductor Hoagland says he was on top of the train with a lantern and warned the motorman, but the latter put on speed and attempted to cross ahead of the train.

WORK OF A TORNADO

NUMBER OF PERSONS KILLED OR MISSING IN VARIOUS MINNESOTA TOWNS.

St. Paul, Aug. 22.—Belated reports of Sunday night's storm in Minnesota indicate that a number of persons were killed or injured and that the property damage is immense. Crops have been destroyed, railroad tracks swept away and farmhouses wrecked.

Tosten Danielson was killed at Pilot Mound in the wrecking of a church. One man was killed and several are missing at Lanesboro and Rushford and half a dozen persons were injured. A church at Root Prairie was wrecked and one man killed and a number of persons hurt. The casualty list will undoubtedly be increased when complete reports have been received.

SEVEN STILL MISSING.

Sixteen Known Dead in Excursion Train Wreck.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 21.—The bodies of two more victims of the Kinston and Greenville excursion railway wreck of Thursday were found during the day in the western branch of the Elizabeth river near the scene of the accident. One of them was Thomas [illegible], the drawbridge keeper, who was knocked off the bridge and drowned when the train plunged through the open draw.

This makes fourteen bodies that have been recovered from the river, with two injured dead in St. Vincent's hospital here, making sixteen known dead up to this time.

It is believed that still more bodies are in the river. Some of the excursionists who returned home, not finding their friends there, have come back to Norfolk to make further search. It is thought that as many as seven people are yet missing.

JEALOUSY THE CAUSE.

Wife of New Yorker Shoots Husband's Stenographer.

New York, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Beatrice Young, wife of William G. Young, who employs several stenographers in New York hotels, shot and probably fatally wounded Mrs. Catherine Morgan in a parlor of the Hotel Imperial, where the latter was employed by Mr. Young. Jealousy is believed to be the cause of the shooting. Mrs. Young has been separated from her husband and believed Mrs. Morgan was to blame for it. The affair created almost a panic in the cafe of the hotel, which was quickly emptied of the diners, who rushed to the scene of the shooting.

WILL FIGHT BEEF TRUST.

Heavy Users of Product to Erect Packing Plants.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Hotel men, wholesale butchers and restaurant keepers have formed a combination to fight the "beef trust." Two plants, one costing $150,000 and the other $300,000, are in course of erection and a third, to cost $500,000, is contemplated.

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHTER.

Officials Hopeful of Mastering Situation at New Orleans.

New Orleans, Aug. 21.—It is apparent that the annihilation of the fever transmitting mosquito is marking the decline of the yellow fever scourge within the city of New Orleans. The oppressive weather, however, added to the consuming tendency of the fever, shows itself in the large number of deaths reported. The cases to date total 1,402 and the deaths 201.

For the first time since the federal authorities have assumed charge of the situation the professional reserve has been broken. It is not expected of strict disciplinarians to comment on their work, but the atmosphere which pervades the actions of the Marine hospital surgeons reflects their confidence that they have about mastered a serious problem.

Outside of New Orleans, however, the circumstances are somewhat different. In St. Marys parish, notably on Riverside plantation, there is cause for concern. The numerous swamps in that locality afford ample breeding ground for the mosquito and the insect is not as easily destroyed.

Suspicious Case in Missouri.

Keokuk, Ia., Aug. 21.—A case of yellow fever is reported from Gregory, Mo., seven miles south of Keokuk. A Greek laborer on railroad construction has been quarantined, his case being pronounced yellow fever. He came from Natchez a few days ago with a party of laborers.

CONCLUDES ITS WORK

RECIPROCITY CONFERENCE AT CHICAGO FAVORS DUAL TARIFF SYSTEM.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—The reciprocity conference called to devise means of bettering the trade relations between the United States and foreign countries finished the work Thursday for which the meeting was called; arranged for a committee to prosecute the plans of the convention and formed a permanent organization styled as the American Reciprocal Tariff league. The committee, which will consist of fifteen members to be appointed by the chair, was given full power to organize and promote the work for which the convention assembled.

The resolutions adopted advocate a maximum and a minimum tariff as a means of relieving the situation with which this country is confronted and suggest that such reciprocal concessions be arranged by a permanent tariff commission, to be created by congress and to be appointed by the president.

The principal speaker at Thursday's session was Governor A. B. Cummins of Iowa, who, in a speech full of fire and eloquence, hurled defiance at the enemies of reciprocity. Mr. Cummins brought the audience under his spell, and except when interrupted with uproarious applause, he held full sway for three-quarters of an hour.

DESPERATE FEUD FIGHT.

Two Kentuckians Killed and Three Wounded.

Clay City, Ky., Aug. 21.—In a desperate feud fight on Black creek, in Powell county, Campbell Anderson and Tom Morton were killed and Cale Morton was seriously wounded, while Will Peasely and Troy Plunkett were slightly hurt. The men were in a "blind tiger" operated by Plunkett when the trouble started between Anderson and Tom Morton.

STEPS INTO BREACH

PRESIDENT MAKING DESPERATE EFFORT TO PREVENT BREAK IN PEACE CONFERENCE.

Appeals to Both St. Petersburg and Tokio to Induce the Warring Countries to Show a Spirit of Concession and Not Allow Negotiations to End in Failure—Seven Conditions Accepted by Russian Envoys.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 19.—President Roosevelt has stepped into the breach and is making a last desperate effort to save the peace conference from shipwreck. Just what the president is doing has not transpired, but it is regarded as certain that he has appealed both to Tokio and St. Petersburg to induce the warring countries to show a spirit of concession and not allow the conference to go onto the rocks next Tuesday. Mr. Griscom and Mr. Meyer may have been instructed to make direct appeals to the emperors of the two countries. If the co-operation of France and England, the allies of the respective belligerents, is secured something may be accomplished. In the last resort the main obstacle to success of the peace negotiations is certain to prove to be the question of indemnity. Russia will not pay "a copeck of tribute," in the language of M. Witte. That is believed to be Russia's last word on that question. The question of the cession of Sakhalin may be arranged. But unless Japan relinquishes her claim for "the cost of the war" hope is gone. It is at Tokio, consequently, that the issue will probably be decided. France, it is certain, will support the president's effort. If England will now bring pressure to bear, as it is definitely stated she is now prepared to do, the situation may be saved.

As an indication of intervention by President Roosevelt came the departure early in the day of Baron Rosen, the Russian ambassador, for Oyster Bay. He went by direct invitation of the president, communicated to him by Assistant Secretary Peirce.

DEADLOCK PREVAILS

STATUS OF NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN RUSSIAN AND JAPANESE ENVOYS.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 19.—The substance and present status of the Japanese terms are as follows:

One—Russia's recognition of Japan's "preponderant influence" in Korea, with her right to preserve order in the civil administration, give military and financial advice to the emperor of Korea, Japan binding herself to observe the territorial integrity of Korea, and (it is believed) the policy of the "open door." Accepted.

Two—Mutual obligation to evacuate Manchuria. Accepted.

Three—Japanese obligations to restore in Manchuria Chinese sovereignty and civil administration. Accepted.

Four—Mutual obligation to respect in the future "the territorial integrity and administrative entity" of China in Manchuria and to maintain the principle of equal opportunity for the industry and commerce of all nations (open door). Accepted.

Five—The cession of the island of Sakhalin to Japan. Refused and final consideration deferred.

Sixth—The surrender to Japan of the Russian leases of the Liaotung peninsula, including Port Arthur, Dalny and the Blonde and Elliott islands. Accepted.

China Secures Railroad Line.

Seven—The surrender to China by arrangement with Japan of the branch of the Chinese Eastern railroad running south from Harbin to Port Arthur and Newchwang, together with the retrocession of all the privileges obtained under the concession of 1898. Accepted in principle; final agreement deferred.

Eight—The limitation of the Chinese concession obtained by Mr. Rothstein and Prince Ukhtomsky in 1896 under which the "cutoff" through Northern Manchuria was built to connect the Transsiberian and Ussurri railroads so as to provide for the retention of the ownership and operation of the line by the Chinese Eastern, but with provision for the eventual substitution of Chinese imperial police for Russian "railroad guards." Accepted.

Nine—Remuneration for the cost of the war. Refused and action deferred.

Ten—The surrender of the Russian warships interned in neutral Far Eastern waters. Disagreement and action deferred.

Eleven—The limitation of Russia's naval power on Pacific waters. Deferred.

Twelve—The grant to the citizens of Japan of the right to fish in waters of the Russian littoral from Vladivostok north to the Behring sea. Agreed on.

Boycott Evidently Weakening.

Shanghai, Aug. 21.—The boycott against American goods is evidently weakening and the intended mission of Former Minister Conger is considered to be entirely superfluous.

ATTEMPTED MURDER CHARGED.

Former Member of Parliament Under Arrest.

London, Aug. 18.—A great sensation has been created by the arrest of Hugh Watt, a financier and formerly a member of parliament for the Calachie division of Glasgow, on the charge of attempting to procure a private detective to assist in the murder of his former wife. Detective Marshall testified in police court that Watt offered him $25,000 if he would induce the woman to come to Watt's flat, where he proposed to kill her by the administration of chloroform and then to remove the smell of the chloroform with peppermint. Watt was remanded for trial on bail of $3,000. The police found both chloroform and peppermint in Watt's apartments.

Watt was in the divorce court some years ago when his wife sued for a divorce, the co-respondent being Lady Violet Beauchamp, daughter of the late Lord and Lady Roden and the divorced wife of Sir Reginald Beauchamp. Watt has since married Lady Violet Beauchamp.

OUTBREAK OF ACHINESE.

Small Force of Dutch Troops Practically Wiped Out.

Amsterdam, Aug. 17.—A telegram received from Batavia, Dutch Indies, reports an ugly outbreak of Achinese rebels, who attacked the Dutch post at Ramhong, killing two officers and twenty-two men. Only six men of the post succeeded in escaping and these were wounded.

MANIFESTO BY CZAR

CREATES NATIONAL REPRESENTATIVE ASSEMBLY LONG DESIRED BY RUSSIANS.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19.—Russia's national representative assembly, the fruit of decades of stress and striving for reform, which endows the Russian people with the right of being consulted through their chosen representatives in the suggestion, preparation and repeal of legislation, now takes its place among the fundamental institutions of the empire.

The national assembly will be a consultative organization in connection with the council of the empire and not a legislative body. The powers of the emperor remain theoretically absolute. As the emperor is the supreme law giver and autocrat, the decisions of the douma have only a recommendatory and not a binding force, though the rejection of any legislative measures by a two-thirds majority of both houses is sufficient to prevent that measure from becoming law.

The suffrage, though wide, is not universal. It is based on property qualification, the peasantry having a vote through membership in communal organizations.

A considerable portion of the residents of the cities, possessing no lands, together with women, soldiers, civil functionaries, etc., are without suffrage.

OPERATORS GO BACK

STRIKE ON NORTHERN PACIFIC AND GREAT NORTHERN AT AN END.

St. Paul, Aug. 21.—President Perham of the Order of Railway Telegraphers has called off the strike on the Northern Pacific road. He said that the vote of the men on the question was close, but he had decided to call off the strike.

This action follows a similar course taken by President Perham in regard to the trouble on the Great Northern, the formal notice to this effect being contained in the following message directed by President Perham to General Superintendent Slade:

"This is to advise you that the strike of the station agents and telegraphers on the Great Northern railway has been declared off and our membership is now at liberty to return to work if it desires. So far as the organization and committee are concerned the strike is a closed incident."

On both roads the operators will return to work under the schedules last offered to them and which were refused by President Perham and his strike committee.

LORD CURZON RESIGNS.

Earl of Minto Selected as New Viceroy of India.

London, Aug. 21.—The resignation of Lord Curzon of Kedleston as viceroy of India and the appointment of the Earl of Minto as his successor is announced. Curzon's resignation is due to the refusal of the home office to follow the recommendation of the viceroy to appoint Major General Sir Edmund Barrow military supply member of the council. The correspondence relating to the matter shows a decidedly bitter feeling between Lord Curzon, the Indian office and Lord Kitchener, commander-in-chief of the forces in India.

Japs Seize Russian Transport.

Tokio, Aug. 21.—The commander of the squadron sent to Kamchatka reports that he seized the Russian transport Australia in Petropavlovsk harbor on Aug. 18.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

EVENTS OF A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

W. P. Jewett, a prominent Minnesota pioneer, is dead at St. Paul.

Carbolic acid taken with suicidal intent caused the death of Gust Swanson at Minneapolis.

Mrs. Godfrey Zabel, an old resident of the town of Afton, Washington county, is dead, aged eighty-seven years.

W. J. Loeb, private secretary to President Roosevelt, spent Saturday in St. Paul on his return from a month's sojourn in Yellowstone park.

Official figures completed by the state census bureau give Minnesota a total of 1,964,453 inhabitants. The count by the federal bureau in 1900 gave Minnesota 1,751,394.

The Home Protective league of Minneapolis has inaugurated a wholesale crusade against saloonkeepers who have been keeping their places of business open on Sunday.

Lester B. Elwood of Minneapolis has been appointed a member of the state board of equalization by Governor Johnson to succeed Titus Mareck of the same city, who resigned.

Alfred A. Buck, former cashier of the Mapleton State bank, who was recently brought to Mankato from the Isle of Pines charged with embezzlement, has been released on $5,000 bail.

Eugene M. Pike of Minneapolis is dead as the result of a mosquito bite received at a lake resort. He was a well known retail druggist and had resided in Minneapolis for over twenty years.

By a vote of 4 to 1 the state board of investment refused to pass a resolution providing for the sale of $2,145,000 worth of Virginia state bonds, as proposed by State Treasurer Julius H. Block.

Rev. C. Lindell, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church at Vasa, fell dead in a drug store at Red Wing while on his way to Chicago to attend the funeral of his daughter, who had died in New Mexico of consumption.

At a meeting of the state timber board it was decided to hold a sale of state timber at the capitol in St. Paul, Oct. 17, at 10 a. m. All such state timber as seems in danger of destruction will be offered for sale.

The city council of Fergus Falls has decided to call a special election to vote on the question of issuing bonds to the extent of $89,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary to buy the present waterworks plant or construct a new city system.

Mrs. Emily Hortenbach, fifty-one years old, wife of Robert E. Hortenbach, proprietor of a Minneapolis creamery, while laboring under the delusion that some one was seeking her life and was about to kill her, took a fatal potion of carbolic acid.

Edward H. Selle, bookkeeper in the German bank of Freeport, Ill., arrived at the Merchants' hotel in St. Paul last week after a walk of 328 miles. His walk was taken purely as a vacation outing. During the tour, which took him ten days, he made an average of thirty-two miles a day.

Work on the Red River Lumber company's logging railroad running into the dense pines northwest of Akeley is being rapidly pushed by a large crew of men. The company is also building several sets of camps. It is estimated that about 500,000,000 feet of timber will be reached by the new line.

About 200 veterans from Minnesota will attend the thirty-ninth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which will be held at Denver the week beginning Sept. 4. Besides the soldiers there will be their relatives, which will make nearly 400 people from Minnesota at the grand reunion.

It is probable that the state board of control will soon make a general revision of salaries of employes at the state institutions. The present payroll was arranged two or three years ago and so many exceptions have been made in individual instances since that time that a general revision is thought necessary.

Sylvester Milton, son of Mrs. M. Milton of Winona, met a shocking death at the Biesanz stone quarry at Minnesota City. He had been set to work pulling up slack ropes in the derrick when one of the ropes caught and he was jerked up into the air nearly fifty feet, falling on his head and fracturing his skull.

On the ground that the machinery of the state should not be utilized to collect a debt Governor Johnson has revoked his warrant for the extradition of Oscar E. Serum from Winona, this state, to Grand Rapids, Mich., where he is wanted on a charge of removing furniture from the state which he had purchased on the installment plan.

The state is not entitled to interest on delinquent taxes collected from railroads, telephone companies and other corporations, according to an opinion by Assistant Attorney General Stone. Mr. Stone says that in the absence of a specific statute to the contrary taxes do not draw interest, no matter how long they may have been delinquent.

Reports of wholesale timber stealing in Northern Minnesota were filed with the state timber board at its meeting last week. These reports were presented by the cruisers who have just returned from an inspection of the state's holdings. The evidence which the state has collected is being kept secret by the timber board, but it is intimated that the evidence is conclusive enough to start action to collect.

SOMEWHAT OF A SPRINTER

Several of them were lined up in front of the counter at the hotel, discussing foot racers. After the sprinting qualities of world famous racers had been defended with much warmth and everybody engaged in the discussion had reached the point where he insisted upon backing his opinion with a week's income, they submitted the whole question to Lynn Austin, who used to be a famous sprinter in his time, relates the San Francisco Chronicle.

"Well, I'll tell you," said Austin, squaring off for the encounter with a serious look. "The fastest runner I ever saw in my life was a fellow at Kearney, Neb. He used to run with the hose company, and he was certainly a prodigy. Did you ever hunt prairie dogs? Well, a prairie dog has so much speed that after you've landed a charge of buckshot in his vitals he is carried along by his own momentum and falls into his hole, for which reason no one ever succeeded in capturing the carcass of the animal after shooting him. This fellow down at Kearney, Neb., was the only fellow that ever succeeded in beating a prairie dog to his hole."

"What ever became of him?" said one of the interested listeners.

"Well, I'll tell you. He was out hunting prairie dogs one day. He got a head on a prairie dog, sent a charge of buckshot after him and then started for the dog. Just as he was stooping to grab the dog the charge of buckshot caught up with him and the calves of his legs were riddled with shot. It crippled him up pretty badly, and he couldn't run after that."

GOOD WORD FOR SNAKES.

Original Observations of a Boston Taxidermist Concerning Reptiles.

"It is a great mistake to say the snake is of no benefit to mankind," said J. P. Siebert, a Boston taxidermist, recently, reports the New York Globe. "Snakes are a necessary evil. We once went to great pains to kill off all the alligators and muskrats. When the alligators were killed the muskrats multiplied tremendously, and being conscientious opposed to river embankments, they undermined the walls, so that the river is frequently breaking through and flooding the country. Nature knew that alligators were needed to keep down the muskrats, but man thought he knew better. Now he sees his mistake.

"It is said that St. Patrick cleared all the snakes out of Ireland. If that is so Ireland has certainly not been benefited. Even Irishmen themselves admit that their country is to-day the most miserable on earth. Ireland is now full of pigs and there isn'a a single snake. Now, I claim that no country ever flourishes where snakes do not bear a normal proportion to the other inhabitants. There are no snakes in Iceland, and look at the miserable state of the island. America is full of snakes and see the prosperity we are enjoying.

"I do not say that the snake brings prosperity wherever it goes, but I do say that when the original balance between snakes and the rest of the population is disturbed in any given country, that country is bound to be poor and miserable."

SLIPPERS HARD TO HANDLE

Those of the Japanese Are Not the Best to Climb Stairways In.

He shuffled awkwardly about his room in a pair of Japanese slippers sent from Tokio by his brother, the war correspondent, relates the New York Herald. The slippers had no heels; they only hung on by the toes; and they fell off if, forgetting himself, he once lifted his feet instead of dragging them.

Soon, though, he acquired the knack of walking about without losing the slippers; but he never could acquire the knack of ascending a stairway without losing them. So, in despair, at the end he would always take off the slippers and carry them in his hand before attempting to go upstairs.

"Even the Japs themselves," he said, "couldn't ascend a stairway with these slippers that have no heel clutch. You see, such slippers are only worn by the Japanese middle classes, and the middle classes have no stairs in their houses—everything is on the first floor. For shuffling about on the level heelless slippers are all right, but for stair climbing they are useless, and before stairways they must disappear even as before the locomotive the stage coach faded away.

"Without shame, therefore, I take off my Japanese slippers and carry them in my hand when I go upstairs, for I know that the Jap, if he had stairways, would be obliged to do likewise."

Too Much Horse Sense.

In the classes in equitation at Fort Riley the horses soon become as apt pupils as the riders. On account of this fact, says the Kansas City Journal, some of the most important lessons to be derived from this course by the men are lacking. In order to carry out the intent of the riding school the department has to bring in unbroken horses almost constantly. A carload of wild Indian ponies arrived a few days ago.

The business man who talks to the readers of a newspaper as he talks to the customers in the store is the one who wins.

"Men who stay at home every night are not good for anything," says Dr. Julia Holmes Smith. We don't know who Mrs. Smith is, but hurrah for her anyway.

Mrs. Mary Huber, of New York, claims that her husband, whose salary is $4 a week, has been leading a double life and supporting two families. There is a financial expert who seems to have them all beaten.

Since the war began Russia has drawn down her treasury balance 451,000,000 rubles, used up a special war fund of 140,000,000 and borrowed 1,710,000,000 rubles, showing that the war has been costing her about 5,000,000 rubles—$2,500,000—daily.

A Philadelphia paper has gathered statistics which show that woman's chances to marry between the ages of 25 and 30 are only 18 per cent, while between 20 and 25 the chances in her favor are 52 per cent. Apparently it is rather dangerous to say no to the first man.

There is at least a grain of satisfaction in knowing that an attempt was made at least to have a state fair exhibit, this year, and perhaps with the use of the sharp stick another year early enough in this game, Red Lake county will be given an excellent ad at this greatest of all fairs. "Keeping constantly at it brings success" and if our Commercial club could be induced to adopt that saying as a motto it might help some.

No city of size and enterprise should be without a committee, even if there is but one on it, to see that "the stranger within the gates" worthy it be welcomed and shown the residence and business attractions. The disposition is too often "to take him in" to his immediate sorrow and occasionally lasting regret. Our citizens could profitably employ some one of integrity, courtesy and good judgment to get busy with the visitor here in a right way.

The postoffice department has made a new ruling on mail matter addressed to patrons on rural routes which will be of great benefit in this country when the reorganization of the system goes into effect this fall. Under the new ruling postmasters are allowed to forward papers as well as mail matter from one office to another where the person addressed is on a rural route. In the many changes from one postoffice to another that will result when the new routes are established it will require several months for the patrons to have their mail properly addressed, and while there will necessarily be delays, mail of every character will finally reach the party to whom it was addressed.

As a member of Northern Minnesota's growing populace we cannot help but feel some commiseration for other sections which are to be shorn of their political power, provided they do not treat this section of the state in a more businesslike and generous manner says the Itasca County Record. In the next decade there is going to be a reapportionment of legislative districts that will open up the eyes of the state, for Northern Minnesota hasn't as yet began to grow. The state as a whole has a golden moment to be generous to us, for we need the help of all to develop our vast opportunities; and when the time comes when we hold the power in our own hands, and other sections need beg for favors; they will well find us unbiased by the past.

The Drainage League starts right—starts a movement that will be a good thing for the Good Roads movement, a good thing for the State's Immigration policy, a good thing for the school fund and a magnificent idea for the rapid development of the north says the Bemidji Sentinel. With drainage good roads are possible and in no other way. With ten million acres of the fattest land in the state reclaimed the Immigration board will have a talking point; with waste lands turned into money the school fund will be ample and with swamp lands in the hands of actual farmers the great north will at once become the home of tens of thousands of new settlers. Push it along, brethern of the south and boost for the drainage system, brethern of the press of the north.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo O. Harry E. Ives passed through the city Saturday evening on his way to St. Paul, where he joined the members of the State Editorial association on their trip to Saranic, Ontario, and other points down the great lakes. The boys also took in the iron range country in the eastern part of the state, and will no doubt enjoy a delightful outing.

A trick bicycle rider going by the name of Count Debutts, gave a couple of performances on Main street Tuesday afternoon and evening, and greatly pleased the people with his work on the wheel. The fellow performed every feat imaginable on a wheel, and some of his balancing tricks and fancy riding performances were simply marvelous. He took up a collection at each performance to enable him to get from New York to San Francisco, as he said, but it is likely that he is making better wages in this manner than he could with any show troupe. He is worth all he gets, though, as he gives as good an hour's entertainment as could be wished for. He left yesterday for Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McIntyre left Monday evening for their new home at Fargo, a large crowd of friends assembling at the train to bid them farewell. Mr. McIntyre will at once assume a partnership in a leading law firm of the Dakota city, and will undoubtedly make a success of his new work. The Red Lake Falls friends of the popular young couple will trust that their success may be unlimited.

J. C. Matthews went up to Thief River Falls Wednesday to go before Examiner Gamble and take an examination for increase in pension. This was John's first visit to the up-river city for several years and he said be was surprised to find that the town wasn't half as big as Chicago, as from what he had heard lately about the wonderful burg up there he had prepared himself for a ride on the electric cars, and a visit to several of the beautiful parks, etc., and was extremely disappointed to find only a fair-sized country town.

Attorney Fred L. Farley went down to Crookston Monday evening where he appeared before Judge Watts as attorney for the plaintiff in the divorce suit of Lee vs. Lee and after hearing the arguments the Judge granted the relief demanded in the complaint. Mrs. Lee sued for a divorce on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment and desertion, and no appearance was made by the defendant at the suit. The Lee's have been residents of Black River township a number of years, and had been married 27 years, now having several grown-up children.

A number of the people of the city were treated to a "bean supper" at Joseph Belair home last Sunday evening, Chef Swanson and Mrs. Belair preparing the repast and inviting a number of friends. The band was out and furnished music while the crowd enjoyed themselves with plenty to eat, etc. A trick balancer and wire walker also furnished amusement for the people who were there. The affair was a very enjoyable one, and the Belairs and Mr Swanson were given a vote of thanks for the entertainment.

With added responsibilities on our youthful shoulders this week, The Gazette editor feels that the duties of news gathering have been slightly neglected, but doesn't believe any blame can be laid at our door. A fine new girl baby arrived at the Haislet home early Monday morning, and between tramps up and down the floor since we have endeavured to think of something to write about, but with little success. The young lady and her mother are both getting along finely, and with a little assistance we hope to survive the shock ourself.

To the Judge of the District Court of the 14th Judicial District.

The undersigned land owners, whose lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for, the expense of the construction of the Ditch hereinafter described, would respectfully represent that the public health convenience and welfare and the reclamation of wet and overflowed lands require the establishment and construction of a ditch along the following described route in the towns of Winger, Knute Badger and Grove Park and Terrebonne in said counties of Polk and Red Lake and that the construction of the same would be of public benefit and utility.

A general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said ditch is as follows:

Commencing at a point in a lake 40 rods south of the S. E. corner of the N. W. ¼ of the S. W. ¼ Sec. 3-T. 147, R. 42 thence in a northerly direction through sec. 3, following a natural water course into a lake in Sec. 28-T-148, R. 42.

Thence following the natural water course in a westerly direction into Lake Sarah thence through the outlet of Lake Sarah following the natural water course into a lake near the center of sec. 20. T. 148, R. 42 thence in a northwesterly direction following a natural coulee across sections 20 and 17 into a creek running in a northerly direction into Badger Lake in Sections 25 and 34, T. 149, R. 42. Then following Badger Creek the outlet of said Badger Lake, down stream through sections 34, 27, 22, 21, 28, 20, 17, 8, 7 and 6 in said T. 149, 42 thence along said creek through section 1 to the northern boundary thereof in T. 149, 43 to the source of Terrebonne Ditch No. 2, down stream to a point where said ditch has sufficient capacity to carry off the water that will be carried down it by said proposed ditch.

And your petitioners pray that you will proceed to establish such Ditch and cause the same to be constructed as provided by Chapter Two Hundred Thirty (230) of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1905.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climate conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. New Towns in North Dakota.

The extensive railroad building now being done in North Dakota has brought tributary to railroad facilities an additional vast area of the rich agricultural sections of northern and western North Dakota. The Great Northern railway is building a number of new extensions from its main line northward notably that of the Sarles extension of the Elmora line, the Thorne extension running north from York, the Mohall extension running northwestward from Towner, and a further extension of the Westhope line to Antler.

The building of these new lines has brought into being a number of new towns which are fully described in a pamphlet recently issued by the Great Northern railway. By application to Mr. F. I. Whitney, Passenger Traffic Manager, St. Paul, Minn., a copy of these pamphlets "New Extensions in North Dakota" or "New Towns in North Dakota" will be mailed to any address. 6w

Fraud Exposed.

A few counterfeiters have lately been making and trying to sell imitations of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and other medicines, thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit, through stealing the reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing diseases, for over 35 years. A sure protection, to you, is our name on the wrapper. Look for it, on all Dr. King's or Bucklen's remedies, as all others are mere imitations. H. E. Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the evils attendant on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. STATE FAIR TIME HAS COME ONCE MORE.

The Week of September 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 to be the Annual Gopher Holiday Season.

THE FAMOUS DAN PATCH THE STAR ATTRACTION OPENING DAY

Half-Fare Rates Have Been Made by All Railroads for the Entire Northwest—Every Division Crowded With Exhibits—Strong Amusement Program Afternoons and Evenings.

Bright and early Monday morning, September 4, the Minnesota state fair will be opened to the public. It will continue through the week, closing on Saturday night, Sept. 9, at 11 o'clock, and every hour of the six days will be replete with interest. A year of hard work has been put into the preparation. It is believed that the fair will be more perfect in every department than ever before, more worth seeing, and stronger in every way as a promoter of the interests of the state.

Half-fare rates have been made on all railroads centering at Minneapolis and St. Paul. For 200 miles south and east these rates apply, while the liberality of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Soo lines gives the people to the west, as far as the Missouri river, the same low rate.

The rates go into effect Saturday, Sept. 2, so that people in any part of Minnesota or the Dakotas may reach the cities by Saturday night, Sunday or Monday morning in plenty of time for the events of the opening day. This is important, for the first day of the fair will be the best this year. All exhibits will be in place by 9 a. m. During the morning United States Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver of Iowa will make the formal opening address. In the afternoon there will be the full program of amusements, including the appearance of the famous Dan Patch in an attempt to lower his world's record of 1:56.

Dan Patch is the most remarkable horse in the world. He is easily the fastest harness horse alive, or that ever lived, the only horse that ever paced a mile under two minutes, and the horse with the brightest prospects. For Dan Patch is still a comparatively young horse and may startle the world again with great achievements.

The Minnesota state fair race track is in the pink of condition, and is now pronounced by experts to be the fastest track in the country. So it is expected that Dan can come close to his record and everything possible will be done to insure a record-breaking heat. He will go three heats with a runner at one side.

Dan Patch will appear only Monday, Sept. 4. His other engagements preclude any other appearance at this fair. It will be easily the greatest race track event of the year, and something that no one should miss seeing.

On Monday there will also be a great racing program, including one of the new $2,500 purse races and the fastest trotting race—the 2:10 class for $1,500. All the great specialty attractions will be seen during the afternoon. This is the list:

Band Concert—First Regiment Band.

Sensational high wire performance.

The Five Flying Moores—Aerial Trapeze Act.

Galetti's Monkey Circus—Most comical thing ever seen on the stage.

Fearless High Diving—120 feet into net.

Ladies' Relay Race—Three daring riders in 24-mile race, four miles each day, changing horses at the end of each mile in front of the grand stand.

The Death-Trap Loop—Hazardous, death-defying "loop-the-loop" act by "The Great Babcock."

Balloon ascension and parachute drop.

These attractions, with the exception of the ladies' relay race, will also be repeated in the evening, concluding with Pain's latest pyrotechnic spectacle, "The Fall of Port Arthur." Pain's productions need no introduction to northwestern people. They have been seen from year to year at the state fair, and always give satisfaction. The Port Arthur portrays scenes with which everyone has become familiar during the past months and will be of thrilling and absorbing interest.

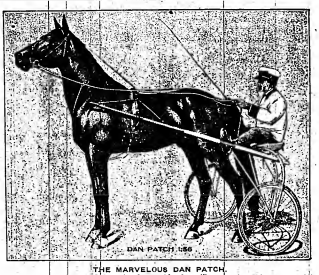
Babcock's Death Trap Loop act is probably the most exciting ever seen in a public performance. It was given last year at the state fair and attracted more attention than anything else on the program.

The program given above will be repeated in substance each afternoon and evening of fair week, Dan Patch, of course, excepted, as he will be on hand only on Monday.

Other amusements will include the Merry Pike with its specialties, wild animals, tame elephants and camels, illusions, and all sorts of curiosities and entertainments. There will be music on the grounds at every turn. Liberati's world famous military band will give two concerts daily, and the Minnesota State Band, First Regiment Band, Third Regiment Band and other musical organizations will take part in the various programs.

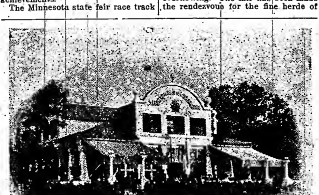
In all divisions the fair will be overflowing. The fair has been made the rendezvous for the fine herds of cattle which will make up a special train for the Portland exposition, starting just after the close of the Minnesota fair. This will bring many fine cattle and horses to the show, and with the national exhibitions of the Shorthorn and Hereford associations will produce the greatest cattle show ever seen in one place. Agricultural Hall will be in finer shape than ever before and will have a larger and more representative exhibit. The farm machinery department has spread all over the northeast corner of the fair grounds and will be by all odds the largest exhibit ever gotten together.

C. N. Cosgrove of Le Sueur is president of the fair this year, as for several years past, and E. W. Randall is secretary. B. F. Nelson of Minneapolis is first vice-president, C. M. Griggs of St. Paul second vice-president, and the board of managers is made up of J. M. Underwood, Lake City; L. D. Baird, Austin; W. M. Liggett, St. Anthony Park; Wm. E. Lee, Long Prairie; D. S. Hall, Buffalo Lake; G. W. Patterson, Worthington.



THE MARVELOUS DAN PATCH.

The fastest harness horse in the world who will go against his own world's record of 1:56, at the Minnesota State Fair, on Monday, Sept. 4th—Opening Day—only.



THE MINNESOTA ST. LOUIS BUILDING.

This building was first erected on the grounds of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis. After the close of the World's Fair it was turned over to the Minnesota State Fair and brought to the Fair Grounds where it has been rebuilt in a permanent way. It will be headquarters for the newspaper men of the state.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1903.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

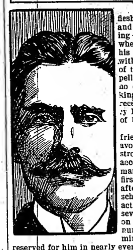
PERRY BELMONT'S HORSES ATTRACT KING EDWARD



It is well-known that a "good piece of horseflesh" is a joy forever in the eyes of King Edward and that no turfman is more interested in following the races than he. It will he ramemhered thai when he ascended the throne it was feared that his liking in this direction would not well compori with the dignity which ought to he found in a ruler of the British nation. These doubts have besn dispelled by tbe king's temperance in the mattsr, hut no one is greatly astonished that this trait of the king's is still well to the fora, as evidenced most recently by bis request of our famous turfman, Perry Belmont, of New York, that the latter send some of his horses to race in England.

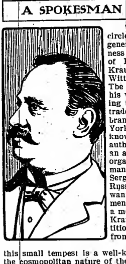
It would prohahly puzzle many of Mr. Belmont's friends to say just wbat is vocation and what is avocation witb him. He is a good lawyer; ha is a strong politician; he is a clever financier; he la an accomplished diplomat; he is a well-known cluh man and he is a famous turfman. in support of the first two counts it is only necessary to record that after graduating at Harvard and the Columhia law school he pursued a legal practice and a political activity that took him to congress, where he served seven years. becoming cbairman of the committee on foreign affairs; as a financier, he is director of numerous corporations, and as a diplomat, he was minister to Spain in 1888; as a clubman, a chair is reserved for him in nearly every notable cluh in New York city,

A GENIAL KANSAS EDITOR

When things in general have hegun to look involved and there hegins to he some misunderstanding and many false reports as to how the west regards tbe matter, the weather-wise hegin to look for something from the pen of the author of "The Real Issue," "Strategems and Spoils," "Ths Court of Boyville," and that short but impressive editorial which made him famous, "What's the Matter With Kansas." William Allen White, editor of the Emporia Gazette, is regarded hy a steadily growing audience as one of the best interpreters the west has ever had. As was to he expected, the recent speech-making invasion of the west by William Travers Jerome, of New York, and hy Thomas W. Lawson, did not escape the analytical eye of this always watchful Kansan, who has made it the occasion of an illuminating description of the complacency of the west. "The west viewed Mr. Lawson's thoroughly sincere and honest fire alarm with something of the composure with which the hotel dining room girl greeted the drummer, who, looking out of his window just hefore daylight, and seeing a burning gas well, rushed through tbe dining room shouting: 'The town's on fire!' The girl went rigbt on stacking up the period of a knife and fork and a spoon at each plate, and called: Come on back, mister, there'll be lots of time for you to get your trousers on.' " As for Mr. Jerome, he continued: "The west knows and admires Jerome for what he has done, and it did not care much what hs said."

William Allen White was horn at Emporia, Kan., in 1868, was educeted in the common schools at Eldorado and the state university at Lawrence, Kan.

A SPOKESMAN FOR THE RUSSIAN JEWS



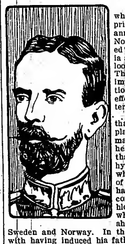
The national topic of special interest in Jewish circles in the United States and which has caused general comment, has related to the appropriateness of a proposed appeal hy the independent Order of B'Nai B'Rith, through its president, Adolf Krause, to the Russian peace envoy, Count Sergius Witte, on behalf of the persecuted Jews of Russia. Tbe information that Count Sergius had expressed his willingness to receive Mr. Krause aa representing the Jews of the United States, aroused Jewish trade unions, the Workingmen's Circle, and branches of the Bund and Zionist societies In New York to protest that Mr. Krause, though a well-known national figure among the Jews, was not authorized to represent the Jews of America in such an appeal. The B'Nai B'Rith, though an influential organization, was only one of 5,000 Jewish societies, many of which would regard an appeal to Count Sergius Witte as most deplorehle. "The Jews of Russia are fighting for their rights and they don't want any pity or mercy from the Russian government or its representatives," said one speaker at a meeting In New York. It Is even stated that Mr. Krause was opposed to the presentation of the petition and has heen merely acting under orders from bis organization.

The man who has thus hecome the center of this small tempest is a well-known Chicago lawyer, whose career emphasizes the cosmopolitan nature of the educated American populace. He was horn In Bohemia in 1850 and was educated in the schools of that country hefore coming to America in 1865.

RETIRING CONSUL GENERAL AT PARIS

John Kennedy Gowdy, formerly sheriff of Rush county, indiana, (could any title hetter indicate tha rough and ready west?) has heen accorded an honor that well reveals the hreadth of American ability. He has been hanqueted by the American hoard of trade at Paris, France, on the occasion of his ratirement after eight years of successful service in the diplomatic circles of that city of fashion and picturesque gallantry, as consul general from the United States. Mr. Gowdy knew exactly the kind of country he was representing, for he served with distinction in the civil war and has since been active in politics in his native state. He served as a private in Company L, Fifth indiana cavalry, from September, 1862, to October, 1865, and joined in the pursuit through Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio for John Morgan and participated in his capture. He served under Gen. Burnsides in the winter of 1863-4 and under Gen. Sherman in the Georgia campaign. After tbe war he served for four years as sheriff and eight years as auditor of his county and was made chairman of tbe republican state committee of Indiana in 1891, working actively in tbat position for six years. In recognition of his services to the republican party: Mr. Gowdy was on March 20, 1897, appointed to the position as consul general at Paris. The eigbt years of diplomatic amenities which followed have givan the polishing touches to a self-made career.

PRINCE WHO SEEKS NORWEGIAN THRONE



The confidential mission to Denmark, upon which King Oscar, of Sweden, has sent the crown prince, Gustef Adolph, is thought to presage the announcement of an attempt to place him on the Norwegian throne. Such an event would he regarded by the Norsemen as a calamity. Gustaf Adolph ia a man of military training and inclinations, who looks upon the German kaiser as the ideal monarch. The Norsemen have never heen ahle to forget his impetuous counsel to King Oscar during the friction hetween Norway and the throne In 1895, to the effect that the people of Norway he hrought to terms hy force of arms.

Prince Gustaf ia tall and dark—is even tallar than his father—but he lacks King Oscar'a complaisance of manner and grace of speech. He Is a man with tha iron hand, the Impulses of whose heart are an unknown quantity. Moreover, neither tha Swedes nor the Norwegiana are at all reassurad hy Prince Gustaf's relation to the family quarrel which resulted in the disinheritanca hy King Oscar of hls aecond son, Prince Oscar, hecausa the latter had married a woman of tha people. Many of the common people trace their ancestry hack to nohler hlood than can the memhars of the royal family, whosa rula hegan in 1818 when Napoleon'a marahal, Bernadotte, a Frenchman, was mada king of Sweden and Norway. In the face of thia hiatory Prnice Gustaf fa credited with having induced hia father to Issue an unnecessary puhlic decrea, disinheriting Prince Oscar, a document which contained many hiting illusiona. Thla was done despite the fact that it was well undarstood that Prince Oscar was the favorite of his mother, who, hefore her marriage to King Oscar, was the princess of Nassau.

We think nowadays In terms of electricity. William Travers Jerome is a human live wire. His father was Larry Jerome, celebrated as a wit, whose hest witticisms gained point from a delicious stammer. The elder Jerome was a cluhman of a type then rare in New York; the younger is a clubman, too, if mere membership in exclusive organizations can be so defined; hut he has no time to waste in club windows. He is 46 years old, of medium height, athletic when he can get the time for training. His portraits make him look younger than he is; his face is deeply marked with lines of thought and activity. On the platform he again looks younger than he is; bis lithe, panther tread, the intensity of a voice he never needs to raise ahove a conversational tone to make thrill with earnestness, aid in the impression of deathless youth and vigor.

Jerome is an aristocrat by hirth, if there is any such thing tbe new world; yet he is the idol of the great East side. He is a democrat; yet he has thrown the so-called democratic leadership in this city into a panic. He is a law officer; yet he hes alone among men of this generation dared to tell the truth ahout New York's courts, which is that they are unworthy of New York. He is financially poor, the son of a man who never cared to make or save money. He is a relative of that Jennie Jerome who entranced England with her heauty, who became Lady Randolph Churchill, and was nearly therehy the wife of a premier, and who has since married a man much her junior.

Such the man and such his antecedents, who has thrown Tammany into a flutter hy announcing his candidacy for reelection upon a momination hy petition.

Jerome in Larger Politics.

THERE was never any question that Jerome could get a regular party nomination if he wished it. What he wanted was to get his call from the people first; then he could accept an indorsement without being hound hy bargains. There is in his feeling over the matter the comhination of a boy's chuckling glee over a merry prank and a man's deeper purpose. He enjoys his work, every minute; enjoys controversy, enjoys the smoke and heat of hattle. He is outspoken, has abused every leader of prominence in hoth parties—Platt, Depew, Odell, Murphy, Hill, the latter least of all. Four years ago, when he was running upon the fusion ticket for his present office, he gave Platt a lively platform trouncing; people said it meant his defeat at the hands of knifing republicans. He actually carried the horough of Manhattan, which was a bigger feat than carrying the whole city. If New York has an idol, Jerome is tbat man.

Will Jerome be reelected upon hia novel platform? How can they prevent it? He is out against both machines, the republican and the democratic. The people in this city love neither. They have suffered from hoth. Tammany, which has usurped the democratic name, rules them badly, robs them, neglects them; the republican machine exploits tbe city to the advantage of upstate republicana and taxpayers. Neither is liked, either is capahle of trying to share in Jerome's power hy indorsing him.

There is another way. The people may insist upon nominating him for mayor. He is the logical opponent of Mr. McClellan, who Is a gentleman like himself, and whom the people inatinctively recognize as personally an excellent men.

The Chinese Riots.

COMPARE the district attorney's office—dockets cleared up for the first time in years, the "lottery king" sent to Sing Sing, gemhlers closed up —with the inefficient police.

I hesitate to apeak of gangs and gang rula again so soon, hut when a white gang gives notice that a policeman who has offended them hy arresting a memher, must not walk his heat, on pain of murder, and the accommodating management changee that beat; when in a Chinese theater tbree men are murdered in a eingle shooting scrape hetween rival gangs, what are we to think ahout the police of the great metropolis?

This: That it is a magnificent force; that the stranger within the gates must he favorably impressed with the splendid mounted men who manage tha difficult crossings; that on the surface it is everywhere right and clean. But the force, like every other department of city activity, is suffering from politics.

A colored men and brother, reeling from his wounds in the recent race riots on San Juan Hill was heard to hemoan altered days.

"Ain' no use goin' roun' desa yere times," he said to a sympathizer. "Cap'n Will'ums, he know how to manage niggahs. He seen a niggah projickin' roun' too fresh he'd say to um: "Go home, niggah; go 'way f'um dis 'r I'll cluh yo' head off.' Das er way to do it."

There sits in a quiet office downtown a gentle-voiced old man, not over large or burly, who talks of indifferent matters with keen intelligence. His eye flashes more hrightly when police matters are mentioned. His cheek flushes faintly as ha delivers himself with energy. Thomas Byrnes, a horn policeman, made the force great. There has never been a Byrnes since. Which is not so wonderful, as no other city, ao far as I can learn, has Byrneses to spare. Perhaps such policemen are as rare as Jeromes.

Hyde in Newport.

JAMES HAZEN HYDE, the great four-in-hand whip, the most daring innovator in the matter of fancy halls, the Patroclus of the Equitable Assurance company's Trojan war, is making quite as big a stir in Newport as if he had not since last summer the central figure in an astounding disclosure of graft. Hyde was a prominent figure at the Bay Shore horse show, which is held near the great house he owns as his chief country homa. But he ia hardly important as a yachtsman.

The great annual cruise of tbe New York Yacht cluh eastward was a mora impressive spectacle this year than ever hefore, in spite of the defection of the speed-madness motor-hoatmen, hut the principal yachts in that splendid procession were owned hy men who do not greatly specielize upon horse display. Frederick G. Bourne, a South Shora neighbor of Hyde, has a steam yacht nearly 200 feet long. He has just provided a second country home hy huilding a castle at a cost of a quarter of a million dollars on the St. Lawrence river. Bourne "got his" in sewing machines, Singer machines. He was selected by the late Alfred Corning Clark as a bright young man to represent the Clark estate on the West side of New York city.

The Clark estnte was a potent factor in the city's life at one time. On the West side lay great areas of vacant land. People feared to huild there, it was a maxim tbat to build on West side lands spelled failure. Clark knew that the way to hreak a prejudice was not to tap it, but to smash it. He sent an architect to France to study flat architecture, to return, to put into a flat huilding which should be the finest in the world the hest ideas he had gleaned, regardless of expense. The enterprise was not to yield more than four per cent. profit. The quest was fruitful in a solid huilding, which is still among the best, as it is probably the most exclusive of New York's apartment houses. It has a waiting list of several hundred names. It carries no fire insurance, so solid is it. At the same time Clark hegan to huild rows of great private houses costing $70,000 each. He set the character of the neighborhood.

The Motor Boat Race.

I PREDICTED months ago—easily enough—the craze that motor boating would have this season. Forty miles an hour is the goal the speed-mad devotees have set. Herreshoff is the man, of course. Forty miles is 35 knots, or thereahouts. Herreshoff's latest marine wonder of 35 feet in length and five feet in width is said to make it.

The automobile has made the fast motor hoat possible by developing the light, fast motor. The prohlem is the same. On land, to put into a hig red machine hardly longer than a farm wagon the power of a double procession of horses an eighth of a mile long. On the water to put the same power into a hull that a man could row in a calm sea at a respectahle pace.

What was the old school maxim ahout douhle speed meaning quadrupla power expended? Douhle several times the power of the man with the oars, and there you are.

There you have, also, ahout the most useless hoat that the mind of man ever designed. You cannot go anywhere in her; her power needa conatant replenishing. You can have no fun in her; tha wind hlowa in your eyes the spray flung up hy her sharp prow so that you can only crouch undar the hood and look astern.

But she is fast; and in a recent flying trip to Bar Harhor and Nawport I saw tha harhors fairly dotted with such expensive toye.

J. F. Matthews was in from Dorothy this morning on business. Mr. Matthews reports that the farmers of his vicinity have a whole lot of their grain cut, and are working long hours getting the balance in shock. "The yield in that neighborhood will be large," says Mr. Matthews, "and there will practically be no loss at all from the rains of the past month."

Ed L. Healy, of this city, and C. F. Case, of Marshall, had quite an experience last Thursday, and had it not been for the caution used both might have been drowned. They started for Ives to look at Mr. Case's land, and when they came to the Black River bridge west of the Gerlach place they they found the water running over the road and bridge in a torrent. Mr. Healy wanted to drive on across, but Mr. Case thought they had better investigate and undressed and waded out to find if it was all safe. He found the bridge all right, but one of the approaches had been washed away and had they driven on without examining the condition of the road they would have undoubtedly lost their team and both might have had a hard fight to keep from going down. They returned to town, thankful that they escaped so luckily.

The Great Northern cuts and track in and about this city have been the means of furnishing a great many men with work the past couple of weeks, and from indications it will take some time yet to get things in first-class shape. The work train has been working in the cut this side of the mill all week, the constant slide of the mud making it necessary to keep one crew constantly at work there. At the depot and all along the road for considerable distance both north and south the track went on the bum last Friday and the rails and ties sunk down nearly out of sight, while back of the Kaus place a large-sized chunk of the track slid away entirely. The sliding is worse this year than it has been for a long time, and the work is costing the Great Northern a nice sum of money.

PSOMINENT MAN GONE.

Ezra G. Valentine, Father of Drainage. Dies Suddenly Saturday.

Ezra G. Valentine, attorney and capitalist of Breckenridge, Minn., died suddenly Saturday afternoon at his summer home at Battle Lake, a short distance from Breckenridge. He was 55 years old and his death which was due to apoplexy, came without warning, and was so unexpected that even his son and daughter, who were spending the summer with him at Battle Lake, knew nothing of it until they attempted to arouse him.

Mr. Valentine's death removes a prominent character in Minnesota. While actively engaged in state politics and prominent as an attorney, his chief efforts were directed for drainage work in northern Minnesota. His efforts in behalf of this cause were untiring and brought definite results, and the extension of drainage operation in northern Minnesota in recent years was to a great extent due to his efforts.

Mr. Valentine became interested in the drainage of the Red River valley and was appointed a member of the state drainage board of Governor Knute Nelson.

In 1902 he was a candidate for the republican nomination for congress in the ninth congressional district and was third in order in the race with Halvor Steenerson, Andrew Grindeland, S. G. Comstock and Cyrus Little Smith. He gave up politics for the time being, but his friends insisted that he was entitled to something, and persuaded him much against his wishes, to allow his name to go before the republican state convention in 1904 as a candidate for the state railroad and warehouse commission.

A few years ago, Mr Valentine was left a large fortune by relatives. He was always ready and willing to assist those in distress by whatever means he had at his command and his genial nature and uprightness won for him hosts of warm friends.

Mr. Valentine leaves a son and a daughter, his wife having died several years ago. The son, Alden Valentine, was graduated from Yale a year ago and last fall entered the law department at the Minnesota state university. His daughter, Blanche Valentine, was graduated from Smith college a short time ago.

Nine Nations

Now Use Liquozone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquozone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some-one whom Liquozone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquozone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquozone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

ECLIPSE WAS PRETTY.

Red Lake Falls People Up Bright and Early Wednesday.

The unusual sight of seeing an almost total eclipse of the sun, called a whole lot of Red Lake Falls people out of their beds ahead of their usual time by several hours yesterday morning, and smoked glass was at a premium.

The sun rose at about 5:37, and was almost totally eclipsed when it came up from the horizon. A light bank of clouds in the east obscured the view for a few moments, so that by the time the sun had risen high enough to be visible the moon was passing out of the shadow, although the sight was a pretty one, and one that may not be seen again in many years.

The sky was very beautiful to behold, both before and during the eclipse. The usual red glow was visible before the sun came up, but just as it was ready to peep from the horizon the light seemed to die away and it got more like twilight than dawn. This lasted but a few moments however, while the eclipse was nearest total, when it grew light by degrees until the moon passed the greater way out of the shadow.

Several kodak enthusiasts took photographs through smoked glass, and some good views are looked for.

THE FALL SHOOTFEST

Prairie Chickens And Ducks Will Have Strenuous Life For Next Several Days.

Tomorrow is the opening day of the chicken season, and from all indications the hunters will scatter in every direction in search of the festive prairie hen, and whatever other specie of feathered beauty they can locate.

The crop of prairie chickens is said to be quite small in Red Lake county this year, on account of the extremely wet spring, and the hunters that find many during the next two days can consider themselves lucky. The fact that many wheat fields remain uncut will also have a tendency to retard the shooters in their pilgrimage, and it seems to be the general opinion that the hunting will be much better during the latter part of the month than it is now.

Ducks, however, are said to be more plentiful than they have been for several years, the rains having filled the ponds and sloughs with water so that these much desired acquatic specimens can find plenty of water and good feeding, and as a result the nimrods will probably make up for the lack of chickens by bringing home full bags of ducks.

To mention all the parties that are out would require too much space, but The Gazette will try and tell about the luck of the hunters next week.

Dear Gus:—I have solved the mother-in-law problem, just give her regularly Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, it will make her healthy, happy and docile as a lamb. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. W. A. Schreiter.

HAD ENJOYABLE TIME.

Rev. Father Ansgar Home From His Vacation.

Rev. Father Ansgar returned home last Saturday morning from his trip of several weeks at Milwaukee, where he entered a leading sanitarium for rest and recreation. The Reverend gentleman is greatly improved in health, and his season of rest did him a world of good. He was accompanied on his Milwaukee trip by Rev. Father Charles, formerly pastor at Thief River Falls, and the two improved every minute of their outing in enjoying much needed rest and recreation.

Rev. Father Alto, who has had charge of Father Ansgar's parish, will return to Collegeville this week.

Line A Sure Shot.

Rosean Region: The Great Northern commenced actual work on the extension of its road from Greenbush to Rosean on Monday. Saturday night the freight brought in a grader crew, with ten wheel scrapers, thirty slushers and twelve teams. Two engineers were along also. Cutting of right of way commenced Monday and Chief Engineer Eddy is expected any day to make levels and set grade stakes. What the extension means to the country around can not be estimated in dollars and cents, and this village will be benefited more than any of us realise at present. For years Rosean has been looking for a railroad, and now that it is about to get one, excitement is intense. There may still be some doubting Thomases, but they are persons who will believe nothing until they see it. Before snow flies you may come to Rosean via the cars.

SOO IS RUSHING.

New West Line Past Forest River, North Dakota.

Thief River News: Edward Brennan, of St. Paul who has the contract for laying the steel on the Soo extension from Thief River Falls to Kenmare, was in Crookston Tuesday on his way to St. Paul. Mr. Brennan stated that the steel is now laid into Forest River. Rapid progress is being made, but he is having some difficulty in getting efficient men, most of them deserting railroad work for the harvest fields. He figures that the track will be laid to Kenmare by the middle of October.

An arrangement has been made at Oslo, the town at the Soo crossing on the Red River whereby one span of the temporary bridge will be raised hinge-like, in order to allow boats to pass. The steel bridge will be a draw, and it is expected that it will be completed this fall.

BACKDOWN BY JAPAN

ISLAND EMPIRE DECIDES TO RENOUNCE HER CLAIM FOR INDEMNITY.

New Basis of Compromise Agreed on at Tokio Provides for the Sale of the Northern Half of the Island of Sakhalin to Russia, the Price to Be Fixed by a Mixed Commission—Believed Japan's Action Insures Peace.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 29.—Baron Komura, acting upon instructions received from Tokio as the result of Monday's meeting of the cabinet and "elder statesmen," under the direct presidency of the emperor of Japan, will submit to M. Witte during the day a new basis of compromise, and that compromise, it is firmly believed, will insure peace.

The revelation contained in the Associated Press announcement Monday that Japan had already informed Emperor Nicholas through Ambassador Meyer that Japan was ready to waive the question of indemnity and submit the price to be paid for the northern half of Sakhalin to the judgment of a mixed commission, but prepared the way for Japan's backdown upon the main issue. The announcement had been the sensation of the day. It had met with denials high and low. It was decided to be impossible, incredible. The Japanese declined to admit it and the Russians said they had no confirmation. M. Witte, intimated strongly that St. Petersburg had not apprised him of any such action by the president. There was even a disposition to ridicule the idea of arbitrating the price of half of the island. Nevertheless on all hands it was admitted if Japan took this position, the ground was cut out from under Emperor Nicholas.

Japs Turned the Tables.

M. Witte, by consummate skill in conceding all the demands of Japan involving the real issues of the war, had maneuvered his adversaries into a position that unless they abandoned the claim for indemnity they could be accused of continuing the war for money. The Japanese, in abandoning the claim for indemnity, now practically turn the tables and shift the burden back to Russia's shoulders if she does not consent to submit a minor issue to the impartial judgment of a tribunal.

M. Witte publicly dissents vigorously from the proposition and there will still be a struggle with Peterhof, but if Japan agrees to formally renounce all claims for direct or indirect compensation for the expenses of the war the big stumbling block to peace is out of tho way. Everything will depend upon the form in which the proposal is submitted. Should the renunciation be so coupled with the other proposition that Russia could claim it was still only a disguised demand for tribute, the gulf might only be narrowed, not bridged.

All the private advices that reach the Russian mission from St. Petersburg indicate that the military party is bellicose, insistent that Linevitch be given a chance and negotiations be broken off.

RUSSIAN STATIONS DESTROYED.

Japanese Naval Division Active on the Amur River.

Tokio, Aug. 28.—Rear Admiral Kataoka has reported to the imperial navy department that the naval division sent up the Amur river bombarded and destroyed two Russian guard stations at Zharei and Lezeervo, on the south bank of the river. These stations had recently been reinforced.

JAP TRANSPORT SUNK

COLLIDED WITH A BRITISH VESSEL AND OVER A HUNDRED SOLDIERS PERISHED.

Tokio, Aug. 25.—The Japanese transport Kinjo was sunk in a collision with the British steamer Baralong on Aug. 22, in the Inland sea. One hundred and twenty-seven invalided Japanese soldiers perished.

THREE PERSONS PERISH.

Many Others Narrowly Escape Death in Hotel Fire.

Readfield, Me., Aug. 26.—Three persons lost their lives early in the day in a fire which destroyed the Maranacook hotel at Lake Maranacook. Five other persons were burned or otherwise injured.

More than four score guests and employes escaped in night attire, many of them leaping from the windows. That there had been loss of life was not known until a search of the ruins during the forenoon revealed the charred bodies.

CONDITIONS MORE HOPEFUL.

Chinese Officials Endeavoring to Suppress Boycott.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Consul General Rogers, at Shanghai, has cabled the state department as follows:

"While tho boycott still continues there are no disturbances and the Chinese officers are endeavoring to suppress the movement. On the whole conditions appear more hopeful."

GOES DOWN IN SUBMARINE.

President Makes Descent on Board the Plunger.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Aug. 26.—President Roosevelt during the afternoon made a descent in Long Island sound on board the submarine torpedo boat Plunger. He was aboard the vessel about three hours. At one time the little boat was submerged for fifty minutes and in that time was put through all of the submarine feats of which she is capable. The president expressed his delight at the novel experience and said that he was immensely impressed with the boat and with the manner in which sha was handled.

The president's intention not only to make a personal inspection of the tiny vessel, likely to prove so deadly in naval warfare, but to make a submarine descent in it was reached after a conference with Lieutenant Nelson

The Plunger's commander explained to President Roosevelt the operations of the boat and assured him that a trip on her and a descent into the depths of Long Island sound would be as devoid of danger as would be a trip on a New York subway express train.

THREATENS MOROCCO

FRANCE DEMANDS RELEASE OF CITIZEN AND FULL REDRESS FOR HIS ARREST.

Paris, Aug. 24.—The ministers, under the presidency of Premier Rouvier, held a lengthy special session during the day. It was principally devoted to a consideration of the disciplinary measures to be taken against Morocco should the sultan not yield to the demands of the French government for redress for the recent arrest of a Franco-Algerian citizen.

An official communication says that unanimous approval was given to the instructions to be sent to the French minister at Fez and to the subsequent action to be taken to compel the sultan to give complete satisfaction.

The nature of this action is not disclosed, but it is known that it contemplated the military occupation of a Moroccan town near the Algerian frontier, probably Oujda, owing to its proximity to a large French garrison in Algeria and to its strategic importance, as it commands the route to the interior of Morocco and the capital, Fez. The latest official advices from Fez show that the sultan continues to hold the Algerian a prisoner.

Following the meeting Premier Rouvier sent instructions to the French minister to demand the immediata release of the prisoner, informing him that a military demonstration would be made in case of a negative response.

Later it was announced that the ministers had decided that in case Morocco refused the French demands the entire personnel of the French legation would leave Morocco simultaneous with the military demonstration.

DEATHS FROM FEVER

LARGEST NUMBER OF ANY ONE DAY REPORTED IN THE CITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, Aug. 28.—Following is the official yellow fever report up to 6 p. m. Sunday:

New cases, 31; total cases to date, 1,713; deaths, 13; total deaths, 255; new sub-foci, 12; total sub-foci, 402; cases remaining under treatment, 119.

The record shows the smallest number of new cases since Aug. 6 and the largest number of deaths on any day since the fever made its appearance. The unusual number of deaths is attributed in a measure to the sudden change in the weather, Saturday night being cool and pleasant, in great contrast to the weather of the preceding week. Three well known merchants are among the new cases. Only two names that can be traced to Italian origin are among the thirty-one new cases. Of the deaths eight aro Italians.

The principal news from outside the city was the announcement from Natchez of the discovery of six cases there and the attempt to blame New Orleans for them. This is regarded as rather strange in view of the fact that of all the tight quarantines against New Orleans, Natchez has maintained the tightest, not even allowing its own people to return there if they had been near New Orleans.

The commissioners will hold their first meeting at Carlsbad Aug. 31.

TWENTY MEN PERISH

STEAMER PECONIC LOST IN A FIERCE STORM OFF THE FLORIDA COAST.

Vessel Struck by an Immense Wave While Changing Her Course, the Cargo Shifts and the Boat Goes to the Bottom Immediately—Only Two of the Twenty-two Men Constituting the Crew Succeed in Escaping.

Fernandina, Fla., Aug. 29.—Twenty men, constituting all but two of the officers and crew of the American steamship Peconic, bound from Philadelphia to New Orleans with coal, were drowned by the sinking of that vessel off the coast of Florida Monday. The disaster was the result of a fierce gale that raged along the coast during the night and early morning. Lashed by the storm, an immense wave struck tha vessel with terrific force about 12:30 a. m. The impact, coming just as the vessel was making a turn, caused a shift of the cargo, and the vessel leaned over and sank immediately. The accident occurred so quickly that only two of those aboard her—an Italian and a Spaniard—were able to save themselves. They succeeded in getting into a lifeboat, reaching Amelia Beach about noon, and on landing told the story of the disaster.

OVER A SCORE PERISH

MANY HOUSES WASHED AWAY BY FLOOD IN RHODE CANYON IN COLORADO.

Trinidad, Colo., Aug. 25.—According to latest reports more than a score of persons lost their lives at Tabasco and Berwin as the result of a flood in Rhode canyon following a cloudburst. From twelve to twenty houses occupied by Austrian and Italian miners and their families were swept away and many of their occupants drowned.

Tabasco and Berwin, coal mining camps, having together about 2,000 population, are located in Rhode canyon, down which a torrent of water rushed, wrecking everything in its path. The property loss is estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars, suffered mostly by the Colorado Fuel and Iron company and the Colorado Southern Railway company. The former company had mines and coke ovens scattered along the canyon and although they ware situated mostly out of reach of the flood the tramways connecting the different properties of the company were practically all wrecked and the loss in this particular will be immense. The railroad company had a line running up the mountain and this road was nearly completely washed out.

Traffic on the Colorado and Southern, the Santa Fe and the Denver and Rio Grande railroads is interrupted owing to the washouts in this vicinity.

HOCH'S THIRD ESCAPE

CONDEMNED WIFE MURDERER SECURES REVIEW OF CASE BY SUPREME COURT.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Johann Hoch, the man of many wives, convicted of the murder of one of them and under sentence of death, has escaped the gallows a third time. He was to have been hung Friday, but a supersedeas was issued on an order of Justice Magruder of the supreme court.

The justice said that he had carefully examined the record presented by Hoch's attorneys and his study of it satisfied him that there was enough doubt to justify a review of the entire case by the supreme court. The case will come up at the October term of the court at Springfield. Hoch has been confident that the sentence of hanging would not be inflicted.

Hoch was smoking a cigar when told of the issuance of tha writ. "I am not guilty of this horrible murder," he said, "and now I will have the opportunity of proving myself innocent before the highest court in the atate. I never have felt that I would go to the gallows. I may be guilty of other crimes, but never that of murder."

MAD SLAYER LEAVES A SIGN.

"K. C. No. 14" Written on Cards by Brutal Murderer.

Helena, Mont., Aug. 26.—Lewistown, the county seat of Fergus county, is stirred over the brutal murder there of Samuel Studinski, sixty-seven years old. Studinski was attacked when alone in his pawnshop. An axe or similar instrument was used and the victim was beaten to death. The body was found lying in a pool of blood. Pinned upon the breast was a card upon which was scrawled in the victim's blood "K. C. No. 14." A similar card was found on tha stove. The place evidently had been robbed. The legend on the cards leads to the belief that a demented man was the murderer.

HOMES IN THE SUBURBS.

Comfortable Country Residences of Men Doing Business in the City.

In the east well-to-do families generally have both a city house and a country place, which architecturally are sharply distinguished from each other; but in the west such is frequently the case, states the Architectural Record. There are, of course, many fine country houses in the west, such as those grouped around the shores of Lake Geneva, in Wisconsin, and particularly in Chicago many of the older families occupy houses, which, although detached from their neighbors, are substantially urban rather than suburban dwellings. Nevertheless, the well-to-do western business man, in building a new residence, will probably choose a suburban site—a site that is containing two or three acres abutting on a street and surrounded by the grounds of similar dwellings. This house is planned as a permanent residence. It is situated in a neighborhood accessible from the man's place of business and is occupied both summer and winter. It has enough land around it to permit the enjoyment of some of the pleasures of the country and to afford an opportunity for a certain amount of landscape treatment; but this land is and can be nothing but the front and back yard of the house. As an architectural type it is intermediate between the town and country house.

DAUGHTERS OF NOBODY.

Ultra Fashionable Society Shown Up by Rejected Applicant for Membership.

"The fad of tracing one's ancestors back as far as possible has a firmer hold in the east than in the west," said Mortimer E. Walker, of Boston, relates the Milwaukee Sentinel. "One winter I spent some time in a certain southern city which is noted for its blue-blooded and exclusive inhabitants. There was much jealousy in the highest social circles, as there were two factions which desired the honor of being the original grandees. Finally the leader of one faction gathered together a few friends and started a society known as the Daughters of Ferdinand de Soto.

"This was supposed to be the ultra fashionable society of the city, and one by one the aspiring matrons produced the indisputable proof that they were eligible for membership. Finally one of the younger set had the temerity to try and force an entrance into the charmed circle. She was blackballed almost unanimously.

"She determined to be revenged, and to that end did a little real investigating which was more thorough than any ancestor hunt which was ever made in that city. The result of her investigations she made public, and the result was the utter rout of the daughters. For the young woman proved beyond the question of a doubt that Ferdinand de Soto had died a bachelor."

BRUSH YOUR STRAW HAT.

That Is the Way to Keep It Protected from the Marring Effects of Rain.

"Yes, I know," said the hat man, "people never think of brushing their straw hats, the straw doesn't seem to be a hat made to be brushed, the dust doesn't show on it so much, and so they brush all their other hats and let their straw hats go.

"But if they would brush their straw hats as they do the others they would keep fresh and good-looking much longer; this is not so much on account of the brushing itself as because of the protection that brushing it, keeping it clean, gives it from the effects of moisture.

"What puts a straw hat out of business, in appearance, is rain. Let drops of rain fall on a dusty hat and every drop spreads and fixes the dust on which it falls and makes the hat dingy. The same rain falling on a clean hat would have far less effect on its appearance.

"Brush your straw hat, and the ribbon, too, just as you would any other, and you will have the satisfaction of keeping it in fair condition, a hat fit to wear the season through."

Confusion of Verbs.

One of two young women talking to a young man on Philadelphia street car the other afternoon said: "This car was nearly full when we boarded it." The young man, the moment he opened his mouth, showed by an unmistakable accent that he was English. "Boarded?" he said. "Were your ancestors, by chance, pirates, that you use such a word? Don't you mean to say 'when we took the car'?" "Took it?" said the girl, "why, we didn't take it. We could not take it, even if the police weren't looking. It's too big and too heavy. In fact, it's taking us, isn't it?" "Oh, I see what you mean," said the man. "Still, wouldn't it be better to say 'we got on the car?'" "Well, hardly," was the reply. "The roof is too high up and, besides, it would be too hot up there this weather. We got into the car."

Rapid Eating.

"The trouble is that we eat too fast," said the man who worries about health.

"That's right," answered the man who worries about money. "Some of us eat so fast that our incomes can't keep up with our grocery bills."—Washington Star.

Red Lake Falls Gazette

L. A. HAUTREMONT, PROPRIETOR
SAM F. HAISLET, EDITOR AND MANAGER

Published weekly. Thursday evening, and entered as second-class matter in the post office at Red Lake Falls.

Official Paper of Red Lake County.

Official Paper of Red Lake Falls.

Subscription, $1.00 per Year

The Thief River Falls News copied The Gazette local about Judge of Probate Tarrant and heads it "Nick Leaves The Lord and Mat Skala." Just what Nick and Mat will do with our friend John when they get hold of him is problematical, but he probably will be made to suffer for his indiscresion.

We read it in a newspaper and presume it is true. "The fellow who is courting a certain married woman had better leave town, as the woman's husband is onto him," read a paragraph in an inland Indiana local paper. And the next day after the paper was put in circulation every man in town had left excepting two cripples and a man who could not read.

The wolf bounty law has cost the state of Minnesota nearly $29,000 during the year ending June 30, 1905. The county auditors of the various counties have sent in vouchers for 5,314 wolves for which bounties have been paid. This represents a total bounty of $28,797.00. The state pays the bounty of $7.50 for each full grown wolf and $1 for each wolf cub, The bounties are paid by the county auditors, who in turn collect from the state. In some counties wolf hunting is highly profitable.

Speaking editorially the Roseau Region has the following to say of a favorite state official: "Secretary P. E. Hanson has formally announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election next year. Mr. Hanson is serving his third term as secretary of state, and the office was never filled by a more capable man. His well known integrity in office too, has meant a great deal to the state, and as the champion of Northern Minnesota in the matter of drainage, Mr. Hanson's retirement will be a decided loss. As to his future plans he is reticent, but no name is more prominently identified with the gubernatorial situation than is Peter E. Hanson's."

WANTED—THE BEST MEN.

The next legislature will be required to redistrict the state, and northern Minnesota will have to watch out. The southern counties will not give up a single representative without a fight, and it will devolve upon the men who will represent the north in the next legislature to see to it that a fair, equitable and just apportionment is made. While it is somewhat early to expect candidates to announce themselves, it is none too early for the people to begin looking around for good, available timber for the purpose says The Roseau Region. Southern Minnesota has heretofore been able to side-track legislation favorable to the northern part, but with the returns of the late census before us it appears that the northern portion should be entitled to larger representation in the legislature while the southern counties, having lost considerable of their population, will have fewer members. In keeping with what the Region said a week or two ago it behooves us of the north to hold together for our best interests and our just rights, and in this we have no intention of creating any ill-feeling. Let Northern Minnesota show that it is no longer a wilderness, no longer a scattered settlement, but a strong, capable, and progressive part of Minnesota. To do this let every district aim to send to the 1907 legislature its brightest and most capable men,

Art Is Happy Now.

St. Hilaire Spectator: A very pretty home wedding occurred Monday, August 21st at 4 p. m., at the home of the bride's parents on Wall street when Christine Torreson was united in marriage to Arthur F. Ittner, Judge Wilson officiating, only immediate relatives and friends of the family being present. Many valuable and useful presents were received, showing the high esteem in which the young couple are regarded. The groom is the well known foreman of the Spectator where he has proven his ability and good fellowship for the past four years and needs no introduction to the citizens of the village. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Peter Simonson and has lived here since childhood, being highly esteemed by her acquaintances. The young couple start out in life with the best wishes of their numerous friends and the congratulations of the Spectator.

Look Up Your Taxes.

This fall there will be a sale of land in every county in the state that has been forfeited for non-payment of taxes. Thousands of acres of land will be sold, and it will be wise for any of our citizens who have any doubts as to their taxes being paid, to look the matter up and be sure. Lands upon which any taxes are unpaid for the year 1900 or any year prior thereto will be sold. The sale is the first public sale of the kind in the history of the state and will be conducted under a law passed in 1902, and the purchaser at the sale acquires an absolute title. County Auditor Ford informs us that their are practically no farm lands to be sold. The entire sale will consist of lots in the villages. Any owner of village lots who is delinquent for taxes may redeem any time before sale, the date of which will be duly published later. State Auditor Iverson, speaking of the sale, says: "Many people will wake up some morning next fall and find that their property has been sold for taxes. It appears that many do not know there are taxes on their property, for in some cases the taxes are due only for one year two or three decades ago and have been paid promptly ever since." Owners of village properties should beware.

THEO. LABISSONIERE, PROP.

John Christensen, a young man living several miles east of town, went down to Crookston last evening to take treatment at St. Vincent's hospital The young man has been a long sufferer with spinal trouble, and hopes to find relief.

S. A. Swanson was out at Wylie Sunday and helped unload the large new Waterloo threshing rig he recently sold to Frank Richard. The outfit is one of the finest ever brought to Red Lake county and Mr. Richard looks forward to a prosperous fall run.

Mr. and Mrs. Lew Adams, of Grand Forks, are the happy parents of a fine new girl baby, which came to their home Saturday morning of last week. The Red Lake Falls friends of this young couple will join in extending best wishes to the young lady and her happy parents.

Judge of Probate Tarrant is very happy these days on account of the installation of a handsome new desk in his office last week. Nick now has a very neat room, and he says if Happy and Charley would quit decorating the walls and furniture he might be quite contented.

Miss Lulu Fletcher left last evening for Ely, this state, where she will teach a term of school during the coming fall and winter. Miss Fletcher is one of the city's favorite daughters, and has a host of friends here who will be pleased to see her make a great success of her chosen work.

Miss Etta Garceau delightfully entertained a party of friends at a dancing party in the K. of P. hall last Saturday evening. The hall was artistically decorated, and during the evening the little Miss Garceau and Healy served frappe to the guests, Ice cream and cake were the refreshments.

A large crowd of young people from this city went up to St. Hilaire last Friday evening to attend the annual ball given by the St. Hilaire fire department that evening. A large crowd of people attended the dance and as usual the St. Hilaire people proved themselves excellent entertainers.

Thomas R. Johnstone, the popular fire apparatus salesman, came over from Crookston yesterday to confer with the local firemen in regard to their running cart. It seems that the cart selected by the boys was not as good as Mr. Johnstone wanted them to have, so he is here conferring with them in regard to a better article.

Tip Taylor came up from St. Paul Monday and has been visiting with his many friends here this week. Tomorrow he will start out in pursuit of the festive prairie hen, and expects to take home a big bunch of birds with him the first of the week. Tip is now holding a splendid position in the Great Western general offices at St. Paul, and reports himself and the family as well and prospering.

Landlord Kreuger, of the Grand View, has been doing a rushing business the past month, and his popular hotel has been packed full all the time. The extra men employed on the railroads here, and an unusually large number of transient visitors has made "Billy" figure to accommodate all that asked admittance at his popular hostlery.

J. J. Soll, of St. Hilaire, passed through the city last evening on his way to Fosston, at which place he will be joined by a party of Cass Lake sportsmen, and will spend several days of next week in pursuit of the prairie hen. John said that the land in the north half of the county was so wet that satisfactory hunting was out of the question.

The Great Northern work train is still here, and while the crew has succeeded in making a big impression on the mud slide, the train will likely be run several weeks yet. In conversation with The Gazette, an employee of the road said that as soon as possible gravel trains would be started on this line and the entire road ballasted with gravel.

Messrs. James Blake, A. P. Toupin Dan Latendresse and F. A. Grady will leave this afternoon on a hunting expedition throughout the eastern southern part of the county, and expect to be absent several days. Chief of Police George Brunelle accompanies them to officiate as chief, and if this jolly crowd don't enjoy the next few days it will be because the commisary department proves inadequate.

A bill of furniture which was unloaded here one day recently, bought of a mail order house, did not meet the standard pictured in the mind of the person who had ordered it, and consequently was shipped back to the said mail order house. This mail order proposition would soon solve itself if the local merchants would transact business on the same terms as the outside fellows do—first lay down your money on our counters even before you have seen our goods and accept what we are a mind to give you in return.—Fertile Journal.

Editor Harry E. Ives passed through the city Tuesday morning on his way home from his excursion east with the Minnesota Editorial association. Harry reported a very enjoyable trip, and said that for a few moments the other morning the party had visions of a couple of weeks sojourn in the Duluth harbor. It seems that on board their boat was a case of typhoid fever, and the authorities had it termed small-pox and quarantined the ship until they investigated. Of course the passengers did not know but what it was small-pox all right, and Harry said that consternation reigned supreme for a while, when it dawned on the pencil-pushers that they would be forced to remain guests of the ship a couple of weeks. The scare was short lived, however, and the bunch were soon landed at Duluth, much to their gratification at getting out so easily.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climate conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. New Towns in North Dakota.

The extensive railroad building now being done in North Dakota has brought tributary to railroad facilities an additional vast area of the rich agricultural sections of northern and western North Dakota. The Great Northern railway is building a number of new extensions from its main line northward notably that of the Sarles extension of the Edmora line, the Thorne extension running north from York, the Maxbase extension running northwestward from Towner, and a further extension of the Westhope line to Antler.

The building of these new lines has brought into being a number of new towns which are fully described in a pamphlet recently issued by the Great Northern railway. By application to Mr. F. I. Whitney, Passenger Traffic Manager, St. Paul, Minn., a copy of these pamphlets "New Extensions in North Dakota" or "New Towns in North Dakota" will be mailed to any address. 6w

Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the vile attendant on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size 75c. At all druggists. A. L. Reichert.

HEARD AT ITALIAN 'PHONES

The Voice of His Holiness the Pope Frequently Rings Over the Wires.

Says a Rome report in the New York World: Of late Pius X. has become a constant user of the telephone. In fact, all his personal communications on important business with every diocese of Italy are transmitted from the vatican through the wire.

Since he sent his Easter blessing to his beloved Venetian diocese last year Pius X. has become fully aware of the importance of the telephone instrument for the speedy transaction of business, and has come to the conclusion that he would hereafter save much of the red tape and delay of the Roman congregations by attending to some of the church business personally at the telephone instrument.

Inquiries at the vatican telephone exchange revealed the fact that the most frequent use of the long distance telephone made by Pius X. is for communication with Venice, in which city he holds long conversations not only with his successor, the patriarch, but with some of his relatives and the numerous friends he made during the time he was the patriarch.

One of his intimate prelates, in the way of a joke, suggested to the pope a few days ago that his telephonic business with Venice will soon require the installing of a direct wire, at which suggestion Pius X. is said to have smiled an approval. It is a fact, however, that Pius X. keeps constantly in touch with every diocess in Italy through the frequent use of the telephone.

IVORY DIFFICULT TO JUDGE

Billiard Balls That Look Just Alike Differ in Lasting Qualities.

The next time you have a billiard cue in your hand and expect to run the game out just stop and ponder over the age of the pieces of ivory that are rolling tantalizingly about the table. That white ball which has just received too much "English" belonged to an old elephant who was wandering through the Congo jungles when Napoleon was still alive. Those balls cost from $8 to $10 apiece. Study the history of the billiard ball and their case and you will have more respect for the game.

The elephant's tusk which is large enough to furnish the product for a good billiard ball must be at least 25 years old. If it is 50 years old, so much the better. The tusk of the elephant grows much like an oak tree, and the grain of the ivory looks not unlike the grain of a seasoned piece of oak lumber. If it is "green" the ivory will shrink just as the wood shrinks. If it is too "dry" it will "chip" in the same fashion.

The buying of billiard balls at best is a gamble. A ball may have the right weight, the proper gloss and appear to be well seasoned, but for some unaccountable reason will chip off and become totally ruined by a fall on the floor. Buy a dozen balls like a setting of Plymouth Rock eggs; three or four balls will last for years, while the others will have to be replaced again and again.

IN FROG YEAR IN JAPAN.

Comes Every Twenty Years and the Creatures Overrun the Swamps.

A resident of Chicago, lately returned from a trip to Japan and Honolulu, says:

"I was fortunate in arriving in Japan in one of the 'frog years.' There is a certain variety of frog which comes to the swamps and marshes of Japan every 20 years, overrunning them and keeping up a croaking that is most annoying. Their visits correspond with those of the dreaded cicada, or 17-year-old locust, about which the scientists of the United States have been puzzling for years. Unlike the locust, however, the frogs do no damage, and their coming is welcomed by the Japanese on account of their value as food. Unlike the French and Americans, the Japs do not eat the hind legs alone, but cook up the whole body into a delicate dish which is palatable.

"The frogs grow to an enormous size, many of them attaining the weight of several pounds. Where they come from and where they disappear to is what the Japanese naturalists are now trying to learn, but, I fear, with small chance of success. Their skins are tanned and dressed and are fully as handsome as the snake skin from which pocketbooks and shopping bags are made in this country. All sorts of handsome things are made of the skins and sold to tourists. I purchased a number, and also secured a number of the skins."

Why He Wept.

During the funeral of one of the Rothschild family in Paris a beggar was noticed standing among the onlookers sobbing bitterly. A bystander touched by the man's grief, endeavored to comfort him. "Do not weep so bitterly, my poor friend," he said. "See, even his relatives are able to restrain their grief more than you are doing." "Then, as a new idea struck him: "Surely, you are no relation of M. de Rothschild?" "N—no," sobbed the beggar. "That is just why I am so unhappy."—T. P.'s Weekly.

Sick One.

Mamma—Ethel, where have you been all this time?

Ethel—Sitting up with a sick friend.

"Nonsense! I believe you've been in the parlor all evening with that Mr. Sottleigh."

"Well, ma, he's lovesick."—Philadelphia Ledger.

STATE FAIR TIME HAS COME ONCE MORE.

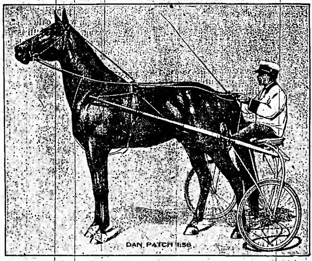
The Week of September 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 to be the Annual Gopher Holiday Season.

THE FAMOUS DAN PATCH THE STAR ATTRACTION OPENING DAY

Half-Fare Rates Have Been Made by All Railroads for the Entire Northwest—Every Division Crowded With Exhibits—Strong Amusement Program Afternoons and Evenings.

Bright and early Monday morning, September 4, the Minnesota state fair will be opened to the public. It will continue through the week, closing on Saturday night, Sept. 9, at 11 o'clock, and every hour of the six days will be replete with interest. A year of hard work has been put into the preparation. It is believed that the fair will be more perfect in every department than ever before, more worth seeing, and stronger in every way as a promoter of the interests of the state.

Half-fare rates have been made on all railroads centering at Minneapolis and St. Paul. For 200 miles south and east these rates apply, while the liberality of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Soo lines gives the people to the west, as far as the Missouri river, the same low rate.



THE MARVELOUS DAN PATCH.

The fastest harness horse in the world who will go against his own world's record of 1:56, at the Minnesota State Fair, on Monday, Sept. 4th—Opening Day—only.

The rates go into effect Saturday, Sept. 2, so that people in any part of Minnesota or the Dakotas may reach the cities by Saturday night, Sunday or Monday morning in plenty of time for the events of the opening day. This is important, for the first day of the fair will be the best this year. All exhibits will be in place by 9 a. m. During the morning United States Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver of Iowa will make the formal opening address. In the afternoon there will be the full program of amusements, including the appearance of the famous Dan Patch in an attempt to lower his world's record of 1:56.

Dan Patch is the most remarkable horse in the world. He is easily the fastest harness horse alive, or that ever lived, the only horse that ever paced a mile under two minutes, and the horse with the brightest prospects. For Dan Patch is still a comparatively young horse and may startle the world again with great achievements.

The Minnesota state fair race track is in the pink of condition, and is now pronounced by experts to be the fastest track in the country. So it is expected that Dan can come close to his record and everything possible will be done to insure a record-breaking heat. He will go three heats with a runner at one side.

THE MINNESOTA ST. LOUIS BUILDING.

This building was first erected on the grounds of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis. After the close of the World's Fair it was turned over to the Minnesota State Fair and brought to the Fair Grounds where it has been rebuilt in a permanent way. It will be headquarters for the newspaper men of the state.

Dan Patch will appear only Monday, Sept. 4. His other engagements preclude any other appearance at this fair. It will be easily the greatest race track event of the year, and something that no one should miss seeing.

On Monday there will also be a great racing program, including one of the new $2,500 purse races and the fastest trotting race—the 2:10 class for $1,500. All the great specialty attractions will be seen during the afternoon. This is the list:

Band Concert—First Regiment Band.

Sensational high wire performance.

The Five Flying Moores—Aerial Trapeze Act.

Geletti's Monkey Circus—Most comical thing ever seen on the stage.

Fearless High Diving—120 feet into net.

Ladies' Relay Race—Three daring riders in 24-mile race, four miles each day, changing horses at the end of each mile in front of the grand stand.

The Death-Trap Loop—Hazardous, death-defying "loop-the-loop" act by "The Great Babcock."

Balloon ascension and parachute drop.

These attractions, with the exception of the ladies' relay race, will also be repeated in the evening, concluding with Pain's latest pyrotechnic spectacle, "The Fall of Port Arthur." Pain's productions need no introduction to northwestern people. They have been seen from year to year at the state fair, and always give satisfaction. The Port Arthur portrays scenes with which everyone has become familiar during the past months and will be of thrilling and absorbing interest.

Babcock's Death Trap Loop act is probably the most exciting ever seen in a public performance. It was given last year at the state fair and attracted more attention than anything else on the program.

The program given above will be repeated in substance each afternoon and evening of fair week, Dan Patch, of course, excepted, as he will be on hand only on Monday.

Other amusements will include the Merry Pike with its specialties, wild animals, tame elephants and camels, illusions, and all sorts of curiosities and entertainments. There will be music on the grounds at every turn. Liberati's world famous military band will give two concerts daily, and the Minnesota State Band, First Regiment Band, Third Regiment Band and other musical organizations will take part in the various programs.

In all divisions the fair will be overflowing. The fair has been made the rendezvous for the fine herds of cattle which will make up a special train for the Portland exposition, starting just after the close of the Minnesota fair. This will bring many fine cattle and horses to the show, and with the national exhibitions of the Shorthorn and Hereford associations will produce the greatest cattle show ever seen in one place. Agricultural Hall will be in finer shape than ever before and will have a larger and more representative exhibit. The farm machinery department has spread all over the northeast corner of the fair grounds and will be by all odds the largest exhibit ever gotten together.

C. N. Cosgrove of Le Sueur is president of the fair this year, as for several years past, and E. W. Randall is secretary. B. F. Nelson of Minneapolis is first vice-president, C. M. Griggs of St. Paul second vice-president, and the board of managers is made up of J. M. Underwood, Lake City; L. D. Baird, Austin; W. M. Liggett, St. Anthony Park; Wm. E. Lee, Long Prairie; D. S. Hall, Buffalo Lake; G. W. Patterson, Worthington.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

542 1-2 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wilhelmina Snow
Treasurer, Portland Economic League

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, that is the best reason in the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui today.

WASHINGTON LETTER

SECRETARY ROOT IS REMARKABLY YOUNG LOOKING.

"UNCLE JOE" IS INCENSED

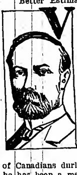
Hospitality That Counts a Good Deal in Legislation — President Disapproves of Growing Bureaucracy in Navy Department.

WASHINGTON.—Secretary of State Root did not stay in Washington long enough to warm his desk chair after taking oath of office. Nevertheless he is secretary of state and the country feels easier. The people are perfectly content that he should go away off to Labrador to get a complete rest from a hard year's labor in his profession, gain that physical tone that is so necessary to a public man and come back like a young man of 30 to take up diplomatic and state puzzles with a zest.

Mr Root is the youngest looking man there ever has been in the public service, and he will come back from the wilds of Labrador looking little more than half his age. There was a general approval throughout official circles when Mr. Root was named by Mr. Roosevelt as premier of his administration. No one had guessed this able statesman, who had a little over a year before resigned from the cabinet because he wanted to get back into the profession of law, where he could earn a competence before he grew too old. Few believed that, with all the enormous fees he had won in that short time, that he had acquired a sufficient fortune with which to return to public life. But it appears that within that time Mrs. Root has fallen heir to several millions, and her distinguished husband can follow the bent of his ambition in a political way.

"I guess I was bitten by the diplomatic bug during our trouble in China over the Boxer uprising," said Mr. Root the other day, when he admitted that he wanted to be secretary of state. Mr. Root conducted much of the diplomatic business of that period, Secretary Hay being absent from Washington. He ran both the war and state departments, and his promptness and decision counted for much.

Better Estimate of Canada.



VICE PRESIDENT Fairbanks seemed to strike a popular chord in his address at Sault Ste. Marie a few days ago when he spoke of the similarity of purpose between the United States and Canada and the harmony that existed between the two countries. Mr. Fairbanks has seen a great deal of Canadians during the seven years he has been a member of the high joint commission whose object has been the settlement of a few troublesome questions between the countries. The vice president, as everyone knows, is not given to the expression of very decided views on any subject, but he said the other day to a friend:

"It would be a good thing if the people of the United States had a closer knowledge of their neighbors to the north. Let them go up into the broad wheat lands of that mighty country stretching west from Winnipeg to the Rockies and they will find a pretty good lot of Americans there." This opinion is agreed to by a group of Washington correspondents who recently made a tour of Canada from Montreal to Victoria, spending a week in the great northwest wheat field. The people met by the Washingtonians and what they are accomplishing were revelations.

Some of these newspaper men had never gotten rid of their school geography ideas that a few miles above the international boundary began the reign of eternal snow and ice. They knew, of course, that the Canadian Pacific railway ran clear across Canada, but without a practical view of what this railroad had accomplished they could not realize the possibilities and greatness of the country. When they found good farmers from the United States raising as high as 40 bushels of wheat to the acre as far north as Edmonton they reformed their ideas of geography and their estimate of Canada.

A Strict Economist.

UNCLE "JOE" CANNON, the genial speaker of the house of representatives, declares it is all a double blanked lie about his washing his fingers in the public drinking glass on the platform table at the Portland exposition and sneaking a piece of ice out of the pitcher with which to cool his fevered brow. This being a lie, so also was the companion story that the wife of the president of the exposition reprimanded him and told him that a man of his age and position ought to have better manners, or words to that effect. The whole story is declared by "Uncle Joe" to have been a fabrication which did a great injury to a refined, gentle lady. He does not care for "fakes" about himself, but his native southern chivalry—he was born in North Carolina—simply resents the slightest affront to a lady.

The speaker was in Washington a few days ago and took a look around. He was so many years at the head of the house committee on appropriations and has been speaker of the house, that he feels a semi-paternal interest in everything the government does in the way of spending money. His paternal instincts prompts him to teach economy, and above all strict adherence to the letter of the laws making appropriations. He was not particularly well pleased, then, to find that congressional restrictions had been ignored in digging foundations for the new agricultural department building, and that they had been established in conformity with the plans of the trio of landscape architects whom the senate employed some years ago, instead of following the directions of the law that the new building should be where the present one stands.

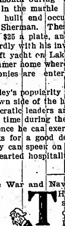
Congressman "Joe" Sibley.

SPEAKER CANNON growled at this evasion of the will of congress, muttered a few remarks that might be interpreted to mean a good many things, among others some difficulty for the sponsors for the department building when they come before congress for more money next winter. Then he whirled away in a "red devil" automobile, caught a fast train and hurried to the cool shores of Lake Champlain, where Congressman "Joe" Sibley awaited him in a beautiful summer cottage and soon made him forget the annoyances he had encountered in Washington.

Congressman Sibley is the rich oil man and stock raiser of Pennsylvania, who has been a republican, a prohibitionist, a populist, a democrat, and then a republican again, but who is the most universally liked men in the house of representatives. And why should he not be popular? His three big touring car automobiles are at the command of his friends. He gives on an average two sumptuous banquets each month during sessions of congress in the marble mansion on K street built and occupied by the late John Sherman. These dinners cost about $25 a plate, and Sibley is not niggardly with his invitations. He has a swift yacht on Lake Champlain and a summer home where his congressional cronies are entertained in royal style.

Sibley's popularity is not confined to his own side of the house, but all the democratic leaders are his guests at some time during the session, and the influence he can exert in a social way counts for a good deal in legislation. Sibley can speak on the floor, but his big-hearted hospitality is his greatest card.

The War and Navy Departments.



THERE is a great scurrying among officers and employes of the war and navy departments nowadays. These two departments are about the only ones that have not figured largely in "graft" discoveries and army and navy officers are wondering how long they will escape the general scandal. The Bennington disaster, in which 65 sailors lost their lives, may draw the navy department into a general investigation, as President Roosevelt is very much wrought up over it, especially as there are hints that red tape and official delay are responsible for the explosion of the boiler. It is hinted that had prompt attention been given to reports concerning the conditions of the boilers the accident would not have occurred.

There has grown up in the war and navy department, particularly the latter, a bureaucracy that President Roosevelt is endeavoring to uproot. Bureaus act independently of each other, and there are constant jars and friction over nearly every detail of the service. The president learned of this condition at first hand when he was assistant secretary of the navy, and endeavored to check it by centralizing power and responsibility as much as possible. The condition still exists, however, to a considerable extent, and the efforts of what is known as the Keep investigating committee, a special commission with Assistant Secretary of the Navy Keep at its head, will be directed toward curing the evil.

The president is also determined to weed out of the department in Washington army and navy officers who have secured assignments here but who are really performing civilians' work. They will be sent to sea or to their posts on land. The navy is short of officers to man the ships now in commission.

OLD-TIME SAILING SHIPS.

None of the Later Iron Vessels Attained the Speed of Wooden Predecessors.

The sailing ship, when I knew her in the days of her perfection, was a sensible creature, writes Joseph Conrad, in Harper's. When I say her days of perfection, I mean perfection of build, gear, seaworthy qualities and ease of handling, not the perfection of speed. That quality reached its highest excellence in the discovery of hollow lines and departed with the change of building material. None of the iron ships of yesterday ever attained the marvels of speed which the seamanship of men famous in their time had obtained from their wooden, copper-sheeted predecessors.

Everything had been done to make the iron ship perfect, but no wit of men had managed to devise an efficient coating composition to keep her bottom clean with the smooth cleanness of yellow metal sheeting. After a spell of a few weeks at sea, an iron ship begins to lag as if she had grown tired too soon. It is only her bottom that is getting foul. A very little effects the speed of a ship that is not driven on by an untiring propeller. Often it is impossible to tell what inconsiderate trifle puts her off her stride.

A certain mysteriousness hangs around the quality of speed as it was displayed by the old sailing ships commanded by competent seamen. In those days the speed was still a matter for the seaman's care; therefore, apart from the laws, rules and regulations for the good preservation of his cargo, he was careful of his loading, of what is technically called the trim of his ship. Some ships sailed best on an even keel, others had to be trimmed quite one foot by the stern and I have heard of a ship that gave her best speed when loaded as to float a couple of inches by the head.

THE ORIGIN OF "SUNDAE."

Name of Summer Beverage Originated in New Orleans in Singular Manner.

"Sundae sounds like an East Indian name for the popular soda fountain beverage, and most people probably think that is its origin, but it isn't," says Herrick J. Gray, according to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"The name originated in New Orleans and in an interesting manner. A druggist there whose soda fountain was an extremely popular resort found himself one Sunday without the usual supply of tanks, through some strike or other trouble, or else he was unable to obtain ice, I forget which. At any rate, he wasn't in a position to serve anything but ice cream and sirups, and he was almost in despair.

"An expert sign maker, he soon had signs in his windows announcing that in order to push it properly nothing but the new 'Sunday drinks' would be served at his place that day. His patrons were nothing loath to try the simple combination of ice cream and sirups, and others were attracted through curiosity. The new combination made a hit. Before night it was buzzed about in hundreds of homes, and the next day the demand was lively for that new Sunday drink. Gradually other soda fountains began dispensing it, the request for it continued, couched in the same form, however, and it wasn't long before its use in advertising caused the substitution of an e for the y, probably because it looked better; and there you have the whole story. Not as romantic as if it were a tale of India, but still not uninteresting. What do you think?"

DECADENCE OF CHEWING.

War on Spitters in Public Cause of Falling Off in Tobacco Users.

"The crusade against expectorating in public places has cut into the tobacco business," said a dealer to a customer. "Some years ago I kept a tobacco cutter on my counter and a boy was so engaged in cutting plugs for customers that he had little time for anything else.

"Now we cut up a few plugs in the regulation size and put them in a canister. Twenty-five cuts will last several days where we used to sell that many in a half day. However, what we have lost in that way is more than offset by sales of cigars and cigarettes and smoking tobacco.

"Ten years ago I had a regular trade in chewing tobacco that paid half of my rent. I would have to quit business if I relied upon such a trade now.

"Several smaller dealers whom I know do not keep plug in stock. And yet there was a time when the old tobacco chewer was more wedded to his quid than the old toper was to his dram. He chewed wherever he went, in church, in society and at places of amusement.

"The war on spitters has stopped all that."

An Error in English.

Even the greatest authors now and then make a little slip in their English. Thus, writes the author of "Books and Reading," in July St. Nicholas, Sir Walter Scott in his "Legend of Montrose" has this sentence: "But ere Montrose could almost see what happened, Allan McAulay had rushed past him." The "almost" should come before "ere," in order to express the author's meaning.

Vanity of Criminals.

Prof. Ferriani declares that 75 per cent. of criminals perpetrate crimes in ignorance of their consequences. Many criminals, he also says, not only boast of their crimes, but exaggerate them, even in court, and, to their own detriment, from a perverse sort of vanity.

WORRIES OVER ROYAL SON.

King of Spain Kept Track Of by His Mother When Visiting Abroad.

Pretty stories are told of the anxious mother of King Alfonso, concerning his visit to France. She was so afraid that he might wander astray in some inexplicable way in wicked Paris that she wrote a letter in her own hand to President Loubet, putting her son under his personal care.

She said that he was a father and knew better than all the others how to watch over him. She was so afraid that he might hear and see things that might make him too wise in the wicked ways of the world. It was she herself who chose the programme and the subjects to be performed before her son on the gala nights given at the Opera and Comedie Francaise. Etiquette is strict in Spain and she wondered if everything would be all right in this independent republic of France.

Everything was all right, for the French have a cult for children, and the young king is still regarded as a boy, for whom all French mothers have a soft spot, and this made him all the more welcome, in that there is no woman, even in the laboring class, who does not know what an admirable mother he has and how anxious she is to have her "Bubi," as she calls him, return to her as worthy of being called her darling as before. It must be with heartbreaks that a queen like the queen of Spain delivers up her boy to the state, and to feel that he is more the son of his country than her own.

GERMAN GARDEN HOUSES.

Built with One Wall Omitted and Furnished in Comfortable Fashion.

"Why don't Americans have garden houses?" writes home an American woman from Germany. "A garden house isn't a 'summer house.' It isn't a rustic, open affair. It's a solid, well-built room with one wall omitted. There are windows in the other three walls, so that one hasn't a shut-in feeling, and it has a good solid floor that defies dampness. The floor of mine is made of closely cemented bricks.

"In the big comfortable house in which we have our rooms there are several other families. Each family has a part of the generous garden back of the house and each has a little garden house.

"The interior of the little house is fitted up with comfortable benches and chairs and a solid little center table for the afternoon coffee.

"I simply delight in my garden house and spend as much of my time in it as I can. A 'summer house' could in no sense fill its place for pleasure and usefulness, for the summer house does not offer protection against dampness intense heat or the wind and breezes.

"For a children's playroom nothing could be nicer. Asking a child to come into a garden house during a shower is not the trial to the child that asking it to come 'indoors' is.

"It is a pretty sight in the afternoon to see the family groups in the garden houses laughing and chatting over the five o'clock refreshment."

LONG SERVICE OF FARMERS

Laborers in England Who Have Held Places Fifty Years and More.

There are some remarkable records of long service in the annual prize list just issued by the Huntingdonshire Agricultural society, which makes monetary awards to the laborers who have been longest in the employ of their members on the same farm.

The list shows, says the London Standard, that there is one man still so employed in the county who has reached the age of 78 years. His name is Peter Sheridan, and he has been engaged on the estate of the dukes of Manchester at Kimbolton for 45 years. But he does not take a prize, as his length of service is exceeded in another case by ten years.

Another old servant, still at work, is 76; there are two 74 years old, one 69, one 68, and several over 60 among the competitors. The first prize goes to Thomas Allsop, who, now 65 years of age, has been on the farm of Mr. Harry Cranfield, of Buckden, for 55 years. The second prize taker is George Allen, 76 years of age, who has been 51 years with the Heathcotes, of Connington.

The third in honors is Philip Winterton, 68 years old, who has been with Messrs. Coleman and sons of Woodwalton, just half a century. His son, Edward, 39, takes a prize in the junior laborers' class, having been 31 years on the same farm as his father. There are other cases of laborers having commenced work at eight years of age.

Greatness of the Czar.

Among the people of Russia are many stereotyped phrases expressive of the greatness of the czar's power, and of the awe in which he is held. Others, however, fail to suggest that the "Little Father" is all-powerful. A few of the latter kind are as follows: "Even the czar's lungs cannot blow out the sun." "The crown does not protect the czar from headache." "The hand of the czar has only five fingers." "What the czar cannot accomplish time can do." "It is not more difficult for death to carry a fat czar than a lean peasant."

Raffle for Heirs.

One of the oddest wills was recently executed, by which the estate of W. H. Mainwaring, of Carlton, Victoria, was divided into six equal parcels. The six children of the testator drew from a box envelopes containing numbers corresponding to these portions, and each accepted without question that portion assigned by chance.

Crookston Times: Dr. Watson, of Red Lake Falls who passed through the city Friday morning enroute home from Luddington, Michigan where he has visited old friends and acquaintances during the past few weeks, reports the Michigan fruit crop, which is at present time ripening and being placed on market as a very successful one. Apples, peaches and cherries from the state promise to be excellent. Doctor Watson tarried with friends in Chicago enroute home and reports his trip as a most pleasant one.

Great Northern officials have notified their roadmasters and section foremen of a general raise in section hands wages on the road after September 1st. During the past while back the section hands have been paid at the rate of $1.50 per day and the raise is an even quarter of a dollar, making the amount per diem after September 1st, received by the men $1.75. The increase in wages is required by the disposition of the men to flock to the harvest fields of the Dakota wheat country at this time. With the increase however it is believed that full crews can be maintained on all of the sections.

County Auditor James E. Ford is in receipt of a letter from State Auditor Iverson, asking him to call the attention of the public to the fact that at the forfeited tax sale this fall, all of the lands on which taxes have been delinquent a certain time will be sold, and Mr. Iverson recommends that people carefully look into the matter to see that their lands are free from unpaid taxes. The list is composed practically of town lots entire, and it behooves the people of the towns of the county to look over the lists to see that their lands are not included. The taxes of one year several years back being unpaid, the lands will be included in the sale, and after they are sold the owner will be required to pay considerable additional penalty before his title is clear.

PRESS SOLD AGAIN.

Cooke & Clark Buy Out McDonald's at Thief River.

The Thief River Press has changed hands again, Messrs. Cooke & Clark, a couple of lawyers of Thief River having purchased the plant from the McDonald brothers this week. Sam Clark, of the new firm, is an experienced newspaper man, and will without doubt make the Press a better paper than it has been in the past. The McDonald's will likely leave this part of the state, and The Gazette trusts that both the old and new Press men will enjoy the fullest measure of prosperity.

MOSQUITOS ARE THICK.

Red River Valley People Fighting for Their Lives.

The Red River Valley is undergoing a mosquito scourge at the present time which has not been equaled in this section in twenty years. Mosquitos as big as bed bugs and far more ferocious are a common find in the evening. Wherever houses are not equipped with screens, sleep has been out of the question since the last rain storm and many is the family in the city which is at the present time praying for relief of some sort, throug frost or some other natural agency.

According to old settlers of the valley the present scourge of mosquitos is the equal of anything seen here in Pioneer days, when horses and cattle were fairly eaten up alive by the pest and homesteaders and settlers driven in from the country districts and their claims by the long beaked insects. "The skeeters are fully as big now as they were some twenty years ago during a similar scourge" said an old settler this morning, "and they are if anything more ferocious and determined in their onslaughts upon humanity. Babies of this section particularly are suffers from the mosquito pest at the present time and the arrival of frost and cold nights to kill the pesky things will be welcomed by the entire populace of the northern section of the state."

During the forepart of the summer the skeeters have been remarkably few and they are evidently trying to make up for lost time now.

THEY WANT NEW BILL

Settlers On Reservation Appeal To Congressman Steenerson For Aid In Matter Of Payments.

Congressman Halvor Steenerson has been importuned by a number of homesteaders who purchased claims at the Thief River land sale of Red Lake lands last year, to prepare a bill extending the length of time for payment of the installments says the Crookston Times. Several very valuable claims have been forfeited during the past few days because of the negligence of owners in failing to appear at the land office here with their second installment on the purchase "within sixty days after the expiration of the first year" as is required by law. G. J. Woods of Red Lake county who has $1,000 worth of improvements on his claim today tendered his second payment, of $225 which was due on the 24th of June and the local land officials refused, on the grounds that today is the 61st day from June 24th and that under existing federal laws, the land would have to be forfeited and resold. Woods computed his time according to months and failed to reckon with the 31 days in July. He is likely to lose his claim entirely as a result. Tom Nebbit of Grand Forks did a similar trick on the 22nd and had his homestead forfeited as a result of his negligence, or failure to construe the rules correctly.

Receiver George of the Crookston office says he or any of the land office officials either here or at Washington are powerless to intervene in the matter, with the act reading as it now does, and that an act of congress will have to be passed, covering the matter before those homesteaders who have defaulted, will be able to reinstate themselves. The loss to homesteaders in many instances will amount to thousands of dollars, unless Congressman Steenerson drafts a bill for their relief and it is quite probable that he will. He is now in the west however and is not here to discuss the matter.

School Opens Tuesday

The regular fall term of school in this district will open next Tuesday morning, September 5, as announced last week, and everything is in readiness for the work. The pupils of the Washington school are to meet at the the North Side opera house, which has been partitioned off into four rooms for use until the new building is ready. The school officers urge that all pupils be on hand Tuesday morning to begin work in earnest, and all look for a prosperous and productive school year.

MANY WILL HUNT.

Auditor Ford Does Big Game License Business.

County Auditor Ford has had a rushing business in the game license line the past week, and up to last night twenty-seven citizens of the county had taken out license to hunt big game and game birds. The new law requires that hunters desiring to hunt small game outside their own county must take out a license, which is also a license to hunt big game, something every hunter must have to go after the big game in the open season. To hunt within the confines of the county in which you reside, no license is required for game birds, but the law will be strictly enforced and if caught outside your home county without a license you will be subject to a heavy fine. The following had taken out licenses up to last evening:

Red Lake Falls—P. B. Gauss, A. L. Reichert, James Blake, J. C. Wilkinson, Rev. E. Fayolle.

BIRDS ARE SCARCE.

Prairie Hens Are A Minus Quantity This Year.

Every available rig in the city was out last Friday, containing from two to six hunters each, who ransacked the county thoroughly in search of the festive prairie chicken, but the success reported has not been such as to enthuse anyone over the prospect of making a trip. Not only are the birds decidedly scarce, but the wet and muddy condition of land and the preponderance of regular Jersey mosquitos takes away all the pleasure of the hunt, as it is a constant struggle to keep from getting mired or eaten up alive.

The different parties out from here did fairly well on the first, but twenty-seven birds in one day's shoot was the highest number reported. Messrs. Blake, Toupin, Latendresse and Grady spent four days out east, got about one hundred birds, and claim they had a most enjoyable trip. W. H. Krenger, S. A. Swanson and Dr. Seigne, comprised another party that was out three days, and they bagged fifty birds.

The fact that lots of the grain is still uncut makes hunting difficult and all that were out look for better hunting later in the season.

Want Entertainment Course.

Several of our citizens are advocating the securing of an entertainment course of about five numbers for the winter season, and during the next few days a canvass will be made to see what success can be had in the sale of tickets, etc., A series of first-class entertainments would be a fine thing for the city, and it is to be hoped that a sufficient guarantee can be secured.

SECRETARY HAS POWER.

Congressman Steenerson Thinks That Homesteaders Can Find Relief.

"The secretary of the interior has the power to interpret that portion of the Steenerson bill relating to the length of time to be allowed the homesteaders as grace in making their payments, as two months in place of 60 days as the original bill reads," said Congressman Steenerson to a Crookston Times man, when questioned concerning the matter of Red Lake land forfeitures by homesteaders.

"I shall write the secretary or rather submit an argument to him in which I shall show up my reasons for that statement, and I believe it is quite likely, very likely in fact that he will rule in such manner. The government would not make anything by permitting the lands to go to forfeit because the homesteader misconstrued 60 days as meaning two months as all of the money received goes right back into the pockets of the Indians. The homesteader losing his claim and improvements however would be placed in an unfortunate position and I shall do all that I can to see that such a state of affairs is not created, or if created is remedied by by the department."

At present there are but 26 second payments which have not been made on the Red Lake lands sold at Thief River a year ago and of these a number yet have grace. Two homesteaders failed through their misinterpretation of the ruling to make payment within 60 days and have forfeited their rights, until such time as the department takes the matter up.

Celebrated Wedding Anniversary.

Monday was the tenth anniversary of the marriage of County Treasurer and Mrs. K. M. Hansen, and that evening a number of friends congregated at the Hansen home to help celebrate the occasion. Besides several friends from town, the Mesdames C. C. Jackson, John W. Eastman, F. J. Stebbins, Henry Grundy and Perl W. Mahey, of Thief River Falls were present and the evening was highly enjoyed by all present. Mr. and Mrs. Hansen were presented with a beautiful cut glass set as a token of the esteem in which they are held, and the wish was extended that they live to enjoy many more ten years of wedded life.

Mrs. LaChance Dies.

Word was received here last week of the death of Mrs. Wm. LaChance at her home in Waterville, Maine, after an illness of a month's duration. Deceased was a former resident of Red Lake county, having lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Toulouse, in Lambert, for over twenty years. With her husband she moved to Maine about seven years ago, and had always enjoyed the best of health up to the time of her final illness. Joe LaChance, of this city, was present at the time of her death, and writes that he will spend a month or so in that part of the world before returning home. The many old time friends of the family will join in extending their heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved father and family in their great loss.

NEW CIGAR FACTORY

"Butch" and Clem Brunelle Will Open Up Manufacturing Establishment Next Week.

"Butch" and Clem Brunelle, two popular young men of this city, will open up a cigar manufactory in the building formerly occupied by the Bourdon Land company and expect to get to making cigars by the first of next week, their outfit having been ordered and shipped this week. They will manufacture several new brands of cigars, and aim to put in the best possible stock and make an article that will be equal to anything on the market.

Both young men are well known to the people of Red Lake Falls and surrounding country, and are made of the stuff that succeeds. "Butch" has learned the trade from a to z and is considered one of the fastest and most competent workmen in the north, while Clem has worked several years at the trade and will make a valuable man in the shop. Both the boys are members of the local band organization, and the fact that the band will not lose them is certainly good news.

The Gazette believes that the new firm will do a big business from the start, and it should be a pleasure for the people of the city to "boost" for the home goods all the time.

County Sunday School Association Organized.

The Sunday School Institute held last week in the Presbyterian Church was attended by delegates from Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and Fertile. About 15 delegates were present. The program, which was in charge of Mrs. Jean Hobart, of Minneapolis, dealt with modern methods of religious instruction, and was listened to with great interest by all who were present. In fact the interest was so great that the delegates present formed a Red Lake County Sunday School Association, which will promote similar meetings in the future. It is planned to hold the next meeting at St. Hilaire during the week preceding Easter. The following officers were elected: President, Rev. H. W. Knox, Red Lake Falls; secretary, E. W. Chamberlain, Red Lake Falls; treasurer, Mr. Claire Baker, Thief River Falls; primary secretary, Mrs. D. J. McNiven, Thief River Falls. In addition to these officers, each city in the county will elect a vice President.

BAND LIST LARGER.

People Show Their Approval of the Popular Organization.

Manager Leland Healy has been circulating the new yearly contract between the business men and the band during the past couple of weeks, and has met with excellent success, the list now showing the largest number of signers in the history of the organization.

The band has given excellent satisfaction in their concert work, and this year some twenty new signers are on the contract, which demonstrates that the work of the organization has been satisfactory to the public.

The organization is in fine shape financially and will enter upon the winter's work, with the anticipation of far exceeding their former seasons in concert performances.

The Gazette is glad that the people are so loyal to the band, and from the record the band has made this summer and will make again next year the subscribers should never regret their support.

St. Joseph's parochial school commenced their regular full term Monday, with a very large enrollment. The usual number of sisters are in charge of the school and a prosperous year is looked for. THINKS CLIMATE IS GOOD.

Prof Shaw Talks on Advantages of Northern Minnesota.

Speaking of Northern Minnesota and stock raising, Prof. Shaw, one of America's leading agriculturalists, says:

"Taking in all, northern Minnesota offers possibilities in agriculture, live stock raising and dairying possessed by no state in America. The man who contents himself with rented lands in older states, thus making a bare livelihood from year to year, is to some extent throwing his energies away. He is not able to lay by any surplus and when he reaches old age he is no better off than he was a score or more years ago. Any man who has ordinary health should be able to undertake such a proposition without the slightest fear of failure. In a few more years he would have a good farm and a secured home, which would insure him a living for the remainder of his life."

Prof. Shaw says of stock raising in Northern Minnesota.

"Live stock will feed better in the cold steady climate of Minnesota than in any of the milder and more changeable to the southward. The steady character of the weather keeps the appetite good, hence animals never get off feed. In the warm latitudes it may rain one day and freeze the next; there may be a week of mild weather, followed by six or seven days of bitter cold. During the mild period the animals get off their feed and therefore lose time seriously in fattening before their appetite comes back to anywhere near the normal condition. This line of reasoning applies to the feeding of all kinds of live stock but in a less degree to dairy cattle and swine."

Regular Nine Months Term of School Started Tuesday With Bright Prospects For Successful Year.

Tuesday morning the old familiar school bell again assembled together the teachers and scholars of Independent District No. 15 for the regular years work, and during the coming nine months the usual good work of teaching the young idea how to shoot will be carried on with the vim and vigor that keeps the Red Lake Falls schools among the foremost of the state.

At the Lafayette school the rooms are already comfortably filled, the enrollment this year exceeding that of former years on the opening day by a considerable number.

Miss Frankenfield and the other ladies in the cast will wear some magnificent gowns. The play has been dramatized for this tour and will be seen in all the leading theaters in the cities of the west and the local management is to be congratulated in bringing it here. There is no "guess work" when one buys seats for one of Miss Frankenfield's performances and so we will all be present. The date September 8th.

TREATY IS FINISHED

RUSSO-JAPANESE PEACE CONFERENCE ABOUT READY FOR ADJOURNMENT.

Document Consists of a Preamble and Seventeen Articles, but Some Differences Still Exist Regarding Phraseology—Envoys of Both Countries Anxious to Conclude Their Work and Return Home.

Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 4.—From an official source the Associated Press is informed that the treaty is completed. It consists of a premable and seventeen articles, the substance of all of which has been given in the Associated Press dispatches. But there were still differences about the wording of the protocol of the last sitting, which must be signed before the treaty itself can be signed. The Japanese presented a protocol to which the Russians took exceptions. The differences, however, are expected to be straightened out shortly.

While a full synopsis of the treaty will be cabled to the governments of the two countries, the actual text will not be known at Tokio or St. Petersburg until the plenipotentiaries arrive. M. Witte will personally convey the text to St. Petersburg and Baron Komura to Tokio. This is the real reason why both are anxious to get home as soon as possible, as the treaty does not go into force until the two emperors have signed.

PREPARE FOR BATTLE

JAPANESE FORCES IN MANCHURIA GETTING READY TO FIGHT RUSSIANS.

Lihilapudze, Manchuria, Sept. 5.—The Japanese are continuing preparations for a battle.

This has caused astonishment, coming at the moment when the peace treaty is on the eve of being signed at Portsmouth.

The Russian advance posts report that the Japanese troops are very much dissatisfied with the peace agreement.

The terms of peace are the subject of discussion everywhere. In the Russian army the prevailing spirit is one of satisfaction and even of lively rejoicing, though general confidence is expressed that the Russian troops would be victorious if they had to fight another battle. The feeling of many officers may be summed up in the words of an eminent commander: "As a soldier I am greatly chagrined, but as a citizen I greatly rejoice at the conclusion of peace."

Three thousand Japanese who on Aug. 12 descended on Port Desknitris (opposite the island of Sakhelin and sixty miles northwest of the Sakhelin town of Alexandrovitch), set fire to the grass on the steppe. The fire took on serious proportions.

REVOLUTION IN JAPAN.

War Correspondent Says It Will Probably Occur.

New York, Sept. 5.—A sudden clear light was thrown on the present extraordinary situation in Japan by a New York war correspondent who personally knows the views of the foremost men of that country and who sailed from Japan just before the peace envoys met in Portsmouth. This correspondent has special and minute knowledge of conditions in the Japanese army at the present time.

"The Mutsuhito dynasty is in peril," he said. "When I left Japan the army and the populace were passionately clamoring for a great money indemnity as the first element in the terms of peace.

"It is impossible to express in words the intensity of feeling behind this demand. It was historical. In the army a peace without a huge money indemnity was unthinkable.

"I am speaking moderately when I say that a popular revolution backed by the army is the most likely thing in the situation."

The correspondent said the navy would remain loyal to the Japanese emperor, as would Generals Oyoma, Nodzu and Kuroki at first, but Oku and the brilliant chief of staff, Kodama, would lead the revolt, and he said Kodama would likely continue the war in Manchuria regardless of the signing of the peace treaty.

MANY INNOCENT VICTIMS.

Ten Killed and Fifty Wounded in Rioting at Libau.

Libau, Sept. 4.—Ten persons were killed and fifty wounded in a series of riots which marked the departure of the reservists.

The agitators fired from a house upon the military, who replied with a volley. The cavalry then charged, using their sabers on the crowd. A detachment of troops stormed the house from which the shots were fired. One policeman was killed and several soldiers were wounded.

Twenty-one wounded persons were taken to the hospital. There were many innocent victims, women being included among them.

BACON SUCCEEDS LOOMIS.

New York Man Appointed First Assistant Secretary of State.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 5.—President Roosevelt Monday announced officially the appointment of Robert Bacon of New York to be first assistant secretary of state to succeed F. B. Loomis.

The announcement was accompanied by a statement that Mr. Bacon would not assume the duties of his office for some time, perhaps not until the middle of October, when Secretary Root had become settled in the office of secretary of state.

For years Robert Bacon has been an important element in business affairs of New York. Until recently he was a junior partner in the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co.

THOUSANDS ARE HOMELESS.

Greater Part of Adrianople Destroyed by Fire.

Constantinople, Sept. 5.—The fire which broke out at Adrianople Saturday raged until Sunday, owing to lack of water. The greater part of each of the six quarters of the city was destroyed and the damage is estimated at $5,000,000, only about one-fourth of which is covered by insurance. Thousands of persons are homeless.

ANGLO-JAP ALLIANCE

NEW TREATY ASSURES MAINTENANCE OF STATUS QUO IN THE FAR EAST.

London, Aug. 31.—The report that an Anglo-Japanese treaty was signed Aug. 12 by Foreign Secretary Lansdowne and Minister Hayashi is confirmed. While secrecy is maintained for the present regarding the exact terms it may be said that the document is of farreaching importance. It affords mutual guarantees for the protection of British and Japanese interests even if the two contracting powers are only threatened by a single hostile power and assures the maintenance of the status quo in the Far East. The new treaty will be found to be a powerful factor in insuring the peace of the world, at any rate so far as the Far East is concerned.

BIG DEPEW DEBT IS PAID.

Improvement Company's Obligation to Equitable Wiped Out.

New York, Sept. 1.—The $250,000 loan to the Depew Improvement company standing on the books of the Equitable Life Assurance society for more than seven years and which involved Senator Depew in hostile criticism has been paid, with interest and other charges, the total amount being $293,850.82.

Who besides Senator Depew contributed the money to settle the debt was not revealed. The exact amount of Depew's contribution was not stated. H. McK. Twombly, John Jacob Astor, Dr. Seward Webb and one or two others are believed to have put up part of the sum. These men formed the reorganization committee of the improvement company.

SESSIONS ARE SECRET.

Swedish and Norwegian Delegates Discussing Dissolution of Union.

Karlstad, Sweden, Sept. 1.—The first meeting of the Swedish and Norwegian delegates appointed to consider the terms of the dissolution of the union of Sweden and Norway was held here during the day. It was agreed that each delegation should elect its own chairman. The Swedes selected Premier Christian Lundeberg and the Norwegians Premier Michelsen. Each will preside on alternate days. It was decided that the conferences shall be secret.

FRENCH ULTIMATUM

MOROCCO MUST GRANT DEMANDS OR COERCIVE MEASURES WILL BE ADOPTED.

Paris, Sept. 2.—The government has addressed to the sultan of Morocco another peremptory note amounting to an ultimatum. This note says that the release of the imprisoned Algerian citizen, Bouzien, is not sufficient and demands in addition—first, the payment of an indemnity; second, the punishment of the caid who made the arrest, and, third, a public apology. If all these demands are not granted within a brief delay the French minister will be ordered to leave Fez preparatory to the adoption of coercive measures.

CARS CRASH INTO STATION.

Wreck on English Railroad Results in Death of Ten Persons.

Witham, Eng., Sept. 2.—As the express from London to Cromer on the Great Eastern railway was entering Witham station several passenger cars left the track and crashed into the station buildings, causing the death of ten persons, six of whom were women, and seriously injuring twenty people. Among those killed was the porter of the station, who was sitting in his room by the platform. He was crushed to death. Two ticket sellers were hurled in the wreckage, but they escaped serious injury. The gasometers beneath the cars caught fire and consumed the wreckage.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE

FULLY A SCORE OF PERSONS BELIEVED TO HAVE PERISHED IN LAKE SUPERIOR.

Three Vessels Known to Have Been Lost in the Most Destructive Gale Experienced on the Great Lakes in Many Years—Property Loss Estimated at More Than Five Hundred Thousand Dollars.

Duluth, Sept. 5.—Eighteen or twenty lives were lost and property valued at $500,000 was destroyed in the furious storm that swept over Lake Superior Sunday and Sunday night. The gale was the most destructive to lake shipping that has been experienced in many years. Besides the wreck of the steamer Sevona, which broke in two on Sand Island reef, seven of the crew losing their lives, it is now believed that two more ships were lost with their entire crews. One of these is the schooner Pretoria of Bay City, Mich., the largest sailing ship on fresh water and carrying a crew of eight men. The other is believed to be the schooner Olive Jeanette, which carried a crew of seven men. The Pretoria broke loose from the steamer that was towing her during the storm, and Monday Captain Wandig of the steamer Mary Doyle reported that the spars of a sunken three-masted schooner could be seen a short distance east of the outer island of the Apostle group, about 100 miles from Duluth.

Mass of Wreckage Sighted.

The Olive Jeanette, it is believed, went to the bottom about ten miles from Portage entry. A mass of wreckage was sighted by the steamer Juniata near that point and although the identity of the ship has not been completely established, there seems little doubt that it was the Olive Jeanette. This schooner was in tow of the steamer L. R. Doty when the latter vessel was lost with her entire crew on Lake Michigan a few years ago.

The storm at times reached the proportions of a hurricane and the staunchest new steel vessels were forced to run for shelter in a more or less battered condition. The new steel steamer Stackhouse arrived at the Soo on her first trip with her hatches so badly sprung that water poured continually into the hold. One of the crew was washed overboard. The whaleback steamer Samuel Mather also lost one of her crew overboard. The terrific battering the steel steamer received in the storm gives rise to the gravest fears for the safety of many wooden ships which have not yet reported and the record of death and destruction may reach much greater proportions than the present estimates. The monetary loss of the Sevona is placed at $170,000 while that of the Pretoria is estimated at $150,000.

SOME CONCERN EXISTS

CHOLERA EPIDEMIC IN GERMANY AROUSES OFFICIALS TO RENEWED ACTIVITY.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—It is officially bulletined that sixty-six cholera cases and twenty-three deaths have occurred in Prussia. Of this number ten new cases and three deaths were reported during the day.

While anxiety is not yet the word to describe the feeling in the imperial health office concern over the cholera situation does begin to exist. Most of the new cases do not break out among the quarantined persons, but are suddenly heard of in detached farmhouses or villages not contiguous to the Vistula. Hence the inference is that the infected areas are widening slowly and that the measures to hold the disease strictly within the existing boundaries have not been fully successful. These measures, however, are being sharply increased. Orders were issued during the day to close all the refreshment houses along the Vistula except those located in towns. These small restaurants and bars are frequented by rivermen, who are the most likely to be infected.

In anticipation of cholera reaching Berlin the government has begun the erection of two barracks for cholera patients or suspected illness at Koepenck, on the River Spree, near Berlin, and also established an inspection station for river traffic.

ACCIDENT TO STEAMER.

Wrecked by Huge Wave While Entering Duluth Harbor.

Duluth, Sept. 4.—The steel steamer North Wind, Captain Thomas Stevenson, of the Mutual Transit company, met with a serious disaster after having ridden out the gale on Lake Superior just as she was entering the Duluth ship canal and was only a few hundred feet from safety. The steamer was lifted by a huge wave and thrown violently against the south pier of the canal and a hole was stove in her port bow, which caused her to sink in twenty-five feet of water as she was entering the Northern Pacific's Lake entering slip.

MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

Attendance on Opening Day Breaks all Previous Records.

St. Paul, Sept. 5.—Minnesota's great state fair was opened Monday. The attendance record was broken. Dan Patch broke the track record. The agriculturist, manufacturers and others broke the record for the greatest and best industrial exposition of its kind in the history of such expositions. There were 75,000 people on the grounds Monday. The attendance on opening day in 1904 was 16,369 and in 1903 it was 32,484. The 1903 opening day attendance broke the first day record of the fair and the record of attendance before Monday was 58,469 on St. Paul day in 1903.

The event of the day was the attempt of the world's champion pacer, Dan Patch, to lower his own world's record of 1:56 for a mile. The track was slow, but the great pacer made the mile in 1:59½.

Mob After Montana Barber.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 5.—Patrick Hanley, aged fifty-two, a miner, was shot and killed Monday by J. F. Barnes, a barber, after a quarrel on Main street. A crowd of 500 men followed Barnes to jail, but Sheriff Quinn armed his deputies with rifles and trouble was averted.

VETERANS AT DENVER

ANNUAL REUNION OF THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC BEING HELD.

Denver, Sept. 5.—The first official business of the thirty-ninth annual encampment of the G. A. R. was transacted Monday when the executive council met and selected E. B. Skillings of Boston for the office of junior vice commander-in-chief, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Commander-in-chief Blackmar and the promotion thereby of the two officials below him in line. The council also approved the report of its executive committee performed during the interim since the last encampment and audited the accounts.

The streets were brilliantly illuminated and the national colors in all sorts of forms flew from every building in the business section. Visitors say the decorations are the most elaborate ever attempted in honor of a G. A. R. encampment. The programme proper of encampment events began Tuesday and will include a parade of naval veterans and military organizations. Camp fires will begin Tuesday night. The national encampment executive body is in session and the W. R. C. also is in annual session.

MANY NEW FEVER CASES.

Fifty-eight Reported at New Orleans on Monday.

New Orleans, Sept. 5.—Following is the official yellow fever report up to 6 p. m. Monday:

New cases, 58; total cases to date, 2,802; deaths, 5; total deaths, 292; new sub-foci, 16; cases under treatment, 321; cases discharged, 1,469.

Two causes contributed to an increase in the number of new cases Monday. One was the fact that there is never a complete clean up of cases on Sunday, leaving some to find their way into the Monday list. The other was the arrest and incarceration of Dr. Philip Berg, a physician of standing, on a charge of having failed to report two Charles street cases. Dr. Berg was arrested at midnight Saturday, spending fourteen hours in a cell. Rather than undergo a similar experience physicians were particularly prompt Monday in reporting cases, seventeen of them appearing in person early at Dr. White's office. When arraigned Monday Dr. Berg was released on a nominal bond.

While a full synopsis of the treaty will be cabled to the governments of the two countries, the actual text will not be known at Tokio or St. Petersburg until the plenipotentiaries arrive. M. Witte will personally convey the text to St. Petersburg and Baron Komura to Tokio. This is the real reason why both are anxious to get home as soon as possible, as the treaty does not go into force until the two emperors have signed.

PREPARE FOR BATTLE

JAPANESE FORCES IN MANCHURIA GETTING READY TO FIGHT RUSSIANS.

Lidiapudze, Manchuria, Sept. 5.—The Japanese are continuing preparations for a battle.

This has caused astonishment, coming at the moment when the peace treaty is on the eve of being signed at Portsmouth.

The Russian advance posts report that the Japanese troops are very much dissatisfied with the peace agreement.

The terms of peace are the subject of discussion everywhere. In the Russian army the prevailing spirit is one of satisfaction and even of lively rejoicing, though general confidence is expressed that the Russian troops would be victorious if they had to fight another battle. The feeling of many officers may be summed up in the words of an eminent commander: "As a soldier I am greatly chagrined, but as a citizen I greatly rejoice at the conclusion of peace."

Three thousand Japanese who on Aug. 12 descended on Port Deskatris (opposite the island of Sakhalin and sixty miles northwest of the Sakhalin town of Alexandrovitch), set fire to the grass on the steppe. The fire took on serious proportions.

REVOLUTION IN JAPAN.

War Correspondent Says It Will Probably Occur.

New York, Sept. 5.—A sudden clear light was thrown on the present extraordinary situation in Japan by a New York war correspondent who personally knows the views of the foremost men of that country and who [illegible] Japan just before the [illegible] met in Portsmouth. This correspondent has special and minute knowledge of conditions in the Japanese [illegible] at the present time.

"The [illegible] dynasty is in peril," he said. "When I left Japan the army and the populace were passionately [illegible] a great money indemnity as the first element in the terms of peace.

"It is impossible to express in words the intensity of feeling behind this demand. It was historical. In the army a peace without a huge money indemnity was unthinkable.

"I am speaking moderately when I say that a popular revolution backed by the army is the most likely thing in the situation."

The correspondent said the navy would remain loyal to the Japanese emperor, as would Generals Oyama, Nodzu and Kuroki at first, but Oku and the brilliant chief of staff, Kodama, would lead the revolt, and he said Kodama would likely continue the war in Manchuria regardless of the signing of the peace treaty.

MANY INNOCENT VICTIMS.

Ten Killed and Fifty Wounded in Rioting at Libau.

Libau, Sept. 4.—Ten persons were killed and fifty wounded in a series of riots which marked the departure of the reservists.

The agitators fired from a house upon the military, who replied with a volley. The cavalry then charged, using their sabers on the crowd. A detachment of troops stormed the house from which the shots were fired. One policeman was killed and several soldiers were wounded.

Twenty-one wounded persons were taken to the hospital. There were many innocent victims, women being included among them.

BACON SUCCEEDS LOOMIS.

New York Man Appointed First Assistant Secretary of State.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 5.—President Roosevelt Monday announced officially the appointment of Robert Bacon of New York to be first assistant secretary of state to succeed F. B. Loomis.

The announcement was accompanied by a statement that Mr. Bacon would not assume the duties of his office for some time, perhaps not until the middle of October, when Secretary Root had become settled in the office of secretary of state.

For years Robert Bacon has been an important element in business affairs of New York. Until recently he was a junior partner in the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co.

THOUSANDS ARE HOMELESS.

Greater Part of Adrianople Destroyed by Fire.

Constantinople, Sept. 5.—The fire which broke out at Adrianople Saturday raged until Sunday, owing to lack of water. The greater part of each of the six quarters of the city was destroyed and the damage is estimated at $5,000,000, only about one-fourth of which is covered by insurance. Thousands of persons are homeless.

ANGLO-JAP ALLIANCE

NEW TREATY ASSURES MAINTENANCE OF STATUS QUO IN THE FAR EAST.

London, Aug. 31.—The report that an Anglo-Japanese treaty was signed Aug. 12 by Foreign Secretary Lansdowne and Minister Hayashi is confirmed. While secrecy is maintained for the present regarding the exact terms it may be said that the document is of farreaching importance. It affords mutual guarantees for the protection of British and Japanese interests even if the two contracting powers are only threatened by a single hostile power and assures the maintenance of the status quo in the Far East. The new treaty will be found to be a powerful factor in insuring the peace of the world, at any rate so far as the Far East is concerned.

BIG DEPEW DEBT IS PAID.

Improvement Company's Obligation to Equitable Wiped Out.

New York, Sept. 1.—The $250,000 loan to the Depew Improvement company standing on the books of the Equitable Life Assurance society for more than seven years and which involved Senator Depew in hostile criticism has been paid, with interest and other charges, the total amount being $293,830.82.

Who besides Senator Depew contributed the money to settle the debt was not revealed. The exact amount of Depew's contribution was not stated. H. McK. Twombly, John Jacob Astor, Dr. Seward Webb and one or two others are believed to have put up part of the sum. These men formed the reorganization committee of the Improvement company.

SESSIONS ARE SECRET.

Swedish and Norwegian Delegates Discussing Dissolution of Union.

Karlstad, Sweden, Sept. 1.—The first meeting of the Swedish and Norwegian delegates appointed to consider the terms of the dissolution of the union of Sweden and Norway was held here during the day. It was agreed that each delegation should elect its own chairman. The Swedes selected Premier Christian Lundeberg and the Norwegians Premier Michelsen. Each will preside on alternate days. It was decided that the conferences shall be secret.

FRENCH ULTIMATUM

MOROCCO MUST GRANT DEMANDS OR COERCIVE MEASURES WILL BE ADOPTED.

Paris, Sept. 2.—The government has addressed to the sultan of Morocco another peremptory note amounting to an ultimatum. This note says that the release of the imprisoned Algerian citizen, Bouzian, is not sufficient and demands in addition—first, the payment of an indemnity; second, the punishment of the caid who made the arrest, and, third, a public apology. If all these demands are not granted within a brief delay the French minister will be ordered to leave Fez preparatory to the adoption of coercive measures.

CARS CRASH INTO STATION.

Wreck on English Railroad Results in Death of Ten Persons.

Witham, Eng., Sept. 2.—As the express from London to Cromer on the Great Eastern railway was entering Witham station several passenger cars left the track and crashed into the station buildings, causing the death of ten persons, six of whom were women, and seriously injuring twenty people. Among those killed was the porter of the station, who was sitting in his room by the platform. He was crushed to death. Two ticket sellers were buried in the wreckage, but they escaped serious injury. The gasometers beneath the cars caught fire and consumed the wreckage.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE

FULLY A SCORE OF PERSONS BELIEVED TO HAVE PERISHED IN LAKE SUPERIOR.

Three Vessels Known to Have Been Lost in the Most Destructive Gale Experienced on the Great Lakes in Many Years—Property Loss Estimated at More Than Five Hundred Thousand Dollars.

Duluth, Sept. 5.—Eighteen or twenty lives were lost and property valued at $500,000 was destroyed in the furious storm that swept over Lake Superior Sunday and Sunday night. The gale was the most destructive to lake shipping that has been experienced in many years. Besides the wreck of the steamer Sevona, which broke in two on Sand Island reef, seven of the crew losing their lives, it is now believed that two more ships were lost with their entire crews. One of these is the schooner Pretoria of Bay City, Mich., the largest sailing ship on fresh water and carrying a crew of eight men. The other is believed to be the schooner Olive Jeanette, which carried a crew of seven men. The Pretoria broke loose from the steamer that was towing her during the storm, and Monday Captain Wandig of the steamer Mary Doyle reported that the spars of a sunken three-masted schooner could be seen a short distance east of the outer island of the Apostle group, about 100 miles from Duluth.

Mass of Wreckage Sighted.

The Olive Jeanette, it is believed, went to the bottom about ten miles from Portage entry. A mass of wreckage was sighted by the steamer Juniata near that point and although the identity of the ship has not been completely established, there seems little doubt that it was the Olive Jeanette. This schooner was in tow of the steamer L. R. Doty when the latter vessel was lost with her entire crew on Lake Michigan a few years ago.

The storm at times reached the proportions of a hurricane and the staunchest new steel vessels were forced to run for shelter in a more or less battered condition. The new steel steamer Stackhouse arrived at the Soo on her first trip with her hatches so badly sprung that water poured continually into the hold. One of the crew was washed overboard. The whaleback steamer Samuel Mather also lost one of her crew overboard. The terrific battering the steel steamer received in the storm gives rise to the gravest fears for the safety of many wooden ships which have not yet reported and the record of death and destruction may reach much greater proportions than the present estimates. The monetary loss of the Sevona is placed at $170,000 while that of the Pretoria is estimated at $150,000.

SOME CONCERN EXISTS

CHOLERA EPIDEMIC IN GERMANY AROUSES OFFICIALS TO RENEWED ACTIVITY.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—It is officially bulletined that sixty-six cholera cases and twenty-three deaths have occurred in Prussia. Of this number ten new cases and three deaths were reported during the day.

While anxiety is not yet the word to describe the feeling in the imperial health office concern over the cholera situation does begin to exist. Most of the new cases do not break out among the quarantined persons, but are suddenly heard of in detached farmhouses or villages not contiguous to the Vistula. Hence the inference is that the infected areas are widening slowly and that the measures to hold the disease strictly within the existing boundaries have not been fully successful. These measures, however, are being sharply increased. Orders were issued during the day to close all the refreshment houses along the Vistula except those located in towns. These small restaurants and bars are frequented by rivermen, who are the most likely to be infected.

In anticipation of cholera reaching Berlin the government has begun the erection of two barracks for cholera patients or suspected illness at Koepenick, on the River Spree, near Berlin, and also established an inspection station for river traffic.

ACCIDENT TO STEAMER.

Wrecked by Huge Wave While Entering Duluth Harbor.

Duluth, Sept. 4.—The steel steamer North Wind, Captain Thomas Stevenson, of the Mutual Transit company, met with a serious disaster after having ridden out the gale in Lake Superior just as she was entering the Duluth ship canal and was only a few hundred feet from safety. The steamer was lifted by a huge wave and thrown violently against the south pier of the canal and a hole was stove in her port bow, which caused her to sink in twenty-five feet of water as she was entering the Northern Pacific's Lake avenue slip.

MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

Attendance on Opening Day Breaks all Previous Records.

St. Paul, Sept. 6.—Minnesota's great state fair was opened Monday. The attendance record was broken. Dan Patch broke the track record. The agriculturists, manufacturers and others broke the record for the greatest and best industrial exposition of its kind in the history of such expositions. There were 75,000 people on the grounds Monday. The attendance on opening day in 1904 was 16,369 and in 1903 it was 32,484. The 1903 opening day attendance broke the first day record of the fair and the record of attendance before Monday was 58,469 on St. Paul day in 1903.

The event of the day was the attempt of the world's champion pacer, Dan Patch, to lower his own world's record of 1:56 for a mile. The track was slow, but the great pacer made the mile in 1:59½.

Mob After Montana Barber.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 5.—Patrick Hanley, aged fifty-two, a miner, was shot and killed Monday by J. F. Barnes, a barber, after a quarrel on Main street. A crowd of 500 men followed Barnes to jail, but Sheriff Quinn armed his deputies with rifles and trouble was averted.

VETERANS AT DENVER

ANNUAL REUNION OF THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC BEING HELD.

Denver, Sept. 5.—The first official business of the thirty-ninth annual encampment of the G. A. R. was transacted Monday when the executive council met and selected E. B. Skillings of Boston for the office of junior vice commander-in-chief, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Commander-in-chief Blackmar and the promotion thereby of the two officials below him in line. The council also approved the report of its executive committee performed during the interim since the last encampment and audited the accounts.

The streets were brilliantly illuminated and the national colors in all sorts of forms flew from every building in the business section. Visitors say the decorations are the most elaborate ever attempted in honor of a G. A. R. encampment. The programme proper of encampment events began Tuesday and will include a parade of naval veterans and military organizations. Camp fires will begin Tuesday night. The national encampment executive body is in session and the W. R. C. also is in annual session.

MANY NEW FEVER CASES.

Fifty-eight Reported at New Orleans on Monday.

New Orleans, Sept. 5.—Following is the official yellow fever report up to 6 p. m. Monday:

New cases, 58; total cases to date, 2,802; deaths, 5; total deaths, 292; new sub-foci, 16; cases under treatment, 321; cases discharged, 1,469.

Two causes contributed to an increase in the number of new cases Monday. One was the fact that there is never a complete clean up of cases on Sunday, leaving some to find their way into the Monday list. The other was the arrest and incarceration of Dr. Philip Berg, a physician of standing, on a charge of having failed to report two Charles street cases. Dr. Berg was arrested at midnight Saturday, spending fourteen hours in a cell. Rather than undergo a similar experience physicians were particularly prompt Monday in reporting cases, seventeen of them appearing in person early at Dr. White's office. When arraigned Monday Dr. Berg was released on a nominal bond.

COLLIE RECOVERS THE CAT

Smart Dog Takes Long Journey to Find the Friend of His Youth.

A family living in Vermont removed from their long-time residence to another village, some 40 miles away. They took with them a Scotch collie of unusual intelligence, but left behind the family cat, says the New York Times. The collie and the cat had been warm friends for several years and had fought each other's battles with courage and impartiality.

After the family reached their new home the collie was evidently lonesome. One evening as the family was gathered about the open fire some remarks were made about this, and the man of the house, patting the collie on the head, said: "I am sorry that we did not bring George with us. You miss your old playmate, don't you?" The next morning the collie had disappeared. Three days afterward he came into the yard in a state of great enjoyment, indicated in the usual dog way, followed by George, the cat. Both seemed somewhat excited, and the collie showed marks of battle. Each seemed greatly delighted in the company of the other, and the old-time status quo was at once resumed.

Out of curiosity inquiry was made by the family, both at their old residence and along the line of the main highway between the two places, which developed the fact that the dog appeared at the old home, very deliberately and very distinctly induced the cat to start on the journey with him and had protected him en route, with a clash of arms for nearly every mile.

Of course, the question arose as to the language by which he told George his wants and what inducements were offered to go with him on the hazardous journey.

GROWING JET-BLACK ROSES

Secret Long Sought by Florists Has Been Discovered by an Englishman.

Florists in New York were greatly interested in the recent announcement that an Englishman has discovered how to grow jet black roses, a feat which has been vainly attempted for many years. If a dozen of them could be offered for sale to-day in the city, says the Baltimore Sun, leading florists agreed that there would be no difficulty in obtaining $1,200 for the bunch.

On a few estates along the Rhine practically black roses have been grown for the last ten years, but all efforts to eliminate a reddish tint in the center of the bud have so far failed. No secret has been more closely guarded by the German gardeners than this one of developing even a comparatively black flower. Visitors are allowed to look at the bushes and buds on special occasions, but what ingredient has been put into the soil to bring about the abnormal color has not been told even to close friends.

In California a specialist has also been partly successful in producing roses practically black, but, according to announcement in London, it remained for a peddler of shoelaces to attain perfection. It was said to-day by New York florists that undoubtedly the color is the result of a chemical introduced in the soil.

The same principle, however, is said to be involved as in the development of blue hydrangeas, which are produced by putting iron into the soil in which the plants are grown.

The black blossoms would be most popular as indications of mourning, but it was agreed by florists that the day is yet distant when any one of the freaks will be seen in their windows.

WERE NOT DESIRABLE LOTS

Man Put in Extra One in Trade and Was Afraid of Getting It Back.

"There is a little town up the coast that bears the name of Ocosta," remarked Jere T. Burke, of the Southern Pacific law department, while in a reminiscent mood, relates the San Francisco Chronicle. "It lies just back of Gray's harbor and is the largest town in that neighborhood. However, that does not mean very much. I visited Ocosta a little while back, and while I was in town a certain fellow traded a town lot for a horse. After closing the deal the fellow that had acquired the horse hurriedly took the animal to a blacksmith shop and asked the blacksmith to shoe him in a hurry. The blacksmith seemed in no hurry, however, and the owner of the horse made two or three trips outside of the shop, looking nervously up the road.

"'Can't you hurry that job?' he said to the blacksmith. 'I never was in such a hurry in my life.'

"'Say,' declared the blacksmith, 'did you steal this horse?'

"'No, I didn't steal the horse,' replied the owner reassuringly. 'I traded a lot for the horse, and by mistake I put two lots on the deed instead of one. Now I am afraid the other fellow will discover the mistake and come back to demand the horse.'"

Arkansas River.

The Arkansas river is the only water course in Oklahoma ever navigated by steam. It has diminished year after year by pouring its waters into the irrigating ditches of arid and western plains, until now often in the summer solstice it is possible for a pony to pass from bank to bank without wetting a saddlegirth.

India's Foreign Trade.

India has three and one-third times as much foreign trade as Japan; three times as much as China, easily beating Italy and Austria, also Belgium; and surpassing the Russian empire by 25 per cent.

Red Lake Falls Gazette

L. A. DAUTREMONT, PROPRIETOR
SAM S. HAISLET, EDITOR AND MANAGER

Published weekly, Thursday evening. Entered as second-class matter in the post office at Red Lake Falls.

Official Paper of Red Lake County.

Official Paper of Red Lake Falls.

Subscription, $1.00 per Year

TWENTY-TWO YEARS.

With the issue of today The Gazette passes the twenty-second mile-stone of its existence, and now enters upon its twenty-third year of usefulness in Red Lake Falls and Red Lake county.

There is considerable reason for satisfaction in all this, and but few cities boast of a newspaper twenty-two years old and in the ring for future business, in the extent The Gazette is today.

While the present management has not been identified with the work for but a fraction of the twenty-two years The Gazette has existed, we can fully realize the ups and downs that have necessarily been encountered, and to the people of Red Lake county who have so nobly stood by the favorite paper in the past, we can heartily extend thanks, not only for the present management but for those who preceeded us.

Could the old Gazette speak of the past it could tell of the wonderful development of this once barren region into what is now one of the most beautiful agricultural sections of the most glorious state in the Union; it could tell of the rising of a beautiful city of brick blocks and public enterprises of what was once an out of the way trading station; it could tell of countless ups and downs of its friends and patrons whom prosperity and adversity have visited alike. True, twenty-two years is a long time to look back at, but undoubtedly to the old Gazette they have passed by quickly, and to all the good it has accomplished in the development of this region, it is grateful and content.

Today the paper is a permanent fixture, and will undoubtedly continue to be so in the next twenty-two years to come. Equipped with one of the best plants in the valley, and being well up in the ranks of the papers in the state in the matter of circulation, there is every reason to prophesy a successful future for the old stand-by—the paper that has always given the people their moneys worth and more.

To the people of Red Lake Falls and Red Lake county who have in the past by their loyal support made it possible for The Gazette to occupy the position it does today, we owe our heartfelt thanks, and our aim shall be to endeavor to merit a continuation of that support and friendship that has placed the paper in the position it nows occupies.

Vale, twenty second mile post, and may the next twenty-two years bring forth ten times the improvement and progress that has the last quarter of a century for the prosperous and contented Red Lake county.

ST. HILAIRE

(From the Spectator.)

A. F. Lang left for Langdon Tuesday evening intending to remain until most of the North Dakota threshing is finished.

The opening of the hunting season was not very bright. None of the local sportsmen were missed from their places of business and all of them had a tired expression in their faces, not so much from business cares but from the fact that to go hunting was impossible on account of the continuous raining.

Thursday morning the weather men got busy again and the rain came down in the same fashion it has all summer, putting the farmers to rest, delaying harvesting and making the threshing machine men feel as if they would need the assistance of a house-moving outfit in order to keep their outfits above ground.

Tuesday evening a lawn party was given by Miss Ella Johnson and Mrs. H. R. Hanson on the lawn at the Hanson residence. All kinds of games were in progress and merrymaking was at its height when a young lady sat on a bee hive and began tapping it with her heels to let the inmates know that they were alive. Soon the bees answered the summons and came out to swarm. The young lady gave a scream and the gallants who responded to the call participated in the welcome of the bees, leaving evidence of their defense. The party then thought it best to stay in the house, but so persistent were the bees that they followed and later the seekers of pleasure abandoned the place and assembled at the home of Miss Ella Johnson where the evening was joyously passed in dancing.

The Colonel's Waterloo.

Colonel John M. Fuller, of Honey Grove, Texas, nearly met his Waterloo, from Liver and Kidney trouble. In a recent letter he says: "I was nearly dead, of these complaints, and, although I tried my family doctor, he did me no good; so I got a 50c bottle of your great Electric Bitters, which cured me. I consider them the best medicine on earth, and thank God who gave you the knowledge to make them." Sold, and guaranteed to cure, Dyspepsia, Biliousness and Kidney Disease, by W. A. Schreiter, druggist, at 50c a bottle.

Food prepared with Calumet Baking Powder is pure and healthful, and is free from Rochelle salts, alum, lime and ammonia. A wonderful powder of unequalled strength.

Trust Baking Powders sell for 45 or 50 cents per pound and may be identified by this exorbitant price. They are a menace to public health, as food prepared from them contains large quantities of Rochelle salts, a dangerous cathartic drug.

All of the insurance companies interested have now settled their losses to the satisfaction of all parties concerned.

A derailed engine at Erskine delayed traffic on the Soo line for a couple of hours on Wednesday evening. The accident was due either to a mistake of the engineer or the signal man at the Great Northern crossing it having occurred in an attempt to cross before a G. N. passenger train.

C. H. Foy and E. J. Heneright of Cedar Falls, Iowa, arrived here Wednesday night. They are out on a hunting trip and incidentally looking up first class investments in farm lands. Mr. Foy a few days ago purchased the Aamoth farm in section 15 of Wyandotte from Julius Pleth. These gentlemen are firm believers in the future of this part of the country and may invest more in lands hereabout.

Being anxious to secure a few of the festive prairie chickens on the opening day of the season we drove with Henry J. [illegible]nderle to the reservation on Thursday evening and passed the night at the home of Dan Carroll. The chicken crop proved very meagre but we want to state that Dan Carroll's wheat and flax crops, on his reservation claim, are about as good as any we have seen in Red Lake county. Thanks to Mr. Carroll's hospitality we had a very enjoyable time and it is safe to say that if the other settlers on the reservation can hustle like Mr. Carroll, that wilderness will soon be one of the garden spots of the state of Minnesota.

Incredible Brutality.

It would have been incredible brutality if Chas. F. Lembarger, of Syracuse, N. Y., had not done the best he could for his suffering son. "My boy," he says, "cut a fearful gash over his eye, so I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which quickly healed it and saved his eye." Good for burns and ulcers too. Only 25c at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

If you haven't looked over the list of lands to be sold at the forfeited tax sale this fall, you had better do so if you are not positively sure that the taxes have been regularly paid. The list comprises only town lots, but there are many cases where default of payment several years back will mean the loss of the lots or the payment of a heavy penalty if the lands are sold. Better inquire of the Auditor whether or not your lots are included in the list.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climate conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. New Towns in North Dakota.

The extensive railroad building now being done in North Dakota has brought tributary to railroad facilities an additional vast area of the rich agricultural sections of northern and western North Dakota. The Great Northern railway is building a number of new extensions from its main line northward notably that of the Sarles extension of the Edmore line, the Thorne extension running north from York, the Maxbass extension running northwestward from Towner, and a further extension of the Westhope line to Antler.

The building of these new lines has brought into being a number of new towns which are fully described in a pamphlet recently issued by the Great Northern railway. By application to Mr. F. I. Whitney, Passenger Traffic Manager, St. Paul, Minn., a copy of these pamphlets "New Extensions in North Dakota" or "New Towns in North Dakota" will be mailed to any address. 6w

Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the evils attendant on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size 75c. At all druggists. A. L. Reichert.

MINE ON FIRE SINCE 1857.

Vein of Coal in Pennsylvania Still Unextinguished After Forty-Seven Years.

President Lewis A. Riley, of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, in his annual report, says that one of the company's mines near Tamaqua has been on fire for 47 years, says Fuel. Regarding the efforts now made to quench these subterranean fires the report says:

"A portion of the outcrop of the Mammoth vein in this locality has been on fire since 1857, the fire being confined by the water filling the workings below water level and cut-offs on the outcrop. Before opening the colliery below water level it is necessary either to extinguish the fire or get it under control. During the past year efforts have been made with this end in view which have met with a large measure of success. A boiler plant and pumping machinery have been erected on the bank of the Little Schuylkill river at Tamaqua for the purpose of pumping water to the level of the outcrop. A branch of the Panther Creek railroad has been extended nearly two miles to reach the outcrop, and more holes have put down at various places where there were indications of fire. The fire is being extinguished by washing fine coal dirt through bore holes on the fire and filling up the vacant spaces so as to cut off the air supply."

HE DIDN'T WANT THE COAT

But There Was Something in the Inside Pocket He Did Want.

The truth of this story is vouched for by the victim, says the New York Sun.

"Where is that old blue coat I knocked around in last summer?" he asked his wife. She was not quick to offer an explanation.

"It was here only yesterday," remarked the husband. "I know it was."

"Yes," said the wife with a touch of anger, "I know it was. I just got sick and tired of seeing that coat and a lot of other old stuff lying around cluttering things up, and I sold it this morning."

"You sold it! Sold the coat—the old blue coat?"

"Yes, I sold it. And I don't want you to go around moping about it."

"Dear, I didn't want the coat, but to-morrow is your birthday and I had hidden a ring and a nice yellow bill in the inside pocket. I wanted to surprise you and I couldn't think of a better hiding place."

The victim says that what happened after that is nobody's business.

TRUE HEROISM OF LIFE.

Found in Every-Day Occupations That Call for Steady Heads and Hands.

Prof. William James, of Harvard university, relates that, upon a certain journey, he was questioning with himself whether or not the higher heroism of life was passing out of human society; and that, at the very moment, he looked from the car window and suddenly got sight of a number of workmen performing some task on the dizzy ledge of an iron construction at a great height. This at once brought to his mind, says Success Magazine, a sense of the everyday bravery of men in everyday occupations. It flashed upon him, on the instant, that the true heroism of life is found, not only on the day of battle and in desperate adventures, but also in building every bridge, or in the ordinary day-by-day service of the world, whether of the sailor upon his deck, the brakeman upon his train, the lumberman upon his raft, or wherever else men are at work.

"As I awoke to this unidealized heroic life around me," he says, "the scales seemed to fall from my eyes, and a wave of sympathy greater then I had ever before felt with the common life of common men began to fill my soul."

WOODS FOR FURNITURE.

Objections to Oak and Rosewood—Walnut's Day Gone—Seasoning Mahogany.

Some of the best cabinetmakers of New York are chary of working in oak. Really old and well-seasoned oak is hard to get and harder to work, says the New York Sun.

There is no great quantity of old oak furniture in the market, and old pieces that would supply large enough lumber for important work are seldom found. New kiln-dried oak is uncertain, being liable to warp and crack.

Paneled articles can be made of such material with some safety, but large solid articles are likely to give a bad account of themselves at the end of a winter in a steam-heated house.

Rosewood also the best cabinetmakers distrust. This wood has a peculiarly oily quality that makes it uncertain when glued. For this reason rosewood is used chiefly as a veneer. Thin sheets lose much of their oil and take glue satisfactorily.

Solid rosewood furniture is hard to find.

Unpardonable.

Mrs. Flip—That new neighbor is a fearfully slipshod housekeeper.

Mr. Flip—How do you know?

"Why, every single time I send over there to borrow something she's always out of it!"—Detroit Free Press.

It Sure Does.

Hear the Glee club!

Why do they call it a Glee club?

Because it effectually removes all evidences of glee from the adjacent populace.—Pittsburg Post.

ARRANGEMENT OF HOGPENS

Practical Plan Which Has Been Tried by One Farmer with Success.

The great difficulty in planning a hog-house is to get it so that it will be dry and clean. In this plan, 16x20 feet, I have four sleeping—or nest—pens, and four feed pens; close partitions between them, except passageway between the nest pen and the feed pen, explains John M. Jemison, in the Rural New Yorker. Each feed and nest pen is to be 5x6 feet, and the alleyway 4x20 feet. The building should stand east and west, with pens on south side, and alley on north side; and have a yard on south side as large as desirable. I would make a double doorway at two of the partitions, and make the doors so they will close tight. As arranged, the sows can make their nests in corners away from doors, and the wind will not blow on them when the doors are open. The pens next to the alley can be used to feed in, when the weather is bad, and when good, the feeding can be done in lots outside. The more feeding done inside, the more work required to keep the house clean.

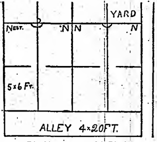

DIAGRAM OF HOG PEN.

I would lay the floor with cement concrete, making the alley floors level, but the pen floors I would slope from the south wall towards the alley, about three inches in the 12 feet. This will tend to cause all water to flow towards the alley, and keep the nests and feed stalls comparatively dry. The bedding from the nests, when soiled, can go into the lots or alley, just as the feeder wishes, when he cleans out the stalls. The yards should be kept clean by throwing in straw, or other coarse material. Over this floor plan the builder can put such building as suits him best; a shed in form, the roof sloping one way, or a comb roof. In either case, if he wishes, a room for bedding and feed above the pens. The building should be located on an elevated point of ground, so the water will flow away from it in all directions, and the roof spouted, to keep water from making it wet about the building. Make doors at the ends of the alley. If the doors are cut in half, it will often be an advantage in airing out the pens. There should also be plenty of windows on the south side, for sunshine is a very important factor in the health and comfort of swine.

THE BEST HOG TROUGH.

With Slats Across the Top It Will Keep the Hogs from Lying in Them.

I have tried all kinds of hog troughs and like best the one shown here, writes an Illinois farmer to the Farm and Home. It can be made of two boards for water, swill or grain, is stout and durable, is not liable to burst when water freezes in it. The boards should be 2x12, and 16 feet long is a good length; 1x12-inch boards make a very good trough, but are not so durable as two-inch. The slats across the top keep the hogs from lying in the trough when it is filled with water in hot weather.

THE LIVE STOCK.

Study the individual needs of each cow and supply those needs.

Keep the horse judiciously shod and exercised.

Be cheerful—help to inspire the other fellow too.

Some cows would be better ones if they were fed more.

It is the steady, quiet horse that can do the biggest day's work when it is hot.

You can change the quantity of milk by the feed, but the quality is born with the cow.

A strong, well-grown sow may be bred to farrow at one year, but a small one should not be bred until 10 or 12 months old.

Chaff and loose straw dropping through the cracks of an ill-constructed ceiling are a constant source and cause of dust during milking. The ceiling of the stable should be as tight as your house.

Many a stable of four or more horses, if intelligently mated and driven, would do better work and do it easier. An old horse mated to a young one, a heavy horse to a light one, a slow horse to a fast one, often causes trouble, which might easily be avoided by a little foresight and judgment in the matter.

The Horse to Reject.

Reject a horse with toes turned in or out. The twist generally occurs at the fetlock. Toes turned out are more objectionable than toes turned in. When toes are turned out the fetlocks are generally turned in, and animals so formed are very apt to cut or bruise. Both, however, are weak formations.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

543 1-2 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

SOCIETY MISFITS

By CLAUDIA ASHTON

"IT'S very nice being so rich, John; don't you think so?"

The woman spoke in a tentative way, as if she were not sure whether riches were an unmixed blessing or not, but the man replied, with every appearance of heartiness:

"Yes, it's very nice, Sarah; none of that scrimping and saving we had at Lavender Farm in the old days. Why, you hadn't a silk dress to your back then, old woman, and now you've—how many?" She smiled faintly, but did not answer, and he continued: "Yes, it was a lucky day for us when Uncle Peter died out in Colorado and left us his money, and it was a fine day for us when we left Lavender Farm and poverty for a costly city home and everything we want."

Sarah Platt sighed softly. Now that the first novelty and excitement of possessing a fortune had worn off, she was most miserable, and she had asked the question to see if her husband felt the same. How could she know that his cheery answer was only for her benefit; that he, too, longed for the days of poverty and freedom; and found the possession of a palatial house and host of servants wearisome in the extreme? But he believed that his wife enjoyed it all, and he would not for worlds have disturbed what he imagined was her condition of pleased contentment.

As a matter of fact, the old couple's sway over the house and servants was only nominal. A year ago, when the news of their accession to great wealth came to them, they had been living quietly and poorly on a tiny Pennsylvania farm, and, when they moved from it to the metropolis, they realized that they were unfit to cope unaided with their altered circumstances. The wealthy never lack friends, and so many friends made their appearance that old John Platt and his wife were quite bewildered at all the conflicting advice they received. Eventually—how, they hardly knew—they found themselves installed in a house whose magnificence frightened them, and where they never felt at home, and they and it were under the absolute control of Mrs. Dagleish and Mr. Hutchinson. The first was Mrs. Platt's companion; the second Mr. Platt's secretary; they both ruled their employers with a rod of iron.

It seems almost incomprehensible that the two old people could be so wretched, each erroneously thinking it was for the sake of the other, but so it was, and the unhappy condition of affairs might have gone on indefinitely, but for the growth of the seed of jealousy which it has been said is in every woman's heart.

It cannot be said what caused its growth in the heart of Sarah Platt to torment and harass her in addition to the sorrows of wealth which she already bore. Why she was jealous, of whom, or of what, she did not know. It may have been from a joking remark made one day by Mrs. Dagleish; it may have been because John very rarely came into the parlor for tea with her; it may have been for any reason or for no reason; but the fact remains that a tiny seed of jealousy took root, and from it sprang a slender stalk of suspicion and mistrust.

And one day chance helped her and showed her where John Platt spent so much of his time. She and Mrs. Dagleish drove to Broadway to have Mrs. Dagleish's watch repaired. While she was in the store and Mrs. Platt was idly waiting in the carriage and watching the passers-by, she saw her husband turn into a large office building on the other side of the street. He did not notice the carriage or her, and she, consumed with curiosity as she was, made no sign. Neither did she say anything to Mrs. Dagleish when that lady rejoined her, and she only mentioned casually at dinner that evening that she had been on Broadway. She watched her husband's face closely as she spoke, and to her excited imagination he seemed uneasy and desirous of changing the subject.

But she had made up her mind, and the next day she only waited for Mrs. Dagleish to retire to her room for her afternoon sleep, to start cityward. She went by the elevated, and was soon at the building she had seen her husband enter. She asked the janitor if Mr. Platt had an office there.

"No such name in the place, ma'am," he replied. "It may be the queer old party whose name I don't know, who comes at odd times. He's got an office in No. 12, on the top floor, but, so far as one can see, he does nothing. He never has no letters, nor telegrams, nor visitors, and his office is never cleaned, for he won't let no one inside the door."

"Is he here now?" asked Mrs. Platt, her heart beating wildly, for she felt she was on the brink of some discovery, and, although she hated herself for being where she was and her reason for being there, she determined to finish what she had begun.

"I couldn't say for certain, ma'am, but I think he came in about half an hour ago. I'll take you up in the elevator, if you like, ma'am."

And in a moment or two Sarah Platt was standing outside the door marked "12," behind which she felt lay all she wanted to know.

She tapped timidly; the door flew open; her husband stood before her.

"Sarah! You here! What has happened? What is it?" His ruddy face was white with apprehension and surprise.

But his wife could not explain, for through the open door she saw the room, and the sight killed her voice. Before her was no ordinary office, no office at all, but her own dearly loved, tenderly remembered kitchen at Lavender Farm. The diamond-paned window had pink geraniums in it; the old oak chairs she had so often polished stood along the wall on one side; on the other was her dresser decked with her plates and cups and saucers.

"John," she gasped, as she stumbled into the room and almost fell into her accustomed seat in the corner of the wide, old-fashioned fireplace, "John—why—why—how—"

As her agitation increased, John regained his self-possession.

"Sarah, old woman," he said, "I wouldn't have told you for the world, and I can't think how you found me out, because you like living in fine style, and being rich as we are pleases you, I know, but I'm sick of it. I was tired of it very soon, this paying for dinners and parties for folk who don't care for us a bit, but only for what they get out of us—that young coxcomb, Hutchinson, and your dragon of a Mrs. Dagleish. I'm tired of keeping a pack of servants who eat their heads off and do nothing, but I knew you liked it, old wife, and so I didn't let you know."

"Oh, John, I wish it, too—I wish it, too," she cried. "I wish we were back at Lavender Farm."

"You wish it," his voice was full of amazement; "but I thought you liked being the fine lady."

"Oh, John, dear, don't you see? Can't you understand? I hate all this show and grandeur! I thought you liked it, and so I pretended I did, just to please you. But I'm tired of it all."

The old man laughed suddenly, a loud, hearty laugh, which would have shocked Mrs. Dagleish and drawn a reproving look from Mr. Hutchinson, but which rejoiced his wife's heart.

"We've been a couple of blind fools," he said. "We've not pleased each other, and we've not pleased ourselves, and we've simply spent our money on a lot of people who sneer at us behind our backs. We'll give Hutchinson and Mrs. Dagleish the grand bounce; we'll give up the city house and go back to the farm. Jackson will be only too glad to let me have it again, and we'll just live in the way we both like. What do you say to that, Sarah?"

SHE TAPPED TIMIDLY.

"I should like it better than anything," she declared. "I'll have a good strong maid and see to the cooking myself, and you'll be able to see after the farm again; Jackson never understood it."

"We'll give all the money we don't need to charities," said John Platt, "and now, Sarah, I often make a cup of tea here of an afternoon. Will you make it to-day?"

Gladly she assented, and with a towel pinned over her stylish dress she bustled about and soon had supper ready, a supper worth eating, for John went out to buy delicacies for it.

"It's something like supper," he declared. "I hate those suppers we have up there"—he jerked his teaspoon with a disparaging gesture in the direction of his metropolitan residence—"with cups so tiny you're afraid of swallowing them along with the tea, and bits of bread and butter I could put in the corner of my eye."

His wife beamed upon him, and sipped her tea with contented ease while he talked of what they would do when they got back to the farm.

Suddenly the clock chimed seven and she started to her feet with an exclamation of dismay. Her new-found freedom was still strange. "John, hark to the time! What will Mrs. Dagleish say? We can never get back in time for dinner. She will be so angry and disagreeable, and so will Mr. Hutchinson."

But John had grown very bold.

"We aren't going back for dinner to-night," he said, cheerfully. "I know a nice little place near where we can have anything we like without a butler watching every mouthful. We'll have a good hearty meal, too; none of your mouthfuls of fish, and wine with no taste. What do you say to tripe and onions? It doesn't matter what anyone says or thinks. Mrs. Dagleish and Hutchinson aren't our keepers. To-morrow I'll pay them and the servants off, and put the house in the agents' hands, and then, very soon"—and he tossed his hat in the air and Sarah clapped her hands—"and then, hurrah for Lavender Farm, and liberty!"—N. Y. Weekly.

JUST A QUERY.

They fill the windows with their hues,
The rainbow is a faded thing
Beside the pinks and greens and blues
That riot on the hats of spring.
The hats, of course, are "just too dear,"
But where are the styles of yesteryear?

The picture hats are gardens fair,
With blooms of every sort and kind;
They nod and blossom everywhere,
In front and also stuck behind;
They droop in clusters o'er each ear,
But where are the blooms of yesteryear?

The hats are built of gauze and tulle,
Of every shape and form and name;
They never fashion them by rule,
For never are there two the same;
Some droop, some jerk, some flout and fleer,
But where are the shapes of yesteryear?

The crowns, they say, will tower high,
And this, of course, is rather nice,
But crowns, no matter how they try,
Can ever soar and reach the price,
No matter how they climb and rear,
But where are the hats of yesteryear?

The husbands note the handsome hats,
The ribbons and the tulle and plumes,
The peeks, the tall ones and the flats,
The buckles and the brilliant blooms,
And then they stop to shed a tear,
But where are the bills of yesteryear?

DID A GOOD TRADE IN TRAMPS

Shorty and His Pal Prospered Until the County Law Was Changed

SAID the man behind the bars:

"Yes, I'm in again, but I much fear there ain't nothing coming to me, like there was the last time I was in jail when I was released. It was in the Leland county jail, and there I met Shorty. Shorty got religion from the Sunday school reading a lady handed in to us. He got affected by them uplifting words and the drunkard's fate something emotional.

"He comes to me and says, earnest: 'You ain't walking in the light, are you?' I say my business carries me out nights mostly. Then Shorty groans and exhorts on till I see the folly of my ways and groans with him.

"Shorty says: 'I believe you, my brother man; I believe your repentance is as sincere as mine is. Then I'll help you. When I get out I know of a nice little business to go into, and I'll take you for my partner.'

"Shorty and me was released together. Says Shorty:

"'All my plans is perfected, but a little capital to start matters must be forthcoming.' We wait till night and it's dark and in a crooked street by a high board fence we see a prosperous-looking gent.

"'You hold him and I'll go through him,' says Shorty. Which pleases me very much. Most of them that gets converted is narrow and prejudiced, but Shorty is the broad-minded kind. But we only lift $3.85 off him, and take a sneak right out in the country, where our business interests lie.

"In the morning we meet our first customer out on the road. He's a young feller, and Shorty says:

"'My unfortunate fellow man, will you come along with me, if I give you 50 cents and take you to a place where you can get as much more and tobacco and beer?'

"HALT," SAYS SHORTY.

"That lad's reply is to cling so close to us it's hard walking. By afternoon we have six more hoboes in a procession, and can't get no more to do business on, because we give them 50 apiece, and it uses up our capital.

"'Halt!' says Shorty. We're in front of a country barber shop, which is also a saloon and a candy store, and sells cheese. Here Shorty draws up his procession. A little fat man darts out to us.

"'Hello!' he says to Shorty. 'Then you really gone in the business you was speaking of last time I saw you? Seven of them? What you want for the seven?'

"'Here's the goods, all delivered to you, and I want my price, which is a dollar fifty apiece for them,' says Shorty. And the holler that goes up from the little man is heartrending.

"'There ain't no consideration for others in business matters,' says Shorty. 'I had to pay them something to come along, and I must make my profit, mustn't I? Then here's my partner to share the proceeds. Then, if you won't pay me my price, we goes to Batsey's. Attention, boys!'

"'Oh, don't think of going to nobody else!' implores the little fellow. 'I'll take the goods at your price.' He hands Shorty a dollar and a half for each tramp, and the seven tramps, not knowing much of what is going on, is lined up, trying for all they're worth to make a fine impression on whoever's going to be good to them.

"'Well, boys,' says Shorty, 'you are now arrested, so make yourselves comfortable. This is Constable Blatherst.' The little constable bows cringing to them. 'You'll be tried and sentenced in just a little while now.'

"Well, them seven breaks ranks and sets up a holler. What are they arrested for? They want to know. And Shorty has betrayed them! Then just let them get at Shorty!

"'Now, now, boys,' pleads the constable, 'don't carry on so, please! I'd rather lose the price I paid for you than have any hard feelings against me in Leland county. I always tries to treat the boys right. If you do have to go to jail, it'll only be for a few days. Here!' and he runs amongst them, passing out a 50-cent piece to each. 'There's tobacco for you, and, if you'll step inside and be arrested like gentlemen, there's a cool, refreshing glass of beer. So, now, do be gentlemen.'

"And, as the goods we just sold and delivered is assured they won't get more than three days on the charge of vagrancy, they go inside with the constable, who rubs his hands saying they mustn't be mad at him, and remember they're gentlemen and will they have light or dark?

"'You see,' explains Shorty, 'Leland county pays a bounty of seven dollars a head for every tramp caught and lodged in the jail. The judge and the constable goes shares on the bounty. These constables is most kind to the tramps, as you see, because they want them to come back and be arrested maybe a dozen times during the summer. While I was meditating over the cup of sorrers which I had drunk to the dregs, it struck me that here was a good chance to make a honest living.'

"It's then along comes the judge. He's a nice, fatherly old feller, and greets us cordial, especially Shorty, who's been up before him before.

"'No,' says Shorty, 'me and me friend ain't going in again; we're in business for ourselves now.'

"'Oh!' says his honor. He's a little cold and lost his fatherly interest in us then, seeing there ain't no bounty attached to us. He goes into the barroom, bowing very dignified but fatherly to the prisoners, which was the most important looking lot of prisoners you ever see, as for the first time in their lives, maybe, they was worth seven dollars a head. They is most meek, and takes a day or two most grateful, for it's a very pleasant jail, without no separate cells, but 30 or so in one ward, and nothing to do but be sociable.

"Shorty and me goes out the next day and searches the country, and gets a very nice assortment of goods to the number of 11. The fact is we prosper so that at last we think a vacation is due us. We goes down to the seashore and has a swell time of it.

"The first morning we're back we start right out to do a little business. And all morning not a tramp do we see! We hunt up one road and down another and over others, but there ain't a tramp in sight, and we're beginning to feel sore. When afternoon comes we spy a hobo away off, but he's running for all he's worth, which is seven dollars, and is out of sight before we can hail him. A couple of hours later we spy another. His hair is standing out behind him, and he'll get in trouble for exceeding the speed limit.

"'There's something wrong,' says Shorty, much apprehensive. 'What's all this excitement about?'

"Another tramp comes tearing down the road.

"'Don't stop me!' he implores, piteously. 'The consequences would be more than I could bear. Lemme get out of this county as quick as I can. To-morrer will be the fust of the month.'

"'What of it?' we ask.

"He tells us and we let him go. Ain't we in hard luck, though? 'The supervisors has passed a new law, to go in effect the first of the month,' that tramp had said to us. 'After that every hobo is arrested on sight, and gets three months. It ain't that that's so terrifying, but the new law says that every inmate of the county jail will be put to work!'"—N. Y. Sun.

Decanting Wines.

A deposit will often form in the bottles, making it necessary to decant them into other bottles. The utmost care should be taken not to disturb the sediment. In large wine cellars in Europe, and in the cellars of hotels and clubs employing a cellarman, a decanting apparatus is used. Decanting old wine is a delicate operation, which requires much care. The bottle should be carried in a horizontal position and, gently lifting it to a slanting position, insert a "power corkscrew" and remove the cork without shaking. Then raise the bottle so that you can see through the wine by candlelight and, in drawing it off, stop as soon as the cloud or deposit in the bottle gets to the neck. In this way you avoid having any deposit, cloud or crust flowing into the decanter.—American Wine Press.

Barber Wanted Talk.

"Now say something," said the barber to the customer in his chair whose beard he had just finished trimming.

"What's that?" said the astonished customer.

"That'll do," said the polite barber.

Naturally, the customer had been sitting with his mouth closed, and what the barber wanted was to see him with his mouth open, so that he could detect any stray projecting hair ends of the mustache that he might have overlooked in trimming it.—N. Y. Sun.

DYNAMITE MAKES CHANNEL

Ice in Long Island Sound Was Blown Up to Permit of Navigation.

The severity of last winter in the neighborhood of New York is emphasized by an occurrence at Port Chester, N. Y., on Long Island Sound, says the New York Tribune. Usually the harbor of that place is not closed in the winter by the ice. The steamers from New York are able to make their way up the Byram river, the mouth of which forms the harbor of Port Chester, to the wharves. In the winter just ended it has been impossible for them to do this, for ice more than a foot in thickness formed and effectually blocked navigation in the channel.

The manufacturers became tired of waiting for nature in the form of gentle spring to release them from their icy bonds. When March came roaring in, and the ice was found still to be from a foot to 18 inches in thickness, they decided to treat the ice themselves. Procuring 150 pounds of dynamite, they set to work. Beginning at the open end of the ice field the ice was divided into huge blocks with plows. Then sticks of dynamite were inserted in holes made for the purpose. The dynamite was exploded by an electric current, and three or four miniature geysers of mixed ice and water would shoot up into the air. Foot by foot the ice was broken away. Finally after five days of ice breaking at this port the channel was opened sufficiently to permit a steamer to reach a wharf.

AN APPEAL FROM AFRICA.

What the People of the Dark Continent Ask of Those of Other Nations.

It is but very little that we ask—the right to work on our own soil, among our own people, ruled by some, at any rate, of our rulers, and to be permitted to eat and drink what we think good for us, instead of having deadly poison poured down our throats, says an extract from "Africa's Appeal to Christendom," in Century. Even if foreign powers should for a time be financial losers, they cannot eventually be anything but gainers—aided by a country almost unlimited in its capabilities, and the willing, grateful service of 20,000,000 of people rescued from the moral as well as physical death now staring them in the face. They will not have the obstacles presented to them in their own country; all will be with them in this crusade; leaders and people alike are stretching out their hands for aid. We appeal, not to England, not to France, not to Germany, not to other empires and states, but to the consciences of the individual men forming such nations. We appeal, not for a gift or favor, but for our right. Even as the Americans appealed for their rights, and obtained them by heroic measures, so do we claim the right for "freedom to worship God," and to worship Him by sobriety, industry, good will and all the Christian graces.

MARSH LIGHTS.

From the marshes and meadows they rise
When the last ray of daylight expires;
With a vast constellation of fires
They people the dusk of the skies.

In an intricate kind of a dance,
In a mystical maze they are led,
And I watch them it noiselessly tread
With eyes that are heavy with trance.

And oft from the whirl and the throng
Some lesser light dies in the play;
They cease not their dance, but always
Go circling and whirling along.

And, watching, I dream that our life
Is a mirthless dance that we tread,
Ne'er pausing to number the dead
That vanish away in the strife!

We are sparks from the marsh that are filled
For a moment with impulse, desire;
A moment is ours to aspire,
A moment—and then all is stilled!

"DR. MORRIS MOORE," was the announcement.

"High-ho!" was the sigh from the sofa.

"If I intrude—"

"How can you intrude when you are asked to come?"

"Anyhow, I am demanding premature welcome. I am the first comer."

"Some one must be first, and I fancy—"

"That I intended to be first?"

"I was about to think so."

"And for asking that question that I have already asked many times. You know what it is?"

"I know."

"And your answer?"

"To what?"

"You said you know."

"Not what to answer."

"Then let me tell you what to answer, Stella."

"It will be a dull dialogue if you play both parts."

"It is no play with me. Do you mean that I may not hope! Is your answer the same as always?"

"It must be the same since my life, my mission, my talents must be given all for progress, for advancement; for woman's emancipation."

"Mrs. West."

"Ah, Mrs. West! so glad to see you!"

"So happy. I came early. It is so hard to see anything of you. Such a crowd about her always, doctor."

The doctor was still absorbed in acceptance of Stella's rejection. He could not veer lightly into divine moods. Stella thought she had never seen him appear so heavy.

"What has our star been doing lately? Writing! Ah, genius!"

"Truly, I have been writing a story of the 'revolution,'" admitted Stella, "and that was why I sighed."

"Sighed!" queried Mrs. West.

"Ah, was it?" asked the doctor, eagerly.

"I was grieved," explained Stella, hastily; "because I feared I could get no illustration in time. It is a story written for a Fourth of July number."

MRS. WEST, ARRAYED IN THE OLD WEDDING GARMENT, REENTERED THE LIBRARY.

"You are so skillful with the camera, why not illustrate it yourself?"

"Landscapes, I might. But dramatic scenes?"

"Why not?"

"Ah!" cried Stella, warming with an artistic fervor. "You give me an idea. If only you, Mrs. West, and you, Dr. Moore, would pose for me. I have two correct, genuine colonial costumes. One is the wedding dress of my ancestress, Mistress Nancy Doyle, heroine of my story, the farmer's daughter from whose piggin of milk Washington quaffed a draught as he rode to Yorktown."

"If I had a single ancestor who had done a deed worth telling!" Stella, boasting such an ancestress, smiled indulgently on the little widow, and looking toward the doctor sighed. He had not the ambition to even express a wish for an ancestor, of course he had none, only plain mothers and fathers and forbears with never a celebrity among them; proof positive, he never told of any such.

"The other costume was that of a Col. Morris, a genuine continental uniform it is. I was lucky enough to get it at a private auction when I was at school in the city."

"Quick! Quick! The costumes! The camera! Before the other guests arrive," cried Mrs. West with pleasurable excitement.

Scarcely ten minutes had elapsed when Mrs. West, arrayed in the old wedding garment, reentered the library. Never had she appeared to such advantage. Stella, in her up-to-date gown, felt stiff and commonplace beside the wearer of that glimmering, rose-odored antique costume.

The doctor, in all the glory of continentals, entering just behind the widow, flashed at her a look of amazed admiration.

He himself had the ill-grace to declare that he felt uncomfortable while he looked kingly.

"Now, who are we? And what are we doing?" cried Mrs. West.

"You are Nance Doyle herself," said Stella. The artist's fervor gave her warmth, in spite of the discomforting admiration that the widow's fetching appearance created. "You are her true and faithful lover."

"Yes," assented the doctor, fervently.

"Patriotism only burns brighter in each breast than does the love of each for each, pure, changeless."

"How truly you tell it," breathed Mrs. West.

"It is the moment of parting before the decisive battle."

"And the pose?"

"Take that of the Huguenot lovers, already immortalized; the costumes will give the needed difference."

"We must be quick about it," declared Mrs. West; "the other guests will be arriving in a moment."

Stella was focusing.

"Ready," she called.

The doctor seized the widow's hands in his and pressed them to his heart. She lifted to his, eyes entrancingly beautiful, for the moment brimming with expression of devotion; his own (what man's could not?) met hers with an equal ardor. Stella peering through the lens caught the glance and felt a great sob rise to her throat.

"It seems so long since—so long—" murmured the widow. Stella felt as if the black cloth over her head were stifling her.

"But now—at last," breathed Moore.

Stella's hand shook so that she could scarcely draw out the plate holder. It was plain that these two had loved in the long ago. Possibly the little widow had come early this afternoon looking to find him here. They were renewing the old affection right under her eyes. She had repulsed her persistent lover just once too often, and now her heart told her—too late.

"Any other pose?"

"Too late," said Stella. Her voice frightened her as she uttered the words beating in her heart. Too late.

"But you are content with your work?" quoted Mrs. West. Not if it was to give over her lover to the widow.

"You do not need me now? You do not want me?" The doctor was eager to lay aside the continentals.

"I can't tell until—until later developments."

But here the guests came. They were captured with the grace of the old costumes.

Was there magic in the ancient uniform, Stella wondered. Had she ever fancied the doctor heavy? Only Herculean. Had she ever thought him stiff? Only stately. Clumsy? Only courtly.

Tales of the brave days of the revolution were rife in Stella's parlors that afternoon. Each told a tale of his or her own until Mrs. Clitheral, wearing her gray hair like a duchess' coronet, and across her breast as many badges and insignia as a field marshal may boast, turned to Dr. Moore.

"You say nothing," she announced, "and you are the only one among us whose ancestor was a signer."

"And you never told me," murmured Stella in his ear.

"But you were so interested in progress, in advancement, in emancipation from all old customs, how could I know you would care for such old things?"

"And your father's family," continued Mrs. Clitheral—her D. A. R., Colonial Dame, Daughters of Colonial Governors, Child of Royalty badges tinkled as she talked—"are, if I mistake not, of the Moores of North Carolina of name and fame, closely connected with the Moore, present marquis of Drogheda Castle, Ireland."

"And you let me boast to you of my farmer girl ancestress with her pail of foamy new milk."

"She was one to boast of, brave, simple, true."

While the guests gathered about Mrs. Augustine Shepperd to hear for the hundredth time her favorite story of the revolution; how Col. Will Shepperd rode neck and neck with the captured Tory across the How Fields, the doctor whispered to Stella:

"I will tell you now that it was I who pawned these continentals which I now wear."

"Not really?"

"To buy a decent coat in which to read my graduating thesis."

"And now?"

"And now I have had success enough to feel warranted in asking you again that question."

"But, Mrs. West? You loved her once? I heard her say to you as you held her, oh, so closely: 'It seems so long.'"

"Since you had kept us playing the fool while you worried with the camera."

"And you, gazing at her so ardently, said: 'At last!'"—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Nine Nations
Now Use Liquozone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquozone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some-one whom Liquozone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquozone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquozone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

DYNAMITE MAKES CHANNEL

Ice in Long Island Sound Was Blown Up to Permit of Navigation.

The severity of last winter in the neighborhood of New York is emphasized by an occurrence at Port Chester, N. Y., on Long Island Sound, says the New York Tribune. Usually the harbor of that place is not closed in the winter by the ice. The steamers from New York are able to make their way up the Byram river, the mouth of which forms the harbor of Port Chester, to the wharves. In the winter just ended it has been impossible for them to do this, for ice more than a foot in thickness formed and effectually blocked navigation in the channel.

The manufacturers became tired of waiting for nature in the form of gentle spring to release them from their icy bonds. When March came roaring in, and the ice was found still to be from a foot to 18 inches in thickness, they decided to treat the ice themselves. Procuring 450 pounds of dynamite, they set to work. Beginning at the open end of the ice field the ice was divided into huge blocks with plows. Then sticks of dynamite were inserted in holes made for the purpose. The dynamite was exploded by an electric current, and three or four miniature geysers of mixed ice and water would shoot up into the air.

Foot by foot the ice was broken away. Finally after five days of ice breaking of this sort the channel was opened sufficiently to permit a steamer to reach a wharf.

AN APPEAL FROM AFRICA.

What the People of the Dark Continent Ask of Those of Other Nations.

It is but very little that we ask—the right to work on our own soil, among our own people, ruled by some, at any rate, of our rulers, and to be permitted to eat and drink what we think good for us, instead of having deadly poison poured down our throats, says an extract from "Africa's Appeal to Christendom," in Century. Even if foreign powers should for a time be financial losers, they cannot eventually be anything but gainers—aided by a country almost unlimited in its capabilities, and the willing, grateful service of 20,000,000 of people rescued from the moral as well as physical death now staring them in the face. They will not have the obstacles presented to them in their own country; all will be with them in this crusade; leaders and people alike are stretching out their hands for aid. We appeal, not to England, not to France, not to Germany, not to other empires and states, but to the consciences of the individual men forming such nations. We appeal, not for a gift or favor, but for our right. Even as the Americans appealed for their rights, and obtained them by heroic measures, so do we claim the right for "freedom to worship God," and to worship Him by sobriety, industry, good will and all the Christian graces.

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

RED LAKE FALLS GAZETTE.

Vol. 23. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, SEPTEMBER 14, 1905 No 1

SALOONS MAY BE SHUT

According To Opinions of Authorities Officers of Government Can Close Saloons In Northern Minnesota.

"No spirituous liquors shall be made sold or used on any of the lands herein set apart for the residence of the Indians and the sale of the same shall be prohibited in the territory hereby ceded until otherwise provided by congress or ordered by the President."—Article 7 Chippewa Treaty 1863.

Federal officials have the power to stop all sales of liquor in northern Minnesota, west of the Mississippi river.

This is the startling conclusion drawn from an opinion by the attorney general of the U. S. who holds that the lands in question are still "Indian land and subject to the terms of the treaties under which they were acquired from the Indians. There were three distinct treaties covering different sections but in each treaty the condition was made that the sale of liquor should be prohibited in the territory ceded "until otherwise provided by congress or ordered by the president of the United States."

Congress has never ordered otherwise so it seems to be up to President Roosevelt. If he desires to follow up the opportunity offered by Attorney General Moody's decision, he can decree that Minneapolis, Duluth and all northern Minnesota shall be "dry." In fact unless he orders otherwise, federal officers can proceed to close the saloons of Minneapolis.

The opinion of Attorney General Moody at Washington is based on the case of Richard Funk who set up a saloon at Ball Club on an Indian allotment sold under the provisions of the law relating to "inherited" lands. This case was recently decided in favor of the government.

"Last March the secretary of the interior, at the request of the commissioner of Indian affairs asked Moody for an opinion on the question whether Funk, as a purchaser of inherited land having title to that land could sell liquor thereon. The secretary stated that the Indian office was of the opinion that the land was "Indian country" within the meaning of the act of 1864, known as the 'Indian intercourse act.'

"Under date of March 28, the attorney general replied, upholding the contention of the Indian office and advised the secretary that prosecution could be begun and liquor in Funk's possession could be seized under the provisions of the revised statutes. After stating the questions asked of him, the attorney general quoted from section 7, of the Chippewa treaty of 1855 which among other things, provided that the laws which have been or may be enacted by congress regulating trade and intercourse with Indians are to continue to be in force within the several reservations herein referred to, and those portions which prohibit the introduction, manufacture, use of and traffic in, ardent spirits, wines or other liquors in the Indian country, shall continue to be in force within the entire boundaries of the country herein ceded to the United States until otherwise ordered by congress.

"'My attention has not been called to any act of congress inconsistent with continuance in force of the above quoted provisions of the treaty, by which the Indians ceded the country,' Mr. Moody says in conclusion. 'Accordingly I am of the opinion that, first, the introduction of liquor into a territory ceded by the treaty of 1855 would be in violation of article 7 thereof, and section 2139 of the Revised Statutes as amended and that, second in any such case proceedings may be taken in pursuance of the authority conferred by section 2140 of the Revised statutes and if deemed advisable, criminal prosecutions may also be instituted under the provisions of section 2139.

"Section 2140 of the Revised Statutes mentioned by Mr. Moody provides for the seizure of the liquor held by any person who attempts to sell to an Indian, or which is found on any land in the 'Indian country.' Section 2139 provides for punishment for violations of the law forbidding sale of liquor to Indians or on Indian lands.

"The governing feature of the whole case appears to be article 7 of the treaty of 1855 which places nearly all northern Minnesota that was formerly embraced in Indian reservations on a prohibition basis. Under the opinion of the attorney general sustained by the court in the Funk case the opinion here is that Major Scott, Indian agent at Leech Lake may proceed against all liquor dealers in new towns and in some of the older ones which have been established on what was formerly Chippewa Indian lands. Since Major Scott has been in charge at Leech Lake he has been active in his attempts to suppress the liquor traffic among the Indians and in special and regular reports has called attention to the lack of public sentiment in support of his efforts.

"It is assumed here that the liquor interests having so much at stake will put up a strong fight against this construction of the law. The government will contest every point and it is expected that no matter which side wins in the earlier stages the case will eventually reach the supreme court."

FIGHT TO A FINISH

Wylie People and Great Northern Railroad Will "Lay on, Macduff" and Contest Every Point.

The Great Northern will fight bitterly the proceedings begun last week by Congressman Halvor Steenerson of Crookston, to compel the road to maintain its road through Wylie and to that end now has a large number of lawyers, surveyors and officials of the company at Wylie and in that vicinity taking notes of actual conditions, and preparing arguments for the defense which will be submitted to the state railroad and warehouse commission before the end of this week.

An imposing array of counsel appeared in the offices of the state railroad and warehouse commission last Saturday at St. Paul to argue the proposed abandonment.

General Manager F. E. Ward of the Great Northern, General Traffic Manager W. W. Broughton and Assistant General Superintendent A. G. Costello were on hand, while the legal department was represented by General Solicitor R. A. Wilkinson. The protesting Wylieites were represented by Congressman Halvor Steenerson of Crookston and the state was represented by Attorney General E. T. Young.

The track which the Great Northern proposes to abandon touches the towns of St. Hilaire, Wylie, Ives and Shirley. The first and the last named are on other lines of the Great Northern, while Ives is on the Northern Pacific. Wylie is the only town on the branch which will be without railroad communication.

James G. Prior, O. T. Romsos, F. C. Leppert and Peter Hansel, residents of Wylie, testified that the Great Northern had offered to move mercantile stocks and business concerns, free of charge, to other localities. The abandonment of the line will mean the disappearance of Wylie. The town has two general stores, a cheese factory, bank, hardware store, three elevators and several smaller establishments.

Congressman Steenerson of Crookston, who has arrived home from the session of the state railroad and warehouse commission called expressly for the purpose of hearing the Wylie claim, stated yesterday that the Wylie people, should they fail through the commission to secure redress, he will take the matter into the courts for final settlement. "We will bring a mandamus suit against the road to compel the maintenance of the line to Wylie if the commission acts in favor of the road" said Mr. Steenerson "and we believe that we have a case."

The party of railroad officials mentioned in the fore portion of this article came up Sunday morning and proceeded by team to the ing and proceeded by team to the scene of the present trouble where investigations will be conducted during the next few days.

INSTANT DEATH.

Six-Year-Old Herman Seede Killed by Pitchfork in Brother's Hands.

Plummer Pioneer: On last Sunday forenoon Herman, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Seede, who reside about two miles northwest from here, was instantly killed by his brother Iver, aged 14.

It seems that Iver was engaged in cleaning out his father's barn and was throwing some manure through the door at the moment when his brother stepped into the doorway. The fork struck little Herman in the head one of the tines penetrating the left temple and causing instant death.

The unfortunate affair is regarded here as purely an accident in which no blame can possibly attach to the older boy. We understand the coroner was not notified and the funeral was held on Tuesday.

COUNTY DADS MEET

New Ditches Ordered and The Usual Routine of Business Was Taken Care Of.

The Board of County Commissioners met at the office of Auditor Ford last Friday and Saturday and spent the two days in grinding out business for the county.

The first matter taken up was the establishment of Ditch No. 22 in Emardville, the board ordered the ditch constructed and bids will be advertised for at once.

Messrs. Gilbert Haave, Otto Zaiser and Dan Patterson were appointed viewers on Ditches No. 23 and 24, and County Surveyor Wood was named as the engineer. They will immediately go over the ground and report at the next meeting.

Otto L. Bakken was set off with his land from independent school district No. 18 to common district No. 135.

Two new school districts were organized on the reservation, to be known as districts No. 35 and 37.

L. A. Dantremont and Russel E. Vance were granted a correction of assessment and abatement of taxes subject to the approval of State Auditor.

Petition of Anton Skog et al to change name of town of Kratka to Oak Grove, was laid on the table, it being found that there was an Oak Grove in Anoka county.

Application to sell liquors in the town of Brooks were granted to Leroux and Hance and Z. Bray.

The county auditor was instructed to procure plats and descriptions of all corners on the new reservation.

The annual grist of bills were allowed—with some cutting.

FINE HORSE HERE.

Large Importing Company Has Belgian Stallion on Exhibition.

Mr. Sam Byerly, of Watertown, South Dakota, representing the large importing company of Robert Burgess & Son, Wenona, Illinois, is here with one of the company's finest stallions, and will try and sell the horse in this neighborhood. The animal is a beauty, and is by far the prettiest specimen brought to this country in a long time. He is a dark roan, and weighs about 1900 pounds at present, being valued at $3000. The Burgess company claim to have the finest herd of these stallions in the United States, and have several branches where they keep on hand many fine stallions, selling them in different parts of the country every year.

The horse is kept at Zaiser's barn when in town, and at the J. H. Glass farm south of town the balance of the time, and it is worth any one's time to look him over.

Horses of this kind are a great thing for a country, and it is to be hoped that he will be left in this part of the county.

NEWSPAPER SUED.

Crookston Journal Will Be Defendant In $10,000 Case.

Crookston Times: Robert H. Purvis today, through his attorney, Eric Hagen, who will have associated with him two of the leading attorneys of Crookston, served the papers in a $10,000 damage suit for alleged criminal libel as the result of a damaging article printed in the Crookston Journal last evening.

The Journal quoted a land man as saying that Parvis had done more to injure the land business here than all other agencies combined and intimated that he had been caught in a crooked deal by a party from Iowa.

The notice of suit was served on Charles Loring, the president of the old Journal printing company, which was never dissolved and upon John and Arthur Kirsch, supposed to be the present editors and publishers of the paper.

Purvis claims there is no foundation for the reference to his deeding property that did not belong to him.

ONLY A PIPE DREAM

Bad Whiskey Cr Some Other Evil Works Hardship on Eastman and Makes Him "See Things".

For some cause known but to himself John Eastman took to "seeing things" again last week, and on the front page of his Thief River News he scare heads an article, startling in the extreme, telling how the Great Northern was going to abandon Red Lake Falls and run their trains from Crookston to Greenbush by the old line.

While John's bad dreams occur frequently of late and appear to have a bad influence on his pen, this latest effusion is very rank, and a newspaper that can't find anything better to fill up its columns than pure nonsense of that sort had better get to talking politics or women's rights or something that it might make the public listen to.

From the first of October last year until about May first of this year, the Great Northern had a steam shovel, three work trains, a crew of surveyors, and over two hundred laborers employed in constructing the stretch of track connecting the Great Northern and N. P. tracks in this city, and the thousands of dollars they have invested to get the line in shape has not been cast upon the waters. Today the Great Northern gets more passenger business, more outgoing and more incoming freight from Red Lake Falls than it does from any town on its line between Crookston and Greenbush, and the idea that the company would abandon a proposition like that looks so silly, that the author of so foolish a suggestion should feel like the proverbial thirty cents.

It is probably a waste of space to even pay this much attention to poor John's mind-wanderings, but he is postively getting so rank of late that he will either have to change the brand or take the cure.

OVER FOUR HUNDRED

LATEST ESTIMATE OF LOSS OF LIFE IN RECENT ITALIAN EARTHQUAKE.

In Addition to Those Killed Outright Hundreds of Persons Sustained Severe Injuries—Eighteen Villages Reported to Have Been Entirely Destroyed, Causing Immense Damage to Property.

Rome, Sept. 9.—The latest estimate of loss of life from the earthquake shocks in the province of Calabria is 400. Hundreds of persons were injured.

The towns of Martirano, Pizzo and Monteleone di Calabria were almost entirely ruined and eighteen villages are said to have been entirely destroyed.

In the Pizzo district buildings fell like cardboards at the touch of a finger.

The greatest damage appears to have been done at Stefnconi, where the dead are said to number close to the hundred mark. Almost every house in the town was wrecked, burying the people in the ruins.

Passengers arriving here from Calabria are profoundly impressed with the disaster. The depot at Parghclla is completely destroyed. The travelers recount seeing villages reduced to ruins and men and women half clothed weeping and seeking to find and bury the bodies of their relatives.

All the people from San Giovani to Santa Eufemia are invaded by the populace demanding succor. The spectacle is terrifying.

At Messina, Sicily, the walls of many houses and churches were cracked by the earthquake and otherwise were more or less seriously damaged.

TO END HOSTILITIES

JAP AND RUSSIAN GENERALS IN MANCHURIA WILL MEET TO ARRANGE ARMISTICE.

Godzyadani, Manchuria, Sept. 11.—Major General Ovanovsky, quartermaster general of General Linevitch's staff, has been appointed plenipotentiary to meet the Japanese representative and arrange the terms of an armistice.

Field Marshal Oyama has appointed General Fukushima as Japanese plenipotentiary.

It is announced that General Ovanovsky and General Fukushima, representing respectively General Linevitch and Field Marshal Oyama, will meet Sept. 13 to establish a line of demarcation between the two armies. Each general will have a small escort.

RIOTS OCCUR IN TOKIO

JAPS EXPRESS DISSATISFACTION WITH THE TERMS OF THE PEACE TREATY.

Tokio, Sept. 7.—Rioting broke out last Tuesday night in connection with the dissatisfaction over the results of the peace settlement. There were several clashes with the police and it is estimated that 2 were killed and [illegible] wounded. The rioting ceased at midnight. Police stations were the only property destroyed.

MAY LEAD TO HOSTILITIES.

Swedish-Norwegian Situation Causing Some Alarm.

Christiania, Sept. 9.—The fear is becoming general that the situation between Norway and Sweden may yet lead to war.

Even in the most pacific circles the situation is looked upon as having an element of danger and the prevailing nervousness has been increased by the tone of the Swedish newspapers.

In that country the press is now calling upon the government to mobilize 70,000 troops, at the same time pointing out that Norway is only able to command 3,000 troops.

While the Swedish riksdag demanded that the "fortresses recently erected be no longer maintained" the Swedish newspapers insist that the fortifications of the old fortresses of Fredrikstein and Kongsvinger shall be destroyed.

No suggestion could be made which would more deeply wound the national pride of the Norwegians. Kongsvinger is thirty miles from the frontier and holds a commanding position for the defense of Christiania, the richest section of Norway, while the corresponding zone in Sweden, it is pointed out, is "unimportant and has never been fortified."

Negro Burned at the Stake at Waxahachie, Tex.

Waxahachie, Tex., Sept. 8.—Steve Davis, a young negro who confessed to outraging Mrs. S. P. Norris, aged twenty, was burned to death at the stake here.

Davis begged so piteously not to be burned, but to be hanged or shot, that the mob decided to vote on it. The majority voted for burning.

A mob consisting of 3,500 persons tied the negro to a piece of gaspipe that had been set in the ground, piled fagots around him and set the mass on fire. The sufferings of the negro were of short duration owing to the fierceness of the fire, which was fanned by a gale of wind.

WANT SEPARATE TRIALS.

Chicago Packers Opposed Plan of Federal Attorneys.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Twenty-one separate trials may be demanded before federal judges by the Chicago packers indicted on charges of conspiracy in restraint of trade within the next two weeks. After the matter of pleading had been continued until Sept. 18 by Judge Otis Humphrey Tuesday, many of the attorneys interested in the case held a consultation and at least one agreement was reached by which separate trials would be demanded from the government. This move was anticipated by the government and every effort will be made by the federal attorneys to offset the requests of the defendants.

HUNDREDS ARE SLAIN

TERRIBLE STATE OF AFFAIRS EXISTS THROUGHOUT THE CAUCASUS.

Baku, Caucasia, Sept. 8.—The situation here shows no signs of amelioration. It could hardly be worse. The terror-stricken inhabitants are fleeing from the city, knowing the garrison is inadequate to protect them and although outbreaks have not yet occurred in Baku itself, none can say how close disorder is.

The principal fighting is not in Baku itself, but at Balakhan, where hundreds have been shot by the infantry and artillery and where 1,000 were killed or wounded during a desperate attack on the military camp and provision depots.

A large number of workmen barricaded themselves in the Balakhan hospital. The soldiers began the attack with rifle fire and then stormed the hospital and completed their work with the bayonet.

The entire oil and commercial quarters of Shabonshani, Nolani and Balakhan have been wiped out by fire and the inhabitants remaining behind were massacred and thrown into the flames. Bibltenta continues to burn and is threatened with the same fate as Balakhan.

DEATHS FROM YELLOW FEVER.

Larger Number Than Usual Reported at New Orleans.

New Orleans, Sept. 11.—Following is the official yellow fever report up to 6 p. m.:

New cases, 27; total cases, 2,298; deaths, 7; total deaths, 316; new subfoci, 11; cases under treatment, 296; cases discharged, 1,677.

The unfavorable part of the day's report is the unusually large number of deaths. Another distinguished member of the Roman Catholic clergy is in the list, Father L. E. Green of the Jesuit college. He died at 4 p. m. after being ill a week. Reports from the country are:

Patterson, 7 cases, 2 deaths; Tallulah, 11 cases, 2 deaths; Kenner, 2 cases, 1 death; Hanson City, 4 cases; Donaldsville, 2 cases; St. Rose, 2 cases; Pecan Grove, 1 death.

FULLY A SCORE DEAD

RAND POWDER WORKS AT FAIRCHANCE, PA., WRECKED BY AN EXPLOSION.

Plant Consisted of Ten Buildings and All Were Reduced to Debris by the Terrific Force—Shock Felt for Fifteen Miles and Much Damage is Done at Uniontown, Six Miles From the Scene of the Disaster.

Connellsville, Pa., Sept. 9.—With a report that could be heard for a radius of fifteen miles the Rand powder works, located at Fairchance, Pa., six miles east of Uniontown, blew up, causing, it is believed, over twenty deaths and considerable financial damage. So far nineteen bodies have been taken from the ruins and it is said there are several bodies still under the debris.

The explosion occurred in a car of powder and was followed a few moments later by another and heavier one when the flames ignited the large magazine. The concussion of the second explosion was so great that telephone, telegraph and trolley wires were blown down, interrupting all communication with the scene of the catastrophe. Persons within a radius of fifteen miles heard the explosion and knew that the powder works had blown up. Every vehicle in the surrounding vicinity was pressed into service and hundreds of people were soon gathered about the ruins aiding in the work of rescue. The bodies recovered were burned almost beyond recognition. Manager Rand of the Rand powder works was seriously hurt and was taken to his home at Uniontown, Pa.

Passenger Train Almost Derailed.

A passenger train on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, northbound from Morgantown to Connellsville, which was passing the works when the first explosion occurred, was almost thrown from the track by the concussion, which broke all the windows and caused a panic among the passengers, several of whom were injured by flying glass. Opposite the powder works the tracks of the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio railroads were destroyed. For a mile around Fairchance buildings have been wrecked and at Uniontown, Pa., six miles from the explosion, hundreds of windows have been broken. A large skylight in the courthouse at Uniontown was smashed and there was a panic among the occupants to escape from the building. Damage was done at Connellsville, Mount Pleasant and Scottdale and in hundreds of homes the dishes fell from the cupboards and pictures were blown from the walls. Scores of people in the town of Fairchance were painfully injured.

Not a vestige of the ten buildings that made up the big powder works remains standing.

DOZEN PEOPLE KILLED

DISASTROUS WRECK OCCURS ON AN ELEVATED RAILROAD IN NEW YORK CITY.

New York, Sept. 12.—The death list of the accident on the Ninth avenue elevated railroad, when a car crowded with early morning workers on their way downtown pitched headlong into the street, stands at twelve. Three men are in hospitals with fractured skulls. One of these, who as yet remains unidentified at Roosevelt hospital, is unconscious and not expected to live. More than two score of persons were injured, many of them seriously.

Whatever may have caused the mistake, the accident, the worst in the history of the overhead railroads in New York, came when a southbound train on the Ninth avenue line was switched off to the Sixth avenue line at the Fifty-third street junction. The motorman, expecting a clear track on the direct line of Ninth avenue, or disregarding the warning signal that the switch was open, rushed his train along at a high rate of speed. The first car swung around the right angle curve, holding to the rails because of the weight of the train behind. Then the strain became too great. The couplings broke, the second car was whirled above almost end for end, and to the horror of those who looked on from below pitched into the street.

NELSON DEFEATS JIMMY BRITT.

California's Greatest Little Fighter Beaten by the Dane.

Colma, Cal., Sept. 11.—Battling Nelson defeated Jimmy Britt at the Colma Athletic club, after eighteen rounds of the fiercest fighting ever witnessed on the Pacific coast.

It undoubtedly was the greatest lightweight battle of the decade. So desperately did the men fight that both were covered with gore early in the battle, while 15,000 spectators went wild over the fierce mix-ups and exchanges.

For seventeen rounds it was hammer and tongs, with Britt having the better of the fight until the end.

Britt opened the eighteenth round by jabbing Nelson in the face and followed it with right and left to the same spot. They mixed it up, when suddenly Nelson whipped a terrific right to Britt's jaw and the latter went down like a log. The blood was streaming from his nose and mouth as he made a feeble effort to rise, but he slowly sank back, and Referee Graney counted him out, while Nelson stood a few feet away waiting for the gritty little California fighter to regain his feet.

REBELS IMPORT ARMS

RUSSIANS WORRIED OVER THE DISCOVERY OF SOME RIFLES IN FINLAND.

Helsingfors, Finland, Sept. 12.—Customs officials on Saturday discovered 660 carbines of Swedish manufacture with bayonets and 120,000 cartridges on a barren island in the Gulf of Bothnia near Kerni. On Sunday morning a boat belonging to the customs service discovered a 300-ton steamer near Kalfskaer rock, twenty miles outside Jakobstad. The captain and members of the crew, who spoke in English, declared that the steamer was fully loaded with rifles and cartridges and thereupon the customs officials ordered the captain to take his vessel into port and discharge the cargo. The steamer proceeded toward the shore, the customs boat going in the meanwhile toward a nearby island. Suddenly several explosions were heard from the steamer and the customs officers on returning found the vessel sinking and her crew in life boats disappearing hurriedly toward the south. The officers immediately pressed into service a number of fishermen, who unloaded most of the ammunition on the boat.

DIFFICULT TO GRADE

THE MULE IS A DIFFICULT PRODUCT TO CLASSIFY.

Missouri Stock Dealer Gives Some Points of Interest Regarding the Hybrid Output.

Kansas City, Mo.—"The classification of Missouri's great product, the mule, is the hardest of all live stock," says John Grant, of the firm of Walcott, Besrs & Grant, at the stock yards.

"To most people the animal is simply a mule, with a strong inclination to emphasize his presence with a kick. To most buyers he is a good or bad, large or small, smooth or rough, will probably bring a certain price on the market or will not be wanted at all. While among dealers who supply the different demands he is classified according to weight, bone, size, color, age, mouth, teeth, broken or unbroken, length and breadth, and also in regard to the locality of the buyer.

"In the first place, green, unbroken mules are never wanted. Once in a while we receive a few and generally have to sell them at a sacrifice. The principal classes of mules known in the market are: Cotton mules, lumber mules, railroad mules, sugar mules, farm mules, levee mules, city mules and miners. Miners are classed as surface and pit mules.

"Cotton mules are the commonest kind in regard to numbers. They range from 13 to 16 hands, and from 4 to 7 years old are the best ages. Their build makes little difference so long as they are smooth. In price they range from $50 to $165. Lumber mules are the largest, heavy boned, rugged grades, 15.3 to 16.2 hands or better. They are used in the big lumber camps for logging, and must have the weight for good heavy pulling. In price this class ranges up to $250.

"Similar to the lumber mule is the railroader. Some lighter, but on the good heavy order, and from $15 to $20 cheaper. They are used in grading, hauling and all the work that is known in the construction of railroads. Sugar mules belong to the fancy class. They must be smooth, built rangy, small head and neck, small bones. In height from 15 to 16 hands, and in price from $165 to $210. Farm mules vary in size, but are formed from the rejected ones of the foregoing classes. Their prices range $10 to $25 lower.

"The miners are the hardest class to supply. They must be either dark bay or black in color. White and sorrel mules are never used. When the mines have long shafts, in the Pennsylvania coal regions especially, they say a white mule resembles a ghost and frightens the other mules beyond control. The pitters must be long in body, heavy boned and have good weight. They range from 12 to 16.2 hands and bring from $135 to $200, while for any other trade they would bring $50 less. Surface mules are used on the long hauls on top of ground. They are heavy, but taller, and have not such large bones.

"Levee mules, as the word implies, are used near steamboats and docks for the heavy work. They are generally single workers and must be of the rugged class. Their looks matter little so long as they are sound and fit for hard work. A city mule includes the small, light grades, such as you see on delivery and transfer wagons. The high prices in the last year have reduced the number greatly.

"The government buys all classes of mules, but that is done according to contract and prices hold a wide range. They never buy a low-priced animal and they are rigid in their examinations."

ALL ONE PIECE OF WOOD.

Remarkable Feature of the Washington Exhibit at the Portland Exposition.

Portland, Ore.—A cross section cut from a fir tree 13 feet in diameter forms the floor of an office of tree furniture which has attracted a great deal of attention in the Washington state building at the Lewis and Clark exposition. The big tree from which the 13-foot section was cut grew in Snohomish county, Washington.

The cross section is about a foot thick, with the upper surface polished, so that it makes an excellent floor. On it are several other cross sections of smaller trees, which do service as chairs. They are of cedar. Some of the stumps thus utilized are cut off and polished to form stools, while others have been so carved as to make a comfortable chair with a back.

The oddest feature of this exhibit is a typewriter desk made of a single fir log standing on end. The log forms a cylinder about four feet high and three feet thick, with a polished top. One side has been cut away underneath, so that there is plenty of room for the stenographer's knees.

In another part of the Snohomish section a log six feet in diameter has been used to make a seat. The log has been carved so that a post a foot in diameter is left in the center to form a back, and the effect is similar to that produced when a seat is built around a tree.

Our own Jack Eastman has got Willie Hearst skinned seventeen ways for Sunday when it comes to running a strictly "Yellow" Journal.

Between electing a governor and tearing up the Great Northern track between this city and St. Hilaire last week, John Eastman was busier than a rabbit.

The Crookston Times sizes up the talk of closing all saloons in Indian territory as a "pipe dream", pure and simple. The Times has likely hit the nail squarely on the head, but nevertheless the story has furnished fair news material.

The Crookston Journal is in a hard row. It claims that its contemporary, the Times, has been tearing down its mail boxes and the wrath and indignation over the state of affairs has been poured forth hot foot from the Journal shop this week. On top of all this trouble, now comes a $10,000 law suit, and its a dead cinch that the Journal wont have to hunt for excitement during the next few weeks.

It is to be hoped that the conclusions drawn in the following from the Thief River Press are correct, and that Minnesota Republicans have learned a lesson. The Press says: "What difference does it make whether Gov. Johnson sticks to his pledge not to run for governer next year or not? Minnesota Republicans are not going to sit idly by and see a Democrat slide into the chair again when they have any amount of good men to fill the position with credit to the party and to the state. The Republican majority is too over-whelming to give even so popular a man as Johnson a fighting chance under ordinary conditions. No one will dispute the fact that Johnson owes his election entirely to existing conditions and circumstances within the Republican ranks. These conditions do not exist now, and will probably never exist again. We have profited by experience "

THE CITY ELECTION.

About two months remain until it will be up to the voters of Red Lake Falls to choose new officers for the next two years, and in view of existing conditions it behooves the people to see that no mistake is made in the selection, as we may expect during the coming term to have unusual duties thrust upon the mayor and his colleagues, and a man with proven sound judgment is the only one to think of choosing. There are several men among our business people who would make ideal officers, but from the fact of his past experience and proven good judgment, The Gazette believes that Mayor John Duffy should be re-elected without opposition. He has handled the affairs of his office in first-class shape, and has demonstrated that he is the logical candidate. For councilmen it is likely that the present council will be returned intact, although this early in the game Alderman Crompe, of the Third ward, says he will not make another race for the place. Mr. Crompe has served two terms as councilman, and his work in behalf of his ward and the city at large has been commendable. It is likely that there will be several aspirants for the place from the Third ward, in case Mr. Crompe declines to run and will not accept, but this ward is the largest in town and can be depended on to use good judgment in the selection of a successor to Mr. Crompe.

The balance of the council will likely accept the offices again, but a new alderman at large is to be elected, Alderman Hatten having left,

This early in the game there is no talk of a scrap, as the general opinion is that the present officials have conducted the city's affairs in good shape, but two months is a long time and there is no telling what may turn up.

PLUMMER

(From the Pioneer.)

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Latta went to Minneapolis on Saturday to take in the Fair returning on Wednesday night.

E. J. Haneright, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, left on Wednesday for Winnipeg and from there went to the Portland Exposition. He spent several days here with C. H. Foy looking over farm lands in this vicinity. Mr. Foy remained to close a few good sized deals with Julius Pleth.

Wm. Robinson went to St. Paul on Saturday evening and remained until Wednesday night taking in the State Fair and visiting with old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Swenson were out from Red Lake Falls on Thursday on their way to visit friends further east. They had their hunting paraphernalia along but found game rather scarce,

John A. Rothsten and J. E. Buskirk went out to Equality on Wednesday. Mr. Rothsten was on a cattle buying expedition and Mr. Buskirk took his shot gun along to investigate the chicken crop,

Roy V. Shute, of the Bovey Shute Lumber Co. was a visitor here on Monday. He was on a hunting trip with some friends and stopped here to look over the business done at the local lumber yard.

Buttermaker Wm. Lauritzon spent Wednesday and Thursday at the State Fair. The Plummer Creamery did not have any butter at the Fair but the tub sent from here to the monthly scoring contest in the state department ranked second in its class with a score of 93½. This is a most excellent showing for this creamery.

It is much to be regretted fact that some young fellows ranging in age from 15 to 20 years, were to be seen on our streets last Saturday under the influence of liquor. The furnishing of intoxicating liquors to minors is something that should be stopped and every good citizen should use his utmost endeavor to the end that the law be enforced in this respect,

While at the State Fair this week Wm. Lauritzon purchased a young Guernsey bull, which he will have shipped here some time in December. The Guernsey breed are famous as dairy cattle and Mr. Lauritzon's purchase was made with a view to improving the breed of cattle in this vicinity where dairying bids fair to become the leading industry,

On last Friday night a deal was closed whereby Chas. H. Foy, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, became the owner of the Robinson property on the corner of Minnesota street and Central Avenue, part of the consideration being the Aamoth farm in section 15, of Wyandotte which Mr. Foy recently purchased from Julius Pleth. Mr. Foy will take possession of the property on Nov. 1st.

KILLED BY SON-IN-LAW

Polk County Farmer Kills His Aged Father-In-Law With A Pitchfork Handle Saturday Afternoon.

As the result of several blows over the head from a pitch fork handle in the hands of his son-in-law, Fred Wilde, John Kismann, about 60 years of age, died at the Wilde farm in Polk county at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. The blows were struck Saturday afternoon about 5 o'clock. Wilde was hauling an engine near the house and the team mired. He used a pitchfork to goad them and Kismann remonstrated which resulted in the attack upon the old man, Kismann was knocked now but later made his way to the house, washed his face in a watering trough and then went into the house and upstairs to his room where he went to bed and died 8 hours later. No doctor was called and Wilde never saw the old man that night. Wilde went to Euclid, and after returning home went to bed and Mrs. Wilde remained up with her father. He died at 1 o'clock and the authorities at Crookston were notified Monday Coroner Chesterman causing the arrest of Wilde.

Dr. Just made an examination of Kismann Monday and discovered a fracture on the right side of his head two and one half inches long and another transverse fracture an inch in length

Wilde went to Crookston Monday and an officer later accompanied him back home and returned here with him later, lodging him in jail that evening where he is now held awaiting the result of the inquest, The wife of the deceased is in Germany, where he left her six years ago to accompany his daughter here where he intended making his home, the family being in poor circumstances in the old country.

According to some reports Kismann was of a quarrelsome disposition but this is denied by others. Mrs. Wilde is said to be nearly frantic with grief, and lays the blame of her father's death at her own door, claiming that she should never have brought him to her home.

The reports regarding the tradegy are numerous and it will be difficult to secure all the important details and incidents in connection with the terrible tradegy till after the conclusion of the inquest.

Crookston Times: The coroners jury called yesterday to examine the remains of John Kismann deceased, who was killed at the Wilde farm in the town of Parnell on Saturday afternoon returned the following verdict:

We the undersigned jurors at the coroners inquest over the remains of John Kinsmann do hereby return the following verdict; That the above named John Kinsmann came to his death by the blow of a pitchfork in the hands of one Fred Wilde. That the blow which caused the death of the said John Kinsmann was struck by said Fred Wilde on the said Fred Wilde's farm in section 5, town of Parnell, Polk County, Minnesota on Saturday afternoon September 9th at about 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mrs. Wilde, Lizzie Wilde, a sixteen year old girl who witnessed the entire tradegy and a neighbor who was present during the trouble between the two men were the only witnesses called and the state was represented at the hearing by County Attorney James Maybury. The little girl stated that the horses had mired near the barn and that one of them had got down, when her grandfather came across the field from the straw stack where he had been working with a fork. The neighbor saw Kinsmann remonstrate with Wilde for beating his horses with the pitchfork handle and saw the old man struck by his son-in-law. He could not remember the number of times the fork was wielded on the old man but stated "several". Mrs. Wilde's examination was short and bore more upon the action of her father after his injury at the hands of his son-in-law and of his death. The little girl, Lizzie, testified that she did not know the old gentleman was dead until the next morning at breakfast. She is not a daughter of the imprisoned man but was adopted several years ago.

Incredible Brutality.

It would have been incredible brutality if Chas. F. Lemberger, of Syracuse, N. Y., had not done the best he could for his suffering son. "My boy," he says, "cut a fearful gash over his eye, so I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which quickly healed it and saved his eye." Good for burns and ulcers too. Only 25c at W. A. ST. HILAIRE

[From the Spectator.]

Christ Heil drove down to Red Lake Falls last Thursday to attend to some business.

Miss Lydia Anderson left for the Moorhead Normal last Monday evening.

Miss Clare Hoff, who has been spending the summer at Tacoma and Portland, is expected home today.

John J. Soll returned on Tuesday from Fosston where he had been hunting for several days with fair luck.

Isaac Soreoleil and son who have been visiting relatives here for the past two weeks, left on Wednesday for their home at Stillwater.

Miss Mabel Hannay, who has been visiting her brother and seeing the Portland fair for the past month, returned on Tuesday to take her position as primary teacher in the village schools.

There is still a large amount of grain left uncut, particularly west of here, and it will take at least a week more of dry weather before they can get on the fields with binders,

The business men of Wylie and the farmers of the surrounding country will meet the state railroad and warehouse commissioners and the Great Northern officials at St. Paul on Sept. 18th, and the future destiny of that village will be made a special order.

Wm. Eickhoff and wife, B. E. Burkee and wife, K. O. Gigstad and Miss Josie Gigsted drove over to Hazel last Monday morning and took the train for Erskine where they spent the day visiting friends, returning the same evening.

Are you lacking in strength and vigor? Are you weak? Are you in pain? Do you feel all run down? The blessing of health and strength come to all who use Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents. W. A. Schreiter.

George L. Austin received a telegram the first part of the week stating that the tub of butter which he had sent to the state fair had scored 94 per cent. Mr. Austin is well pleased with the showing as the tub sent was out of a churning of several hundred pounds and some of the cream was several days old. All who received a score over 92 are entitled to a cash prize, but as there were over 400 entries it will not amount to much.

Dr. V. Pleth, of Crookston, was a south bound passenger here last evening.

Miss Catherine Pirath went down to Red Lake Falls last evening to visit her parents,

Miss Emma Hoff left last Monday for Moorhead where she will enter the state normal school.

Wm. Eickhoff went down to Neilsville last Wednesday evening to look over the work on the big ditch,

Miss Therese McCaffery left last Monday for Moorhead where she will attend the normal the coming year,

Good advice to women. If you want a beautiful complexion, clear skin, bright eyes, red lips, good health, take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, There is nothing like it. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. W. A. Schreiter.

President O'Brien and Recorder Gigsted went down to Red Lake Falls last evening to confer with the county board in regard to getting help for fixing the North bridge.

The wheels and pilot of the engine was liberally smeared with sticky mud and each car wheel had all it could hold. The conductor looked the train over for a minute and said "We just came from Mud Lake Falls."

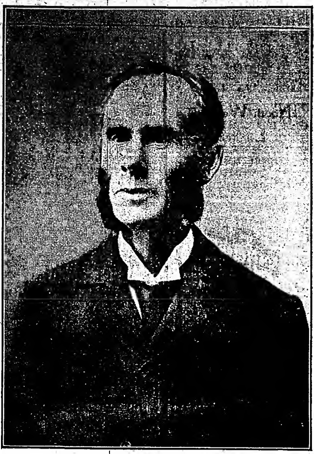
Rheumatism, gout, backache, acid poison, are results of kidney trouble. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea goes directly to the seat of the disease and cures when all else fails. 35 cents. W. A. Schreiter.

The creamery officials have not yet issued their statement for August, but it will be nearly as flattering as were those for June and July. It is almost certain that the twenty-cent price will be maintained but the volume of business will be a little smaller, less than 20,000 pounds being made. Considering the condition of the country roads and the busy season of the year, the showing is quite remarkable.

The village schools started Tuesday with the largest attendance ever recorded on the opening week. The seating room is now almost all taken and some provision must evidently be made if the usual increase in previous years in attendance continues. The enrollment in grades is as follows: Miss Hannay, 39; Miss Gigsted, 38; Miss Pirath, 44; Miss Pettengill, 38; Miss Westlund, 26, and Mr. O'Brien, 26, making a total of 212 pupils. The teachers and pupils started to work with their usual push and vigor and this school year promises to be the best in attendance and results obtained of all previous years.

Startling Mortality.

Statistics show startling mortality, from appendicitis and peritonitis. To prevent and cure these awful diseases, there is just one reliable remedy, Dr. King's New Life Pills. M. Flannery, of 14 Custom House Place, Chicago, says: "They have no equal for Constipation and Biliousness." 25c at W. A. Schreiter druggist.



PROF. THOS. SHAW.

CHICAGO. SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.—In securing Prof. Thomas Shaw of Minnesota as Northwestern editor, live-stock authority and grain expert, Orange Judd Farmer has scored a decided hit. Prof. Shaw needs no introduction. He is known all over the United States and Canada, wherever agriculture is practiced. Coming of Scotch parents, born in Canada, educated in the Canadian schools, he was well equipped to take up the splendid life work he has so successfully carried on. His early experience as a farmer, followed by those of a teacher, professor of agriculture and editor, supplemented by wide travel and observations, gives him a marvelous amount of material from which to draw. In addition to all this he is a man of highest character and sterling worth. He has the esteem and respect of every one with whom he is acquainted. With such an equipment, Prof. Shaw is preparing to do the highest type of editorial work. The Orange Judd Company publications relieve him of all details and he will be perfectly free to prepare and complete many series of articles on live stock and grain topics—articles which can be absolutely depended upon. The best scientific practices will be enumerated in his articles from time to time. He will be a personal friend and helper.

Prof. Shaw will continue writing agricultural Books. His list is already large, including Weeds and How to Eradicate Them; Forage Crops Other Than Grasses; Soiling Crops and the Silo; Animal Breeding; Sheep Husbandry; Study of Breeds; Polishing Gems; Grasses and How to Grow Them; Clovers and How to Grow Them (in press), and almost ready for publication: Cultivated Crops and How to Grow Them; Root Crops and How to Grow Them, and Finding Pearls. Other agricultural books are badly needed on topics with which Prof. Shaw is perfectly familiar. These will be forthcoming from time to time. He is in great demand as a lecturer. He comes to his new work with great enthusiasm, realizing the wonderful opportunities for doing good. Herbert Myrick, Editor-in-Chief, in speaking of Prof. Shaw's acquisition to Orange Judd Farmer's already strong editorial forces, says: "Yet, above his remarkable abilities, I place Prof. Shaw's character—I may be old fashioned, but I insist upon character, integrity and purity in my fellow editors. Perhaps this property would make more money if we were less scrupulous in our departments, but I place character above wealth.

The mother and child are doing finely, and The Gazette joins with the people of the city in extending earnest congratulations.

Crookston Times: Rasmus Muri, who lives near Felton but has been working near Red Lake Falls met with a serious accident Wednesday. It seems that he is subject to epileptic fits, and while he was on his way to Felton by team one of his spells came upon him. He fell through the hay rack and got caught between the wheel and box in such a way that he was almost skinned alive before the team stopped. Dr. Gronvold was called and found, in addition to the unfortunate man's other injuries, one rib broken. The accident occurred near the Ole Sersland place south of Gary. Though most painfully injured it is thought that the man will entirely recover.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climate conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists A. L. Reichert.

New Towns in North Dakota.

The extensive railroad building now being done in North Dakota has brought tributary to railroad facilities an additional vast area of the rich agricultural sections of northern and western North Dakota. The Great Northern railway is building a number of new extensions from its main line northward notably that of the Sarles extension of the Edmore line, the Thorne extension running north from York, the Maxbass extension running northwestward from Towner, and a further extension of the Westhope line to Antler.

The building of these new lines has brought into being a number of new towns which are fully described in a pamphlet recently issued by the Great Northern railway. By application to Mr. F. I. Whitney, Passenger Traffic Manager, St. Paul, Minn., a copy of these pamphlets "New Extensions in North Dakota" or "New Towns in North Dakota" will be mailed to any address. 6w

Millionaire's Poor Stomach.

The worn-out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the vile attendant on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years. August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. THE OLD ORCHARD.

How It May Be Treated So as to Restore It to a Profitable Basis.

As an orchard, it had always been a failure. The trees had come from the refuse of an abandoned nursery. Ninety-nine men in a hundred would not have taken the trees as a gift and the one remaining man took them because they were cheap.

For 30 years a part of the trees stood and grew. The others died, most of them early. Occasionally they produced apples, but did not take this as the serious part of their existence. The chief purpose was to encumber the ground, making it less valuable for other purposes and of no account as an orchard.

In course of time the farm had a change of owners. The new man had an idea. The orchard was not profitable, but it had never been fairly treated. Good trees could not be made from poor stock, but there was a possibility of bringing about a better condition than then existed.

The soil was a light, gravelly loam, not a good place for an apple. Moreover, the laid had been exhausted by continual cropping for many years. This, with poor stock in the beginning, had resulted in stunted, half-starved trees.

The first step was to plow the ground in the spring and sow to rye. When it had grown large enough to afford pasture, hogs were turned in, who wallowed down the green straw and gathered some lard into themselves. The next year the ground was again plowed and sown, and the hogs called in for the harvest. Four times was this repeated, to the great satisfaction of the animals and, as it proved, to the benefit of the trees.

It was by that time evident that a change had taken place. The trees grew as they had never grown before. There was fruit in abundance, too. The orchard come up smiling with its burden on "off" years when it was good to have apples. It bore every year and was the most profitable part of the farm.

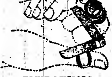
A part of the original orchard was fenced off and received such treatment as trees usually receive in a cultivated field given up to the ordinary farm crops. After six or seven years they did not look as though they could have been set at the same time with their more thrifty neighbors.

If potash and phosphoric acid had been applied the results should have been still better, remarks the Ohio Farmer. As it was, the ground received a supply of much needed humus and such other fertility as come from pasturing. Results as good or better might be obtained by many from orchards now considered unprofitable.

FRUIT SCISSORS.

New Invention Which Would Simplify the Task of the Fruit Gatherers.

George Towers, Canyon City, Col., has patented a fruit scissors, comprising two blades pivoted together with sleeves to engage the thumb and fingers, and readily snap the fruit stems.



FRUIT SCISSORS.

Sod-Bound Trees.

Sod bound trees are not very common, but they are to be met with. When a tree has made a good growth and has spread out its top to cover its feet there is little danger of its becoming sod bound, for the branches of the tree catch most of the sunshine and the grass growth below is meager. The sod bound condition comes when the tree is either very young or so old that the leaves are thin and few. The young tree that is set in grass ground and has never obtained a very good hold of the ground is the one most likely to become sod bound, which means that the roots of the grass have taken possession of the soil and are taking most of the plant food and moisture. Such a tree can be relieved only by digging out the grass and giving its roots the entire use of the ground.—Farmers' Review.

Sheep in the Orchard.

If the trees are protected by some means, sheep are as useful for picking up fallen fruit as pigs are, perhaps more so. They are on hand when an apple falls, while the hogs may be asleep in the shade. The apple ought to be devoured promptly before the worm has had time to crawl out. It is nearly ready to do so before the apple falls, and does not lost much time afterwards. This will suggest the importance of prompt action if the codling moth is to be kept down. Give the animals a chance at the little fruit that falls early, and so dispose of the greater part of the insect crop. By these means the number of the moths can be greatly reduced, but the fight must be kept up every year.—Ohio Farmer.

Peach Tree Borer.

Any signs of the peach tree borer present? Perhaps you have not thought of him lately. Well, if you haven't, now would be a good time to get busy and investigate. He may be at work upon some valuable tree that does not show any visible suffering as yet, but if the destroyer is not removed the signs will develop very prominently ere long.—Midland Farmer.

USE OF OIL ON COURSES.

Shown by Experiments on Automobile Racing Tracks to Be Beneficial.

New York.—Experiments in oiling roads and tracks for automobile competition would indicate that it is a success when carefully and scientifically done. There has long been a difference of opinion on the score and most of the trotting tracks have objected to the use of oil on the ground that it hurts the track by making it too hard for the horses.

President Speare, of the Bay State Automobile association, which conducted the races at the Readville, Mass., track on Decoration day, directed the oiling of the course two days before the meeting in such a manner as to satisfy the automobilists by keeping down the dust and without dissatisfying the horsemen, as evidenced by the report made by Secretary Jewett, of the trotting course.

"The first time automobile races were held here the track was wet from the rain and the machines did not do it much harm. Last year it was dry and dusty and we lost tons and tons of clay, probably $1,000 worth at least during their races.

"The dust made the event distasteful to everyone. It was almost determined last year to use oil, but at the last moment I weakened, some of the directors being bitterly opposed to it. They were afraid of the odor. That did not worry me, but I was afraid the oil might have a detrimental effect on the footing.

"This year we put about 6,000 gallons of oil on the track. The automobile races were held two days later, and there was very much less dust than is usual even at horse races. In fact, there was none to speak of. The oil entirely eliminated that drawback.

"I was afraid that the oiled surface would not pack—that instead of our usual hard surface we would have a brittle and cuppy one. But I believe that the track is better than it was before the oil was used. In proportion to the surface covered there was very little oil used. The dust on the track absorbed it and it did not penetrate.

"That oiled dust now makes a perfect cushion, free from dust, nothing to blow away, while the footing under it is hard and as perfect as ever. I do not know how oil would work on other soils, but on ours it has acted in a way that has delighted me."

GIRL BECOMES SOLDIER.

Takes Part as Man in Boer War Spectacle, But Succumbs to Strain.

New York.—Uncensored and hurried in transmission there came out of the fighting front of the Transvaal at Brighton Beach the other night a dispatch stating that Private Frederick McKenzie, of the Imperial Yeomanry, who has been taking part in the mimic charges and battles at the Boer war spectacle, is none other than a young woman, Mrs. Martha Bennett, masquerading as a man.

Weeping, she confessed to Capt. Albert Roser that she had enlisted for the spectacle under her brother's name and by virtue of his discharge papers, hoping thereby to earn enough money to return to her home in Ireland.

She trusted to a close resemblance to her brother to escape detection. The description of the brother in the discharge papers brings to the mind's eye a person not unlike the woman. Her hair had been cropped close, soldier fashion, to make the masquerade all the more real.

It was in the afternoon, according to the courier who brought the news to the correspondents' tent at Coney Island, that the woman's secret became known. Broken down by the hard work of the mimic fighting, she had applied for a leave of absence. Cept. Roser noticed her delicate hands all torn and bruised, and said that Private McKenzie did not appear to have been inured to hardship.

"Forgive me, captain, for deceiving you," she said. "I'm not Private McKenzie, but his sister, Mrs. Martha Bennett." And then between sobs she told of her desire to earn money enough to return to her home in Ireland. She came to this country three years ago, she said, bearing with her the discharge papers of her brother, made out at Aldershot. So that there might be no question of this, the original papers were shown to the Coney Island correspondents.

Mrs. Bennett will receive her leave of absence, and on her return will have a place in the hospital corps of the Boer war.

Royal Russian Incomes.

Boris and Cyril, with their mother, Grand Duchess Vladimir, have an income of about $15,000,000, chiefly derived from the forests and coal mines in the south of Russia. The 33 Russian grand dukes own 350 castles and palaces in Russia and abroad, and support an army of about 20,000 servants. Quite one-fortieth of the best land in European Russia belongs to these parasites. In the Ural mountains, Siberia and the Pacific coast they have obtained immense concessions, rendering most of them wealthy beyond the dreams of avarice. Of these 33 six, it is stated, have so little education they can barely read and write.

Indian Birth Rate.

For the first time in the history of Canada, the Indian returns published by the Dominion government show that the birth rate among Indians last year was considerably greater than the death rate. This may be taken to indicate that the Indians of North America will not become extinct in time, as some suppose.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

542 1-2 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 27, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

WHAT LIVING COSTS.

BUREAU OF LABOR WILL DETERMINE THE EXPENSE.

Investigation Covering the Year of 1904 Will Ascertain Retail Prices of Necessaries.

Washington.—Has the cost of living increased or decreased? Has the rate of wages been raised or lowered?

These are questions which will be answered by the bureau of labor, which is now conducting a most elaborate investigation of the above economic interrogatories.

The report will show the entire year of 1904. In making the investigation on which these data are to be based a great army of men has been employed. It is an investigation into the cost of living of working men's families and into the retail prices of staple articles used by such families. The object is to determine the cost of housing, fuel, lighting, food, clothing, etc., of the ordinary family in the United States.

There is also an investigation into retail prices which is to determine the changes in the prices of staple articles of food for a period of years and thereby determine as nearly as possible the changes in the cost of living in 1904, compared with other years covered.

As showing how the bureau of labor works, it may be stated that its agents, in gathering material for the report on the year 1903, canvassed 2,567 families, and prepared a series of tables. The first table showed that these families consisted of an average of 5.31 persons, .7 persons above the average of private families in the whole country, as shown by the census of 1900. No effort was made to select large families, the only basis of selection being that the head of the family must be a wage worker or a salaried man earning not more than $1.20 a year. The average incomes for the year of these families from all sources was $827.19. The average expenditures for all purposes was $768.54, and the average expenditure for food was $326.90.

Then followed tables showing the average quantity and cost to the family of various articles of food and the average total of expenditure and the personal items that entered into the cost of living.

In taking up its report as to the retail prices of food the bureau of labor had the investigation cover the entire period from 1890 to 1903. It took the prices for each of those years of 30 different articles and it finally worked out the relative price of food, weighted according to the average family consumption. It then worked out the per cent of increase or decrease in retail prices of various articles for 1903, as compared with previous years, and finally figured out the average cost of food for each family for each of the years under investigation, based on the relative retail prices of food weighted according to family consumption.

By this means Col. Wright arrived at the conclusion that the average cost of food per family in 1900 had been $318.20. In the year 1896, the year of lowest prices, it fell to $296.76; in 1902 it reached the highest point of the period, $344.61; while in 1903 it fell slightly, to $342.75.

In making its report on the state of wages and the hours of labor the bureau took probably 5,000 different establishments throughout the country, which include 500 or 600 different occupations.

The data of the report for the year 1903 included 3,429 different establishments and 519 different occupations. No reference whatever is made by the bureau to wages and hours of railway employes, farm laborers or coal miners. The interstate commerce commission furnished data as to railway wages and the agricultural department is supposed to investigate the compensation of farm laborers. It was found to be impossible to get any accurate data in the coal regions as to wages of miners, because most of the work in the coal mines is done by contract.

MAPLE SYRUP CHRISTENING

Vermont Petitioners Demand Saccharine Baptism for Battleship.

Cleveland.—At the Quincy, Mass., shipyards there is soon to be launched a goodly battle ship bearing the grand old name of Vermont. Comes then a mighty throng of petitioners demanding that the vessel be christened with a bottle of maple sirup. Here is the chance to slay three birds with one chunk of granite. The demon rum—under its special and enticing form of champagne—gets a black eye; the golden product of Vermont's forests receives a valuable advertisement and the state assumes her rightful place beside her saffron sisters. Let the good work go on. The Kansas shall be christened with unstandardized oil; a bottle of cigarette antitoxin shall be smashed across the Indiana's bow. Smear the Chicago from stem to stern with beef trust lard; let the Milwaukee be made famous anew with a foaming stein.

Two Signs of Progress.

Probably the first Indian divorce in the country was filed in Montana the other day. There is evidence that the red man is rapidly adopting the customs of the whites. When the baseball season arrived he deserted her and went off with the white team. This is further evidence.

Dudish Attire.

After refusing them for 30 years a Taney county man named Willets has has begun wearing socks. He threatens to whip anybody who calls him a dude.

PALACES OSCAR HAS LOST.

Royal Residences and Civil List of Swedish King Were Exceedingly Modest.

London.—When the Norwegian storthing, by a simple decree, declared the union with Sweden dissolved and that the king of two countries had ceased to act as king of Norway, the material loss of King Oscar and the royal family of the Bernadottes was not so great as might seem at the first blush. The union has been more nominal than real and the golden link of the crown has never been particularly solid. King Oscar has, indeed, at one stroke lost nearly half of his subjects and considerably more than one-third of his territory, but in Norway the monarchy has never drawn from the state revenues an excessive income. King Oscar has never encouraged a lavish expenditure in the management of his court and a modest civil list, supplemented by a moderate private fortune, has sufficed for the needs of the royal family, which has in many respects formed habits of democratic simplicity.

The civil list of King Oscar as king of Sweden is about $363,710, and the royal family enjoys also an annuity of about $82,000, voted to King Carl XIV. and his successors on the throne of Sweden. Norway allowed the monarch a civil list much less than half that granted by Sweden, about $136,250, on which to maintain the royal dignity.

By law King Oscar was bound to pass six weeks annually in Norway. Until recently—and it must be remembered he is in his seventy-seventh year—he attended every year the opening of the Norwegian storthing, and on his visits to Norway resided in one or the other of the royal residences at Christiania, the royal palace and his county seat, Oscarthal.

The royal palace, situated on an eminence in the western part of the city, was built in 1822-1848, and with the gardens did not cost more than $122,000, voted by the storthing.

The private apartments contain paintings and sculptures by Norwegian artists, most of which were presented to the king and queen on their silver wedding in 1882. The throne-room contains portraits of Oscar I. and Queen Josephine, besides other members of the royal family.

The second royal residence ("Oscar's Hall") makes a favorite excursion for visitors to Christiania, as it is beautifully situated on the Christiania fjord, two miles from the city. It was built in 1847 by King Oscar I., in Anglo-Gothic style. It was sold by Charles XV. to the government, but was set apart for the use of the reigning monarch. The painter Tidemand is well represented by some of his characteristic pictures of Norwegian peasant life. In the grounds are to be seen antique Norwegian buildings, an old Norwegian church, dating from the twelfth century, and typical farmhouses of the country.

LOCKSMITH WAS TRICKED.

Betrayed by a Man Who Employed Him to Open His Door.

New York.—A German locksmith in Harlem had a call one night recently from a young man who said that he'd lost his keys and wanted to get into his house quietly. The locksmith went with the young man to a house near by and set to work on the lock.

"There's no use of my hanging around," said the young man. "I'm going to the corner for a drink. When you get through whistle."

The German stuck to his task and in ten minutes he had the way clear. Then he whistled.

The young man came up. The locksmith said he wanted two dollars for his work. He was told to come around in the morning. As he knew some of the occupants of the house he consented. The young man walked into the house and the German went home.

Next morning he went around for his money. The house was full of cops. He stayed long enough to hear that the house had been looted and then made tracks for his shop.

"WIDOW'S MITE" IS FOUND

Ancient Coin Recently Picked Up on a Farm Near Berlin, Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis.—Experts of the University of Wisconsin hold that an ancient small coin picked up in a field of the Allard farm near Berlin by Anton Disterhoff is a genuine "lepton" or "widow's mite" of Bible times.

The coin is copper, three-eighths of an inch in diameter, with a design representing two cornucopias and a poppy on one side and an inscription on the other, "Jonathan, the high priest, and the senate of the Jews," in Greek.

The coin, when found, was inclosed in a small metal box and is supposed to have been lost by one of the French missionaries who visited Wisconsin in the early half of the seventeenth century. It was worth about one-twentieth of an American penny, but now has considerable value, as it is one of very few in existence.

Mississippi Bloodhounds.

The state of Mississippi is to go into the dog-breeding business, limited to one class—bloodhounds. Several recent failures to run down escaping criminals with bloodhounds and some mistakes made by the hounds in tracking the wrong persons have convinced the officials of the need of improving the breed, the hounds being hitherto hired as occasion demanded from local parties. Mississippi has now bought the finest bloodhounds within its borders, and will start a state pack.

CRIMINAL MICROBE.

GERM OF CRIME FLOURISHES DURING SUMMER HEAT.

City of Paris Disturbed Over Unusual Prevalence of Criminality—Efforts of the Police to Abate It.

Paris.—Just as when the earth temperature rises to a certain degree it is supposed to release the germs of infectious disease, so the criminal microbe seems to be especially active in the summer heats. It is, perhaps, not really so, from a statistical point of view, but, at any rate, it is a microbe that gets itself more talked about than in the winter, when there are other matters to occupy the attention of the newspapers. At this moment, with the Grand Prix over and the fashionable life in the Boise on the wane, we are rapidly approaching the silly season, when Paris criminality reaches its high-water mark in the columns of the "Faits Divers." Of a truth there is reason for a certain disquietude at the prevalence of crime, not only at this moment, but during the whole round of the 12 months.

The central parts of Paris are well and adequately policed, but the suburbs and the outer regions are in a deplorable condition of insecurity. No other conclusion can be come to from the long series of attacks upon the person, murders, robberies and violations which have been set forth in the police news during the last 18 months. A case in point is the shocking assassination of the English governess, Miss Charlotte Cary, which is now occupying the attention of M. Hamard and his sharpest detectives. That such a deed is possible in broad daylight and at the very gates of Paris is no compliment to the police arrangements. I hasten to say that the police themselves are not necessarily to be condemned; rather, on the contrary, it is the limited budget, or grant, that is at fault. The police service is starved for want of funds, a condition, by the way, which is not singular to Paris.

The organization of the cycle police has brought a certain amount of order and security into some districts, but they cannot obviously perform quite the same service as the foot police. Too much license is unfortunately given to the creatures belonging to a detestable class which preys upon women and supplements its evil earnings by an occasional robbery or murder. Numbers of these utterly worthless members of society are to be seen on any fine afternoon sunning themselves on the fortifications, which are the especial haunts of the malefactor. One of the first measures toward rendering the town and environs of Paris secure would be the suppression of these ill-favored loafers, whose characters and occupations are well known to the police.

Short of Draconian laws against these people there are other measures to be taken that should result in some amelioration of the summer crime of Paris. Appeal should be made to the good taste and patriotism of certain journals who specialize in criminal details, whose daily dole of murder, suicide and spoliation is a succession of stimulation to the weak-brained to go and do likewise. The theaters, too, are not without blame. Lately we have seen a series of positively horrible dramas, one in which a woman is strangled before the audience in the most realistic manner and in much the way in which the poor English woman appears to have met her death. There is too lenient an eye cast on incitements to crime, and that is, I believe, the cause of a great deal of it. No wonder a deputation from the city council is urging the government to abolish public executions, which is the apotheosis and glorification of the criminal. Without advertisement he would largely cease to be.

DIRTY TOWELS FOR SOLONS

Lavatory Appropriation Was Unwittingly Killed by the Last Congress.

Washington.—Members of the Fifty-ninth congress have just discovered that congress, in a fit of absent-mindedness during the last session, struck out the appropriation that provides the clean towels used by members in the performance of their daily ablutions. In the last appropriation bill there was an item of $25,000 for "miscellaneous items." Certain persons employed under that appropriation were obnoxious and they were legislated out of office by the insertion of a proviso reading: "Exclusive of salaries and labor." The washing of the enormous number of towels used on the house side is paid for out of this appropriation.

On the morning of July 1 the new legislative act went into effect and the clerk of the committee on accounts promptly decided that washing towels was "labor" and, therefore, could not be paid for out of an appropriation that expressly forbids any payment for labor. The matter was referred to the comptroller of the treasury, from whose decision there is no appeal, and he took the same view. The question now is how is the Fifty-ninth congress to get its towels?

Crop Estimates.

The New York broker does not care very much whether the crop is scanty and prices high or abundant and prices low so long as he keeps on the profitable side of the market. But the government has gone into the crop estimating business to protect the producer, and the producer kicks like a mule when the figures do not suit him. The reply of Secretary Wilson to the New York cotton trade when they protested against his figures implied that he was mainly concerned to serve the interests of the producers.

GOOD RECRUITING FIELD.

The Door City to the West Gets First-Class Men for Uncle Sam's Army.

Kansas City, Mo.—The local army and marine recruiting stations have, in the past six months, enlisted more than 625 men in the service. The army station, of course, takes the larger part of the recruits, but the marine service has been strengthened by 153 men from Kansas City and vicinity since January 1.

Sergt. J. R. Thompson, in charge of the marine office here, has not been looking for new men for the past two months. The marine corps has been full and only the most desirable applicants have been examined. The corps is to be greatly enlarged in the next few months, however, and, beginning to-day, Sergt. Thompson wants to send out 50 men a month.

The army station has been kept busy all the year. On average 80 men a month have been sent to army posts throughout the United States. About one-third of these were old soldiers who reenlisted. These recruits have been fairly evenly divided among the cavalry, infantry and artillery. A good number have been sent to the engineer, hospital and signal corps.

The class of recruits sent out from here has been exceedingly good, the recruiting officer says. Very few of the army recruits have to draw out clothing before they are sent to their post.

"Most of the men we take in the marine corps," said Sergt. Thompson, "are well dressed and have money. We try to keep out all the other kinds. When a man comes in here wearing respectable clothes and carrying himself as though he meant business, we encourage him to join. When a slouchy, tough-looking man who needs a shave and a bath comes shuffling in and asks: 'What yer payin'?' we don't rush up and grasp his hand as we would had he looked frankly at us and said: 'I want to enlist; can you send me to-day?'"

"Farmers make the best recruits," said Sergt. J. A. Stanley, of the army station. "We get lots of men from the little towns within 100 miles of Kansas City, and they are always the right kind. They are strong, willing to work and are happier at an army post than a city man is."

A naval recruiting station will be opened here in a few weeks.

STOP WHITE SLAVE TRADE

European Countries Agree to Suppress the Importation of Girls.

Berlin.—The Reichsanzeiger publishes the details of the treaty entered into between 12 European countries, which, having been duly ratified, went into effect July 18. The contracting states obligate themselves to establish each a bureau for the collection of information regarding the solicitation of women and girls for immoral purposes abroad. These bureaus are to exchange information among themselves and a strict watch is to be kept particularly at large railway stations and sea ports, to detect persons engaged in the white slave trade. Efforts are to be set on foot among fallen women for the purpose of obtaining information about those engaged in the traffic.

The contracting states further obligate themselves financially to assist girls enticed abroad to return home. Agencies and persons advertising positions abroad for women are to be subjected to special police attention.

Most of the signatories include their colonies, but Germany, Great Britain, Denmark and Spain reserve decision regarding their colonies until a later period.

The Reichsanzeiger also prints the proclamation issued by Imperial Chancellor Von Bulow announcing that the treaty has been ratified and is in effect.

While no American state is party to the treaty, it is understood that efforts to suppress the trade will apply equally to those who try to entice girls to North or South America.

CARP IN CABBAGE PATCH.

Extraordinary Crop Raised by a Farmer in New York State.

Canandaigua, N. Y.—Eight hundred carp in a cabbage patch will give a slight idea of the number of these fish in Canandaigua lake. The connection may not at first be plain, but it must be understood that the lake and the cabbage patch are adjacent.

Thomas Rafferty, who owns a farm on the east shore of Canandaigua lake, about three miles from the village, went out to his cabbage patch the other day and found it covered with dead and dying carp, some of them of ten or fifteen pounds weight. They had invaded the land during the high water of Sunday and had been left stranded by the receding waters.

Rafferty didn't consider this a piece of good luck. He could not get rid of the fish all alone, and soon his neighbors came to him with loud complaints and threats to have him indicted for maintaining a nuisance. Finally he called on the village board of health for aid. There were more 800 of the fish.

Optimism Up-to-Date.

A Harvard alumnus of some distinction, at a recent fraternity dinner, gave a definition of optimism that hasn't heretofore been published, but which is good enough for print. He declared that he was an optimist, but not one of that extreme type who, if falling from the top of the Flatiron building in New York, would be able to say as he passed each story: "Well, I'm all right up to date!"

The Gazette learns just as it goes to press that Ralph Wyer will shortly leave Red Lake Fal's for Toronto, Canada under a very flattering offer from Mr. Savage of the International Stock Food Co. owner of Dan Patch His position as assistant cashier in the First State Bank will be taken by Mr. C. J. Hansen who has purchased an interest in the bank and who is already favorably known to our citizens.

Messrs. Frank and Fred Suttor, of Chatam, Ontario, were guests of their brother, James Suttor, near Wylie, Sunday and Monday of this week, taking the train here Monday evening for their home. The two gentlemen had just returned from an extensive tour of the western Canada, and only had time to stop off for a couple of days with their brother. Though short the visit was hugely enjoyed by the genial Jim, and they promised to make a longer stay next time they come this way.

Attendance Large.

The first week of school closed Friday evening, and the results were highly satisfactory. The crew succeeded in getting the stretch of track through this city in pretty fair shape and unless the fall brings forth a whole lot of rain the roadbed will remain in satisfactory shape.

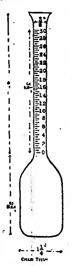
CREAM TEST BOTTLE.

New Design Which Will Make the Testing of the Cream More Accurate.

The increased interest in cream testing during the past two years has brought out several new cream-test bottles, says Prof. F. W. Woll, of the Wisconsin station. This has been largely caused by the extensive use of farm separators and the furnishing of cream instead of milk to the creameries. The testing of cream as a means of determining the amount of butter fat sent to a creamery by its patrons is a much more difficult process than the testing of whole milk, because the percentage of fat being larger than in milk, the errors of cream testing are greater; the amount of fat separated is often six times as great from cream as from milk. Experiments have shown that it is not safe to measure the cream into the test bottle with a pipette, as milk is measured, on account of the light fat of the cream, and because it does not drain from the pipette so completely as milk. These two facts make it impossible for a 17.6 c. m. milk pipette, which delivers 18 grams of milk, to measure out this weight of cream into test bottles, in order to determine accurately the percentage of fat in different samples of cream. The last legislature passed a law making weighing of cream samples obligatory in this state, wherever payments of cream are made on basis of the fat content of the cream.



Manufacturers have been placing cream-test bottles on the market for a number of years. They are made of the same length as the milk-test bottles, and while the bulbs of the two bottles are about the same size, the neck of the cream bottle is much larger in diameter. This gives an opportunity for testing as much as 30 per cent. fat in the cream-test bottles when 18 grams of cream is used. For some unknown reason the manufacturers have been gradually increasing the diameter of the neck, thus contracting the length of the scale on the cream-test bottles so that in some cases the entire graduation, from 0 to 30 per cent. occupies a space of only two inches in length. This brings the lines of the scale very closely together, so that the graduations which represent one-half per cent. of fat are not much farther apart than the width of an ordinary lead pencil mark. With such test bottles, it is almost impossible to read a test accurately to much less than one per cent. fat.

Realizing the difficulty thus introduced, a cream-test bottle made of the dimensions shown in the diagram has been suggested by Farrington. This bottle is of the same length as a milk-test bottle, but in order to give it a longer neck than cream-test bottles usually have, the capacity of the bulb has been reduced to 45 c. c. up to the zero mark of the scale, instead of 55 c. c., which is the capacity of the bulb of the old cream-test bottles. This size of bottle is amply large for mixing the cream and acid before whirling the test bottles in the centrifuge. The necks of many cream-test bottles on the market are only about three inches long, while those of the new cream bottle are at least four inches long. The graduations of the neck on this bottle are so far apart that it is easy to read one-fourth per cent. fat. The scale representing one per cent. on the new cream-test bottle is as long as that of two per cent. in the old bottles.—P. C.

The Sick Cow.

The sick cow should not be permitted to remain with the other cows, for in many cases the disease with which a cow is sick is a contagious one, but this is not always discernible at the time the cow is first taken sick. Milk from a sick cow should not be used, even for the feeding of farm animals. Give the animal the benefit of free air and moderate sunshine and deprive her of food for awhile, unless it be some sickness whose character is known. Often the sickness is merely the result of too high feeding. If the ailment is a very serious one it will pay better to call a veterinarian than to risk not doing the proper thing for the relief of the animal.—Farmers' Review.

The Main Thing.

No matter how skilled we may be in breeding and making nicks, crosses and cut-crosses, the main thing with the cow is her feed, and unless she and her offspring are fed enough and well, the granddaughter will be a scrub and dear at most any price.

Breed for Winter Calves.

If you will breed part of your cows to come fresh in the winter you will find it profitable. A farmer who makes really good butter, can sell it for 35 and 40 cents all winter to private customers.

TOO LITTLE GOOD BUTTER.

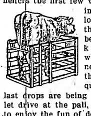
A Plea for Improvement of the Grade of the Farm-Made Product.

The consumption of butter is increased by the increase of the general quality. There is a general complaint that there is too little good butter on the market and too much poor butter. If this applies to creamery butter it applies much more to farm-made butter. The American public is always ready to pay for a product of good quality, but it turns away from a product of poor quality. This is so probably more in this country than in any other. No matter how poor the American may be he wants the best. Sometimes if he cannot pay for it he runs in debt for it rather than take a poorer quality, for which he could pay. This is so not only in the case of butter, but in the case of almost everything else. The result is that a poorly made product of any kind sells slowly even at a low price. The problem in this country is to manufacture good products, for those only can be marketed without loss.

When a man sends poor butter to market to be sold on commission he is taking big chances with it, says the Farmers' Review. As it is not a "quick sale," as the commission men say, it will be held in store longer than the other butter. Much of this time it is exposed to currents of air warmer than the required temperature of the refrigerators, for it must be often examined by possible buyers. The triers are run into it often and when the surface is covered with several signs of this kind the would-be buyers become suspicious of it, for they recognize the fact that other men have passed adverse opinions on it. It gets rancid in a short time and some of it has finally to be disposed of as grease.

TO MANAGE KICKING COWS

Stall in Which They May Be Safely Milked, While at the Same Time Breaking Them of Habit.



Kicking is a fault common to young heifers the first few weeks after calving. If it is allowed to continue they soon learn to become habitual kickers, than which I know of nothing meaner as they will stand quietly until the last drops are being drawn, and then let drive at the pail, and really seem to enjoy the fun of doing it. Kicking at flies in summer is also as great a cause of kicking as rough milking. This should never be allowed.

A heifer's teats are very tender and she should always be milked very gently by the full hand, says the Farm and Home. The teat should never be jerked, or pulled as in "stripping," especially when the bag is full. Extreme gentleness in every way the first few weeks will usually make a gentle cow. Often the animal is timid and shrinks from being handled, and also resents interference with what she considers the sole rights of her calf. In all cases of kicking I have one unfailing remedy, whether the cow is young, or an old habitual kicker.

Make a slatted stall just high enough so she can't jump out and wide enough to hold her comfortably, with nothing to spare, narrower at the end where a feed box should be placed as high from the ground as is comfortable for her to eat out of. This slatted stall should be long enough to have cleats through which a bar or two should be run behind the cow to keep her from backing out, and also places to run a bar in front of her hind legs about the thick joint, or as high up as possible, so as not to interfere with milking. A hole about 18 or 20 inches wide is left open for this purpose from the ground up to the cow's flank, which allows easy and safe access to the udder, while the cleat, post, etc., prevent the cow from kicking outwardly at the milker, thus insuring safety to milk and milker.

This stall or break does not hurt the cow at all, but it teaches her to stand still, and also that she can't kick if she wanted to. Usually a few weeks' use of this break makes a gentle cow, especially if fed while she is being milked. Old kickers may always have to be milked in it, although I have broken several from kicking. They are usually good cows and can be bought cheap.

DAIRY HINTS.

Clean up the dairy quarters, vessels, tools, milkers and animals.

Sixty pounds of good butter is worth 20 bushels of wheat to-day.

Don't make the mistake of crowding your pasture grass too early.

Be not stingy with the salt. It costs less than once cent a pound, and should therefore be placed where at all times it is convenient for the stock to get it.

Does your churn smell as sweet as the new-mown hay after you have made ready to set away after using? Don't be satisfied to let it go if it does not. Nice butter depends on just such little thing as this.

Danish Dairymen.

The Danes are great dairymen, and there are no people in the world that pay more attention to their cows than do these people. A traveler that has spent some time in Denmark says that all the stables he visited had concrete floors and were fireproof. Water was in abundance and could be used in any quantity for the washing out of the stables. Danish dairymen like to know what their cows are doing, and in many of the stables keep a tablet behind each cow giving data relative to the cow, while a slate bears the dairy record of pounds of milk produced and sometimes its test.

Nine Nations
Now Use Liquozone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquozone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some-one whom Liquozone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquozone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquozone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

CHANGE IN THE BANK

Important Change Made In The Management of The First State Bank Of This City.

As briefly announced in last week's Gazette, an important change has been made in the First State Bank of this city, and one that means the succession of a new man to take the place of Ralph E. Wyer, who has been assistant cashier for several years.

The new assistant is Mr. C. L. Hansen, for several years agent for the Watkin's Medical company in this county, and a young man who has a very large acquaintance, and who is looked upon as being an excellent business man and all-around fine fellow. Mr. Hansen has purchased considerable stock in the institution, is well versed in the banking business and will surely make a very popular successor to Ralph Wyer, whose good work has meant much to the bank.

Cashier Theo. Garceau also purchased more stock in the bank, and Mr. Hansen and Mr. Garceau will certainly make a team of officers hard to beat.

Ralph E. Wyer, the retiring officer, will go to Toronto, where he will be identified with the immense manufacturing establishment owned by W. M. Savage, the owner of the famous Dan Patch. The Toronto institution is fast becoming one of the greatest in the East, and Ralph is indeed fortunate in being able to get into a firm that has the future before it that this one has.

Ralph has been a resident here most of the time since his boyhood days, and was looked upon as a permanent fixture in Red Lake Falls, and it was with genuine sorrow that the people learned of his plan to leave, although with the knowledge that the change means so much to R. E. they feel in a measure compensed for the loss.

Ralph is the type of young man that is bound to succeed. Possessing a keen business judgment and excellent knowledge of the commercial world, he will go into the new work with a vim, and it is safe to predict that he will make a success.

To both the retiring and succeeding members, and to the excellent bank itself, The Gazette takes pleasure in earnestly hoping for the highest success, and trusts that all will benefit as a result of the change.

WORK IS HUMMING.

New School House Fast Assuming Proportions.

A Gazette reporter called at the sight of the new North Side school house this week, and was surprised to see how rapidly the building is coming along. The concrete basement is entirely finished, and the brick-layers are making things hum on the wall, which already begins to loom up in great shape. With a continuance of the present beautiful weather the building will be hurried to rapid completion, and the furniture installed so that it will be ready for use before snow flies.

The new building will be a credit to the city, and the school officers anxiously await its completion.

A Guessing Contest.

Berthon & Armstrong, the popular clothing dealers, have inaugurated a unique guessing contest for boys this week, and a couple of youngsters of the city will wear new suits as a result of their originalty. They have placed a large ball of twine in their show window, and every boy wearing short pants is entitled to a free guess as to the number of feet contained in the ball. A $5 suit will be given to the boy guessing nearest to the number of feet, and a $3 suit to the next nearest. The ball will be measured and prizes awarded Oct. 10. WYLIE GETS SERVICE

Railroad Commission Decides That Red Lake County Town Is Entitled To Train Service.

Congressman Halvor Steenerson of Crookston, attorney for Wylie and the people of that vicinity in the recent contest against the Great Northern Railway for service over the branch line from St. Hilaire to Wylie have received the decision of the railroad and warehouse commission on the matter.

The commission decides that the people of Wylie and vicinity are entitled to the service asked for from St. Hilaire to that place daily except Sunday in the form of a mixed train.

The decision is as follows:

That, at the present it is unnecessary in the opinion of the commission to furnish over the entire line from Shirley to St. Hilaire, but that the people of Wylie, and vicinity are reasonably entitled to service that said railroad company is now furnishing.

It is therefore ordered that the Great Northern Railway Co. operate a mixed train, both ways, daily except Sunday between St. Hilaire and Wylie, so as to make reasonable connections with the regular freight and passenger service on their line between Crookston and Greenbush, until the further order of the commission.

Wylie people are rejoicing over the decision, and the people throughout the county will be pleased to learn that they have won out.

BUILD NEW VAULT.

Court House Committee Plans Storage Vault For Auditor.

The court house committee of the board of commissioners were in session several days this week, planning some improvements on the court house property here.

The most important matter under consideration was the erection of a vault to accommodate the books, etc., of Auditor Ford and Judge Tarrant, and the committee have decided to have one built in the auditor's office for this purpose. The new vault will be made thoroughly fire proof, and will be built large enough to accommodate the office for many years to come.

The improvement is one that has long been needed, and will relieve the safes of their cramped condition and make a safe place for the records of the office.

Tearing Up Track.

The track between Crookston and Wylie is being torn up by the Great Northern company, and John Eastman's dream of the abandonment of the line through this city vanished like the dew before the morning sun. By the order of the railroad and warehouse commission, however, Wylie will get daily train service, the freight backing down from St. Hilaire.

N. P. WRECK AT FERTILE

Northern Pacific Freight Goes In The Ditch And Delays Traffic A Few Hours Monday.

Monday night at 9:30 the extra east bound freight on the Northern Pacific took a header one mile south of Fertile and six cars were bunched up at the scene of the accident. No one was hurt. Number ninety-three was howling down the grade coming from the north when suddenly the trainmen looked back to discover that a bunch of cars out of the middle of the train had left the track and piled up down the steep embankment at that place.

The cause of the wreck was the falling of one of the sand boards that hang the side of the train. Upon falling the board fell beneath the wheels and threw the first car from the track followed by the remaining five that came immediately behind.

The wreck tied up traffic for a few hours, but no one was hurt.

BRIGHT LAD DIES.

Little Sylvester Helm Called To The Unknown Shore.

Sylvester, the bright little seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Helm, of this city, died Monday morning, after a three weeks' illness with a complication of diseases.

The lad was quite seriously ill for several days at the time he was taken to his bed, but had gained fairly well and it was thought that he would recover, until late last week a turn for the worse came, and despite all earthly assistance, the spirit returned to it's Maker, death coming early Monday morning.

Sylvester was an exceptionally bright and loving little fellow, and while not only strong physically was very active and well, and his death came as a great shock to the many playmates and warm friends of the little fellow throughout the city.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from St. Mary's church, the remains being interred in St. Mary's cemetary.

To the grief stricken family, the tender sympathy of the community is extended.

An Appreciated Testimonial.

Crookston Times: With its last issue the Red Lake Falls Gazette passed the twenty-second milestone of its existence, and now enters upon its twenty-third year of usefulness in Red Lake Falls and Red Lake county.

The Gazette is certainly one of the newsiest and most enterprising weekly papers published in the state. It is loyal to its home town and its home county and has played an important part in the upbuilding of one of the richest commonwealths in the great state of Minnesota. The weekly paper is a necessity and fills a place of its own. There are good weeklies and bad ones but the Gazette is in the former class strong. Hosts of contemporaries throughout northern Minnesota will wish it continued prosperity.

PEACE NOW ASSURED

SWEDEN AND NORWAY WILL NOT GO TO WAR OVER QUESTIONS AT ISSUE.

Delegates of Both Countries Engaged in Discussing the Terms for Dissolution of the Union Reach a Compromise Agreement Regarding Demolition of the Fortresses and the Arbitration Treaty.

London, Sept. 18.—The Karlstad correspondent of the Times says that on Friday the Swedish commissioners intimated their willingness to meet the desire of the Norwegian commissioners for the simultaneous treatment of both questions at issue, by offering to allow the stipulation regarding an arbitration treaty to form part of an agreement for the demolition of the forts and to come into force at the same time. Since then, the correspondent says, details regarding the question of demolishing the fortresses have been under discussion, but the situation is now clear and there is every hope that it will have a rapid and satisfactory solution.

UNFORESEEN DIFFICULTIES.

Appear for Solution at Swedish-Norwegian Conference.

Karlstad, Sweden, Sept. 18.—The Norwegian and Swedish delegates sat in conference from noon until 2 o'clock and from 5 until 7, at which time they adjourned for the day.

The question of fortifications is still being discussed and some unforeseen difficulties have appeared. It is expected that the discussion will be concluded Wednesday and the preliminary result will then be submitted to the riksdag and the storthing. The riksdag's approval of the results of the negotiations is sure, but that of the storthing is doubtful, especially if the Norwegian delegates yield on the questions concerning the forts.

IN A PEACEABLE WAY.

Norway and Sweden to Adjust Their Difficulties.

Washington, Sept. 18.—Reliable information has reached the department of state that in a few days Sweden and Norway are expected to report an amicable settlement and adjust their differences in a peaceable way. The consideration and settlement of details has caused delay.

ARRANGE ARMISTICE

RAIN CONTINUES IN SOUTHWEST.

Total Downfall of Ten Inches Since Sept. 1.

Kansas City, Sept. 18.—Rain has fallen in Kansas City and vicinity every day excepting one in September, with a total downfall to date of ten inches in seventeen days, and there is no prospect of immediate cessation. Practically the same conditions have prevailed throughout Western Missouri, especially in the northwestern corner of the state, and in a portion of Eastern and Central Kansas. As a result all streams in this part of the country continue to rise and railroad traffic is becoming demoralized because of numerous washouts.

ACCEPT THE OLD WAGE SCALE.

Union Freight Handlers at Chicago Will Not Strike.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—The Chicago union freight handlers voted Monday to accept the old wage scale and conditions which have prevailed for two years and agreements to that effect were made with nineteen railways against which strikes have been threatened the past ten days. All the freight handlers will begin work Tuesday under the renewed contracts with no chance for a strike until the expiration of the agreements a year hence.

MILD CASE OF TYPHOID FEVER.

Physicians Finally Agree Upon Baron Komura's Malady.

New York, Sept. 19.—It turns out that, after all, Baron Komura, the Japanese envoy, who is ill at the Waldorf-Astoria, has typhoid fever. His physicians agreed on the diagnosis Monday, but said it was a mild case of typhoid. The final diagnosis may alter the plan to start westward with the baron on Oct. 2.

Snow at Cripple Creek.

Cripple Creek, Colo., Sept. 19.—Several inches of snow fell here Monday. The snowfall was preceded by a high wind that blew down several buildings, including a large ice house.

NOT SO MANY NEW CASES.

Fever Report at New Orleans More Favorable.

New Orleans, Sept. 18.—Following is the official yellow fever report up to 6 p. m. Sunday:

New cases, 24; total cases to date, 2,571; deaths, 2; total deaths, 335; new sub-foci, 6; cases under treatment, 323; cases discharged, 1,913.

The Sunday reports are usually lighter than week days, but it was not expected that it would run as low as it did.

This leads to the hope that the reports next week will be much lighter than they were last week. Among the new cases were Dr. Shanaley of Barratria, the physician who is in charge of the District of Upper Barratria. He moved to that territory from North Dakota a few years ago and owns a small plantation there. He had only a light case.

WILL KEEP HIS ENGAGEMENT.

President Roosevelt to Visit New Orleans Oct. 24.

New Orleans, Sept. 19.—President Roosevelt has sent a message to Mayor Behrmann in which he said that he expected to arrive in that city on Oct. 24 and that he should do so if the people wanted him to come then. If they wanted him to come later he would make a second trip to visit Louisiana and Arkansas. He intended to do whatever the people of New Orleans and Louisiana wished subject to the quarantine regulations of other states through which he would afterward pass.

FEVER IN THE NORTH

SEVERAL HUNDRED REFUGEES FROM LOUISIANA ARRIVE AT CINCINNATI.

Cincinnati, Sept. 16.—At least five persons having yellow fever arrived here on a special train over the Queen and Crescent line during the day. The train consisted of 200 refugees from Lake Providence, La., and Tallulah, La., who were fleeing from the yellow fever.

Fifty of the party of 200 are absolutely penniless, though each carried a lot of hand baggage. These fifty gathered together in a group at the Grand Central station. Congressman R. E. Ransdale of Lake Providence, La., was on the train and he and his family rendered every assistance to the stranded crowd of fifty.

TOPIC IS OUTLAWED.

Further Discussion of Tainted Money Barred.

Seattle, Sept. 16.—By a vote of 46 to 10 the American board of commissioners for foreign missions has gone on record as being opposed to a further discussion of "tainted money" in any of its phases.

This vote was not taken, however, until the question had been threshed out in all its phases and the leading Congregationalists of America had voiced their sentiments on the subject.

MILL BLOWN TO BITS

FIVE MEN KILLED AND TEN INJURED BY BOILER EXPLOSION AT PINCONNING, MICH.

Pinconning, Mich., Sept. 16.—By the explosion of an alleged defective boiler in the stave mill of Edward Jennings here five men were killed and eight or ten injured, two of them so seriously that they will probably die. The dead are: Richard Gifford, Burt Bell, Charles Easter, William Alpin and Fred Nichols. Easter and Alpin were married men and leave families.

The explosion came without the slightest warning to the workmen and the destruction of the mill was complete. Portions of the wreck were scattered about for several hundred feet.

Thirty men were at work in the mill when the explosion occurred. The concussion was so terrific that windows were broken a mile from the mill. The bodies of the five men killed were badly mangled.

PRESIDENT URGES HASTE.

These remarks have just been transcribed and transmitted to the board here and General Davis, its chairman, has been authorized to make them public.

IN CANADIAN WATERS

AMERICAN FISHING TUG FIRED UPON BY THE DOMINION CRUISER VIGILANT.

More Than Thirty Shots Hit the Vessel, Doing Considerable Damage to the Upper Works and Slightly Injuring Two Men—Episode the Fourth of the Kind Reported by American Sailors Within a Week.

Erie, Pa., Sept. 18.—The fourth of the fishing tug episodes of the past week took place in midlake Sunday when the Canadian cruiser Vigilant riddled the big steam tug Harry G. Barnhurst with small shells from rifles on the patrol boat. Captain Nichol Fassel admitted afterward that the Vigilant could have sent him to the bottom if Captain Dunne had so desired. They ran more than eight miles under full head of steam before they crossed the boundary line and escaped from the Canadians. More than thirty shots struck the vessel and of these three small shells landed with telling effect on the upper works, so that the boat careened to one side with the mass of wreckage when she came into port.

Having been used formerly for a pleasure steamer, the Barnhurst was well fitted up for accommodations.

Two fishermen were cut in the face by splinters shot away by bullets. The Barnhurst, according to Captain Fassel, was about five miles over the line drawing nets when the Vigilant appeared. Captain Dunne ordered the Barnhurst to stop, but instead of doing so Captain Fassel put on full steam and started for the line. He could not be headed by the Vigilant.

It has become quite the custom for the Erie fishermen to cross the line, regardless of strict orders from the companies employing them. They never think of surrender when there is a chance to run away. The Barnhurst lost a large quantity of nets.

AID FOR REPUBLICANS

NEW YORK LIFE CONTRIBUTED $48,000 TO CAMPAIGN FUND IN 1896, 1900 AND 1904.

New York, Sept. 15.—On the stand during the afternoon in the insurance investigation George W. Perkins produced a check for $48,000 drawn by the New York Life Insurance company Dec. 30, 1904, payable to J. P. Morgan & Co. Mr. Perkins testified that this check was a contribution to the national Republican committee and was promised to Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer of the committee.

Mr. Perkins said the same thing was done in 1896 and 1900. The reason for these contributions, he said, was that the company feared its assets would be endangered in case of Democratic success.

DEATH LIST REACHES NINE.

Result of Explosion and Fire at Avon, Conn.

Avon, Conn., Sept. 16.—The list of deaths by the explosion and fire which destroyed the Climax fuse works here now numbers nine, two of the injured having died during the night. The latter were Charles Dimock and Miss Nora Ryan, both of whom were severely burned. Another of the injured, Charles Legayt, is not expected to live.

The exact cause of the accident may never be known, but it is the accepted theory here that in an effort to burn out a stoppage in one of the machines a workman caused an explosion of a fuse with the hot iron he held in his hand.

The dead are: Ray Anderson, Carl Peterson, Theodore Young, all of Indianola, and Blaine Wright, Pleasantville.

The tent was crowded at the time by people who had entered it to escape the rain. The lightning struck the tent pole, split it wide open and radiated over the entire tent, tearing it into shreds. Four occupants were instantly killed, half a dozen were burned, perhaps fatally, and a dozen men, women and children were stunned. Thousands of chickens in the coops were killed. Rescuing parties went to work at once, cleared away the wreckage and removed the dead and injured. Physicians were called and sent from Des Moines.
